PREFACE,

As it was published in the Year 1562.

ONSIDERING how necessary it is, that the Word of God, which is the only food of the foul, and that most excellent light that we must walk by, in this our most dangerous pilgrimage, should at all convenient times be preached unto the people, that thereby they may both learn their duty towards God, their Prince, and their neighbours, according to the mind of the Holy Ghost, expressed in the Scriptures, and also to avoid the manifold enormities which heretofore by false doctrine have crept into the Church of God; and how that all they which are appointed Ministers have not the gift of preaching fufficiently to instruct the people, which is committed unto them, whereof great inconveniences might rife, and ignorance still be maintained, if fome honest remedy be not speedily found and provided: the Queen's most excellent Majesty, tendering the souls health of her loving fubjects, and the quieting of their consciences in the chief and principal points of Christian religion, and willing also by the true fetting forth and pure declaring of God's Word, which is the principal guide A 2 guide and leader unto all godliness and virtue, to expel and drive away as well corrupt, vicious, and ungodly living, as also erroneous and poisoned doctrines, tending to fuperstition and idolatry, hath by the advice of her most honourable Counsellors, for her discharge in this behalf, caused a Book of Homilies, which heretofore was fet forth by her most loving Brother, a Prince of most worthy memory, Edward the Sixth, to be printed anew, wherein are contained certain wholesome and godly exhortations, to move the people to honour and worship Almighty God, and diligently to serve him, every one according to their degree, state, and vocation. All which Homilies her Majesty commandeth and ftraightly chargeth all Parsons, Vicars, Curates, and all others having spiritual cure, every Sunday and Holy-day in the year, at the mi-nistering of the holy Communion, or if there be no Communion ministered that day, yet after the Gospel and Creed, in such order and place as is appointed in the Book of Common Prayers, to read and declare to their parishioners plainly and distinctly one of the faid Homilies, in fuch order as they stand in the book, except there be a Sermon, according as it is enjoined in the book of her Highness' Injunctions; and then for that cause only, and for none other, the reading of the faid Homily to be deferred unto the next Sunday or Holy-day following. And when the forefaid Book of Homilies is read over, her Majesty's pleasure is, that the same be repeated and read again, in fuch like fort as was before prescribed. FRUITFUL EXHORTATION

TO THE

Reading and Knowledge of holy Scripture.

JNTO a Christian man there can be nothing either The praise more necessary or profitable, than the knowledge of holy of holy Scripture, forafmuch as in it is contained God's Scripture. true word, fetting forth his glory, and also man's duty. And there is no truth nor doctrine necessary for our justi-The perfecfication and everlasting falvation, but that is, or may be, tion of holy drawn out of that fountain and well of truth. Therefore The knowas many as be defirous to enter into the right and perfectledge of howay unto God, must apply their minds to know holyly Scripture Scripture; without the which, they can neither fufficient-is necessary. ly know God and his will, neither their office and duty. And as drink is pleasant to them that be dry, and meat To whom to them that be hungry; fo is the reading, hearing, the know-fearching, and studying of holy Scripture, to them that ly Scripture be defirous to know God, or themselves, and to do hisis sweet and will. And their flomachs only do loathe and abhor the Who be heavenly knowledge and food of God's word, that be foenemies to drowned in worldly vanities, that they neither favourholy Scrip-God, nor any godlines: for that is the cause why they ture. defire fuch vanities, rather than the true knowledge of God. In these books we shall find the Father from our falva- whom, the Son by whom, and the Holy Ghost in tion. whom, all things have their being and keeping up; and

What things we may learn in the holy Scripture.

In these books we may learn to know ourselves, how vile and miferable we be, and also to know God, how good he is of himself, and how he maketh us and all creatures partakers of his goodness. We may learn also in these books to know God's will and pleasure, as much as, for this prefent time, is convenient for us to know. And, as the great clerk and godly preacher, St. John Chryfostom, faith, whatfoever is required to the falvation of man, is fully contained in the Scripture of God. He that is ignorant may there learn and have knowledge. He that is hard-hearted, and an obflinate finner, shall there find everlasting torments, prepared of God's justice, to make him afraid, and to mollify or soften him. He that is opprefied with mifery in this world shall there find relief in the promifes of everlasting life, to his great confolation and comfort. He that is wounded by the Devil unto death shall find there medicine whereby he may be restored again unto health; if it shall require to teach any truth, or reprove any false dostrine, to rebuke any vice, to commend any virtue, to give good counsel, to comfort or exhort, or to do any other thing requifite for our falvation, all those things, faith St. Chrysostom, we may learn plentifully of the Scripture. There is, faith Fulgentius, abundantly enough, both for men to eat, and children to fuck. There is whatfoever is meet for all ages, ture mini- and for all degrees and forts of men. These books thereficreth fuffi- fore ought to be much in our hands, in our eyes, in our cient doc- ears, in our mouths, but most of all in our hearts. The words of holy Scripture be holy Scripture be bring-called words of everlasting life: for they be God's instruent. ment, ordained for the same purpose. They have power Luke x. to turn through God's promife, and they be effectual through God's affiftance, and (being received in a faithful heart) they have ever an heavenly spiritual working in John vi. them: they are lively, quick, and mighty in operation, and sharper than any two-edged sword, and enter through, Heb. iv. even to the dividing afunder of the foul and the spirit, of the joints and the marrow. Christ calleth him a wife builder, Matt. vii. that buildeth upon his word, upon his fure and fubstantial foundation. By this word of God we shall be judged: for the word that I speak, faith Christ, is it, that John xii. Shall judge in the last day. He that keepeth the word of Christ, is promised the love and favour of God, and that he shall be the dwelling-place or temple of the blessed John xiv. Trinity. This word whofoever is diligent to read, and in his heart to print that he readeth, the great affection to the transitory things of this world shall be minished in him, and the great defire of heavenly things (that be therein promifed of God) shall increase in him. And there is nothing that fo much strengtheneth our faith and trust in God, that so much keepeth up innocency and pureness of the heart, and also of outward godly life and convertation, as continual reading and recording of God's word. For that thing, which (by continual use of reading of holy Scripture, and diligent fearching of the fame) is deeply printed and graven in the heart, at length turneth almost into nature. And moreover, the effect and virtue of God's word is to illuminate the ignorant, and to give more light unto them that faithfully and diligently read it, to comfort their hearts, and to encourage them to perform that, which of God is commanded. It teach- 1Kings xiv. eth patience in all adverfity, in prosperity humbleness; 2 Chron. what honour is due unto God, what mercy and charity i Cor. xv. to our neighbour. And, to be flort, there is nothing that more maintaineth godliness of the mind, and driveth away ungodliness, than doth the continual reading or hearing of God's word, if it be joined with a godly mind, and a good affection to know and follow God's will. For without a fingle eye, pure intent, and good mind, nothing is allowed for good before God. And, on the other fide, nothing more darkties the ignorance of eneth Christ and the glory of God, nor bringeth in more God's word blindness and all kinds of vices, than doth the ignorance of God's word.

The Second Part of the Sermon of the Knowledge of holy Scripture.

IN the first part of this Sermon, which exhorteth to the knowledge of holy Scripture, was declared wherefore the knowledge of the fame is necessary and profitable to all men, and that by the true knowledge and understanding of Scripture, the most necessary points of our duty towards God and our neighbours are also known. Now as concerning the fame matter you shall hear what followeth.' If we profess Christ, why be we not ashamed to be ignorant in his doctrine? feeing that every man is ashamed to be ignorant in that learning which he professeth. That man is ashamed to be called a philosopher which readeth not the books of philosophy, and to be called a lawyer, an aftronomer, or physician, that is ignorant in the books of law, aftronomy, and physic. How can any man then fay that he professeth Christ and his religion, if he will not apply himself (as far forth as he can or may conveniently) to read and hear, and fo to know God's word the books of Christ's Gospel and doctrine? Although other sciences be good, and to be learned, yet no man can deny but this is the chief, and passeth all other incomparably. What excuse shall we therefore make, at the last day before Christ, that delight to read or hear men's fantafies and inventions, more than his most holy Gospel? and will find no time to do that which chiefly, above above all things, we should do, and will rather read other things than that, for the which we ought rather to leave reading of all other things. Let us therefore apply ourfelves, as far forth as we can have time and leifure, to know God's word, by diligent hearing and reading thereof, as many as profess God, and have faith and trust in him. But they that have no good affection to God's Vain exword, (to colour this their fault) allege commonly two cufes diffuading vain and feigned excuses. Some go about to excuse them from the by their own frailness and fearfulness, faying, that they knowledge dare not read holy Scripture, left through their ignorance of God's word. they should fall into any error. Others pretend that the The first. difficulty to understand it and the hardness thereof is so Thesecond. great, that it is meet to be read only of clerks and learned men. As touching the first: Ignorance of God's word is the cause of all error, as Christ himself affirmed to the Sadducees, faying, that they erred, because they Matt. xxii. know not the Scripture. How should they then eschew error, that will be flill ignorant? And how flould they come out of ignorance, that will not read nor hear that thing which should give them knowledge? He that now hath most knowledge, was at the first ignorant; yet he forbare not to read, for fear he should fall into error: but he diligently read, left he should remain in ignorance, and through ignorance in error. And if you will not know the truth of God, (a thing most necessary for you) lest you fall into error; by the fame reason you may then lie still, and never go, lest, if you go, you fall into the mire; nor eat any good meat, lest you take a furfeit; nor fow your corn, nor labour in your occupation, nor use your merchandize, for fear you lose your seed, your labour, your stock, and so by that reason it should be best for you to live idly, and never to take in hand to do any manner of good thing, left peradventure fome evil thing may chance thereof. And if you be afraid to fall into error by reading of holy Seripture, I shall shew you how you may read without danger of error. Read it humbly with a meek How more and lowly heart, to the intent you may glorify God, and commodinot yourfelf, with the knowledge of it: and read it not without all without daily praying to God, that he would direct your peril the reading to good effect; and take upon you to expound it holy Scripture is to be no further than you can plainly understand it. For, as read. St. Augustin faith, the knowledge of holy Scripture is a great, large, and a high place; but the door is very low, fo that the high and arrogant man cannot run in; but he must stoop low, and humble himself, that shall enter into

it. Prefumption and arrogancy are the mother of all error; and humility needeth to fear no error. For humility will only fearch to know the truth; it will fearch, and will bring together one place with another, and where it cannot find out the meaning, it will pray, it will ask of others that know, and will not presumptuously and rathly define any thing which it knoweth not. Therefore the humble man may fearch any truth boldly in the Scripture, without any danger of error. And if he be ignorant, he ought the more to read and to fearch holy Scripture, to bring him out of ignorance. I fay not nay, but a man may profit with only hearing; but he may much more profit with both hearing and reading. This have I faid as touching the fear to read, through igno-Scripture in rance of the person. And concerning the hardness of flrong meat, yet he may fuck the fweet and tender milk, places hard and defer the rest until he wax stronger, and come to more knowledge. For God receiveth the learned and unlearned, and caffeth away none, but is indifferent unto all. And the Scripture is full, as well of low valleys, plain ways, and eafy for every man to use and to walk in; as also of high hills and mountains, which few men can Godleaveth climb unto. And whofoever giveth his mind to holy no man un-Scriptures with diligent fludy and burning defire, it canhath good not be, faith St. Chryfostom, that he should be left without help. For either God Almighty will fend him fome godly doctor to teach him, as he did to inftruct the Eunuch, a nobleman of Ethiopia, and treasurer unto Queen Candace, who having affection to read the Scripture, (although he understood it not) yet, for the defire that he had unto God's word, God fent his Apostle Philip to declare unto him the true fense of the Scripture that he read; or elfe, if we lack a learned man to instruct and teach us, yet God himfelf from above will give light unto our minds, and teach us those things which are necessary for us, and wherein we be ignorant. And in another knowledge place St. Chryfoftom faith, that man's human and worldly

And those things in the Scripture that be plain to under- No man is stand, and necessary for salvation, every man's duty is to excepted learn them, to print them in memory, and effectually to knowledge exercife them. In the mean feafon, if he lack either aptness or opportunity, God will not impute it to his folly: but yet it behoveth not, that fuch as be apt should set aside reading, because some other be unapt to read; nevertheless, for the hardness of fuch places, the reading of the whole ought not to be fet apart. And briefly to conclude, as St. Augustin faith, What perby the Scripture all men be amended, weak men be fons would have ignoftrengthened, and ftrong men be comforted. So that rance to furely none be enemies to the reading of God's word, continue. but fuch as either be fo ignorant, that they know not how wholesome a thing it is; or else be so sick, that they hate the most comfortable medicine that should heal them; or fo ungodly, that they would wish the people still to continue in blindness and ignorance of God.

Thus we have briefly touched fome part of the com-The holy modities of God's holy word, which is one of God's chief Scripture and principal benefits, given and declared to mankind is one of God's chief here on earth. And, by that means, in this world we shall have God's defence, favour, and grace, with the unspeakable solace of peace, and quietness of conscience; and after this miserable life we shall enjoy the endless bliss and glory of heaven: which he grant us all, that died for us all, Jesus Christ, to whom, with the Father and the Holy Ghost, be all honour and glory, both now and everlastingly.

SERMON

OF THE

Misery of Mankind, and of his Condemnation to Death everlafting, by his own Sin.

THE Holy Ghost, in writing the holy Scripture, is in nothing more diligent than to pull down man's vain glory and pride, which of all vices is most univerfally grafted in all mankind, even from the first infection of our first father Adam. And therefore we read in many places of Scripture many notable lessons against this old rooted vice, to teach us the most commendable virtue of humility, how to know ourfelves, and to remember what we be of ourselves. In the book of Genesis, Almighty Gen. iii. God giveth us all a title and name in our great grandfather Adam, which ought to warn us all to confider what we be, whereof we be, from whence we came, and whither we shall, faying thus, In the fweat of thy face shalt thou eat thy bread, till thou be turned again into the ground: for out of it wast thou taken; in as much as thou art dust, into dust shalt thou be turned again. Here (as it were in a glass) we may learn to know ourselves to be but ground, earth, and ashes, and that to earth and ashes we shall return.

Alfo, the holy patriarch Abraham did well remember this name and title, dust, earth, and ashes, appointed and affigned by God to all mankind: and therefore he calleth himself by that name, when he maketh his earnest prayer for Sodom and Gomorrah. And we read that Judith, Esther, Job, Jeremy, with other holy men and women in Jud. iv. 9. the Old Testament, did use sackcloth, and to cast dust and Job xiii. ashes upon their heads, when they bewailed their sinful Jer. vi. 26.

living. They called and cried to God for help and mercy, with fuch a ceremony of fackcloth, duft, and ashes, that thereby they might declare to the whole world, what an humble and lowly estimation they had of themselves, and how well they remembered their name and title aforefaid, their vile, corrupt, frail nature, dust, earth, and afnes. The Book of Wisdom also, willing to Wifd. vii. pull down our proud flomachs, moveth us diligently to remember our mortal and earthly generation, which we have all of him that was first made: and that all men, as well kings as fubjects, come into this world, and go out of the fame, in like fort: that is, as of ourfelves, full miferable, as we may daily fee. And Almighty God commanded his prophet Ifaiah to make a proclamation, and cry to the whole world: and Ifaiah asking, What shall I cry? the Lord answered, Cry, that all flesh is gra;s, and that all the glory thereof is but as the flower of the field: when the grass is withered, the flower falleth away, when the wind of the Lord bloweth upon it. The people furely is grafs, the which drieth up, and the flower fadeth away. And the holy man Job, having in himself great experience of the miserable and sinful estate of man, doth open the fame to the world in these words: Man, faith he, that is born of a woman, living but a short time, is full of manifold miseries: be springeth up like a flower, and fadelb again; vanisheth away as it were a shadow, and never continueth in one flate. And dost thou judge it meet, O Lord, to open thine eyes upon fuch a one, and to bring him to judgment with thee? Who can make him clean, that is conceived of an unclean feed? and all men of their evilnefs, and natural pronenefs, be fo univerfally given to fin, that, as the Scripture faith, God repented that ever .be made man. And by fin his indignation was fo much provoked against the world, that he drowned all the world with Noah's flood (except Noah himfelf, and his little houshold). It is not without great cause, that the Scripture of God doth fo many times call all men here in this world by this word, earth: O thou earth, earth, earth, faith Jeremiah, bear the word of the Lord. This our right name, calling, and title, carth, earth, earth, pronounced by the Prophet, sheweth what we be indeed, by whatfoever other ftyle, title, or dignity, men do call us. Thus he plainly named us, who knoweth best, both what we be, and what we ought of right to be called. And thus he tetteth us forth, speaking by his faithful Aposile St. Paul: All men, Jews and Gentiles, are under fin: there is none righteous, no not one: There is none that understandeth, there is none that seeketh after God: they are all gone out of the way, they are all unprofitable; there is none that doth good, no not one: Their throat is an open fepulchre, with their tongues they have used craft and deceit, the poison of serpents is under their lips, their mouth is full of curfing and bitterness, their feet are swift to shed blood, destruction and wretchedness are in their ways, and the way of peace have they not known: there is no fear of God before their eyes. And in another place, St. Paul writeth thus, Rom. xi. God hath wrapped all nations in unbelief, that he might bave mercy on all. The Scripture shutteth up all under Gal. iii. fin, that the promife by the faith of Jesus Christ should be given unto them that believe. St. Paul in many places painteth us out in our colours, calling us the chil-Ephef. ii. dren of the wrath of God, when we be born: faying also, that we cannot think a good thought of ourselves, much less can we fay well, or do well of ourfelves. And the wife man faith in the Book of Proverbs, The just man falleth Prov. xxiv. feven times a day. The most tried and approved man Job feared all his works. St. John the Baptist being Luke i. fanctified in his mother's womb, and praised before he was born, being called an angel, and great before the Lord, filled even from his birth with the Holy Ghost, the preparer of the way for our Saviour Christ, and commended of our Saviour Christ to be more than a prophet, and the Matth. iii. greatest that ever was born of a woman: yet he plainly granteth, that he had need to be washed of Christ: he worthily extolleth and glorifieth his Lord and Mafter Christ, and humbleth himself as unworthy to unbuckle his shoes, and giveth all honour and glory to God. So doth St. Paul both oft and evidently confess himself, what he was of himfelf, ever giving (as a most faithful servant) all praife to his Master and Saviour. So doth blessed St. John the Evangelist, in the name of himself, and of all other holy men (be they never fo just) make this open confession: If we fay we have no fin, we deceive ourselves, I John i. and the truth is not in us: if we acknowledge our fins, God is faithful and just to forgive us our fins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteougness. If we say we have not kinned, we make bim a liar, and bis word is not in us. Wherefore the Wife Man, in the book called Ecclefiastes, maketh this true and general confession, There is not one just man upon Eccles. vii. the earth, that doth good, and finneth not. And David is Pfalm li. ashamed of his sin, but not to confess his sin. How oft, how

12 The first Part of the Sermon how earnestly, and lamentably doth he defire God's great mercy for his great offences, and that God should not Pfalm exiii. enter into judgment with bim? And again, how well weigheth this holy man his fins, which he confesseth, that they be so many in number, and so bid, and hard to Pfalm xix. understand, that it is in a manner impossible to know, utter, or number them? Wherefore, he having a true, carnest, and deep contemplation and consideration of his fins, and yet not coming to the bottom of them, he maketh supplication to God to forgive him his privy, secret, hid fins: the knowledge of which he cannot attain unto. He weigheth rightly his fins from the original root and fpring-head, perceiving inclinations, provocations, ftirrings, stingings, buds, branches, dregs, infections, tastes, feelings, and fcents of them to continue in him still. Wherefore he faith, Mark, and behold, I was conceived Pfalm li. in fins: he faith not fin, but in the plural number, fins, forafmuch as out of one, as a fountain, spring all the rest. Our Saviour Christ saith, There is none good but Mark x. Luke xviii. God: and that we can do nothing that is good without him, nor can any man come to the Father but by him. He teacheth us in our prayers to acknowledge ourselves sinners, and to ask righteousness, and deliverance from all evils, at our heavenly Father's hand. Therefore few of the proud, just, learned, wife, perfect, and holy Pharifees were faved by him, because they justified themselves by their counterfeit holiness before men. Wherefore, good people, let us beware of fuch hypocrify, vain glory, and justifying of

The Second Part of the Sermon of the Misery of Man.

ORASMUCH as the true knowledge of ourselves is very necessary to come to the God; ye have heard in the last reading, how humbly all good men always have thought of themselves; and so to think and judge of themselves, are taught of God their creator, by his holy word. For of ourfelves we be crab-trees, that ean bring forth no apples. We be of ourfelves of fuch earth, as can but bring forth weeds, nettles. brambles, briers, coekle, and darnel. Our fruits be declared in the fifth chapter to the Galatians. We have Gal. v. neither faith, charity, hope, patience, chastity, nor any thing else that good is, but of God; and therefore these virtues be called there the fruits of the Holy Ghost, and not the fruits of man. Let us therefore acknowledge ourselves before God (as we be indeed) miserable and wretched finners. And let us earneftly repent, and humble ourselves heartily, and ery to God for mercy. Let us all confess with mouth and heart, that we be full of imperfections: let us know our own works, of what imperfection they be, and then we shall not stand foolishly and arrogantly in our own conceits, nor challenge any part of justification by our merits or works. For truly there be imperfections in our best works: we do not love God fo much as we are bound to do, with all our heart, mind, and power: we do not fear God fo much as we ought to do: we do not pray to God, but with great and many imperfections: we give, forgive, believe, live, and hope imperfectly: we fpeak, think, and do imperfectly: we fight against the devil, the world, and the flesh imperfeetly: let us therefore not be ashamed to confess plainly our state of imperfection: yea, let us not be assumed to confess imperfection, even in all our best works. none of us be ashamed to fay with the holy Saint Peter, I am a finful man. Let us fay with the holy Prophet Luke v. David, We bave sinned with our fathers; we have done Pfalm cvi. amis, and dealt wickedly. Let us all make open confesfion with the prodigal fon, to our Father, and fay with him, We have finned against beaven, and before thee, O Fa- Luke xv. ther: we are not worthy to be called thy fons. Let us all fay with holy Baruch, O Lord our God, to us is worthily Baruch ii. ascribed shame and confusion, and to thee righteousness: we have have finned, we have done wickedly, we have behaved ourselves ungodly in all thy rightcousness. Let us all say with the holy Prophet Daniel, O Lord, rightcousness belongeth to thee, unto us belongeth consusting. We have sinned, we have been naughty, we have offended, we have sled from thee, we have gone back from all thy precepts and judgments. So we learn of all good men in holy Scriptures, to humble ourselves, and to exalt, extol, praise, magnify, and glorify God.

Thus we have heard how evil we be of ourselves, how of ourselves, and by ourselves, we have no goodness, help or salvation, but contrariwise, sin, damnation, and death everlasting: which if we deeply weigh and consider, we shall the better understand the great mercy of God, and how our salvation cometh only by Christ. For in ourselves (as of ourselves) we find nothing, whereby we may be delivered from this miserable captivity, into the which we are cast, through the envy of the devil, by breaking of God's commandment in our first parent Adam. We are all become unclean: but we all are not able to cleanse ourselves, nor make one another of us clean. We are by nature the children of God's wrath: but we are not able to Ephef. ii. nature the children of God's wrath: but we are not able to make ourselves the children and inheritors of God's glory.

Pet. ii. We are sheep that run astray: but we cannot of our own power come again to the sheepfold, so great is our imperfection and weakness. In ourselves therefore may we not glory, which, of ourselves, are nothing but finful: neither may we rejoice in any works that we do, all which be so imperfect and impure, that they are not able to stand before the righteous judgment-feat of God, as the Pfal. exliii. holy Prophet David faith, Enter not into judgment with thy firwant, O Lord: for no man that liveth shall be found rightcous in thy fight. To God therefore must we flee, or else shall we never find peace, rest, and quietness of conscience in our hearts. For he is the Father of mercies, Pfal. cxxx. and God of all confolation. He is the Lord, with whom is plenteous redemption: he is the God, which of bis own mercy faveth us, and fetteth out his charity and exceeding love towards us, in that of his own voluntary goodness, when we were perifhing, he faved us, and provided an everlasting kingdom for us. And all these heavenly treasures are given us, not for our own deserts, merits, or good deeds, (which of ourselves we have none) but of his mere mercy freely. And for whose sake? Truly for Jesus Christ's sake, that pure and undesiled Lamb of God. He is that dearly beloved Son, for whose sake God is fully

pacified, fatisfied, and fet at one with man. He is the Lamb of God, which taketh away the fins of the world; John i. of whom only it may be truly spoken, that he did all I Pet. ii. things well, and in his mouth was found no craft nor fubtilty. None but he alone may fay, The prince of the world came, and in me be bath nothing. And he alone may also say, Which of you shall reprove me of any fault? John viii. He is the high and everlafting Priest, which hath offered bimself once for all upon the altar of the cross, and with Heb. vii. that one oblation hath made perfect for evermore them that are sanctified. He is the alone Media for between God I John ii. and man, which paid our ranfom to God with his own blood, and with that hath he cleanfed us all from fin. He is the Phyfician, which healeth all our difeases. He is that Saviour, which faveth his people from all their fins: Matth. i. to be short, he is that flowing and most plenteous fountain, of whose fulness all we have received. For in him alone are all the treajures of the wisdom and knowledge of God bidden. And in him, and by him, have we from God the Father all good things, pertaining either to the body or to the foul. O how much are we bound to this our heavenly Father for his great mercies, which he hath fo plenteously declared unto us in Christ Jesus our Lord and Saviour! What thanks worthy and fufficient can we give to him? Let us all with one accord burst out with joyful voice, ever praising and magnifying this Lord of mercy, for his tender kindness shewed unto us in his dearly beloved Son Jesus Christ our Lord.

Hitherto we have heard what we are of ourselves; very finful, wretched, and damnable. Again, we have heard how that of ourselves, and by ourselves, we are not able either to think a good thought, or work a good deed, fo that we can find in ourselves no hope of salvation, but rather whatfoever maketh unto our destruction. Again, we have heard the tender kindness and great mercy of God the Father towards us, and how beneficial he is to us for Christ's sake, without our merits or deserts, even of his own mere mercy and tender goodness. Now, how these exceeding great mercies of God, set abroad in Christ Jefus for us, be obtained, and how we be delivered from the captivity of fin, death, and hell, shall more at large (with God's help) be declared in the next fermon. In the mean feafon, yea, and at all times, let us learn to know ourselves, our frailty and weakness, without any cracking or boatting of our own good deeds and merits.

Let.

Let us also acknowledge the exceeding mercy of God towards us, and confess, that as of ourselves cometh all evil and damnation; so likewise of him cometh all goodness and salvation, as God himself faith by the Prophet Hosea, and falvation, as God himself faith by the Prophet Holea, Holea xiii. O Ifrael, thy destruction cometh of thyself: but in me only is thy help and comfort. If we thus humbly submit ourselves in the fight of God, we may be sure that in the time of his visitation, he will lift us up unto the kingdom of his dearly beloved Son Christ Jesus our Lord; to whom, with the Father, and the Holy Ghost, be all honour and glory for ever. Amen.

SERMON

Salvation of Mankind, by only Christ our Saviour, from Sin and Death everlasting.

DECAUSE all men be finners and offenders against D God, and breakers of his Law and Commandments, therefore can no man by his own acts, works, and deeds (feem they never so good) be justified, and made righteous before God: but every man of necessity is constrained to seek for another righteousness of justification, to be received at God's own hands, that is to fay, the forgiveness of his fins and trespasses, in such things as he hath offended. And this justification, or righteousness, which we so receive of God's mercy and Christ's merits, embraced by faith, is taken, accepted, and allowed of God, for our perfect and full justification. For the more full understanding hereof, it is our parts and duties ever to remember the great mercy of God, how that (all the world being wrapped in fin by breaking of the Law) God fent his only Son our Saviour Christ into this world, to fulfil the Law for us, and, by shedding of his most precious blood, to make a facrifice and fatisfaction, or (as it may be called) amends to his Father for our fins, to assuage his wrath and indignation conceived against us for the same.

Infomuch that infants, being baptized and dying in The efficatheir infancy, are by this facrifice washed from their fins, cyof Christ's brought to God's favour, and made his children, and in-patient heritors of his kingdom of heaven. And they, which in act or deed do sin after their baptism, when they turn again to God unfeignedly, they are likewise washed by this facrifice from their fins, in fuch fort, that there remaineth damnation. This is that justification of righteousness which St. Paul speaketh of, when he faith, No man is justified by the works of the Law, but freely by faith in Jefus Christ. And again he faith, We believe in Jefus Christ, that we be justified freely by the faith of Christ, and not by the works of the Law, because that no man shall be justified by the works of the Law. And although this juffification be free unto us, yet it cometh not fo freely unto us, that there is no ranfom paid therefore at all. But here may man's reafon be aftonished, reasoning after this fashion: If a ransom be paid for our redemption, then is it not given us freely. For a prisoner that paid his ransom is not let go freely; for if he go freely, then he goeth without ranfom: for what is it elfe to go freely, than to be fet at liberty without paying of ranfom? This reason is satisfied by the great wisdom of God in this mystery of our redemption, who hath fo tempered his justice and mercy together, that he would neither by his juffice condemn us unto the everlafting captivity of the devil, and his prison of hell, remediless for ever without mercy, nor by his mercy deliver us clearly, without justice, or payment of a just random : but with his endless mercy he joined his most upright and equal justice. His great mercy he shewed unto us in delivering us from our former captivity, without requiring of any ranfom to be paid, or amends to be made upon our parts, which thing by us had been impossible to be done. And whereas it lay not in us to do that, he provided a ranfom for us, that was, the most precious body and blood of his own most dear and best beloved Son Jesus Christ, who, besides this ransom, sulfilled the Law for us perfectly. And so the justice of God and his mercy did embrace together, and fulfilled the mystery of our redemption. And of this justice and mercy of God knit together, speaketh St. Paul in the third chapter to the Romans, All have offended, and have need of the glory of God; but are justified freely by grace, by redemption which is in Jojus Christ, whom God bath fent forth to us for a reconciler and peace-maker, through faith in his blood, to shew his righteousness. And in the tenth chapter, Christ is the end of the Law unto righteoufness, to every man that believetb. And in the eighth Rom. viii. chapter, That which was impossible by the Law, inasmuch as it was weak by the flesh, God sending his own Son in the similitude of sinful flesh, by sin condemned fin in the flesh, that the righteousness of the Larv might be fulfilled in us, which walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit. In these fore-faid places, the Apostle toucheth specially three things, Three which must go together in our justification. Upon God's things must part, his great mercy and grace; upon Christ's part, jus-in our justitice, that is, the fatisfaction of God's justice, or the price fication. of our redemption, by the offering of his body, and shedding of his blood, with fulfilling of the Law perfectly and throughly; and upon our part, true and lively faith in the merits of Jesus Christ, which yet is not ours, but by God's working in us: fo that in our justification, there is not only God's mercy and grace, but also his justice, which the Apostle calleth the justice of God, and it consisteth in paying our ransom, and fulfilling of the Law: and so the grace of God doth not thut out the justice of God in our justification, but only shutteth out the justice of man, that is to fay, the justice of our works, as to be merits of deferving our justification. And therefore St. Paul declareth here nothing upon the behalf of man concerning his justification, but only a true and lively faith, which nevertheless is the gift of God, and not man's only work, without God. And yet that faith doth not shut out repentance, hope, love, dread, and the fear of God, to be joined with faith in every man that is justified; but it shutteth them out from the office of justifying. So that, although they How it is . be all present together in him that is justified, yet they to be under-justify not altogether: neither doth faith shut out the just-faith usitice of our good works, necessarily to be done afterwards of fieth withduty towards God; (for we are most bounden to serve out works. God, in doing good deeds, commanded by him in his holy Scripture, all the days of our life:) but it excludeth them, fo that we may not do them to this intent, to be made just by doing of them. For all the good works that we can do be imperfect, and therefore not able to deferve our justification: but our justification doth come freely by the mere mercy of God, and of fo great and free mercy, that whereas all the world was not able of themfelves to pay any part towards their ranfom, it pleafed our heavenly Father of his infinite mercy, without any our defert or deferving, to prepare for us the most precious jewels of Christ's body and blood, whereby our ransom might be fully paid, the Law fulfilled, and his justice fully fatisfied. So that Christ is now the righteousness of all them that truly do believe in him. He for them paid their ranfom by his death. He for them fulfilled the Law in his life. So that now in him, and by him, every true Christian man may be called a fulfiller of the Law; forafmuch C 2 much as that which their infirmity lacked, Christ's justice hath supplied.

The Second Part of the Sermon of Salvation.

TE have heard, of whom all men ought to feek their justification and righteousness, and how also this righteoufness cometh unto men by Christ's death and merits: ye heard also, how that three things are required to the obtaining of our righteoutness, that is, God's mercy, Christ's justice, and a true and lively faith, out of the which faith fpring good works. Also before was declared at large, that no man can be justified by his own good works, that no man fulfilleth the Law, according to the first ri-gour of the Law.

And St. Paul in his Epistle to the Galatians proveth the fame, faying thus; If there bad been any law given, which could have justified, verily righteousness should have been by the Law. And again he faith, If righteousness be by the Law, then Christ died in vain. And again he faith, You that are justified by the Law are fallen away from grace. And furthermore, he writeth to the Ephelians on this wife, By Ephel. ii. grace are ye faved through faith, and that not of yourselves, for it is the gift of God, and not of works, lest any man should glory. And, to be short, the sum of all Paul's disputation is this; that if justice come of works, then it cometh not of grace; and if it come of grace, then it cometh not of works. And to this end tend all the Prophets, as St. Peter faith in the tenth of the Acts; Of Christ all the Prophets, faith St. Peter, do witness, that through his name, all they that believe in him shall receive the remission of sins. Faith only And after this wife to be justified only by this true and inflifieth, is lively faith in Christ, speak all the old and ancient authors, the doctrine both Greeks and Latins; of whom I will specially rehearse of old Docthree, Hilary, Basil, and Ambrose. St. Hilary saith these words plainly in the ninth Canon upon Matthew; Faith only justifieth. And St. Basil, a Greek author, writeth thus; This is a perfect and whole rejoicing in God, when a man advanceth not himfelf for his own righteousness, but acknowledgeth himfelf to lack true justice and righteousness, and to be justified by the only faith in Christ.

And Paul, faith he, doth glory in the contempt of his own Philip, iii. righteousness, and that he looketh for the righteousness of God by faith.

Thefe

These be the very words of St. Basil; and St. Ambrose, a Latin author, faith these words; This is the ordinance of God, that they which believe in Christ should be faved without works, by faith only, freely receiving remission of their fins. Confider diligently these words, without works, by faith only, freely we receive remiffion of our fins. What can be fpoken more plainly, than to fay, that freely without works, by faith only, we obtain remission of our fins? These and other like sentences, that we be justified by faith only, freely, and without works, we do read oft-times in the best and most ancient writers: as, befide Hilary, Bafil, and St. Ambrofe, before rehearfed, we read the fame in Origen, St. Chryfostom, St. Cyprian, St. Augustine, Prosper, Oecumenius, Proclus, Bernardus, Anfelm, and many other authors, Greek and Latin. Nevertheless, this sentence, that we be justified by faith only, is not so meant of them, that the said justifying saith is alone in man, without true repentance, hope, charity, dread, and the fear of God, at any time and feafon. Nor Faith alone, when they fay, that we should be justified freely, do they how it is to mean that we should or might afterward be idle, and that shood. nothing should be required on our parts afterward: neither do they mean fo to be justified without good works, that we should do no good works at all, like as shall be more expressed at large hereafter. But this saying, that we be justified by faith only, freely, and without works, is spoken for to take away clearly all merit of our works, as being unable to deferve our justification at God's hands, and thereby most plainly to express the weakness of man, and the goodness of God; the great infirmity of ourselves, and the might and power of God; the imperfection of our own works, and the most abundant grace of our Saviour Christ; and therefore wholly to ascribe the merit and deferving of our justification unto Christ only, and his most precious blood-shedding. This faith the holy Scripture The profit teacheth us; this is the strong rock and foundation of of the doc-Christian religion; this doctrine all old and ancient authors faith only of Christ's church do approve; this doctrine advanceth justifieth. and fetteth forth the true glory of Christ, and beateth down the vain-glory of man; this whofoever denieth, is not to be accounted for a Christian man, nor for a setterforth of Christ's glory; but for an adversary to Christ and his Gospel, and for a setter-forth of men's vain-glory. And What they although this doctrine be never fo true, (as it is most true be that impugn the indeed) that we be justified freely, without all merit of our doctrine of own good works, (as St. Paul doth express it) and freely, faith only by justifieth.

by this lively and perfect faith in Christ only, (as the ancient authors use to speak it) yet this true doctrine must be also truly understood, and most plainly declared, lest carnal men should take unjustly occasion thereby to live carnally, after the appetite and will of the world, the flesh, and the Devil. And because no man should err by mis-A declaration of this taking of this doctrine, I shall plainly and shortly so dedoctrine of clare the right understanding of the same, that no man faith withshall justly think that he may thereby take any occasion out works of carnal liberty, to follow the defires of the flesh, or that thereby any kind of fin shall be committed, or any un-godly living the more used. First, you shall understand, that in our justification by Christ it is not all one thing, the office of God unto man, and the office of man unto God. Justification is not the office of man, but of God; for man cannot make himfelf righteous by his own works, neither in part, nor in the whole; for that were the greatest arrogancy and presumption of man that Antichrift could fet up against God, to affirm that a man might by his own works take away and purge his own fins, and so justify himself. But justification is the office of God only, and is not a thing which we render unto him, but which we receive of him; not which we give to him, but which we take of him, by his free mercy, and by the only merits of his most dearly beloved Son, our only Redeemer, Saviour, and Justifier, Jefus Christ: so that the true understanding of this doctrine, we be justified freely by faith without works, or that we be justified by faith in Christ only, is not, that this our own all to believe in Christ, or this our faith in Christ, which is within us, doth justify us, and deserve our justification unto us, (for that were to count ourselves to be juffified by fome act or virtue that is within ourselves;) but the true understanding and meaning thereof is, that although we hear God's word, and believe it; although we have faith, hope, charity, repentance, dread, and fear of God within us, and do never to many works thereunto; yet we must renounce the merit of all our said virtues, of faith, hope, charity, and all other virtues and good deeds, which we either have done, shall do, or can do, as things that be far too weak and infufficient, and imperfect, to deferve remittion of our fins, and our justification; and therefore we must trust only in God's mercy, and that sacrifice which our High Priest and Saviour Christ Jesus, the Son of God, once offered for us upon the crofs, to obtain thereby God's grace and remission, as well of our original fin in baptism, as of all actual sin committed by us after our baptism, if we truly repent, and turn unseignedly to him again. So that, as St. John Baptift, although he were never fo virtuous and godly a man, yet in this matter of forgiving of fin, he did put the people from him, and appointed them unto Christ, faying thus unto them, Be-John i. hold, yonder is the Lamb of God, which taketh away the fins of the world; even fo, as great and as godly a virtue as the lively faith is, yet it putteth us from itself, and remitteth or appointeth us unto Christ, for to have only by him remission of our fins, or justification. So that our faith in Christ (as it were) faith unto us thus: It is not I that take away your fins, but it is Christ only; and to him only I fend you for that purpose, forfaking therein all your good virtues, words, thoughts, and works, and only putting your trust in Christ.

The Third Part of the Sermon of Salvation.

IT hath been manifestly declared unto you, that no man can fulfil the Law of God; and therefore by the Law all men are condemned: whereupon it followeth neceffarily, that some other thing should be required for our falvation than the Law; and that is, a true and a lively faith in Christ; bringing forth good works, and a life according to God's commandments. And also you heard the ancient authors' minds of this faying, Faith in Christ only justifieth man, so plainly declared, that you see, that the very true meaning of this propolition or faying, We be juftified by faith in Christ only (according to the meaning of the old ancient authors) is this: We put our faith in Christ, that we be justified by him only, that we be justified by God's free mercy, and the merits of our Saviour Christ only, and by no virtue or good works of our own that is in us, or that we can be able to have, or to do, for to deferve the fame; Christ himself only being the cause meritorious thereof.

Here you perceive many words to be used to avoid contention in words with them that delight to brawl about words, and also to shew the true meaning to avoid evil taking and misunderstanding; and yet peradventure all will not serve with them that be contentious; but contenders will ever forge matters of contention, even when they have none occasion thereto. Notwithstanding, such be the less to be passed upon, so that the rest may prosit, which will be more desirous to know the truth, than

(when it is plain enough) to contend about it, and with contentious and captious cavillation, to obscure and darken Truth it is, that our own works do not justify us, to fpeak properly of our justification; that is to say, our works do not merit or deserve remission of our fins, and make us, of unjust, just before God: but God of his own mercy, through the only merits and defervings of his Son Jesus Christ, doth justify us. Nevertheless, because faith doth directly fend us to Christ for remission of our fins, and that, by faith given us of God, we embrace the promife of God's mercy, and of the remission of our fins, (which thing none other of our virtues or works properly doth) therefore the Scripture useth to fay, that faith without works doth justify. And foratmuch as it is all one fentence in effect, to fay, faith without works, and only faith, doth justify us; therefore the old ancient Fathers of the Church from time to time have uttered our justification with this speech; Only faith justifieth us: meaning no other thing than St. Paul meant, when he faid, Faith without works justifieth us. And because all this is brought to pass through the only merits and deservings of our Saviour Christ, and not through our merits, or through the merit of any virtue that we have within us, or of any work that cometh from us; therefore, in that respect of merit and deferving, we forfake, as it were, altogether again, faith, works, and all other virtues. For our own imperfection is fo great, through the corruption of original fin, that all is imperfect that is within us, faith, charity, hope, dread, thoughts, words, and works, and therefore not apt to merit and deserve any part of our justification for us. And this form of speaking use we, in the humbling of ourselves to God, and to give all the glory to our Saviour Christ, who is best worthy to have it. Here you have heard the office of God in our justification, and how we receive it of him freely, by his mercy, without our deferts, through true and lively faith. Now you shall hear the office and duty of a Christian man unto God, what we ought on our part to render unto God again for his great mercy and goodness. Our office is, preachtaith not to pass the time of this present life unfruitfully and idly, after that we are baptized or justified, not caring how few good works we do, to the glory of God, and profit of our neighbours: much less is it our office, after that we be once made Christ's members, to live contrary to the same; making ourselves members of the Devil, walking after his enticements, and after the fuggestions of the world and the flesh, whereby we know that we do ferve the world and the Devil, and not God. For that faith which bringeth forth (without repentance) either evil works, or no good works, is not a right, pure, and lively faith, but a dead, devilifh, counterfeit, and feigned faith, as St. Paul and St. James call it. For even the de-The devils vils know and believe that Christ was born of a Virgin; have faith, but not the that he fasted forty days and forty nights without meat true faith. and drink; that he wrought all kind of miracles, declaring himself very God: they believe also, that Christ for our fakes fuffered a most painful death, to redeem us from everlasting death, and that he rose again from death the third day: they believe that he ascended into heaven, and that he fitteth on the right hand of the Father, and at the last end of this world shall come again, and judge both the quick and the dead. These articles of our faith the devils believe, and fo they believe all things that be written in the New and Old Testament to be true: and yet for all this faith they be but devils, remaining still in their damnable effate, lacking the very true Christian faith. For the right and true Christian faith is, not only to be-What is the lieve that holy Scripture, and all the forefaid articles of true and our faith are true; but also to have a sure trust and consi-faith. dence in God's merciful promifes, to be faved from everlasting damnation by Christ: whereof doth follow a loving heart to obey his commandments. And this true Christian faith neither any devil hath, nor yet any man, which in the outward profession of his mouth, and in his outward receiving of the facraments, in coming to the church, and in all other outward appearances, feemeth to be a Christian man, and yet in his living and deeds theweth the contrary. For how can a man have this true faith, this fure trust and They that confidence in God, that by the merits of Christ his fins continue in be forgiven, and he reconciled to the favour of God, and evil living have not to be partaker of the kingdom of heaven by Christ, when true faith. he liveth ungodlily, and denieth Christ in his deeds? Surely no fuch ungodly man can have this faith and trust in God. For as they know Christ to be the only Saviour of the world; fo they know also that wicked men shall not enjoy the kingdom of God. They know that God hateth unrighteoutness; that he will destroy all those that Plal. xxv. fpeak untruly; that those which have done good works (which cannot be done without a lively faith in Christ) shall come forth into the refurrection of life, and those that have done evil shall come unto the resurrection of judgment. Very well they know also, that to them that be contentious, and to them that will not be obedient unto the truth, but will obey unrighteousness, shall come indignation, wrath, and affliction, &c. Therefore, to conclude, confidering the infinite benefits of God, shewed and given unto us mercifully without our deferts, who hath not only created us of nothing, and from a piece of vile clay, of his infinite goodness hath exalted us, as touching our foul, unto his own fimilitude and likeness; but also, whereas we were condemned to hell, and death everlafting, hath given his own natural Son, being God eternal, immortal, and equal unto himself in power and glory, to be incarnated, and to take our mortal nature upon him, with the infirmities of the fame, and in the fame nature to fuffer most shameful and painful death for our offences, to the intent to justify us, and to restore us to life everlasting: so making us also his dear children, brethren unto his only Son our Saviour Christ, and inheritors for

These great and merciful benefits of God, if they be well confidered, do neither minister unto us occasion to be idle, and to live without doing any good works, neither yet stir us up by any means to do evil things; but contrariwife, if we be not desperate persons, and our hearts harder than stones, they move us to render ourselves unto God wholly, with all our will, hearts, might, and power to serve him in all good deeds, obeying his commandments during our lives, to feek in all things his glory and honour, not our fenfual pleafures and vain-glory; evermore dreading willingly to offend fuch a merciful God and loving Redeemer, in word, thought, or deed. And the faid benefits of God, deeply confidered, move us for his fake also to be ever ready to give ourselves to our neighbours, and, as much as lieth in us, to study with all our endeavour to do good to every man. These be the fruits of true faith, to do good as much as lieth in us to every man, and, above all things, and in all things, to advance the glory of God, of whom only we have our fanctification, justification, falvation, and redemption: to whom be ever glory, praife, and honour, world without end. Amen.

DECLARATION

True, Lively, and Christian Faith.

THE first coming unto God, good Christian people, is Faith. through faith, whereby (as it is declared in the last Sermon) we be justified before God. And lest any man should be deceived, for lack of right understanding thereof, it is diligently to be noted, that faith is taken in the Scripture two manner of ways. There is one faith, which A dead in Scripture is called a dead faith, which bringeth forth faith. no good works; but is idle, barren, and unfruitful. this faith, by the holy Apostle St. James, is compared to the faith of devils, which believe God to be true and just, James ii. and tremble for fear; yet they do nothing well, but all evil. And fuch a manner of faith have the wicked and naughty Christian people, which confess God, as St. Paul saith, in Titus vi. their mouths, but deny him in their deeds, being abominable, and without the right faith, and to all good works reprovable. And this faith is a perfuation and belief in man's heart, whereby he knoweth that there is a God, and agreeth unto all truths of God's most holy word, contained in the holy Scripture. So that it confifteth only in believing in the word of God, that it is true. And this is not properly called faith. But as he that readeth Cæfar's Commentary, believing the fame to be true, hath thereby a knowledge of Cæfar's life and notable acts, because he believeth the history of Cæsar: yet it is not properly said, that he believeth in Cæfar, of whom he looketh for no help nor benefit. Even fo, he that believeth all that is spoken of God in the Bible is true, and yet liveth so ungodlily, that he cannot look to enjoy the promifes and benefits of God; although it may be faid that fuch a man

hath a faith and belief to the words of God; yet it is not properly faid that he believeth in God, or hath fuch a faith and trust in God, whereby he may furely look for grace, mercy, and everlasting life at God's hand, but rather for indignation and punishment, according to the merits of his wicked life. For as it is written in a book, intituled to be of Didymus Alexandrinus, Foraimuch as faith without works is dead, it is not now faith, as a dead man is not a man. This dead faith therefore is not that fure and fubfiantial faith which faveth finners. Another faith there is in Scripture, which is not, as the forefaid faith, idle, unfruitful, and dead, but worketh by charity, (as St. Paul declareth, Gal. v.) which as the other vain faith is called a dead faith, fo may this be called a quick or lively faith. And this is not only the common belief of the Articles of our faith, but it is also a true trust and confidence of the mercy of God through our Lord Jeius Chrift, and a fledfast hope of all good things to be received at God's hand: and that although we, through infirmity, or temptation of our ghoftly enemy, do fall from him by fin; yet if we return again unto him by true repentance, that he will forgive and forget our offences for his Son's fake, our Saviour Jefus Christ, and will make us inheritors with him of his everlafting kingdom; and that in the mean time, until that kingdom come, he will be our protector and defender in all perils and dangers, whatfoever do chance: and that though fometime he doth fend us sharp adversity, yet that evermore he will be a loving Father unto us, correcting us for our fin, but not withdrawing his mercy finally from us, if we truft in him, and commit ourselves wholly unto him, hang only upon him, and call upon him, ready to obey and ferve him. This is the true, lively, and unfeigned Christian faith, and is not in the mouth and outward profession only, but it liveth, and ftirreth inwardly in the heart. And this faith is not without hope and trust in God, nor without the love of God and of our neighbours, nor without the fear of God, nor without the defire to hear God's word, and to follow the fame in eschewing evil, and doing gladly all good works.

Heb. xii.

Thus faith, as St. Paul describeth it, is the fure ground and foundation of the benefits which we ought to look for, and trust to receive of God, a certificate and sure looking for them, although they yet sensibly appear not unto us. And after he saith, He that cometh to God must believe, both that he is, and that he is a nurriful rewarder of well-

doers. And nothing commendeth good men unto God for much as this affured faith and trust in him. Of this faith three things are specially to be noted.

First, that this faith doth not lie dead in the heart, but Three is lively and fruitful in bringing forth good works. Sethings are condly, that without it can no good works be done, that of faith. Shall be acceptable and pleasant to God. Thirdly, what manner of good works they be that this faith doth bring forth.

For the first, that as the light cannot be hid, but will Faith is fhew forth itself at one place or other; so a true faith can-full of good not be kept feeret; but when occasion is offered, it will works. break out, and shew itself by good works. And as the living body of a man ever exerciseth such things as belong to a natural, and living body, for nourishment and prefervation of the fame, as it hath need, opportunity, and occasion; even so the soul that hath a lively faith in it will be doing alway fome good work, which shall declare that it is living, and will not be unoccupied. Therefore, when men hear in the Scripture fo high commendations of faith, that it maketh us to please God, to live with God, and to be the children of God; if then they fancy that they be fet at liberty from doing all good works, and may live as they lift, they trifle with God, and deceive themfelves. And it is a manifest token that they be far from having the true and lively faith, and also far from knowledge what true faith meaneth. For the very fure and lively Christian faith is, not only to believe all things of God which are contained in holy Scripture, but also is an earnest trust and confidence in God, that he doth regard us, and that he is careful over us, as the father is over the child whom he doth love, and that he will be merciful unto us for his only Son's fake, and that we have our Saviour Christ our perpetual Advocate, and Priest, in whose only merits, oblation, and fuffering we do trust that our offences be continually washed and purged, whenfoever we, repenting truly, do return to him with our whole heart, stedfastly determining with ourselves, through his grace, to obey and ferve him in keeping his commandments, and never to turn back again to fin. Such is the true faith that the Scripture doth fo much commend, the which, when it feeth and confidereth what God hath done for us, is also moved, through continual affistance of the Spirit of God, to serve and please him, to keep his favour, to fear his displeasure, to continue his obedient children, shewing thankfulness again by obferving or keeping his commandments, and that freely, for true love chiefly, and not for dread of punishment, or love of temporal reward, confidering how clearly, without defervings, we have received his mercy and pardon freely. This true faith will shew forth itself, and cannot long be idle: for as it is written, The just man doth live by his faith. He never fleepeth, nor is idle, when he would wake, and be well occupied. And God by his Prophet Jeremy faith, that be is a happy and bleffed man, which hath faith Jer. xvii. and confidence in God. For he is like a tree fet by the water-fide, and spreadeth his roots abroad towards the moisture, and feareth not heat when it cometh; his leaf will be green, and will not cease to bring forth his fruit: even fo, faithful men, putting away all fear of advertity, will shew forth the fruit of their good works, as occasion is offered to do them.

The Second Part of the Sermon of Faith.

YE have heard in the first part of this Sermon, that there be two kinds of faith, a dead and an unfruitful faith, and a faith lively, that worketh by charity: the first to be unprofitable; the second, necessary for the obtaining of our falvation: the which faith hath charity always joined unto it, and is fruitful, and bringeth forth all good works. Now as concerning the fame matter, you shall hear what followeth. The Wife Man saith, He that believeth in God will bearken unto his commandments. For if we do not shew ourselves faithful in our conversation, the faith which we pretend to have is but a feigned faith: because the true Christian faith is manifestly shewed by good living, and not by words only, as St. Augustine faith, Good living cannot be feparated from true faith, which worketh by love. And St Chryfostom faith, Faith of itself is full of good works: as soon as a man doth believe, he shall be garnished with them. How plentiful this faith is of good works, and how it maketh the work of one man more acceptable to God than of another, . St. Paul teacheth at large in the eleventh chapter to the Hebrews, faying, that faith made the oblation of Abel better than the oblation of Cain. This made Noah to build the ark. This made Abraham to forfake his country and all his friends, and go into a far country, there to dwell among ftrangers. So did also Isaac and Jacob, depending or hanging only on the help and trust that they had in God.

Ecclef. XXXI.

Heb. xi. Gen. iv. Gen. vi. Eccl. vliv. Gen xi.

All

God. And when they came to the country which God promifed them, they would build no cities, towns, nor houses; but lived like strangers in tents, that might every day be removed. Their trust was so much in God, that they fet but little by any worldly thing, for that God had prepared for them better dwelling-places in heaven, of his own foundation and building. This faith made Abraham Gen. xxii. ready at God's commandment to offer his own fon and Eccl. xiii: heir Isaac, whom he loved so well, and by whom he was promifed to have innumerable iffue, among the which, one should be born, in whom all nations should be blessed, trusting so much in God, that though he were slain, yet that God was able by his omnipotent power to raife him from death, and perform his promife. He mistrusted not the promife of God, although unto his reason every thing feemed contrary. He believed verily that God would not forfake him in dearth and famine that was in the country. And in all other dangers that he was brought unto, he trusted ever that God should be his God, and his protector and defender, whatfoever he faw to the contrary. This faith wrought fo in the heart of Moses, that he re-Exed is fused to be taken for King Pharaob's daughter's son, and to have great inheritance in Egypt, thinking it better with the people of God to have affliction and forrow, than with naughty men in fin to live pleasantly for a time. By faith. be cared not for the threatening of King Pharaoh: for his trust was so in God, that he passed not of the felicity of this world, but looked for the reward to come in heaven; fetting his heart upon the invifible God, as if he had feen him ever present before his eyes. By faith, the children of Exod. xiv. Ifrael paffed through the Red Sea. By faith, the walls of John, vi. Jericho fell down without flroke, and many other wonderful miracles have been wrought. In all good men that heretofore have been, faith hath brought forth their good works, and obtained the promises of God. Faith bath Dan. vi. stopped the lions' mouths: faith bath quenched the force of fire: faith hath escaped the sword's edges: faith bath given weak Dan. iii, men strength, victory in battle, overthrown the armies of in-Heb. xi. fidels, raifed the dead to life: faith hath made good men to take adverfity in good part; fome have been mocked and subipped, bound and cast in prison; some have lost all their goods, and lived in great poverty; fome have wandered in mountains, bills, and wildernesses; some have been racked, some Stain, some Stoned, some Sawn, some rent in pieces, some beheaded, some burnt without mercy, and would not be delivered, because they looked to rise again to a better state.

St. Paul spake of, had their faith surely fixed in God, when all the world was against them. They did not only know God to be the Lord, Maker, and Governor of all men in the world; but also they had a special confidence and trust, that he was and would be their God, their comforter, aider, helper, maintainer, and defender. This is the Christian faith, which these holy men had, and we, also ought to have. And although they were not named Christian men, yet was it a Christian faith that they had; for they looked for all benefits of God the Father, through the merits of his Son Jefus Christ, as we now do. This difference is between them and us, that they looked when Christ should come, and we be in the time when he is come. Therefore, faith St. Augustine, the time-is altered and changed, but not the faith. For we have both one faith in one Christ. The same Holy Ghost also that we have, bad they, faith St. Paul. For as the Holy Ghost doth teach us to trust in God, and to call upon him as our Father, fo did he teach them to fay, as it is written, Thou, Lord, art our Father and Redeemer; and thy name is swithout beginning, and everlasting. God gave them then grace to be his children, as he doth us now. But now, by the coming of our Saviour Christ we have received more abundantly the Spirit of God in our hearts, whereby we may conceive a greater faith, and a furer truft, than many of them had. But in effect they and we be all one: we have the same faith that they had in God, and they the fame that we have. And St. Paul fo much extolleth their faith, because we should not less, but rather more, give ourselves wholly unto Christ, both in profession and living, now when Christ is come, than the old fathers did before bringing forth all good motions and good works.

All holy Scripture agreeably beareth witness, that a true lively faith in Christ doth bring forth good works; and therefore every man must examine and try himself diligently, to know whether he have the same true lively faith in his heart unseignedly, or not; which he shall know by the fruits thereof. Many that professed the faith of Christ were in this error, that they thought they knew God, and believed in him, when in their life they declared the contrary: which error St. John in his first Epistle his coming. And by all the declaration of St. Paul, it is evident, that the true, lively, and Christian faith is no dead, vain, or unfruitful thing, but a thing of perfect virtue, of wonderful operation or working, and strength, confuting,

In Johan. Tract. xlv.

confuting, writeth in this wife: Hereby we are certified I John ii. that we know God, if we observe his commandments. He that saith he knoweth God, and observeth not his commandments, is a liar, and the truth is not in him. And again he faith, Whofoever finneth doth not fee God, nor know bim: 1 John iii, Let no man deceive you, well-beloved children. And moreover he faith, Hereby we know that we be of the truth, and fo we shall persuade our bearts before bim. For if our own I John iii, bearts reprove us, God is above our bearts, and knoweth all things. Well-beloved, if our hearts reprove us not, then have we confidence in God, and shall have of him whatsoever we alk, because we keep his commandments, and do those things that please bim. And yet further he faith, Every man that I John v. believeth that Jesus is Christ, is born of God; and we know that aubosoever is born of God doth not fin: But he that is begotten of God purgeth bimself, and the Devil doth not touch bim. And finally he concludeth, and sheweth the cause why he wrote this Epiffle, faying, For this cause have I 1 John v. thus written unto you, that you may know that you have everlasting life, which do believe in the Son of God. And in his third Epistle he confirmeth the whole matter of faith and works in few words, faying, He that doth well is of God, 3 John i. and he that doth evil knoweth not God. And as St. John faith, that as the lively knowledge and faith of God bringeth forth good works; fo faith he likewife of hope and charity, that they cannot fland with evil living. Of hope he writeth thus: We know that when God shall appear, I John iii. tve shall be like unto him, for the shall see him even as he is: And whofoever bath this hope in him doth purify himfelf, like as God is pure. And of charity he faith these words: He that doth keep God's word and commandment, in him is I John ii. truly the perfect love of God. And again he faith, This is I John v. the love of God, that we should keep his commandments. And St. John wrote not this as a fubtile faying, devised of his own fantafy, but as a most certain and necessary truth, taught unto him by Christ himself, the eternal and infallible verity, who in many places doth most clearly affirm, that faith, hope, and charity cannot confift or fland without good and godly works. Of faith he faith, He that I John v. believeth in the Son bath everlasting life; but he that be- John iii. lieveth not in the Son shall not see that life, but the wrath of God remaineth upon him. And the same he confirmeth with a double oath, faying, Verily, verily, I fay unto you, John vi, be that believeth in me bath everlasting life. Now forasmuch as he that believeth in Christ hath everlasting life, it must needs consequently follow, that he that hath this faith must have also good works, and be studious to obferve God's commandments obediently. For to them that have evil works, and lead their life in disobedience and transgression, or breaking of God's commandments, without repentance, pertaineth not everlassing life, but ever-

Matth.xxv. lafting death, as Christ himself faith, They that do well Shall go into life eternal; but they that do evil Shall go into Apoc. xxi. everlasting fire. And again he faith, I am the first letter and the last, the beginning and the ending: To him that is athirst, I will give of the well of the water of life freely: He that hath the victory shall have all things, and I will be his God, and be shall be my fon: but they that be fearful, miftrusting God, and lacking faith; they that be curfed people, and murtherers, and fornicators, and forcerers, and all liars, shall have their portion in the lake that burneth with fire and brimstone, which is the second death. And as Christ un-Charity doubtedly affirmeth, that true faith bringeth forth good bringeth forth good works, so doth he say likewise of charity, Whosoever bath works. my commandments, and keepeth them, that is be that loveth me. John xiv. And after he faith, He that loveth me will keep my word, the love of God is tried by good works, fo is the fear of Ecclus. i. God also, as the Wise Man faith, The dread of God putteth Ecclus. xv. away sin. And also he faith, He that feareth God will do good works.

The Third Part of the Sermon of Faith.

and he that loveth me not keepeth not my words. And as

OU have heard in the fecond part of this Sermon, that no man should think that he hath that lively faith which Scripture commandeth, when he liveth not obediently to God's laws; for all good works fpring out of that faith: and also it hath been declared unto you by examples, that faith maketh men fleadfast, quiet, and patient in all affliction. Now as concerning the fame matter, you shall hear what followeth. A man may soon deceive himfelf, and think in his own fantafy that he by faith knoweth God, loveth him, feareth him, and belongeth to him, when in very deed he doth nothing lefs. For the trial of all these things is a very godly and Christian life. He that feeleth his heart fet to feek God's honour, and studieth to know the will and commandments of God, and to frame himself thereunto, and leadeth not his life after the defire of his own flesh, to serve the Devil by sin, but letteth his mind to serve God for his own sake, and for his his fake also to love all his neighbours, whether they be friends or adverfaries, doing good to every man, as opportunity ferveth, and willingly hurting no man: fuch a man may well rejoice in God, perceiving by the trade of his life, that he unfeignedly hath the right knowledge of God, a lively faith, a steadfast hope, a true and unseigned love, and fear of God. But he that casteth away the yoke of God's commandments from his neck, and giveth himfelf to live without true repentance, after his own fenfual mind and pleafure, not regarding to know God's word, and much less to live according thereunto; such a man clearly deceiveth himfelf, and feeth not his own heart, if he thinketh that he either knoweth God, loveth him, feareth him, or trufteth in him. Some peradventure fancy in themselves that they belong to God, although they live in fin, and fo they come to the church, and flew themfelves as God's dear children. But St. John faith plainly, If we fay that we have any company with God, and walk in I John i. darkness, we do lie. Others do vainly think that they know and love God, although they pass not of the commandments. But St. John faith clearly, He that faith, Is John ii. know God, and keepeth not his commandments, he is a liar. Some falfely perfuade themselves, that they love God, when they hate their neighbours. But St. John faith manifestly, If any man fay, I love God, and yet bateth bis I John iv. brother, he is a liar. He that faith that he is in the light, and I John ii. hateth his brother, he is still in darkness. He that loveth his brother develleth in the light; but he that hateth his brother is in darkness, and walketh in darkness, and knoweth not whither he goeth: for darkness hath blinded his eyes. And moreover he faith, Hereby we manifestly know the children I John iii. of God from the children of the Devil. He that doth not righteoufly is not the child of God, nor be that hateth his brother. Deceive not yourfelves, therefore, thinking that you have faith in God, or that you love God, or do trust in him, or do fear him, when you live in fin: for then your ungodly and finful life declareth the contrary, whatfoever you fay or think. It pertaineth to a Christian man to have this true Christian faith, and to try himself whether he hath it or no, and to know what belongeth to it, and how it doth work in him. It is not the world that we can trust to; the world, and all that is therein, is but vanity. It is God that must be our defence and protection against all temptation of wiekedness and sin, errors, superstition, idolatry, and all evil. If all the world were on our fide, and God against us, what could the world avail us? Therefore D 2

2 Pet. i.

James ii.

Therefore let us fet our whole faith and trust in God, and neither the world, the Devil, nor all the power of them shall prevail against us. Let us therefore, good Christian people, try and examine our faith, what it is: let us not flatter ourselves, but look upon our works, and so judge of our faith what it is. Christ himself speaketh of this matter, and faith, The tree is known by the fruit. Therefore let us do good works, and thereby declare our faith to be the lively Christian faith. Let us, by such virtues as ought to fpring out of faith, shew our election to be fure and stable, as St. Peter teacheth, Endeavour yourselves to make your calling and election certain by good works. And also he saith, Minister or declare in your faith virtue, in virtue knowledge, in knowledge temperance, in temperance patience, in patience godliness, in godliness brotherly charity, in brotherly charity love: fo shall we shew indeed that we have the very lively Christian faith, and may so both certify our confeience the better that we be in the right faith. and also by these means confirm other men. If these fruits do not follow, we do but mock with God, deceive ourfelves, and also other men. Well may we bear the name of Christian men, but we do lack the true faith that doth belong thereunto: for the true faith doth ever bring forth good works, as St. James faith: Sheav me thy faith by thy deeds. Thy deeds and works must be an open testimonial of thy faith: otherwife thy faith, being without good works, is but the Devil's faith, the faith of the wicked, a fantafy of faith, and not a true Christian faith. like as the devils and evil people be nothing the better for their counterfeit faith, but it is unto them the more cause of damnation: fo they that be Christians, and have received knowledge of God, and of Christ's merits, and yet of a fet purpose do live idly, without good works, thinking the name of a naked faith to be either fufficient for them, or else fetting their minds upon vain pleasures of this world, do live in fin without repentance, not uttering the fruits that do belong to fuch an high profession; upon fuch prefumptuous persons, and wilful sinners, must needs remain the great vengeance of God, and eternal punishment in hell, prepared for the unjust and wicked livers. Therefore as you profess the name of Christ, good Christtian people, let no fuch fantafy and imagination of faith at any time beguile you; but be fure of your faith, try it by your living, look upon the fruits that come of it, mark the increase of love and charity by it towards God and your neighbour, and so shall you perceive it to be a true lively faith. If you feel and perceive fuch a faith in you, rejoice in it; and be diligent to maintain it, and keep it still in you; let it be daily increasing, and more and more by well working, and so shall you be sure that you shall please God by this faith; and at the length, as other faithful men have done before, so shall you, when his will is, come to him, and receive the end and final reward of your faith, as St. Peter nameth it, the salvation of your fouls: Pet. i, the which God grant us, that hath promised the same unto his faithful; to whom be all honour and glory, world without end, Amen.

SERMON

Of Good Works annexed unto Faith,

IN the last Sermon was declared unto you, what the I lively and true faith of a Christian man is; that it causeth not a man to be idle, but to be occupied in bring-

Now, by God's grace, shall be declared the second thing that before was noted of faith; that without it can no good work be done, accepted and pleasant unto God; For as a branch cannot bear fruit of itself, faith our Saviour Christ, except it abide in the vine; so cannot you, except you abide in me. I am the vine, and you are the branches: he that abideth in me, and I in him, he bringeth forth much fruit: for without me you can do nothing. And St. Paul proveth, that the Eunuch had faith, because he pleased God; For without faith, faith he, it is not possible to please God. And again, to the Romans he faith, Whatfoever work is done without faith, it is fin. Faith giveth life to the foul; and they be as much dead to God that lack faith, as they be to the world whose bodies lack fouls. Without faith, all that is done of us is but dead before God, although the work feem never so gay and glorious before man. Even as the picture graven or painted is but a dead representation of the thing itself, and is without life, or any manner of moving; fo be the works of all unfaithful persons before God: they do appear to be lively works, and indeed they be but dead, not availing to the everlasting life: they be but shadows and shews of lively and good things, and not good and lively things indeed: for true faith doth give life to the works, and out of such faith come good works, that be very good works indeed; and without faith no In Prafat. work is good before God, as faith St. Augustine. We must fet no good works before faith, nor think that before faith a man may do any good works; for fuch works, although they feem unto men to be praifeworthy, yet indeed they be but vain, and not allowed before God. They be as the course of an horse that runneth out of the way, which taketh great labour, but to no purpose. Let no man, therefore, faith he, reckon upon his good works before his faith; whereas faith was not, good works were not. The intent, faith he, maketh good works; but faith must guide and order the intent of man. And Christ saith, If thine eye be naught, thy whole body is full of darkness. The Matt. vi. eye doth fignify the intent, faith St. Augustine, wherewith In Præfat. a man doth a thing: fo that he which doth not his good Pfal, xxxi. works with a godly intent, and a true faith that worketh by love, the whole body befide, that is to fay, all the whole number of his works, is dark, and there is no light in them. For good deeds be not measured by the facts themfelves, and fo difcerned from vices; but by the ends and intents, for the which they were done. If a Heathen man clothe the naked, feed the hungry, and do fuch other like works; yet, because he doth them not in faith for the honour and love of God, they be but dead, vain, and fruitlefs works to him. Faith it is that doth commend the work to God: for, as St. Augustine faith, whether thou wilt or no, that work, that cometh not of faith, is naught; where the faith of Christ is not the foundation, there is no good work, what building foever we make. There is one work, in the which be all good works, that is faith, which worketh by charity: if thou have it, thou hast the ground of all good works; for the virtues of strength, wildom, temperance, and justice, be all referred unto this same faith. Without this faith we have not them, but only the names and shadows of them; as St. Augustine faith, All the life of them that lack the true faith is fin, and nothing is good without him that is the Author of goodness: where he is not, there is but feigned virtue, although it be in the best works. And St. Augustine, declaring this verse of the Pfalm, The turtle hath found a nest where she may keep her young birds, faith, that Jews, Hereticks, and Pagans do good works; they clothe the naked, feed the poor, and do other good works of mercy: but because they be not done in the true faith, therefore the birds be loft. But if they remain in faith, then faith is the nest and fafeguard of their birds, that is to fay, fafeguard of their good works, that the reward of them be not utterly loft. And De vocation this matter (which St. Augustine at large in many books negentium disputeth) lib. c. 30 disputeth) St. Ambrose concludeth in few words, faying, He that by nature would withfland vice, either by natural will or reason, he doth in vain garnish the time of this life, and attaineth not the very true virtues; for without the worshipping of the true God, that which seemeth to be virtue is vice. And yet most plainly to this purpose writ-In fermone eth St. Chryfostom in this wife, You shall find many which de fide, le- have not the true faith, that be not of the flock of Christ, ge, et Spi-ritu Sancto. and yet, as it appeareth, they flourish in good works of mercy; you shall find them full of pity, compassion, and given to justice; and yet, for all that, they have no fruit of their works, because the chief work lacketh. For when the Jews asked of Christ, what they should do to work good works, he answered, This is the work of God, to believe in bim whom be fent: fo that he called faith the work of God. And as foon as a man hath faith, anon he shall flourish in good works; for faith of itself is full of good works, and nothing is good without faith. And for a fimilitude, he faith, that they which gliffer and fhine in good works, without faith in God, be like dead men, which have goodly and precious tombs, and yet it availeth them nothing. Faith may not be naked without good works, for then it is no true faith: and when it is adjoined to works, yet it is above the works. For as men, that be very men indeed, first have life, and after be nourished; so must our faith in Christ go before, and after be nourished with good works. And life may be without nourishment, but nourishment cannot be without life. A man must needs be nourified by good works, but first he must have faith. He that doth good deeds, yet without faith, he hath no life. I can shew a man that by faith without works lived, and came to heaven: but without faith never man had life. The thief, that was hanged when Christ suffered, did believe only, and the most merciful God justified him. And because no man shall say again, that he lacked time to do good works, for elfe he would have done them: truth it is, and I will not contend therein; but this I will furely affirm, that faith only faved him. If he had lived, and not regarded faith, and the works thereof, he should have lost his falvation again. But this is the effect that I fay, that faith by itself faved him, but works by themselves never justified any man. Here ye have heard the mind of St. Chrysostom, whereby you may perceive, that neither faith is without works (having opportunity thereto), nor works can avail to everlasting life, without faith.

The Second Part of the Sermon of Good Works.

OF three things which were in the former Sermon especially noted of lively faith, to be declared unto you, the first was, that faith is never idle, without good works when occasion ferveth: the second, that good works acceptable to God cannot be done without faith. Now what to go forward to the third part, that is, what manner of works they works they be which fpring out of true faith, and lead are that fpring out faithful men unto everlaiting life. This cannot be known of faith. fo well as by our Saviour Christ himself, who was asked of a certain great man the fame question; What works shall I Matt. xix. do, faid a Prince, to come to everlasting life? To whom Jefus answered, If thou wilt come to everlasting life, keep the commandments. But the Prince, not fatisfied herewith, asked farther, Which commandments? The Scribes and Pharifees had made fo many of their own laws and traditions, to bring men to heaven, befides God's commandments, that this man was in doubt whether he should come to heaven by those laws and traditions, or by the Law of God; and therefore he asked Christ, which commandments he meant. Whereunto Christ made him a plain answer, rchearing the commandments of God, faying, Thou shalt not kill, Thou Matt. xix. Shalt not commit adultery, Thou shalt not steal, Thou shalt not bear false witness, Honour thy father and thy mother, and, Love thy neighbour as thyself. By which words Christ declared, The works that the laws of God be the very way that doth lead to that lead to everlasting life, and not the traditions and laws of men. heaven, he so that this is to be taken for a most true lesson taught by God's com-Christ's own mouth, that the works of the moral com-mandmandments of God be the very true works of faith, which ments. lead to the blessed life to come. But the blindness and malice of man, even from the beginning, hath ever been ready to fall from God's commandments: as Adam the Man from first man, having but one commandment, that he should his first fallnot eat of the fruit forbidden; notwithstanding God's com-ing from mandment, he gave credit unto the woman, seduced by mandthe fubtile perfusion of the ferpent, and fo followed his ments hath own will, and lest God's commandment. And ever fince ever been that time, all that came of him have been fo blinded the like, through original fin, that they have been ever ready to and doth defall from God and his Law, and to invent a new way unto vife works falvation by works of their own device; fo much, that al- of his own fantaly to most all the world, forsaking the true honour of the only please God eternal withal.

eternal living God, wandered about their own fantafies, The devices worshipping some the sun, the moon, the stars; some Juand idolative of the Gentiles.

The devices with not fatisfied, worshipping divers kinds of beasts, birds, and idolatives of the stractices of the sun a manner being divided, and setting up images of such Exod.xxxii. things as they liked, and worshipping the same. Such was the rudeness of the people after they fell to their own fantafies, and left the eternal living God and his commandments, that they devised innumerable images and gods. In which error and blindness they did remain, until such time as Almighty God, pitying the blindness of man, fent his true Prophet Moles into the world, to reprove and rebuke this extreme madness, and to teach the people to know the only living God, and his true honour and worship. But the corrupt inclination of man was so much given to follow his own fantafy, and, as you would fay, to favour his own bird that he brought up himfelf, that all the admonitions, exhortations, benefits, and threatenings of God could not keep him from fuch his inventions. For notwithstanding all the benefits of God shewed unto the people of Ifrael, yet when Mofes went up into the mountain to speak with Almighty God, he had tarried there but a few days, when the people began to invent new gods: and, as it came into their heads, they made a calf of gold, and kneeled down and worshipped it. And after that they followed the Moabites, and worshipped Beelphegor, the Moabites God. Read the book of Judges, the book of the Kings, and the Prophets; and there you shall find how unfteadfast the people were, how full of inventions, and more ready to run after their own fantafies, than God's most holy commandments. There shall you read of Baal, Moloch, Chamos, Melchom, Baalpeor, Aftaroth, Bell, the Dragon, Priapus, the brazen Serpent, the twelve Signs, and many others, unto whose images the people, with great devotion, invented pilgrimages, precious decking and centing them, kneeling down and offering to them, thinking that an high merit before God, and to be efteemed above the precepts and commandments of God. And where, at that time, God commanded no facrifice to be made but in Jerufalem only, they did clean contrary, making altars and facrifices every where, in hills, in woods, and in houses, not regarding God's commandments, but esteeming their own fautasies and devotions to be better than they. And the error hereof was fo fpread abroad, that not only the unlearned people, but also the priests and teachers of the people, partly by vain-glory and covetousness were corrupted, and partly by ignorance blindly deceived with the fame abominations: fo much, that King Achab having but only Helias a true teacher and minister of God, there were four hundred and fifty priefts that perfuaded him to honour Baal, and to do facrifice in the woods or groves. And fo continued that horrible error, until the three noble kings, as Jofaphat, Ezechias, and Josias, God's chosen ministers, deftroyed the fame clearly, and brought again the people from fuch their feigned inventions, unto the very commandments of God: for the which thing their immortal reward and glory doth and shall remain with God for ever. And beside the foresaid inventions, the inclination Religions of man to have his own holy devotions devised new fects and fects and religions, called Pharifees, Sadducees, and Scribes, Jews. with many holy and godly traditions and ordinances, (as it feemed by the outward appearance and goodly gliftering of the works) but in very deed all tending to idolatry, fuperstition, and hypocrify; their hearts within being full of malice, pride, covetoufness, and all wickedness. Against which fects and their pretended holiness Christ cried out more vehemently than he did against any other persons, faying, and often rehearing thele words, Woe be to you, Matt. Scribes and Pharifees, ye hypocrites! for you make clean the xxiii. vessel without, but within ye be full of ravine and filthiness: Thou blind Pharifee and hypocrite! first make the inward part clean. For notwithstanding all the goodly traditions and outward shews of good works devised of their own imagination, whereby they appeared to the world most religious and holy of all men; yet Christ, who saw their hearts, knew that they were inwardly, in the fight of God, most unholy, most abominable, and farthest from God of all men. Therefore faid he unto them, Hypocrites, the Prophet Isaiah spake full truly of you, when he said, This people bonour me with their lips, but their heart is far Matt. xv. from me. They worship me in vain that teach dostrines and Isai. xix. commandments of men: for you leave the commandments of God to keep your own traditions.

And though Christ said, They worship God in vain that teach doctrines and commandments of men; yet he meant not Man's laws thereby to overthrow all men's commandments; for he must be oblimiself was ever obedient to the princes and their laws, kept, but made for good order and governance of the people: but not as God's he reproved the laws and traditions made by the Scribes laws.

and Pharifees, which were not made only for good order of the people, (as the civil laws were) but they were fet up fo high, that they were made to be right and pure worshipping of God, as they had been equal with God's laws, or above them: for many of God's laws could not be kept, but were fain to give place unto them. This arrogancy God detefted, that man should so advance his laws to make them equal with God's laws, wherein the true honouring and right worshipping of God standeth, and to make his laws for them to be left off. God hath appointed his laws, whereby his pleafure is to be honoured. pleafure is also, that all men's laws, not being contrary unto his laws, shall be obeyed and kept, as good and neceffary for every commonweal, but not as things wherein principally his honour resteth: and all civil and man's laws either be, or should be made, to bring men the better to keep God's laws, that confequently, or followingly, God should be the better honoured by them. Howbeit, the Scribes and Pharifees were not content that their laws should be no higher esteemed than other positive and civil laws; nor would they have them called by the name of other temporal laws; but called them holy and Holy tradi- godly traditions, and would have them effeemed, not only for a right and true worshipping of God, as God's laws be effectived as indeed, but also for the most high honouring of God, to the which the commandments of God should give place. And for this cause did Christ so vehemently speak against them, faying, Your traditions, which men efteem fo high, Holine's of be abomination before God: for commonly of fuch traditions, followeth the transgression or breaking of God's commonly commandments, and a more devotion in keeping of fuch things, and a greater conscience in breaking of them, than that God is of the commandments of God. As the Scribes and Pharifees fo fuperstitiously and ferupulously kept the sabbath, that they were offended with Christ because he healed siek men; and with his Apostles, because they, being fore a hungry, gathered the ears of corn to eat upon that day; and because his disciples washed not their hands so often as the traditions required, the Scribes and Pharifees quarrelled with Christ, faying, Why do thy disciples break the traditions of the feigniors? But Christ laid to their charge, that they, for to keep their own traditions, did teach men to break the very commandments of God: for they taught the people fuch a devotion, that they offered their goods into the treasure-house of the Temple, under the pretence of God's honour, leaving their fathers and mothers, to whom they were chiefly bound, unholpen; and fo they brake the commandments of God, to keep their own traditions. They effected more an oath made by the gold or oblation in the Temple, than an oath made in the name of God himself, or of the Temple. They were more studious to pay their tithes of finall things, than to do the greater things commanded of God, as works of mercy, or to do justice, or to deal sincerely, uprightly, and faithfully with God and man: Thefe, faith Christ, ought to be done, Matt. xxiii. and the other not left undone. And, to be short, they were of fo blind judgment, that they flumbled at a fraw, and leaped over a block; they would, as it were, nicely take a fly out of their cup, and drink down a whole camel; and therefore Christ called them blind guides, warning his difciples from time to time to eschew their doctrine. For although they feemed to the world to be most perfect men, both in living and teaching, yet was their life but hypocrify, and their doctrine but four leaven, mingled with fuperstition, idolatry, and overthwart judgment, letting up the traditions and ordinances of man, instead of God's commandments.

The Third Part of the Sermon of Good Works.

THAT all men might rightly judge of good works, it hath been declared in the fecond part of this Sermon, what kind of good works they be that God would have his people to walk in, namely, fuch as he hath commanded in his holy Scripture, and not fuch works as men have studied out of their own brain, of a blind zeal and devotion, without the word of God: and by miftaking the nature of good works, man hath most highly displeased God, and hath gone from his will and commandments. So that thus you have heard how much the world, from the beginning until Christ's time, was ever ready to fall from the commandments of God, and to feek other means to honour and ferve him, after a devotion found out of their own heads; and how they did fet up their own traditions as high or above God's commandments; which hath happened also in our times (the more it is to be lamented) no less than it did among the Jews, and that by the corruption, or at least by the negligence of them that chiefly ought to have preferved the pure and heavenly doctrine left by Christ. What man, having any judgment Sects and religious amongst Christian men.

or learning, joined with a true zeal unto God, doth not fee and lament to have entered into Christ's religion, such false doctrine, superstition, idolatry, hypocrify, and other enormities and abuses, so as by little and little, through the four leaven thereof, the fweet bread of God's holy word hath been much hindered and laid apart? Neither had the Jews in their most blindness so many pilgrimages unto images, nor used so much kneeling, kissing, and cenfing of them, as hath been used in our time. Sects and feigned religious were neither the fortieth part fo many among the Jews, nor more superstitiously and ungodlily abused, than of late days they have been among us: which fects and religions had fo many hypocritical and feigned works in their state of religion, as they arrogantly named it, that their lamps, as they faid, ran always over, able to fatisfy not only for their own fins, but also for all other their benefactors, brothers, and fifters of religion, as most ungodlily and craftily they had perfuaded the multitude of ignorant people; keeping in divers places, as it were, marts or markets of merits, being full of their holy relicks, images, flirines, and works of overflowing abundance ready to be fold; and all things which they had were called holy, holy cowls, holy girdles, holy pardons, beads, holy shoes, holy rules, and all full of holiness. And what thing can be more foolish, more superstitious, or ungodly, than that men, women, and children, should wear a friar's coat to deliver them from agues or pestilence? or when they die, or when they be buried, cause it to be cast upon them, in hope thereby to be faved? Which superstition, although (thanks be to God) it hath been little used in this realm, yet in divers other realms it hath been and yet is used among many, both learned and unlearned. to pass over the innumerable superstitiousness that hath been in strange apparel, in silence, in dormitory, in cloister, in chapter, in choice of meats and drinks, and in fuch like things, let us confider what enormities and abuses have been in the three chief principal points, which they called the three effentials, or three chief foundations of religion, that is to fay, obedience, chastity, and wilful poverty.

The three chief vows of religion.

First, under pretence or colour of obedience to their Father in religion, (which obedience they made themselves) they were made free, by their rule and canons, from the obedience of their natural father and mother, and from the obedience of emperer and king, and all temporal power, whom of very duty by God's laws they were bound to obey. And so the profession of their obedience not due was a forfaking of their due obedience. And how their profession of chastity was kept, it is more honesty to pass over in filence, and let the world judge of that which is well known, than with unchaste words, by expressing of their unchaste life, to offend chaste and godly ears. And as for their wilful poverty, it was fuch, that when in poffestions, jewels, plate, and riches, they were equal or above merchants, gentlemen, barons, earls, and dukes; yet by this fubtile forhistical term, Proprium in commune, that is to fay, Proper in common, they mocked the world, perfuading, that notwithstanding all their possessions and riches, yet they kept their vow, and were in wilful poverty. But for all their riches, they might neither help father or mother, nor other that were indeed very needy and poor, without the licence of their Father Abbot, Prior, or Warden; and yet they might take of every man, but they might not give aught to any man, no not to them whom the laws of God bound them to help: and fo, through their traditions and rules, the laws of God could bear no rule with them: and therefore of them might be most truly faid that which Christ spake unto the Pharisees, You Matt. xv. treak the commandments of God by your traditions: you bonour God with your lips, but your bearts be far from bim. And the longer prayers they used by day and by night, under pretence or colour of fuch holiness, to get the favour of widows and other fimple folks, that they might fing Trentalles and fervice for their hufbands and friends, and admit or receive them into their prayers; the more truly is verified of them the faying of Christ, Wo be unto Matt. xxiii. you, Scribes and Pharifees, hypocrites! for you devour seidows' boufes under colour of long prayers; therefore your damnation Shall be the greater. Wo be to you, Scribes and Pharifees, bypocrites! for you go about by fea and by land to make more novices, and new brethren; and when they be let in, or received of your feet, you make them the children of hell worfe than yourselves be. Honour be to God, who did put light in the heart of his faithful and true minister of most famous memory, King Henry VIII. and gave him the knowledge of his word, and an earnest affection to seek his glory, and to put away all fuch superstitions and pharifaical fects, by Antichrift invented, and fet up against the true word of God, and glory of his most blessed name, as he gave the like spirit unto the most noble and famous princes, Josaphat, Josias, and Ezechias. God grant all us the King's Highness faithful and true subjects, to feed of the fweet and favoury bread of God's own word, and (as Christ

Decrecs and decre-

Christ commanded) to eschew all our Pharisaical and Papistical leaven of man's feigned religion: which, although it were before God most abominable, and contrary to God's commandments and Christ's pure religion, yet it was praifed to be a most godly life, and highest state of perfection: as though a man might be more godly, and more perfect, by keeping the rules, traditions, and profeffions of men, than by keeping the holy commandments of God. And briefly to pass over the ungodly and counterfeit religion, let us rehearle fome other kinds of Papiffical fuperstitions and abuses, as of Beads, of Lady Psalters, and Rofaries, of lifteen Ocs, of St. Bernard's Verses, of St. Agathe's Letters; of purgatory, of masses satisfactory, of stations and jubilees, of feigned relicks, of hallowed beads, bells, bread, water, pfalms, candles, fire, and fuch other; of superstitious fastings, of fraternities or brotherhoods, of pardons, with fuch like merchandize, which were fo esteemed and abused to the great prejudice of God's glory and commandments, that they were made most high and most holy things, whereby to attain to the everlasting life, or remission of sin: yea also vain inventions, unfruitful ceremonies, and ungodly laws, decrees, and councils of Rome, were in fuch wife advanced, that nothing was thought comparable in authority, wisdom, learning, and godliness, unto them; fo that the laws of Rome, as they faid, were to be received of all men as the four Evangelists, to the which all laws of princes must give place: and the laws of God also partly were left off and less esteemed, that the faid laws, decrees, and councils, with their traditions and ceremonies, might be more duly kept, and had in greater reverence. Thus was the people through ignorance fo blinded with the godly shew and appearance of those things, that they thought the keeping of them to be a more holinefs, a more perfect fervice and honouring of God, and more pleasing to God, than the keeping of God's commandments. Such hath been the corrupt inclination of man, ever fuperstitiously given to make new honouring of God of his own head, and then to have more affection and devotion to keep that, than to fearch out God's holy commandments, and to keep them. And furthermore, to take God's commandments for men's commandments, and men's commandments for God's commandments, yea, and for the highest and most perfect and holieft of all God's commandments. And fo was all confused, that feant well learned men, and but a fmall number of them knew, or at the least would know, and durst affirm the truth, to separate or sever God's commandments from the commandments of men. Whereupon did grow much error, superstition, idolatry, vain religion, overthwart judgment, great contention, with all ungodly living.

Wherefore, as you have any zeal to the right and pure An exhorthonouring of God, as you have any regard to your own ation to the fouls, and to the life that is to come, which is both with-keeping of God's comout pain and without end, apply yourfelves chiefly above mandall things, to read and hear God's word, mark diligently ments. therein what his will is you shall do, and with all your endeavour apply yourselves to follow the same. First, you A brief remust have an assured faith in God, and give yourselves hearfal of wholly unto him, love him in prosperity and adversity, and manddread to offend him evermore: then, for his fake, love all ments. men, friends and foes, because they be his creation and image, and redeemed by Christ, as ye are. Cast in your minds, how you may do good unto all men unto your powers, and hurt no man. Obey all your superiors and governors; ferve your masters faithfully and diligently, as well in their absence as in their presence, not for dread of punishment only, but for conscience sake, knowing that you are bound fo to do by God's commandments. Difobey not your fathers and mothers, but honour them, help them, and please them to your power. Oppress not, kill not, beat not, neither flander, nor hate any man; but love all men, speak well of all men, help and succour every man as you may, yea, even your enemies that hate you, that fpeak evil of you, and that do hurt you. Take no man's goods, nor covet your neighbour's goods wrongfully; but content yourselves with that which ye get truly; and also bestow your own goods charitably, as need and case requireth. Flee all idolatry, witchcraft, and perjury; commit no manner of adultery, fornication, or other unchasteness, in will nor in deed, with any other man's wife, widow or maid, or otherwife. And travelling continually (during this life) thus in keeping the commandments of God (wherein standeth the pure, principal, and right honour of God, and which wrought in faith, God hath ordained to be the right trade and path-way unto heaven) you shall not fail, as Christ hath promised, to come to that bleffed and everlafting life, where you shall live in glory and joy with God for ever: to whom be praife, honour, and empery, for ever and ever. Amen.

Christian Love and Charity.

OF all things that be good to be taught unto Christian people, there is nothing more necessary to be spoken of, and daily called upon, than charity; as well for that all manner of works of righteousness be contained in it, as also that the decay thereof is the ruin or fall of the world, the banishment of virtue, and the cause of all vice. And forfomuch as almost every man maketh and frameth to himself charity after his own appetite, and how detestable foever his life be both unto God and man, yet he perfuadeth himself still that he hath charity: therefore you shall hear now a true and plain description or setting forth of charity, not of men's imagination, but of the very words and example of our Saviour Jesus Christ: in which defcription or fetting forth, every man (as it were in a glass) may confider himself, and see plainly without error, whether he be in the true charity or not.

Charity is, to love God with all our heart, all our foul, tity is. The and all our powers and strength. With all our heart; that love of God. is to fay, that our heart, mind, and study be set to believe his word, to trust in him, and to love him above all other things that we love best in heaven or in earth. With all our life; that is to fay, that our chief joy and delight be fet upon him and his honour, and our whole life given unto the fervice of him above all things, with him to live and die, and to forfake all other things rather than him: for be that loveth his father or mother, fon or daughter, boufe or land, more than me, faith Christ, is not worthy to have me. With all our power; that is to fay, that with our hands and feet, with our eyes and ears, our mouths and tongues, and with all our parts and powers both of body and foul, we should be given to the keeping and fulfilling of his commandments. This is the first and principal part of charity; but it is not the whole: for charity is also to love The love of every man, good and evil, friend and foe; and whatfoever thy neighcause be given to the contrary, yet nevertheless to bear bour. good will and heart unto every man, to use ourselves well unto them, as well in words and countenances, as in all our outward acts and deeds; for fo Christ himself taught, and so also he performed indeed. Of the love of God he taught on this wife unto a doctor of the law, that asked him, which was the great and chief commandment in the Law: Love thy Lord God, faid Christ, with all thy heart, Matt. xxii. with all thy foul, and with all thy mind. And of the love that we ought to have among ourselves each to other, he teacheth us thus: You have heard it taught in times past, Thou shalt love thy friend, and hate thy foe: but I tell you, Matt. v. love your enemies, Speak well of them that defame and Speak evil of you, do well to them that hate you, pray for them that vex and perfecute you, that you may be the children of your Father that is in heaven: for he maketh his fun to rife both upon the evil and good, and fendeth rain to the just and unjust. For if you love them that love you, what reward shall you have? Do not the publicans likewife? And if you speak swell only of them that be your brethren and dearly beloved friends, what great matter is that? Do not the heathen the fume also? There be the very words of our Saviour Christ himself, touching the love of our neighbour. And forafmuch as the Pharifees (with their most pestilent traditions, and false interpretations and glosses) had corrupted and almost clearly stopped up this pure well of God's lively word, teaching that this love and charity pertained only to a man's friends, and that it was fufficient for a man to love them which do love him, and hate his foes; therefore Christ opened this well again, purged it and scoured it by giving unto his godly law of charity a true and clear interpretation, which is this; That we ought to love every man, both friend and foe, adding thereto what commodity we shall have thereby, and what incommodity by doing the contrary. What thing can we wish so good for us, as the eternal heavenly Father to reckon and take us for his children? And this we shall be sure of, saith Christ, if we love every man without exception. And if we do otherwife, faith he, we be no better than the Pharifees, Publicans, and Heathen, and shall have our reward with them, that is, to be thut out from the number of God's chosen children, and from his everlasting inheritance in heaven.

Thus of true charity, Christ taught that every man is bound to love God above all things, and to love every man, friend and foe; and this likewife he did use himself, exhorting his adversaries, rebuking the faults of his adverfaries; and when he could not amend them, yet he prayed for them. First, he loved God his Father above all things; fo much, that he fought not his own glory and will, but the glory and will of his Father. I feek-not, faid he, mine ozon will, but the will of him that fent me. Nor re-Matt. xxvi. fused he to die, to fatisfy his Father's will, saying, If it may be, let this cup of death pass from me; if not, thy will be done, and not mine. He loved not only his friends, but also his enemies, which (in their hearts) bore exceeding great hatred against him, and with their tongues spake all evil of him, and in their acts and deeds purfued him with all their might and power, even unto death: yet all this notwithstanding, he withdrew not his favour from them, but still loved them, preached unto them of love, rebuked their false doctrine, their wicked living, and did good unto them, patiently taking whatfoever they spake or did against him. When they gave him evil words, he gave none evil again; when they did strike him, he did not smite them again; and when he fuffered death, he did not flay them, nor threaten them, but prayed for them, and did put all things to his Father's will. And as a sheep that is led unto the shambles to be slain, and as a lamb that is shorn of his fleece, maketh no noise nor refistance; even so he > went to his death without any repugnance, or opening of his mouth to fay any evil. Thus have I fet forth unto you what charity is, as well by the doctrine as by the example of Christ himself, whereby also every man may without error know himself, what state and condition he standeth in, whether he be in charity (and fo the child of the Father in heaven) or not. For although almost every man perfuadeth himself to be in charity, yet let him examine none other man but his own heart, his life and conver> fation, and he shall not be deceived, but truly differn and judge whether he be in perfect charity or not. For he that followeth not his own appetite and will, but giveth himself earnestly to God, to do all his will and commandments, he may be fure that he loveth God above all > things; and elfe, furely he loveth him not, whatfoever he pretend: as Christ said, If ye love me, keep my commandments. For be that knoweth my commandments, and keepeth them, he it is, faith Christ, that loveth me. And again he faith, He that loveth me, will keep my words, and my Father John xiv. will love him, and we will both come to him, and dwell with him: and he that loveth me not, will not keep my words. And likewise, he that beareth a good heart and mind, and useth well his tongue and deeds unto every man, friend and soe, he may know thereby that he hath charity. And then he is sure that Almighty God taketh him for his dearly beloved Son, as St. John saith, Hereby manifestly are known I John iii. the children of God from the children of the Devil; for whosever doth not love his brother, belongeth not unto God.

The Second Part of the Sermon of Charity.

YOU have heard a plain and fruitful fetting forth of charity, and how profitable and necessary a thing charity is; how charity stretcheth itself both to God and man, friend and foe, and that by the doctrine and example of Christ; and also who may certify himself whether he be in perfect charity or not. Now, as concerning the fame matter, it followeth. The perverse nature of man, Against corrupt with fin, and destitute of God's word and grace, camalmen, thinketh it against all reason, that a man should love his not forgive enemy, and hath many perfuations which bring him to their enethe contrary. Against all which reasons, we ought as mies. well to fet the teaching as the living of our Saviour Christ, who loving us (when we were his enemies) doth teach us to love our enemies: he did patiently take for us many reproaches, fuffered beating and most cruel death: therefore we be no members of him, if we will not follow him. Christ, saith St. Peter, suffered for us, leaving an example 1 Pet. ii. that we should follow him.

Furthermore, we must consider, that to love our friends, is no more but that which thieves, adulterers, homicides, and all wicked persons do; insomuch that Jews, Turks, Insidels, and all brute beasts, do love them that be their friends, of whom they have their living, or any other benefits. But to love enemies, is the proper condition of them that be the children of God, the disciples and sollowers of Christ. Notwithstanding man's froward and corrupt nature weigheth over deeply many times the offence and displeasure done unto him by enemies, and thinketh it a burden intolerable, to be bound to love them that hate him. But the burden should be easy enough, if (on the other fide) every man would confider, what difpleasure he hath done to his enemy again, and what pleafure he hath received of his enemy; and if we find no equal or even recompence, neither in receiving pleafures of our enemy, nor in requiting displeasures unto him again; then let us ponder the displeasures which we have done unto Almighty God, how often and how grievoully we have offended him, whereof if we will have of God forgiveness, there is none other remedy but to forgive the offences done unto us, which be very small in comparison of our offences done against God. And if we consider that he which hath offended us deferveth not to be forgiven of us, let us consider again, that we much less deserve to be forgiven of God. And although our enemy deferve not to be forgiven for his own fake, yet we ought to forgive him for God's love, confidering how great and many benefits we have received of him without our deferts, and that Christ hath deserved of us, that for his sake we should forgive them their trespasses committed against us. But A question here may rife a necessary question to be dissolved. If charity require to think, speak, and do well unto every man, both good and evil; how can magistrates execute justice upon malefactors or evil-doers with charity? How can they cast evil men in prison, take away their goods, and fometimes their lives, according to laws, if charity will not fuffer them fo to do? Hereunto is a plain and a brief answer, That plagues and punishments be not evil of themfelves, if they be well taken of the harmless: and to an evil man they are both good and necessary, and may be executed according to charity, and with charity should be executed. For declaration whereof, you shall understand that charity hath two offices; the one contrary to the other, and yet both necessary to be used upon men of con-

Answer.

Charity hath two offices.

> do well, and to continue in well doing, defending them with the fword from their adversaries; as the office of bishops and pastors is, to praise good men for well doing, that they may continue therein, and to rebuke and correct by the word of God the offences and crimes of all evildisposed persons. The other office of charity is, to rehuke, > trary fort and disposition. The one office of charity is, to cherish good and harmless men, not to oppress them with false accusations, but to encourage them with rewards to > correct, and punish vice, without regard of persons, and is to be used against them only that be evil men, and malefactors or evil-doers. And that it is as well the office of charity to rebuke, punish, and correct them that be evil, as it is to cherish and reward them that be good and harmlefs, St. Paul declareth, writing to the Romans, faying, That the high powers are ordained of God, not to be dreadful Rom. xiii. to them that do well, but unto malefactors, to draw the favord to take vengeance of bim that committeth the fin. And St. Paul biddeth Timothy stoutly and earnestly to rebuke sin by the I Tim. i. word of God. So that both offices should be diligently executed, to fight against the kingdom of the devil, the preacher with the word, and the governors with the fword: elfe they neither love God, nor them whom they govern, if, for lack of correction, they wilfully fuffer God to be offended, and them whom they govern to perish. For as every loving father correcteth his natural fon when he doth amifs, or elfe he loveth him not; fo all governors of realms, countries, towns, and houses, should lovingly correct them which be offenders under their governance, and cherish them which live innocently, if they have any refpect either unto God and their office, or love unto them of whom they have governance. And fuch rebukes and punishments of them that offend must be done in due time, lest by delay the offenders fall headlong into all manner of mischief, and not only be evil themselves, but also do hurt unto many men, drawing others, by their evil example, to fin and outrage after them: as one thief may both rob many men, and also make many thieves; and one feditious person may allure many, and annoy a whole town or country. And fuch evil perfons that be fo great offenders to God and the commonweal, charity requireth to be cut from the body of the commonweal, lest they corrupt other good and honest persons; like as a good surgeon cutteth away a rotten and festered member, for love he hath to the whole body, left it infect other members adjoining unto it. Thus it is declared unto you what true charity or Christian love is, so plainly, that no man need to be deceived; which love whofoever keepeth, not only towards God (whom he is bound to love above all things) but also toward his neighbour, as well friend as foe, it shall furely keep him from all offence of God, and just offence of man. Therefore bear well away this one short lesson, That by true Christian charity, God ought to be loved, good and evil, friend and foe, and to all fuch we ought, as we may, to do good; those that be good, of love to encourage and cherish, because they be good; and those that be evil, of love to procure and feek their correction and due punishment, that they may thereby either be brought to goodness, or at the least that God and the commonwealth E 4 wealth may be less hurt and offended. And if we thus direct our life by Christian love and charity, then Christ doth promise and assure us, that he loveth us, that we be the children of our heavenly Father, reconciled to his favour, very members of Christ; and that, after this short time of this present and mortal life, we shall have with him everlasting life in his everlasting kingdom of heaven. Therefore to him, with the Father, and the Holy Ghost, be all honour and glory, now and for ever. Amen.

AGAINST

Swearing and Perjury.

A LMIGHTY God, to the intent his most holy name A should be had in honour, and evermore be magnified of the people, commandeth that no man should take his name vainly in his mouth, threatening punishment unto him that unreverently abuseth it by swearing, for-swearing, and blasphemy. To the intent therefore that How and this commandment may be the better known and kept, it in what causes it is shall be declared unto you, both how it is lawful for lawful to Christian people to swear, and also what peril and danger swear. it is vainly to fwear, or to be forfworn. First, when judges require oaths of the people for declaration or opening of the truth, or for execution of justice, this manner of swearing is lawful. Also when men make faithful promises, with calling to witness of the name of God, to keep covenants, honest promises, statutes, laws, and good customs, as Christian princes do in their conclusions of peace, for conservation of commonwealths; and private persons promise their fidelity in matrimony, or one to another in honesty and true friendship: and all men when they do fwear to keep common laws, and local flatutes, and good customs, for due order to be had and continued among men; when subjects do swear to be true and faithful to their king and fovereign lord; and when judges, magistrates, and officers fwear truly to execute their offices; and when a man would affirm the truth to the fetting forth God's glory, (for the falvation of the people) in open preaching of the Gospel, or in giving of good counfel privately for their fouls' health: all these manners of fwearing, for causes necessary and honest, be lawful. But when men do fwear of cuftoin, in reasoning, buying, and felling, or other daily communications, (as many be common and great fwearers) fuch kind of fwearing is ungodly, unlawful, and forbidden by the commandment of God: for fuch fwearing is nothing elfe but taking of God's holy name in vain. And here is to be noted, that lawful-fwearing is not forbidden, but comman led by Almighty God: for we have examples of Christ and godly men, in holy Scripture, that did fwear themselves, and required oaths of others likewife; and God's commandment is, Thou shalt dread thy Lord God, and shalt swear by bis name. And Almighty God by his Prophet David

Pfal. lxiii. faith, All men shall be praised that swear by him.

Thus did our Saviour Christ swear divers times, saving,

John iii. 2 Cor. i. Gen. xxiv.

Verily, verily: and St. Paul fweareth thus, I call God to witness: and Abraham, waxing old, required an oath of his fervant, that he should procure a wife for his fon Isaac, which should come of his own kindred; and the fervant did fwear that he would perform his master's will. Abraham also, being required, did swear unto Abimelech the king of Geraris, that he should not hurt him, nor his posterity; and likewife did Abimelech swear unto Abraham. And David did fwear to be and continue a faithful friend to Jonathan; and Jonathan did fwear to become a faithful friend unto David.

Also God once commanded, that if a thing were laid to pledge to any man, or left with him to keep, if the fame thing were flolen, or loft, that the keeper thereof

And, moreover, God by the Prophet Jeremy faith, Thou shalt swear, the Lord liveth in truth, in judgment, in rightcoufnels. So that who foever sweareth when he is required of a judge, let him be fure in his confeience that his oath have three conditions, and he shall never need to be afraid of perjury.

First, he that sweareth may swear truly; that is, he ditions an must (setting apart all favour and affection to the parties) oath ought have the truth only before his eyes, and, for love thereof, fay and speak that which he knoweth to be truth, and no further. The fecond is, he that taketh an oath, must do Thesecond. it with judgment; not rashly and unadvisedly, but soberly, confidering what an oath is. The third is, he that The third. fweareth, must swear in righteousness; that is, for the very zeal and love which he beareth to the defence of innocency, to the maintenance of the truth, and of the righteousness of the matter or cause: all profit, disprosit, all love and favour unto the person for friendship or kindred laid apart. Thus an oath (if it have with it these Why we be three conditions) is a part of God's glory, which we are willed in bound by his commandments to give unto him: for he fwear by willeth that we shall swear only by his name; not that he the name hath pleasure in oaths; but like as he commanded the of God. Jews to offer facrifice unto him, not for any delight that he had in them, but to keep the Jews from committing idolatry; fo, he commanding us to fwear by his holy name, doth not teach us that he delighteth in fwearing, but he thereby forbiddeth all men to give his glory to any creature in heaven, earth, or water. Hitherto you Isaiah xlii. fee, that oaths lawful are commanded of God, used of patriarchs and prophets, of Christ himself, and of his Apofile Paul. Therefore Christian people must think lawful oaths both godly and necessary. For by lawful promise Commodiand covenants, confirmed by oaths, princes and their lawfuloaths countries are confirmed in common tranquillity and peace. made and By holy promises, with calling the name of God to wit-observed. ness, we be made lively members of Christ, when we profefs his religion receiving the facrament of baptifm. By like holy promife the facrament of matrimony knitteth man and wife in perpetual love, that they defire not to be feparated for any difpleafure or advertity that shall after happen. By lawful oaths, which kings, princes, judges, and magistrates do swear, common laws are kept inviolate, justice is indifferently ministered, harmless persons, fatherless children, widows and poor men, are defended from murderers, oppreffors, and thieves, that they fuffer no wrong, nor take any harm. By lawful oaths, mutual fociety, amity, and good order is kept continually in all commonalties, as boroughs, cities, towns, and villages: and by lawful oaths malefactors are fearched out, wrong doers are punished, and they which sustain wrong are reflored to their right: therefore lawful fwearing cannot be evil, which bringeth unto us fo many godly, good, and necessary commodities. Wherefore when Christ so vain swearearnestly forbad swearing, it may not be understood as ing is forthough bidden.

though he did forbid all manner of oaths: but he forbiddeth all vain swearing and forswearing both by God, and by his creatures, as the common use of swearing in buying, felling, and in our daily communication, to the intent every Christian man's word should be as well regarded in fuch matters, as if he should confirm his communication with an oath: for every Christian man's word, faith St. Hierom, should be so true, that it should be regarded as an oath. And Chrysostom witnessing the same, faith, It is not convenient to fwear: for what need we to fwear, when it is not lawful for one of us to make a lie unto another? Peradventure fome will fay, I am compelled to fwear, or elfe men that do commune with me. An answer or do buy and fell with me, will not believe me. To this answereth St. Chrysostom, that he that thus faith, sheweth himself to be an unjust and a deceitful person: for if he were a trufty man, and his deeds taken to agree with his words, he should not need to swear at all: for he that useth truth and plainness in his bargaining and communication, he shall have no need, by such vain swearing, to bring himfelf in credence with his neighbours, nor will his neighbours mistrust his fayings. And if his credence be so much lost indeed, that he thinketh no man will believe him without he fwear, then he may well think his credence is clean gone: for truth it is, as Theophylactus writeth, that no man is less trusted, than he that useth much to fwear: and Almighty God by the Wife Man Leel.xxxiii. saith, That man which sweareth much shall be full of sin,

But here some men will say, for excusing of their many oaths in their daily talk, Why should I not swear, when An answer. I swear truly? To such men it may be said, that though they fwear truly, yet, in fwearing often, unadvifedly, for trifles, without necessity, and when they should not swear, they be not without fault; but do take God's most holy name in vain. Much more ungodly and unwife men are they, that abuse God's most holy name, not only in buying and felling of small things daily in all places; but also in eating, drinking, playing, communing, and reafoning: as if none of thefe things might be done, except in doing of them the most holy name of God be commonly used and abused, vainly and unreverently talked of, fworn by, and forfworn, to the breaking of God's commandment, and procurement of his indignation.

and the scourge of God shall not depart from his house.

The Second Part of the Sermon of Swearing.

OU have been taught in the first part of this Sermon against swearing and perjury, what great danger it is to use the name of God in vain; and that all kind of fwearing is not unlawful, neither against God's commandment; and that there be three things required in a lawful oath. First, that it be made for the maintenance of the truth: fecondly, that it be made with judgment, not rashly and unadvisedly: thirdly, for the zeal and love of justice. Ye heard also what commodities come of lawful oaths, and what danger cometh of rash and unlawful oaths. Now, as concerning the rest of the same matter, you shall understand, that as well they use the name of God in vain, that by an oath make unlawful promifes of good and honest things, and perform them not, as they which do promise evil and unlawful things, and do perform the same. Of such men that regard not their godly Lawful promifes bound by an oath, but wittingly and wilfully oaths and break them, we do read in holy Scripture two notable promifes punishments. First, Joshua and the people of Israel made better rea league and faithful promife of perpetual amity and sarded friendship with the Gibeonites: notwithstanding afterwards, in the days of wicked Saul, many of these Gibeonites were murdered, contrary to the faid faithful promife made: wherewith Almighty God was fore difpleafed, that he fent an universal hunger upon the whole country, which continued by the space of three years: and God would not withdraw his punishment, until the faid offence was revenged by the death of feven fons, or next kinfmen of king Saul. And whereas Zedechias, 2 Kings king of Jerusalem, had promised sidelity to the king of xxiv. Chaldea; afterward, when Zedechias, contrary to his oath xxv. and allegiance, did rebel against king Nebuchodonosor; this heathen king, by God's permission and sufferance, invading the land of Jewry, and befieging the city of Jerufalem, compelled the faid king Zedechias to flee, and in fleeing took him prisoner, slew his sons before his face, and put out both his eyes; and binding him with chains, led him prisoner miserably into Babylon.

Thus doth God shew plainly how much he abhorreth Unlawful breakers of honest promises bound by an oath made in his oaths and name. And of them that make wicked promises by an promises oath, and will perform the same, we have example in the bekept.

Scrip-

Scriptures, chiefly of Herod, of the wicked Jews, and of Matth. xiv. Jephtha. Herod promifed by an oath unto the damfel which danced before him, to give unto her whatfoever she would ask; when she was instructed before of her wicked mother, to ask the head of St. John Baptist. Herod as he took a wicked oath, fo he more wickedly performed the fame, and cruelly flew the most holy Prophet.

Acts xxiii. Likewife did the malicious Jews make an oath, curfing themselves if they did cither eat or drink, until they had flain Judges xi. St. Paul. And Jephtha, when God had given to him victory of the children of Ammon, promifed (of a foolish devotion) unto God, to offer for a facrifice unto him, that person which of his own house should first meet with him after his return home. By force of which fond and unadvifed oath, he did flay his own and only daughter, which came out of his house with mirth and joy to welcome him home. Thus the promife which he made (most foolishly) to God, against God's everlasting will, and the law of nature, most cruelly he performed; so committing against God a double offence. Therefore, whosoever maketh any promife, binding himself thereunto by an oath, let him foresee that the thing which he promiseth be good and honest, and not against the commandment of God, and that it be in his own power to perform it justly: and fuch good promifes must all men keep evermore affuredly. But if a man at any time shall, either of ignorance, or of malice, promife and fwear to do any thing

An oath be-take an oath before a judge upon a book. First, when forcajudge they, laying their hands upon the Gofpel book, do fwear truly to inquire, and to make a true prefentment of things wherewith they be charged, and not to let from faying the truth, and doing truly, for favour, love, dread, or malice of any person, as God may help them, and the holy contents of that book; they must consider, that in that book is contained God's everlasting truth, his most holy and eternal word, whereby we have forgiveness of our fins, and be made inheritors of heaven, to live for ever with God's angels and faints, in joy and gladness. In the Gospel book is contained also God's terrible threats to obstinate sinners, that will not amend their lives, nor believe the truth of God's holy word; and the everlasting pain prepared in hell for idolaters, hypocrites, for false and vain fwearers, for perjured men, for falle witness bearers, for false condemners of innocent and guiltless men, and for them which for favour hide the crimes of evil-doers, that they should not be punished. So that whofoever wilfully forfwear themselves upon Christ's holy Evangely, they utterly forfake God's mercy, goodnefs, and truth, the merits of our Saviour Christ's nativity, life, passion, death, refurrection, and ascension; they refuse the forgiveness of fins, promised to all penitent finners, the joys of heaven, the company with angels and faints for ever: all which benefits and comforts are promifed unto true Christian persons in the Gospel. And they, so being forfworn upon the Gofpel, do betake themselves to the Devil's fervice, the master of all lies, falsehood, deceit, and perjury, provoking the great indignation and curfe of God against them in this life, and the terrible wrath and judgment of our Saviour Christ, at the great day of the last judgment, when he shall justly judge both the quick and the dead, according to their works. For whofoever forfaketh the truth, for love or displeasure of any man, or for lucre and profit to himfelf, doth forfake Chrift, and with Judas betray him. And although fuch perjured Though men's falsehood be now kept secret, yet it shall be opened perjury do at the last day, when the secrets of all men's hearts shall escape here unspied and be manifest to all the world: and then the truth shall ap-unpunishpear, and accuse them; and their own conscience, with ed, it shall all the bleffed company of heaven, shall bear witness truly not do so against them: and Christ, the righteous judge, shall then justly condemn them to everlasting shame and death. This fin of perjury Almighty God, by the Prophet Malachy, doth threaten to punish fore; faying unto the Jews, I will Malac. iii. come to you in judgment, and I will be a fwift witness and a Sharp judge upon forcerers, adulterers, and perjured persons. Which thing to the Prophet Zachary God declareth in a vision; wherein the Prophet faw a book flying, which was twenty cubits long, and ten cubits broad; God faying then unto him, This is the curfe that shall go forth upon the face of the earth, for fallebood, falle livearing, and perjury: and this curfe shall enter into the house of the false man, and into the bouse of the perjured man, and it shall re-main in the midst of his bouse, consume him, and the timber and stones of his bouse. Thus you fee, how much God doth hate perjury, and what punishment God hath prepared for falfe fwearers and perjured persons.

Thus

Thus you have heard how and in what causes it is lawful for a Christian man to swear: ye have heard what properties and conditions a lawful oath must have, and also how such lawful oaths are both godly and necessary to be observed: ye have heard, that it is not lawful to swear vainly, that is, other ways than in such causes, and after such tort, as is declared. And finally, ye have heard how damnable a thing it is, either to forswear ourselves, or to keep an unlawful and an unadvised oath. Wherefore let us carnestly call for grace, that, all vain swearing and perjury set apart, we may only use such oaths as be lawful and godly, and that we may truly without all fraud keep the same, according to God's will and pleasure. To whom, with the Son, and the Holy Ghost, be all honour and glory. Amen.

SERMON,

How dangerous a thing it is to fall from God.

OF our going from God, the Wife Man faith, that pride was the first beginning: for by it man's heart was turned from God his maker. For pride, faith he, is Eccl. x. the fountain of all fin: he that hath it shall be full of curfings, and at the end it shall overthrow him. And as by pride and fin we go from God, fo shall God and all goodness with him go from us. And the Prophet Hosea doth plainly affirm, that they which go away still from God Hoses v. by vicious living, and yet would go about to pacify him otherwife by facrifice, and entertain him thereby, they labour in vain. For, notwithstanding all their facrifice, yet he goeth still away from them. For formuch, faith the Prophet, as they do not apply their minds to return to God, although they go about with whole flocks and herds to feek the Lord, yet they shall not find him; for he is gone away from them. But as touching our turning to God, or from God, you shall understand that it may be done divers ways. Sometimes directly by idolatry, as Ifrael and Judah then did: fometimes men go from God by lack of faith, and mistrusting of God; whereof Isaiah speaketh on this wife, Woe to them that go down into E-1fa. xxxi, gypt to feek for help, trusting in horses, and having confidence in the number of chariots, and puissance or power of horsemen. They have no confidence in the holy God of Ifrael, nor feek for the Lord. But what followeth? The Lord shall let his hand fall upon them, and down shall come both the helper and he that is holpen; they shall be destroyed all together. Sometimes men go from God by the neglecting of his

Jer. vii.

commandments concerning their neighbours, which command them to express hearty love towards every man, as Zachary faid unto the people in God's behalf. Give true judgment, shew mercy and compassion every one to his brother, imagine no deceit towards widows, or children fatherless and motherless, towards strangers, or the poor; let no man forge evil in his heart against his brother. But these things they passed not of; they turned their backs, and went their way; they stopped their ears, that they might not hear; they hardened their hearts as an adamant stone, that they might not liften to the Law, and the words that the Lord had fent through his holy Spirit, by his ancient Prophets. Wherefore the Lord shewed his great indignation upon them. It came to pass, faith the Prophet, even as I told them: as they would not bear, so when they cried, they were not heard, but were feattered into all kingdoms which they never knew, and their land was made defolate. And, to be fhort, all they that may not abide the word of God, but following the perfuasions and stubbornness of their own hearts, go backward and not forward, as it is faid in Jeremy, They go and turn away from God. Infomuch that Origen faith, He that with mind, with study, with deeds, with thought and care, applieth and giveth himself to God's word, and thinketh upon his laws day and night, giveth himself wholly to God, and in his precepts and commandments is exercised; this is he that is turned to God. And on the other part he faith, Whofoever is occupied with fables and tales, when the word of God is rehearfed, he is turned from God. Whofoever in time of reading God's word is careful in his mind of worldly business, of money, or of lucre, he is turned from God. Whofoever is entangled with the cares of possessions, filled with covetousness of riches, whosoever studieth for the glory and honour of this world, he is turned from God. So that after his mind, whofoever hath not a special mind to that thing that is commanded or taught of God, he that doth not listen unto it, embrace, and imprint it in his heart; to the intent that he may duly fashion his life thereafter, he is plainly turned from God, although he do other things of his own devotion and mind, which to him feem better, and more to God's honour. Which thing

Kings xv. manded of God by Samuel, that he should kill all the Amalekites, and defiroy them clearly, with their goods and cattle; yet he, being moved partly with pity, and partly to be true, we be taught and admonished in the holy Scripture, by the example of king Saul; who being com-

(as he thought) with devotion unto God, faved Agag the king, and all the chief of their cattle, therewith to make facrifice unto God. Wherewithal God being displeased highly, faid unto the Prophet Sanuel, I repent that ever I made Saul king; for he hath forfaken me, and not followed my words: and fo he commanded Samuel to shew him. And when Samuel asked wherefore (contrary to God's word) he had faved the cattle, he excufed the matter partly by fear, faying, he durst do no other, for that the people would have it so; partly, for that they were goodly beafts, he thought God would be content, seeing it was done of a good intent and devotion, to honour God with the facrifice of them.

But Samuel, reproving all fuch intents and devotions, (feem they never fo much to God's honour, if they stand not with his word, whereby we may be affured of his pleasure,) said on this wife, Would God bave facrifices and offerings, or rather that his word should be obeyed? To obey him is better than offerings, and to listen to him is better than to offer the fat of rams: yea, to repugn against his voice is as evil as the sin of soothsaying: and not to agree to it is like abominable idolatry. And now for asmuch as thou hast cast away the word of the Lord, he hath cast arvay thee, that thou shouldest not be king.

By all these examples of holy Scripture, we may know, The turnthat as we forfake God, fo shall be ever for fake us. And ing of God what miferable state doth confequently and necofferily from man. what miferable state doth confequently and necessarily follow thereupon, a man may eafily confider by the terrible threatenings of God. And although he confider not all the faid mifery to the uttermost, being so great that it passeth any man's capacity in this life sufficiently to consider the same; yet he shall soon perceive so much thereof, that if his heart be not more than stony, or harder than the adamant, he shall fear, tremble, and quake, to call the fame to his remembrance. First, the displeasure of God towards us is commonly expressed in the Scripture by these two things: by shewing his fearful countenance upon us, and by turning his face, or hiding it from us. By shewing his dreadful countenance is figuified his great wrath: but by turning his face, or hiding thereof, is many times more fignified, that is to fay, that he clearly forfaketh us, and giveth us over. The which fignifications be taken of the properties of men's manners. For men towards them whom they favour commonly bear a good, a cheerful, and a loving countenance: fo that by the face or countenance of a man, it doth commonly appear what will or mind he beareth towards others. So when God doth shew his dreadful countenance towards us, that is to fay, doth fend dreadful plagues of fword, famine, or peffilence upon us, it appeareth that he is greatly wroth with us. But when he withdraweth from us his word, the right doctrine of Christ, his gracious assistance and aid, (which is ever joined to his word) and leaveth us to our own wit, our own will and thrength; he declareth then, that he beginneth to forfake For whereas God hath shewed to all them that truly believe his Gospel, his face of mercy in Jesus Christ, which doth fo lighten their hearts, that they (if they behold it as they ought to do) be transformed to his image, be made partakers of the heavenly light, and of his holy Spirit, and be fashioned to him in all goodness requisite to the children of God: fo, if they after do neglect the fame, if they be unthankful unto him, if they order not their lives according to his example and doctrine, and to the fetting forth of his glory, he will take away from them his kingdom, his holy word, whereby he should reign in them, because they bring not forth the fruit thereof that he looketh for. Nevertheless, he is so merciful, and of fo long fufferance, that he doth not fhew upon us that great wrath fuddenly. But when we begin to fhrink from his word, not believing it, or not expressing it in our livings; first he doth send his mesfengers, the true preachers of his word, to admonish and warn us of our duty: that as he for his part, for the great love he bare unto us, delivered his own Son to fuffer death, that we by his death might be delivered from death, and be restored to the life everlasting, evermore to dwell with him, and to be partakers and inheritors with him of his everlasting glory and kingdom of heaven; fo again, that we for our parts should walk in a godly life, as becometh his children to do. And if this will not ferve, but still we remain disobedient to his word and will, not knowing him, nor loving him, nor fearing him, nor putting our whole trust and confidence in him; and on the other fide, to our neighbours behaving ourselves uncharitably, by disdain, envy, malice, or by committing murder, robbery, adultery, gluttony, deceit, lying, fwearing, or other like detestable works, and ungodly behaviour, then he threateneth us by terrible comminations, fwearing in great anger, that who foever doth these works shall never enter into his rest, which is the kingdom of heaven. The Second Part of the Sermon of Falling from God.

IN the former part of this Sermon ye have learned how I many manner of ways men fall from God: fome by idolatry, some for lack of faith, some by neglecting of their neighbours, fome by not hearing of God's word, fome by the pleafure they take in the vanities of worldly things. Ye have also learned in what mifery that man is, which is gone from God; and how that God yet of his infinite goodness, to call again man from that his misery, useth first gentle admonitions by his preachers, after he layeth on terrible threatenings. Now if this gentle monition and threatening together do not ferve, then God will shew his terrible countenance upon us, he will pour intolerable plagues upon our heads, and after he will take away from us all his aid and affiftance, wherewith before he did defend us from all fuch manner of calamity. As the evangelical Prophet Isaiah, agreeing with Christ's parable, doth teach Isaiah v. us, faying, That God had made a goodly vineyard for his beloved children; be bedged it, be walled it round about, be planted it with chosen vines, and made a turret in the midst Matth. xxi. thereof, and therein also a vine-press. And when he looked that it should bring forth good grapes, it brought forth wild grapes. And after it followeth, Now Shall I shew you (faith God) what I will do with my vineyard: I will pluck down the bedges, that it may perisb: I will break down the walls, that it may be trodden under foot: I will let it lie waste, it Shall not be cut, it shall not be digged, but briers and thorns Shall overgrow it; and I shall command the clouds, that they Iball no more rain upon it.

By these threatenings we are monished and warned, that if we, which are the chosen vineyard of God, bring not forth good grapes, that is to say, good works, that may be delectable and pleasant in his sight, when he looketh for them, when he sendeth his messengers to call upon us for them, but rather bring forth wild grapes, that is to say, sour works, unsavoury and unfruitful; then will he pluck away all desence, and suffer grievous plagues of samine, battle, dearth, and death, to light upon us. Finally, if these serve not, he will let us lie waste, he will give us over, he still turn away from us, he will dig and delve no more about us, he will let us alone, and suffer us to bring forth even such fruit as we will, to bring forth brambles,

briers, and thorns, all naughtiness, all vice, and that so abundantly, that they shall clean overgrow us, choke, strangle, and utterly destroy us. But they that in this world live not after God, but after their own carnal liberty, perceive not this great wrath of God towards them, that he will not dig nor delve any more about them, that he doth let them alone even to themselves. But they take this for a great benefit of God, to have all their own liberty: and fo they live, as if carnal liberty were the true liberty of the Gospel. But God forbid, good people, that ever we should defire such liberty. For although God suffer sometimes the wicked to have their pleasure in this world, yet the end of ungodly living is at length endless destruction. The murmuring Ifraelites had that they longed for; they had quails enough, yea, till they were weary of them. But what was the end thereof? Their fweet meat had four fauce: even while the meat was in their mouths, the plague of God lighted upon them, and fuddenly they died. So, if we live ungodlily, and God fuffereth us to follow our own wills, to have our own delights and pleafures, and correcteth us not with fome plague, it is no doubt but he is almost utterly displeased with us. And although it be long ere he strike, yet many times when he striketh such persons, he striketh them at once for ever. So that when he doth not strike us, when he ceaseth to afflict us, to punish or beat us, and suffereth us to run headlong into all ungodliness and pleasures of this world that we delight in, without punishment and adversity, it is a dreadful token that he loveth us no longer, that he careth no longer for us, but hath given us over to our own felves. As long as a man doth prune his vines, doth dig at the roots, and doth lay fresh earth to them, he hath a mind to them, he perceiveth some token of fruitfulness, that may be recovered in them: but when he will bestow no more such cost and labour about them, then it is a fign that he thinketh they will never be good. And the father, as long as he loveth his child, he looketh angerly, he correcteth him when he doth amis: but when that ferveth not, and upon that he ceaseth from correction of him, and fuffereth him to do what he lift himfelf, it is a fign that he intendeth to difinherit him, and to cast him away for ever. So furely nothing should pierce our heart fo fore, and put us in fuch horrible fear, as when we know in our conscience, that we have grievously offended God, and do fo continue, and that yet he striketh not, but quietly fuffereth us in the naughtiness that we have delight light in. Then specially it is time to cry, and to cry again, as David did, Cast me not away from thy face, and Pfal. li. take not away thy holy Spirit from me. Lord, turn not away thy face from me, cast not thy servant away in displeasure. Hide not thy face from me, left I be like unto them that go down to bell. The which lamentable prayers of him, as they do certify us what horrible danger they be in, from whom God turneth his face (for the time, and as long as he fo doth:) fo fhould they move and ftir us to cry upon God with all our heart, that we may not be brought into that state, which doubtless is so forrowful, fo miferable, and fo dreadful, as no tongue can fufficiently express, nor any heart can think. For what deadly grief may a man suppose it is to be under the wrath of God, to be forfaken of him, to have his holy Spirit, the author of all goodness, to be taken from him, to be brought to so vile a condition, that he shall be left meet for no better purpose, than to be for ever condemned in hell? For not only fuch places of David do shew, that upon the turning of God's face from any persons, they shall be left bare from all goodness, and far from hope of remedy; but also the place rehearfed last before, of Isaiah, doth mean the fame, which sheweth that God at length doth so forsake his unfruitful vineyard, that he will not only fuffer it to bring forth weeds, briers, and thorns, but also further to punish the unfruitfulness of it. He faith he will not cut it, he will not delve it, and he will command the clouds, that they shall not rain upon it: whereby is signified the teaching of his holy word, which St. Paul, after a like manner, expressed by planting and watering; meaning that he will take that away from them, fo that they shall be no longer of his kingdom, they shall be no longer governed by his holy Spirit, they shall be put from the grace and benefits that they had, and ever might have enjoyed through Christ; they shall be deprived of the heavenly light and life, which they had in Christ, whilst they abode in him; they shall be (as they were once) as men without God in this world, or rather in worfe taking. And, to be fhort, they shall be given into the power of the devil, which beareth the rule in all them that be cast away from God, as he did in Saul and Judas, and generally in Kings xv. all fuch, as work after their own wills, the children of mistrust and unbelief. Let us beware therefore, good Christian people, lest that we, rejecting or casting away God's Word, (by the which we obtain and retain true faith in God) be not at length east off so far, that we become as the children of unbelief, which be of two forts, far diverse, yea almost clean contrary, and yet both be very far from returning to God: the one fort, only weighing their finful and detestable living, with the right judgment and straitness of God's righteonsness, be so without counfel, and be so comfortless, (as they all must needs be, from whom the spirit of counsel and comfort is gone) that they will not be perfuaded in their hearts, but that either God cannot, or elfe that he will not, take them again to his favour and mercy. The other, hearing the loving and large promifes of God's mercy, and fo not conceiving a right faith thereof, make those promises larger than ever God did, trufting, that although they continue in their finful and detestable living never so long, yet that God, at the end of their life, will shew his mercy upon them, and that then they will return. And both these two sorts of men be in a damnable state, and yet nevertheless, God Erek. xviii. (who willeth not the death of the wicked) hath shewed and xxxiii. means, whereby both the same (if they take heed in fea-Against des fon) may escape. The first, as they do dread God's rightful justice in punishing finners, (whereby they should be difmayed, and should despair indeed, as touching any hope that may be in themselves) so if they would conflantly or fleadfastly believe, that God's mercy is the remedy appointed against such despair and distrust, not only for them, but generally for all that be forry and truly repentant, and will therewithal flick to God's mercy, they may be fure they shall obtain mercy, and enter into the port or haven of fafeguard, into the which whofoever doth come, be they beforetime never fo wicked, they shall be out of danger of everlasting damnation, as God by Ezekiel faith, What time foever a finner doth return, and take earnest and true repentance, I will forget all his wickedness. The other, as they be ready to believe God's promifes, fo they should be as ready to believe the threatenings of God; as well they should believe the Law, as the Gospel; as well that there is an hell and everlasting fire, as that there is an heaven and everlasting joy: as well they should believe dam> nation to be threatened to the wicked and evil-doers, as falvation to be promifed to the faithful in word and works: as well they should believe God to be true in the one, as in the other. And the finners, that continue in their wicked living, ought to think, that the promifes of God's mercy, and the Gospel, pertain not unto them being in that state, but only the Law, and those Scriptures which contain the wrath and indignation of God, and his threatenings, which should certify them, that as they do over-boldly prefume of God's mercy, and live diffolutely; fo doth God still more and more withdraw his mercy from them; and he is so provoked thereby to wrath at length, that he defroyeth fuch prefuners many times fuddenly. For of fuch St. Paul faith thus, When they shall 1 Thest. v. fay, it is peace, there is no danger, then shall judden destruction come upon them. Let us beware therefore of fuch naughty boldness to fin. For God, which hath promised his mercy to them that be truly repentant, (although it be at the latter end) hath not promifed to the prefumptuous finner, either that he shall have long life, or that he shall have true repentance at the last end. But for that purpose hath he made every man's death uncertain, that he should not put his hope in the end, and in the mean seafen (to God's high diipleafure) live ungodly. Wherefore, let us follow the counfel of the Wife Man; let us make no tarrying to turn unto the Lord; let us not put off from day to day, for fuddenly shall his wrath come, and in time of vengeance he will deftroy the wicked. Let us therefore turn betimes; and when we turn, let us pray to God, as Hofea teacheth, faying, Forgive all our fins, receive us Hofea xiv. graciously. And if we turn to him with an humble and a very penitent heart, he will receive us to his favour and grace for his holy name's fake, for his promife fake, for his truth and mercies fake, promifed to all faithful believers in Jefus Chrift, his only natural Son: to whom, the only Saviour of the world, with the Father and the Holy Ghost, be all honour, glory, and power, world without end. Amen.

EXHORTATION

AGAINST

The Fear of Death.

IT is not to be marvelled that worldly men do fear to die. For death depriveth them of all worldly honours, riches, and possessions, in the fruition whereof the worldly man counteth himfelf happy, fo long as he may enjoy them at his own pleasure; and otherwise, if he be dispossessed of the same, without hope of recovery, then he can no otherwise think of himself, but that he is unhappy, because he hath lost his worldly joy and pleasure. Alas, thinketh this carnal man, shall I now depart for ever from all my honours, all my treasure, from my country, friends, riches, possessions, and worldly pleasures, which are my joy and heart's delight? Alas, that ever that day should come, when all these I must bid farewell at once, and never enjoy any of them after. Wherefore it is not without Ecclus. xli. great cause spoken of the Wife Man, O death, how bitter and four is the remembrance of thee to a man that liveth in peace and prosperity in his substance, to a man living at eafe, leading his life after his own mind without trouble, and is therewithal well pampered and fed? There be other men, whom this world doth not fo greatly laugh upon, but rather vex and oppress with poverty, sickness, or fome other adversity; yet they do fear death, partly because the flesh abhorreth naturally its own forrowful diffolution, which death doth threaten to them; and partly by reason of sicknesses and painful diseases, which be most strong pangs and agonies in the slesh, and use commonly to come to fick men before death, or at the least accompany death, whenfoever it cometh.

Although these two causes seem great and weighty to a worldly

a worldly man, whereupon he is moved to fear death; yet there is another cause much greater than any of these afore rehearfed, for which indeed he hath just cause to fear death; and that is, the state and condition whereunto at the last end death bringeth all them that have their hearts fixed upon this world, without repentance and amendment. This flate and condition is called the fecond death, which unto all fuch shall ensue after this bodily death. And this is that death which indeed ought to be dreaded and feared: for it is an everlasting loss, without remedy, of the grace and favour of God, and of everlasting joy, pleasure, and felicity. And it is not only the loss for ever of all these eternal pleasures, but also it is the condemnation both of body and foul (without either appellation, or hope of redemption) unto everlafting pains in hell. Unto this flate death fent the unmerciful and ungodly rich man, (that Luke speaketh of in his Gospel) Luke xvi, who living in all wealth and pleafure in this world, and cherishing himself daily with dainty fare, and gorgeous apparel, despised poor Lazarus, that lay pitiful at his gate, miferably plagued and full of fores, and also grievously pined with hunger. Both thefe two were arrested by death, which fent Lazarus, the poor miferable man, by angels anon unto Abraham's bosom; a place of rest, pleasure, and consolation: but the unmerciful rich man descended down into hell; and being in torments, he cried for comfort, complaining of the intolerable pain that he fuffered in that flame of fire; but it was too late. So unto this place bodily death fendeth all them that in this world have their joy and felicity, all them that in this world be unfaithful unto God, and uncharitable unto their neighbours, fo dying without repentance and hope of God's mercy. Wherefore it is no marvel, that the worldly man feareth death; for he hath much more cause so to do, than he himself doth consider. Thus we see three causes why worldly men fear death. One, because they shall lose The first. thereby their worldly honours, riches, possessions, and all their hearts defires: another, because of the painful diseases, Second. and bitter pangs, which commonly men fuffer, either before, or at the time of death: but the chief cause above Third. all other, is the dread of the miserable state of eternal damnation both of body and foul, which they fear shall follow, after their departing from the worldly pleafures of this prefent life.

For these causes be all mortal men (which be given to the love of this world) both in fear, and state of death, through fin, (as the holy Apostle saith) so long as they live here in this world: but (everlasting thanks be to Almighty God for ever) there is never a one of all these causes, no, nor yet them all together, that can make a true Christian man afraid to die (who is the very member of Christ, the temple of the Holy Ghost, the Son of God, and the very inheritor of the everlasting kingdom of heaven:) but plainly contrary, he conceiveth great and many causes, undoubtedly grounded upon the infallible and everlasting truth of the Word of God, which moveth him not only to put away the fear of bodily death, but also, for the manifold benefits and fingular commodities, which enfue unto every faithful person by reason of the same, to wish, desire, and long heartily for it. For death shall be to him no death at all, but a very deliverance from death, from all pains, cares, and forrows, miferies, and wretchedness of this world, and the very entry into rest, and a beginning of everlasting joy, a tasting of heavenly pleasures, so great, that neither tongue is able to express, neither eye to see, nor ear to hear them; no, nor any earthly man's heart to conceive them. So exceeding great benefits they be. which God our heavenly Father by his mere mercy, and for the love of his Son Jesus Christ, hath laid up in store, and prepared for them that humbly fubmit themselves to God's will, and ever more unfeignedly love him from the bottom of their hearts. And we ought to believe, that death, being flain by Christ, cannot keep any man that fteadfastly trusteth in Christ, under his perpetual tyranny and fubjection: but that he shall rife from death again unto glory at the last day, appointed by Almighty God, like as Christ our Head did rife again, according to God's appointment, the third day. For St. Augustine faith, The head going before, the members trust to follow and come after. And St. Paul faith, If Christ be rifen from the dead, we shall rife also from the same. And to comfort all Christian persons herein, holy Scripture calleth this bodily death a fleep, wherein man's fenfes be (as it were) taken from him for a feafon; and vet when he awaketh, he is more fresh than he was when he went to bed. So, although we have our fouls feparated from our bodies for a scason, yet at the general refurrection we shall be more fresh, beautiful, and perfect than we be now. For now we be mortal, then shall we be immortal; now infected with divers infirmities, then clearly void of all mortal infirmities: now we be subject to all carnal defires, then we fhall be all spiritual, desiring nothing but God's glory, and things.

things eternal. Thus is this bodily death a door or entering unto life, and therefore not fo much dreadful (if it be rightly confidered) as it is comfortable; not a mischief, but a remedy for all mischief; no enemy, but a friend; not a cruel tyrant, but a gentle guide, leading us not to mortality, but to immortality, not to forrow and pain, but to joy and pleasure, and that to endure for ever, if it be thankfully taken and accepted as God's messenger, and patiently borne of us for Christ's love, that suffered most painful death for our love, to redeem us from death eternal. Accordingly hereunto St. Paul faith, Our life is bid Col. in. with Christ in God: but when our life shall appear, then shall we also appear with him in glory. Why then shall we fear to die, confidering the manifold and comfortable promifes of the Gospel, and of holy Scriptures? God the Fa- 1 John v. ther bath given us everlasting life, faith St. John, and this life is in his Son. He that hath the Son hath life, and he that bath not the Son bath not life. And this I write, faith St. John, 1 John v. to you that believe in the name of the Son of God, that you may know that you have everlasting life, and that you do believe upon the name of the Son of God. And our Saviour Christ faith, He that believeth in me bath life everlasting, and John v. I will raise bim from death to life at the last day. St. Paul 1 Cor. ix. alfo faith, that Christ is ordained and made of God our rightconfness, or boliness, and redemption, to the intent that he which and let little by all other things, effecting them as dung, Phil. iii. which before he had in very great price, that he might he found in Christ, to have everlasting life, true holiness, righteousness, and redemption. Finally, St. Paul maketh a plain argument on this wife, If our beavenly Fa-Rom. viii, ther would not spare bis own natural Son, but did give bim to death for us; how can it be, but that with him he should give us all things? Therefore, if we have Christ, then have we with him, and by him, all good things whatfoever we can in our hearts wish or defire, as victory over death, fin, and hell: we have the favour of God, peace with him, holinefs, wifdom, justice, power, life, and redemption; we have by him perpetual health, wealth, joy, and blifs everlafting.

I hath been heretofore shewed you, that there be three causes, wherefore men do commonly fear death. First, the forrowful departing from worldly goods and pleasures. The second, the sear of the pangs and pains that come with death. The last and principal cause is, the horrible sear of extreme misery, and perpetual damnation in time to come. And yet none of these three causes troubleth good men, because they stay themselves by true faith, perfect charity, and sure hope of the endless joy and bliss

All those therefore have great cause to be full of joy that be joined to Christ with true faith, steadfast hope, and perfect charity, and not to fear death, nor everlasting damnation. For death cannot deprive them of Jefus Christ, nor can any fin condemn them that are grafted furely in him, which is their only joy, treasure, and life. Let us repent of our fins, amend our lives, trust in his mercy and fatisfaction; and death can neither take him from us, nor us from him. For then (as St. Paul faith) whether we live or die, we be the Lord's own. And again he faith, Christ did die, and rose again, because he should be Lord both of the dead and quick. Then if we be the Lord's own when we be dead, it must needs follow that such temporal death not only cannot harm us, but also that it shall be much to our profit, and join us unto God more perfeetly. And thereof the Christian heart may furely be certified by the infallible or undeceivable truth of holy Scripture. It is God, faith St. Paul, which bath prepared us unto immortality; and the same is he which bath given us an earnest of the Spirit. Therefore let us be always of good comfort; for we know that fo long as we be in the body, we be (as it were) far from God in a strange country, fubject to many perils, walking without perfect fight and knowledge of Almighty God, only feeing him by faith in holy Scriptures. But we have a courage and defire rather to be at home with God and our Saviour Christ, far from the body, where we may behold his Godhead as he is, face to face, to our everlasting comfort. These be St. Paul's words in effect, whereby we may perceive, that the life in this world is refembled and likened to a pilgrimage in a firange

us from our bodies, doth fend us straight home into our own country, and maketh us to dwell prefently with God for ever, in everlasting rest and quietness: so that to die is no lofs, but profit and winning to all true Christian people. What loft the thief, that hanged on the erofs with Christ, by his bodily death? Yea, how much did he gain by it? Did not our Saviour say unto him, This day thou halt be with Luke xvi. me in Paradife? And Lazarus, that pitiful person, that lay before the rich man's gate, pained with fores, and pined with hunger, did not death highly profit and promote him, which by the ministry of angels fent him unto Abraham's bosom, a place of rest, joy, and heavenly consolation? Let us think none other, good Christian people, but Christ hath prepared, and made ready before, the fame joy and felicity for us, that he prepared for Lazarus and the thief. Wherefore, let us stick unto his falvation and gracious redemption, and believe his word, ferve him from our hearts, love and obey him; and what soever we have done heretofore contrary to his most holy will, now let us repent in time, and hereafter study to correct our life: and doubt not, but we shall find him as merciful unto us, as he was either to Lazarus, or to the thief, whose examples are written in holy Scripture for the comfort of them that be finners, and fubject to forrows, miferies, and calamities in this world, that they should not despair in God's mercy, but ever trust thereby to have forgiveness of their fins, and life everlasting, as Lazarus and the thief had. Thus I trust every Christian man perceiveth by the infallible or undeceivable word of God, that bodily death cannot harm nor hinder them that truly believe in Christ, but contrarily shall profit and promote the Christian souls, which being truly penitent for their offences, depart hence in perfect charity, and in fure trust that God is merciful to them, forgiving their fins, for the merits of Jesus Christ his only natural Son.

The feeond cause why some do fear death is fore sick-The second nefs and grievous pains, which partly come before death, caufe why and partly accompany or come with death, whenfoever it fome do cometh. This fear is the fear of the feet death. conieth. This fear is the fear of the frail flesh, and a natural passion belonging unto the nature of a mortal man. But true faith in God's promifes, and regard of the pains and pangs which Christ upon the cross suffered for us miserable sinners, with confideration of the joy and everlasting life to come in heaven, will mitigate those pains, and moderate this fear, that it shall never be able to overthrow the hearty defire and gladuefs, that the Christian foul hath to be separated from this corrupt body, that it may come to the gracious presence of our Saviour Jesus Christ. If we believe steadfaffly the Word of God, we shall perceive that such bodily fickness, pangs of death, or whatsoever dolorous pangs we fuffer, either before or with death, be nothing elfe in Chriftian men, but the rod of our heavenly and loving Father, wherewith he mercifully correcteth us, either to try and declare the faith of his patient children, that they may be found laudable, glorious, and honourable in his fight, when Jefus Christ shall be openly shewed to be the Judge of all the world, or elfe to chaffife and amend in them whatfoever offendeth his fatherly and gracious goodnefs, left they should perish everlastingly. And this his correcting rod is common to all men that be truly his. fore let us cast away the burden of sin that lieth too heavy on our necks, and return unto God by true penance and amendment of our lives; let us with patience run this course that is appointed, fuffering (for his fake that died for our falvation) all forrows and pangs of death, and death itself joyfully, when God fendeth it to us, having our eyes fixed and fet fast ever upon the Head and Captain of our faith, Jefus Christ: who (considering the joy that he should come unto) cared neither for the shame nor pain of death, but willingly conforming and framing his will to his Father's will, most patiently suffered the most shameful and painful death of the crofs, being innocent and harmlefs. And now therefore he is exalted in heaven, and everlastingly fitteth on the right hand of the throne of God the Father. Let us call to our remembrance therefore the life and joys of heaven, that are kept for all them that patiently do fuffer here with Christ, and consider that Christ suffered all his painful passion by sinners, and for finners: and then we shall with patience, and the more eafily, fuffer fuch forrows and pains, when they come. Let us not fet at light the chastising of the Lord, nor grudge at him, nor fall from him, when of him we be corrected: for the Lord loveth them whom he doth correct, and beateth every one whom he taketh to be his child. What child is that, faith St. Paul, whom the Father loveth, and doth not chastise? If ye be without God's correction (which all his well-beloved and true children have) then be you but baffards, finally regarded of God, and not his true children.

Heb. xii.

Therefore feeing, that, when we have on earth our carnal fathers to be our correctors, we do fear them, and reverently take their correction; shall we not much more be in subjection to God our spiritual Father, by whom we thall have everlasting life? And our carnal fathers sometimes correct us, even as it pleafeth them, without cause. But this Father justly correcteth us, either for our sin, to the intent we should amend, or for our commodity and wealth, to make us thereby partakers of his holinefs. Furthermore, all correction which God fendeth us in this present time seemeth to have no joy and comfort, but forrow and pain, yet it bringeth with it a taste of God's mercy and goodness towards them that be so corrected, and a fure hope of God's everlasting consolation in heaven. If then these forrows, diseases, and sicknesses, and also death itself, be nothing else but our heavenly Father's rod, whereby he certificth us of his love and gracious favour, whereby he trieth and purifieth us, whereby he giveth unto us holinefs, and certifieth us, that we be his children, and he our merciful Father; thall not we then with all humility, as obedient and loving children, joyfully kifs our heavenly Father's rod, and ever fay in our heart, with our Saviour Jefus Chrift, Father, if this anguish and forrow which I feel, and death which I fee approach, may not pass, but that thy will is that I must suffer them, Thy will be done.

The Third Part of the Sermon against the Fear of Death.

IN this Sermon against the fear of Death, two causes were declared, which commonly move worldly men to be in much fear to die, and yet the same do nothing trouble the faithful and good livers when death cometh, but rather give them occasion greatly to rejoice, considering that they shall be delivered from the forrow and mifery of this world, and be brought to the great joy and felicity of the life to come. Now the third and special cause, why The third death indeed is to be feared, is the miferable state of the cause why worldly and ungodly people after their death: but this is death is to no cause at all, why the godly and faithful people should scar death, but rather contrariwife; their godly conversation in this life, and belief in Christ, cleaving continually to his mercies, should make them to long fore after that life, that remaineth for them undoubtedly after this bodily death. which confirm the weak conscience against the fear of all fuch dolors, ficknesses, fin, and bodily death, to assuage fuch trembling and ungodly fear, and to encourage us with comfort and hope of a bleffed state after this life. St. Paul wisheth unto the Ephesians, that God the Father of glory would give unto them the spirit of wifdom and revelation, that the eyes of their hearts might give light to know him, and to perceive bow great things he had called them unto, and how rich an inheritance be half prepared after this life for them that pertain unto bim. And St. Paul himself declareth the defire of his heart, which was to be diffolved and loofed from his body, and to be with Christ, which (as he faid) was much better for him, although to them it was more necessary that he should live, which he refused not for their fakes. Even like as St. Martin faid, Good Lord, if I be necessary for thy people, to do good unto them, I will refuse no labour: but else for mine own felf, I befeech thee to take ful refreshing in Abraham's bosom, a place of all comfort and consolation, as the Scriptures do plainly by manifest words testify. The Book of Wisdom saith, that the righteous men's souls be in the hand of God, and no torment shall touch them. They seemed to the eyes of foolish men to die, and their death was counted misera-

ment shall touch them. They seemed to the eyes of foolish men to die, and their death was counted miserable, and their departing out of this world wretched; but they be in rest. And another place faith, that the righteous shall live for ever, and their reward is with the Lord, and their minds be with God, who is above all: therefore they shall receive a glorious kingdom, and a beautiful crown at the Lord's hand. And in another place the fame book faith, The righteous, though he be prevented with fudden death, nevertheless he shall be there, where he shall be refreshed. Of Abraham's bosom Christ's words be fo plain, that a Christian man needeth no more proof of it. Now then if this were the state of the holy fathers and righteous men before the coming of our Saviour, and before he was glorified; how much more then ought all we to have a fleadfast faith, and a fure hope of this bleffed flate and condition, after our death? feeing that our Saviour now hath performed the whole work of our redemption, and is gloriously ascended into heaven, to prepare our dwelling-places with him, and faid unto his Father, Father, I will that where I am, my servants shall be John xvii. with me. And we know, that whatfoever Christ will, his Father will the same; wherefore it cannot be, but, if we be his faithful fervants, our fouls shall be with him, after our departure out of this present life. St. Stephen, when he was stoned to death, even in the midst of his torments, what was his mind most upon? When he was full of the Acts vii. Holy Ghost (faith holy Scripture) having his cycs lifted up into beaven, be faw the glory of God, and Sejus flanding on the right band of God. The which truth, after he had confessed boldly before the enemies of Christ, they drew him out of the city, and there they Roned him, who cried unto God, faying, Lord Jefus Christ, take my spirit. And doth not our Saviour fay plainly in St. John's Gospel, Verily, verily, John v. I fay unto you, He that heareth my word, and believeth on him that fent me, bath everlasting life, and cometh not into judgment, but shall pass from death to life? Shall we not then think that death to be precious, by the which we pass unto

Therefore it is a true faying of the Prophet, The death Pfal. cavi. of the holy and righteous men is precious in the Lord's fight. Holy Simeon, after that he had his heart's defire in feeing our Saviour, that he ever longed for in his life, he embraced, and took him in his arms, and faid, Now, Lord, let Luke ii. me depart in peace, for mine eyes have beholden that Saviour

It is truth therefore, that the death of the righteous is called peace, and the benefit of the Lord, as the Church faith, in the name of the righteous departed out of this world, My foul, turn thee to thy rest, for the Lord hath been good to Psal. cxvi. thee, and rewarded thee. And we see by holy Scripture, and other ancient histories of martyrs, that the holy, faithful, and righteous, ever fince Christ's ascension, or going up, in their death did not doubt, but that they went to Christ in spirit, which is our life, health, wealth, and salvation. John in his holy Revelation faw an hundred forty and four thousand Virgins and Innocents, of whom he faid, Thefe follow the Lamb Jefus Christ wherefower he Apoc. xiv. goeth. And shortly after in the same place he saith, I beard a voice from beaven, faying unto me, Write, bappy and bleffed are the dead which die in the Lord: from henceforth (furely faith the Spirit) they shall rest from their pains and labours, for their works do follow them: fo that then they fhall

with labours and pains.

They that fore in the Spirit, of the Spirit shall reap everlasting life: let us therefore never be aveary of well-doing; for when the time of reaping or reward cometh, we shall reap without any weariness everlasting joy. Therefore while we bave time (as St. Paul exhorteth us) let us do good to all men, Mauth. vi. and not lay up our treasure in earth, where rust and moths corrupt it, which ruft (as St. James faith) shall bear witness against us at the great day, condemn us, and shall (like most burning fire) torment our flesh. Let us beware therefore (as we tender our own wealth) that we be not in the number of those miserable, covetous, and wretched men, which St. James biddeth mourn and lament for their greedy gathering and ungodly keeping of goods. Let us be wife in time, and learn to follow the wife example of the wicked Steward. Let us so wisely order our goods and possessions, committed unto us here by God for a feafon, that we may truly hear and obey this commandment of our Saviour Christ: I fay unto you (faith he) make you friends of the wicked Mammon, that they may receive you into everlasting tabernacles or dwellings. Riches be called wicked, because the world abuseth them unto all wiekedness, which are otherwife the good gifts of God, and the inftruments, whereby God's fervants do truly ferve him in using of the fame. He commanded them not to make them rich friends. to get high dignities and worldly promotions, to give great gifts to rich men that have no need thereof; but to make them friends of poor and miserable men, unto whom whatfoever they give, Christ taketh it as given to himself. And to these friends Christ in the Gospel giveth so great honour and pre-eminence, that he faith, they shall receive them that do good unto them into everlasting houses: not that men shall be our rewarders for our well-doing, but that Christ will reward us, and take it to be done unto himself, whatsoever is done to such friends.

Thus making poor wretches our friends, we make our Saviour Christ our friend, whose members they are: whose misery as he taketh for his own misery, so their relief, fuecour, and help he taketh for his fuecour, relief, and help; and will as much thank us and reward us for our goodness shewed to them, as if he himself had received like benefit at our hands, as he witnesseth in the Gospel,

Matt. xxv. faying, Whatforver ye have done to any of theje fimple perfons, which do believe in me, that have you done to myfelf.

Therefore

Therefore let us diligently foresee, that our faith and hope, which we have conceived in Almighty God, and in our Saviour Christ, wax not faint, and that the love, which we bear in hand to bear to him, wax not cold: but let us fludy daily and diligently to shew ourselves to be the true honourers and lovers of God, by keeping of his commandments, by doing of good deeds unto our needy neighbours, relieving, by all means that we can, their poverty with our abundance and plenty, their ignorance with our wifdom and learning, and comfort their weakness with our strength and authority, calling all men back from evil doing by godly counfel and good example, perfevering still in welldoing, fo long as we live: fo shall we not need to fear death for any of those three causes afore-mentioned, nor yet for any other cause that can be imagined: but contrarily, confidering the manifold ficknesses, troubles, and forrows of this present life, the dangers of this perilous pilgrimage, and the great encumbrance which our spirit hath by this finful flesh and frail body, subject to death: considering also the manifold forrows and dangerous deceits of this world on every fide, the intolerable pride, covetoufnefs, and lechery, in time of prosperity; the impatient murmuring of them that be worldly, in time of advertity, which cease not to withdraw and pluck us from God our Saviour Christ, from our life, wealth, or everlasting joy and falvation: confidering also the innumerable asfaults of our ghoftly enemy the Devil, with all his fiery darts of ambition, pride, lechery, vain-glory, envy, malice, detraction, or backbiting, with other his innumerable deceits, engines, and fnares, whereby he goeth bufily about to 1 Pet. v. catch all men under his dominion, ever like a roaring lion, by all means fearching whom he may devour. The faithful Christian man which considereth all these miseries, perils, and incommodities, (whereunto he is subject so long as he here liveth upon earth) and on the other part confidereth that bleffed and comfortable flate of the heavenly life to come, and the fweet condition of them that depart in the Lord; how they are delivered from the continual encumbrances of their mortal and finful body, from all the malice, erafts, and deceits of this world, from all the affaults of their ghostly enemy the Devil, to live in peace, rest, and endless quietness, to live in the fellowship of innumerable angels, and with the congregation of perfect and just men, as patriarchs, prophets, martyrs, and confessors, and finally unto the presence of Almighty God, and our Saviour Jesus Christ:—he that doth consider all these G 3 things, and believeth them affuredly, as they are to be believed, even from the bottom of his heart, being established in God in this true faith, having a quiet confcience in Christ, a firm hope and affured trust in God's mercy; through the merits of Jesus Christ to obtain this quietnels, rest, and everlasting joy, shall not only be without fear of bodily death, when it cometh, but certainly, as St. Paul did, fo shall he gladly (according to God's will, and when it pleafeth God to call him out of this life) greatly defire in his heart, that he may be rid from all these occasions of evil, and live ever to God's pleasure, in perfect obedience of his will, with our Saviour Jefus Christ; to whose gracious presence the Lord of his infinite mercy and grace bring us, to reign with him in life everlasting: to whom, with our heavenly Father, and the Holy Ghoft, be glory in worlds without end. Amen.

Good Order, and Obedience to Rulers and Maggifrates.

Lmighty God hath created and appointed all things in heaven, earth, and waters, in a most excellent and perfect order. In heaven he hath appointed distinct and feveral orders and states of archangels and angels. In earth he hath affigued and appointed kings, princes, with other governors under them, in all good and necessary order. The water above is kept, and raineth down in due time and feafon. The fun, moon, stars, rainbow, thunder, lightning, clouds, and all birds of the air, do keep their order. The earth, trees, feeds, plants, herbs, corn, grafs, and all manner of beafts, keep themselves in order: all the parts of the whole year, as winter, fummer, months, nights, and days, continue in their order: all kinds of fishes in the fea, rivers, and waters, with all fountains, fprings, yea, the feas themselves, keep their comely course and order: and man himself also hath all his parts both within and without, as foul, heart, mind, memory, understanding, reason, speech, with all and singular corporal members of his body, in a profitable, necessary, and pleafant order: every degree of people in their vocation, calling, and office, hath appointed to them their duty and order: fome are in high degree, fome in low, fome kings and princes, some inferiors and subjects, priests and laymen, mafters and fervants, fathers and children, husbands and wives, rich and poor; and every one hath need of other; fo that in all things is to be lauded and praifed the goodly order of God, without the which no house, no city, no commonwealth can continue and endure, or last. For where there is no right order, there reigneth all abuse, carnal liberty, enormity, fin, and Babylonical confusion. Take G 4 and fuch estates of God's order, no man shall ride or go by the way unrobbed, no man shall sleep in his own house or bed unkilled, no man shall keep his wife, children, and possessions in quietness, all things shall be common; and there must needs follow all mischief and utter destruction both of fouls, bodies, goods, and commonwealths. But bleffed be God that we in this realm of England feel not the horrible calamities, miferies, and wretchedness, which all they undoubtedly feel and fuffer, that lack this godly order: and praifed be God that we know the great excellent benefit of God shewed towards us in this behalf. God hath fent us his high gift, our most dear sovereign King Edward, with a godly, wife, and honourable council, with other fuperiors and inferiors, in a beautiful order, and godly. Wherefore, let us fubjects do our bounden duties, giving hearty thanks to God, and praying for the prefervation of this godly order. Let us all obey, even from the bottom of our hearts, all their godly proceedings, laws, flatutes, proclamations, and injunctions, with all other godly orders. Let us confider the Scriptures of the Holy Ghoft, which perfuade and command us all obediently to be subject, first and chiefly to the King's majesty, supreme governor over all, and next to his honourable council, and to all other noblemen, magistrates and officers, which by God's goodnefs be placed and ordered. For Almighty God is the only author and provider for this forenamed state and order, as it is written of God in the Book of the Proverbs, Through me kings do reign, through me counfellors make just laws, through me do princes bear rule, and all judges of the earth execute judgment: I am loving to them that love me. Here let us mark well, and remember, that the high power and authority of kings, with their making of laws, judgments, and offices, are the ordinances, not of man, but of God; and therefore is this word (through me) fo many times repeated. Here is also well to be considered and remembered, that this good order is appointed by God's wisdom, favour, and love, especially for them that love God; and therefore he faith, I love them that love me. Also in the Book of Wisdom we may evidently learn, that a king's power, authority, and flrength, is a great benefit of God; given of his great mercy, to the comfort of our great mifery. For this we read there spoken to Kings, Hear, O ye kings, and understand; learn ye that be judges of the ends of the earth; give ear ye that rule the multitudes:

Prov. viii.

tudes; for the power is given you of the Lord, and the strength from the Highest. Let us learn also here by the infallible and undeceivable Word of God, that kings, and other fupreme and higher officers, are ordained of God, who is most high: and therefore they are here taught diligently to apply and give themselves to knowledge and wifdom, necessary for the ordering of God's people to their governance committed, or whom to govern they are charged of God. And they be here also taught by Almighty God, that they should acknowledge themselves to have all their power and strength, not from Rome, but immediately of God most high. We read in the Book of Deuteronomy, that all punishment pertaineth to God, by this fentence, Vengeance is mine, and I will reward. Deut. But this fentence we must understand to pertain also unto xxxiii. the magistrates which do exercise God's room in judgment, and punishing by good and godly laws here on earth. And the places of Scripture which feem to remove from among all Christian men judgment, punishment, or killing, ought to be understood, that no man (of his own private authority) may be judge over others, may punish, or may kill. But we must refer all judgment to God, to kings and rulers, judges under them which be God's officers to execute justice; and by plain words of Scripture have their authority and use of the fword granted from God; as we are taught by St. Paul, that dear and chosen Apostle of our Saviour Christ, whom we ought diligently to obey, even as we would obey our Saviour Christ, if he were present. Thus St. Paul writeth to the Romans, Let every foul fubmit kimfelf unto the au-Rom. xiii. thority of the higher powers, for there is no power but of God. The powers that be, be ordained of God. Whofoever therefore withstandeth the power, withstandeth the ordinance of God: but they that resist, or are against it, shall receive to themselves damnation. For rulers are not fearful to them that do good, but to them that do evil. Wilt thou be without fear of the power? Do well then, and so shalt thou be praised of the same; for he is the minister of God for thy wealth. But, and if thou do that which is evil, then fear; for he beareth not the favord for nought, for he is the minister of God, to take vengeance on bim that doth evil. Wherefore ye must needs obey, not only for fear of vengeance, but also because of conscience; and even for this cause pay ye tribute, for they are God's ministers, serving for the same purpole.

Here let us learn of St. Paul, the chosen yessel of God, that all persons having souls (he excepteth none, nor exempteth none, neither Priest, Apostle, nor Prophet, saith St. Chrysostom,) do owe of bounden duty, and even in conscience, obedience, submission, and subjection to the higher powers which be set in authority by God; forasmuch as they be God's licutenants, God's presidents, God's officers, God's commissioners, God's judges, ordained of God himself, of whom only they have all their power, and all their authority. And the same St. Paul threateneth no less pain than everlassing damnation to all disobedient persons, to all resisters against this general and common authority, forasmuch as they resist not man, but God; not man's device and invention, but God's wisdom, God's order, power, and authority.

Orasimuch as God hath created and disposed all things in a comely order, we have been taught in the first Part of the Sermon, concerning good Order and Obedience; that we ought also in all commonweals to observe and keep a due order, and to be obedient to the powers, their ordinances and laws; and that all rulers are appointed of God, for a goodly order to be kept in the world: and also how the magisfrates ought to searn how to rule and govern according to God's laws; and that all fubjects are bound to obey them as God's ministers, yea, although they be evil, not only for fear, but also for conscience fake. And here, good people, let us all mark diligently, that it is not lawful for inferiors and subjects, in any cafe, to refift and stand against the superior powers: for St. Paul's words be plain, that whofoever withflandeth, shall get to themselves damnation; for subospever swithstandeth, swiththandeth the ordinance of God. Our Saviour Christ himself, and his Apostles, received many and divers injuries of the unfaithful and wicked men in authority: yet we never read that they, or any of them, caused any sedition or rebellion against authority. We read oft, that they patiently suffered all troubles, vexations, flanders, pangs, and pains, and death itself, obediently, without tumult or refisance. They committed their cause to him that judgeth righteoully, and prayed for their enemies heartily and earneftly. They knew that the authority of the powers was God's ordinance; and therefore, both in their words and deeds, they taught ever obedience to it, and never taught nor did did the contrary. The wicked judge Pilate faid to Christ, Knowest thou not, that I have power to crucify thee, and have power also to loose thee? Jefus answered, Thou couldest have no power at all against me, except it were given thee from above. Whereby Christ taught us plainly, that even the wicked rulers have their power and authority from God; and therefore it is not lawful for their fubjects to withfland them, although they abuse their power: much less then is it lawful for fubjects to withfland their godly and Christian princes, which do not abuse their authority, but use the same to God's glory, and to the profit and commodity of God's people. The holy Apostle Peter commandeth fervants to be obedient to their masters, not only if they be I Pet. ii. good and gentle, but also if they be evil and froward: affirming, that the vocation and calling of God's people is to be patient, and of the fuffering fide. And there he bringeth in the patience of our Saviour Christ, to persuade obedience to governors, yea, although they be wicked and wrong-doers. But let us now hear St. Peter himfelf fpeak, for his words certify best our conscience: thus he uttereth them in his first Epistle; Servants, obey your masters , Pet. ii. with fear, not only if they be good and gentle, but also if they be froward. For it is thank-worthy, if a man for conscience toward God endureth grief, and suffer wrong undescreed: for auhat praise is it, auhen ye be beaten for your faults, if ye take it patiently? But when ye do well, if you then suffer wrong, and take it patiently, then is there cause to have thank of God; for hereunto verily were ye called: for so did Christ suffer for us, leaving us an example, that we should follow his steps. All these be the very words of St. Peter. Holy David also teacheth us a good lesson in this behalf, who was many I Kings times most cruelly and wrongfully perfecuted of king Saul, xviii, xix, and many times also put in jeopardy and danger of his life by king Saul and his people: yet he neither withflood, neither used any force or violence against king Saul, his mortal and deadly enemy; but did ever to his liege lord and master king Saul, most true, most diligent, and most faithful service. Insomuch, that when the Lord God had given king Saul into David's hands in his own cave, he would not hurt him, when he might, without all bodily peril, eafily have flain him: no, he would not fuffer any of his fervants once to lay their hand upon king Saul, but prayed to God on this wife: Lord, keep me from doing that thing unto my master the Lord's anointed; keep me that I lay not my hand upon him, feeing he is anointed of the Lord: for as truly as the Lord liveth, (except the Lord

Lord traite him, or except his day come, or that he go down to war, and perish in battle,) the Lord be merciful unto me, that I lay not my hands upon the Lord's anointed. And that David might have killed his enemy king Saul, it is evidently proved in the first Book of the Kings, both by the cutting off the lap of Saul's garment, and also by plain confession of king Saul. Also another time, as is mentioned in the fame book, when the most unmerciful and most unkind king Saul did persecute poor David; God did again give king Saul into David's hands, by casting of king Saul and his whole army into a dead fleep; fo that David and one Abifai with him came in the night into Saul's hoft, where Saul lay fleeping, and his fpear fluck in the ground at his head. Then faid Abifai unto David, God hath delivered thine enemy into thine hands at this time: now therefore let me smite him once with my spear to the carth, and I will not finite bim again the fecond time; meaning thereby to have killed him with one stroke, and to have made him fure for ever. And David answered and faid to Abisai, Destroy him not; for who can lay his hands on the Lord's anointed, and be guiltless? And David said furthermore, As fure as the Lord liveth, the Lord shall smite him, or his day shall come to die, or he shall descend, or go down into battle, and there perish: the Lord keep me from laying my bands upon the Lord's anointed. But take thou now the spear that is at his head, and the cruse of water, and let us go: and fo he did. Here is evidently proved, that we may not withfland nor in any wife hurt an anointed king, which is God's lieutenant, vicegerent, and highest minifter in that country where he is king. But peradventure An objecfome here would fay, that David in his own defence might have killed king Saul lawfully, and with a fafe confcience. An answer. But holy David did know that he might in no wife withfland, hurt, or kill his fovereign lord and king: he did know that he was but king Saul's fubject, though he were in great favour with God, and his enemy king Saul out of God's favour. Therefore though he were never fo much provoked, yet he refused utterly to hurt the Lord's anointed. He durft not, for offending God and his own confcience, (although he had occasion and opportunity) once lay his hands upon God's high officer the king, whom he did know to be a person reserved and kept (for his office fake) only to God's punishment and judgment: therefore he prayeth fo oft and fo carneftly, that he lay not bis bands upon the Lord's anointed. And by thefe two examples, holy David (being named in Scripture a man

Pfal. lxxxvii. after God's own heart) giveth a general rule and lesion to all subjects in the world, not to withstand their liege lord and king; not to take a fword by their private authority against their king, God's anointed, who only beareth the fword by God's authority, for the maintenance of the good, and for the punishment of the evil; who only by God's law hath the use of the sword at his command, and also hath all power, jurifdiction, regiment, correction, and punishment, as supreme governor of all his realms and dominions, and that even by the authority of God, and by God's ordinances. Yet another notable story and doctrine is in the fecond Book of the Kings, that maketh alfo for this purpole. When an Amalekite, by king Saul's a Kines i. own confent and commandment, had killed king Saul, he went to David, supposing to have had great thanks for his meffage, that he had killed David's deadly enemy; and therefore he made great haste to tell to David the chance, bringing with him king Saul's crown that was upon his head, and his bracelet that was upon his arm, to perfuade his tidings to be true. But godly David was so far from rejoicing at this news, that immediately and forthwith he rent his clothes off his back, he mourned and wept; and faid to the messenger, How is it that thou wast not afraid to lay thy hands on the Lord's anointed to destroy him? And by and by David made one of his fervants to kill the meffenger, faying, Thy blood be on thine own head, for thine own mouth bath testified and witnessed against thee, granting that thou bast slain the Lord's anointed. These examples being so manifest and evident, it is an intolerable ignorance, madness, and wickedness, for subjects to make any murmuring, rebellion, refistance, or withstanding, commotion, or infurrection against their most dear and most dread fovereign lord and king, ordained and appointed of God's goodness for their commodity, pcace, and quietnefs. Yet let us believe undoubtedly, good Christian people, that we may not obey kings, magifirates, or any other, (though they be our own fathers) if they would command us to do any thing contrary to God's commandments. In fuch a case we ought to say with the Apostle, We must rather obey God than man. But nevertheless, in Als vii. that case we may not in any wise withstand violently, or rebel against rulers, or make any insurrection, sedition, or tumults, either by force of arms, or otherwife, against the anointed of the Lord, or any of his officers: but we must in fuch case patiently suffer all wrongs, and injuries, referring the judgment of our cause only to God. Let us sear the the terrible punishment of Almighty God against traitors and rebellious persons, by the example of Korah, Dathan, and Abiram, who repined and grudged against God's magistrates and officers, and therefore the carth opened, and fivallowed them up alive. Others, for their wicked murnuring and rebellion, were by a sudden fire, sent of God, utterly consumed; others, for their froward behaviour to their rulers and governors, God's ministers, were suddenly stricken with a foul leprofy; others were stinged to death, with wonderful strange siery serpents; others were fore plagued, so that there were killed in one day the number of sourteen thousand and seven hundred, for rebellion against them whom God had appointed to be in authority. Absalom also, rebelling against his father king David, was punished with a strange and notable death.

The Third Part of the Sermon of Obedience.

YE have heard before, in this Sermon of good Order and Obedience, manifestly proved both by the Scriptures and examples, that all fubjects are bound to obey their magistrates, and for no cause to resist, or withstand, or rebel, or make any fedition against them, yea, although they be wicked men. And let no man think that he can escape unpunished that committeth treason, conspiracy, or rebellion against his sovereign lord the king, though he commit the fame never fo fecretly, either in thought, word, or deed, never fo privily, in his privy chamber by himfelf, or openly communicating and confulting with others. For treason will not be hid, treason will out at the length; God will have that most detestable vice both opened and punished, for that it is so directly against his ordinance, and against his high principal judge and anointed on earth. The violence and injury that is committed against authority is committed against God, the commonweal, and the whole realm, which God will have known, and condignly or worthily punished one way or other; for it is notably written of the Wife Man in Scripture, in the Book called Ecclefiaftes: Wish the king no evil in thy thought, nor speak no burt of bim in thy privy chamber : for the bird of the air shall betray thy voice, and with her feathers shall Fewray thy words. These lessons and examples are written for our learning; therefore let us all fear the most detestable vice of rebellion; ever knowing and remembering, that he that refisteth or withstandeth common authority, refifteth

refisteth or withstandeth God and his ordinance, as it may be proved by many other places of holy Scripture. And here let us take heed, that we understand not these or such other like places (which fo straitly command obedience to fuperiors, and fo firaitly punished rebellion and disobedience to the fame) to be meant in any condition of the pretenced or coloured power of the Bishop of Rome. truly the Scripture of God alloweth no fuch usurped power, full of enormities, abusions, and blasphemies: but the true meaning of these and such places be to extol and set forth God's true ordinance, and the authority of God's anointed kings, and of their officers appointed under them. And concerning the usurped power of the Bishop of Rome, which he most wrongfully challengeth as the successor of Christ and Peter; we may easily perceive how false, seigned, and forged it is, not only in that it hath no fufficient ground in holy Scripture, but also by the fruits and doctrine thereof. For our Saviour Christ and St. Peter teach most earnestly and agreeably obedience to kings, as to the chief and supreme rulers in this world, next under God: but the Bishop of Rome teacheth, that they that are under him are free from all burdens and charges of the commonwealth, and obedience toward their prince, most clearly against Christ's doctrine and St. Peter's. He ought. therefore rather to be called Antichrift, and the fucceffor of the Scribes and Pharifees, than Christ's vicar, or St. Peter's fuccessor; seeing that not only in this point, but also in other weighty matters of Christian religion, in matters of remission and forgiveness of sins, and of salvation, he teacheth fo directly against both St. Peter, and against our Saviour Christ, who not only taught obedience to kings, but also practifed obedience in their conversation and living: for we read that they both paid tribute to the king: and also we read, that the holy Virgin Mary, Matt. xvii. mother to our Saviour Christ, and Joseph, who was taken for his father, at the Emperor's commandment, event to the Luke ii. city of David, named Betblehem, to be taxed among other, and to declare their obedience to the magistrates, for God's ordinances fake. And here let us not forget the bleffed Virgin Mary's obedience: for although the was highly in God's favour, and Christ's natural mother, and was also great with child at the same time, and so nigh her travail, that the was delivered in her journey, yet the gladly without any excuse or grudging (for conscience sake) did take that cold and foul winter journey, being in the mean feafon fo poor that she lay in a stable, and there she was delivered

vered of Christ. And according to the same, lo, how St. Peter agreeth, writing by express words in his first Epistle: Submit yourselves, and he subject, faith he, unto kings, as unto the chief heads, and unto rulers, as unto them that are fent of him for the punishment of evil doers, and for the praise of them that do well; for so is the will of God. I need not to expound these words, they be so plain of themselves. St. Peter doth not fay, Submit yourselves unto me as supreme head of the church: neither faith he, Submit yourselves from time to time to my successors in Rome: but he faith, Submit yourselves unto your king, your supreme head, and unto those that he appointeth in authority under him: for that you shall so shew your obedience, it is the will of God, God will that you be in subjection to your head and king. This is God's ordinance, God's commandment, and God's holy will, that the whole body of every realm, and all the members and parts of the fame, fhall be subject to their head, their king, and that (as St. Peter writeth) for the Lord's fake; and (as St. Paul writeth) for conscience sake, and not for sear only. Thus we learn by the word of God to yield to our king that is Matt. xxii. due to our king; that is, honour, obedience, payments of Rom. xiii. due taxes, customs, tributes, subsidies, love, and fear. Thus we know partly our bounden duties to common authority; now let us learn to accomplish the same. And let us most inftantly and heartily pray to God, the only author of all authority, for all them that be in authority, according as St. Paul willeth, writing thus to Timothy in his first Epistle: I exhort therefore, that, above all things, prayers, fupplications, intercessions, and giving of thanks be done for all men; for kings, and for all that be in authority, that we may live a quiet and a peaceable life, with all godliness and honesty: for that is good and acceptable, or allowable in the fight of God our Saviour. Here St. Paul maketh an earnest and an especial exhortation, concerning giving of thanks and prayer for kings and rulers, faying, Above all things, as he might fay, in any wife principally and chiefly, let prayer be made for kings. Let us heartily thank God for his great and excellent benefit and providence concerning the flate of kings. Let us pray for them, that they may have God's favour, and God's protection. Let us pray that they may ever in all things have God before their eyes. Let us pray that they may have wisdom, flrength, juffice, clemency, and zeal to God's glory, to God's verity, to Christian fouls, and to the commonwealth. Let us pray that they may rightly use their fword and authority, for the maintenance and defence of the catholic faith contained in holy Scripture, and of their good and honest subjects, for the fear and punishment of the evil and vicious people. Let us pray that they may most faithfully follow the kings and captains in the Bible, David, Ezekias, Josias, and Moses, with fuch other. And let us pray for ourselves, that we may live godlily in holy and Christian conversation; so shall we have God on our side, and then let us not fear what man can do against us: so we shall live in true obedience, both to our most merciful King in heaven, and to our most Christian King on earth: so shall we please God, and have the exceeding benefit, peace of conscience, rest and quietness here in this world, and after this life we shall enjoy a better life, rest, peace, and the everlasting bliss of heaven; which he grant us all, that was obedient for us all, even to the death of the cross, Jesus Christ: to whom, with the Father, and the Holy Ghost, be all honour and glory, both now and ever. Whoredom and Uncleanness.

LTHOUGH there want not, good Christian people, great fwarms of vices worthy to be rebuked, (unto fuch decay is true godliness and virtuous living now come:) vet above other vices, the outrageous feas of adultery, (or breaking of wedlock) whoredom, fornication, and uncleanness, have not only burst in, but also overflowed almost the whole world, unto the great dishonour of God, the exceeding infamy of the name of Christ, the notable decay of true religion, and the utter destruction of the public wealth; and that so abundantly, that, through the cuftomable use thereof, this vice is grown unto such an height, that in a manner among many it is counted no fin at all, but rather a passime, a dalliance, and but a touch of youth: not rebuked, but winked at; not punished, but laughed at. Wherefore it is necessary at this present to treat of the fin of whoredom and fornication, declaring unto you the greatness of this fin, and how odious, hateful, and abominable it is, and hath alway been reputed before God and all good men, and how grievously it hath been punished both by the law of God, and the laws of divers princes. Again, to shew you certain remedies, whereby ye may (through the grace of God) eschew this most detestable fin of whoredom and fornication, and lead your lives in all honesty and cleanness, and that ye may perceive that fornication and whoredom are (in the fight of God) most abominable fins, ye shall call to remembrance this commandment of God, Thou shalt not commit adultery: by the which word adultery, although it be properly

perly understood of the unlawful commixtion or joining together of a married man with any woman beside his wife, or of a wife with any man beside her husband; yet thereby is fignified also all unlawful use of those parts, which be ordained for generation. And this one commandment (forbidding adultery) doth fufficiently paint and fet out before our eyes the greatness of this fin of whoredom, and manifestly declareth how greatly it ought to be abhorred of all honest and faithful persons. And that none of us all fhall think himfelf excepted from this commandment, whether he be old or young, married or unmarried, man or woman, hear what God the Father faith by his most excellent Prophet Moses; There Shall be no Deut. xxiii.

subore among the daughters of Ifrael, nor no suboremonger

among the fons of Ifrael.

Here is whoredom, fornication, and all other uncleanness forbidden to all kinds of people, all degrees, and all ages without exception. And that we shall not doubt, but that this precept or commandment pertaineth to us indeed, hear what Christ (the perfect teacher of all truth) faith in the New Testament: Ye bave beard, saith Christ, Matt. v. that it was faid to them of old time, Thou shalt not commit adultery: but I fay unto you, Whofoever feeth a woman, to have his lust of ber, hath committed adultery with ber already in bis beart. Here our Saviour Christ doth not only confirm and establish the law against adultery, given in the Old Testament of God the Father by his servant Moses, and make it of full strength, continually to remain among the professors of his name in the new law: but he also (condemning the gross interpretation of the Scribes and Pharifees, which taught that the forefaid commandment only required to abitain from the outward adultery, and not from the filthy defires and impure lufts,) teacheth us an exact and full perfection of purity and cleanness of life, both to keep our bodies undefiled, and our hearts pure and free from all evil thoughts, carnal defires, and fleshly confents. How can we then be free from this commandment, where fo great charge is laid upon us? May a fervant do what he will in any thing, having commandment of his mafter to the contrary? Is not Christ our master? Are not we his fervants? How then may we neglect our master's will and pleasure, and follow our own will and fantaly ? Ye are my friends, faith Christ, if you keep those John xv. things that I command you.

Now hath Christ our master commanded us, that we should forfake all uncleanness and filthiness both in body 11 2 and spirit: this therefore must we do, if we look to please God. In the Gospel of St. Matthew we read, that the Matt. xv. Scribes and Pharifees were grievously offended with Christ, because his disciples did not keep the traditions of the forefathers, for they washed not their hands when they went to dinner or supper. And, among other things, Christ answered and faid, Hear and understand; Not that thing which entereth into the mouth defileth the man, but that which cometh out of the mouth defileth the man. For those things which proceed out of the mouth come forth from the heart, and they defile the man. For out of the heart proceed Matt. xv. evil thoughts, murders, breaking of wedlock, whoredom, thefts, false witness, blasphemies : these are the things which defile a man. Here may we fee, that not only murder, theft, false witness, and blasphemy defile men, but also evil thoughts, breaking of wedlock, fornication, and whoredom. Who is now of fo little wit, that he will esteem whoredom and fornication to be things of finall importance, and of no weight before God? Christ (who is the truth, and cannot lie) faith, that evil thoughts, breaking of wedlock, whore-dom, and fornication defile a man; that is to fay, corrupt both the body and foul of man, and make them of the tem-Titus i. ples of the Holy Ghost, the filthy dungbill, or dungeon of all unclean spirits; of the bouse of God, the dwelling-place of Satan.

Again, in the Gospel of St. John, when the woman taken in adultery was brought unto Christ, said not he unto her, Go thy way, and fin no more? Doth not he here call whoredom fin? And what is the reward of fin, but everlasting death? If whoredom be fin, then it is not lawful for us to commit it; for St. John faith, He that com-mitteth fin is of the Devil. And our Saviour faith, Every one that committeth fin is the fervant of fin. If whoredom had not been fin, furely St. John Baptist would never have rebuked King Herod for taking his brother's wife: but he told him plainly, that it was not lawful for him to take his brother's wife. He winked not at the whoredom of Herod, although he were a king of power; but boldly reproved him for his wicked and abominable living, although for the same he lost his head. But he would rather fuffer death (than fee God fo dishonoured, by the breaking of his holy precept and commandment) than to fuffer whoredom to be unrebuked, even in a king. If whoredom had been but a passime, a dalliance, and not to be passed of, (as many count it now-a-days) truly John had been more than twice mad, if he would have had the

displeasure of a king, if he would have been cast in prison, and lost his head for a trifle. But John knew right well how filthy, and ftinking, and abominable the fin of whoredom is in the fight of God; therefore would not he leave it unrebuked, no not in a king. If whoredom be not lawful in a king, neither is it lawful in a fubject. whoredom be not lawful in a public or common officer, neither is it lawful in a private person. If it be not lawful neither in king nor fubject, neither in common officer nor private person, truly then it is lawful in no man nor woman, of whatfoever degree or age they be. Furthermore in the Acts of the Apostles we read, that when the Apostles and Elders, with the whole congregation, were gathered together to pacify the hearts of the faithful dwelling at Antioch, (which were disquieted through the false doctrine of certain Jewish preachers) they fent word to the brethren, that it seemed good to the Holy Ghost, and to Acts xv. them, to charge them with no more than with necessary things: among others, they willed them to abstain from idolatry and fornication, from which, faid they, if you keep yourselves, ye shall do well. Note here, how these holy and blessed fathers of Christ's church would charge the congregation with no more things than were necessary. Mark also, how, among those things, from the which they commanded the brethren of Antioch to abstain, fornication and whoredom are numbered. It is therefore necessary, by the determination and confent of the Holy Ghost, and the Apostles and Elders, with the whole congregation, that as from idolatry and superstition, so likewise we must abstain from fornication and whoredom. It is necessary unto falvation to abstain from idolatry; so it is to abstain from whoredom. Is there any nigher way to lead unto damnation, than to be an idolater? No: even fo, neither is there any nearer way to damnation, than to be a fornicator and a whoremonger. Now where are those people, which so lightly efteem breaking of wedlock, whoredom, fornication, and adultery? It is necessary, faith the Holy Ghost, the bleffed Apostles, the Elders, with the whole congregation of Christ, it is necessary to falvation, say they, to abstain from whoredom. If it be necessary unto salvation, then woe be to them which, neglecting their falvation, give their minds to fo filthy and stinking a fin, to so wicked vice, and to fuch detestable abomination.

The

The Second Part of the Sermon against Adultery.

VOU have been taught in the first Part of this Sermon against Adultery, how that vice at this day reigneth most above all other vices, and what is meant by this word adultery, and how holy Scripture diffuadeth or difcounselleth from doing that filthy fin; and finally, what corruption cometh to man's foul through the fin of adultery. Now to proceed further, let us hear what the bleffed Apostle St. Paul faith to this matter; writing to Rom. xiii. the Romans he hath these words; Let us cast array the works of darkness, and put on the armour of light. Let us walk boneftly, as it were in the day time; not in eating and drinking, neither in chambering and wantonness, neither in strife and envying: but put ye on the Lord Jesus Christ, and make not provision for the steps, to fulfil the lusts of it. Here the holy Apostle exhorteth us to cast away the works of darkness, which, among other, he calleth gluttonous eating, drinking, chambering, and wantonness; which are all ministers unto that vice, and preparations to induce and bring in the filthy fin of the flesh. He calleth them the deeds and works of darkness; not only because they are customably in darkness, or in the night-time, (for every Matt. xxv. one that doth exil hateth the light, neither cometh he to the light, lest his works (bould be reproved.) but that they lead the right way unto that utter darkness, where weeting and gnashing of teeth shall be. And he faith in another place Rom. viii. of the same Epistle, They that are in the flesh cannot please God. We are debtors, not to the flesh, that we should live after the flesh; for if we live after the flesh, ye shall die. Again he faith, Flee from whoredom; for every fin that a man committeth is without his body: but subofoever committeth suboredom sinneth against bis own body. Do ye not know, that your members are the temples of the Holy Ghost which is in you, whom also ye have of God, and ye are not your own? For ye are dearly bought: Glorify God in your bodies, &c. And a little before he faith, Do ye not know, that your bodies are the members of Christ? Shall I then take the members of Christ, and make them the members of a subore? God forbid. Do ve not know, that he which cleaveth to a whore is made one body with her? There shall be two in one flesh, saith he: but he that cleaveth to the Lord is one spirit. What godly words doth the bleffed Apostle St. Paul bring forth here, to diffuade and difcounfel us from whoredom and all uncleanness!

cleanness! Your members, faith he, are the temples of the Holy Ghoft, which whofoever doth defile, God will destroy him, as faith St. Paul. If we be the temple of the Holy Ghost, how unsitting then is it to drive that holy Sprit from us through whoredom, and in his place to fet the wicked spirits of uncleanness and fornication, and to be joined and do fervice to them? Ye are dearly bought, faith 1 Pet. 1. he; therefore glorify God in your bodies. Christ, that innocent Lamb of God, hath bought us from the fervitude of the Devil, not with corruptible gold and filver, but with his most precious and dear heart-blood. To what intent? That we should fall again into our old uncleanness and Isaiah abominable living? Nay verily; but that we fould force xxxviii. him all the days of our life in boliness and rightcousness; that we should glorify him in our bodies, by purity and cleanness of life. He declareth also, that our bodies are the members of Christ: how unseemly a thing is it then to cease to be incorporate or embodied and made one with Christ, and through whoredom to be enjoined and made all one with a whore? What greater dishonour or injury can we do to Christ, than to take away from him the members of his body, and to join them to whores, devils, and wicked spirits? And what more dishonour can we do to ourselves. than through uncleanness to lose so excellent a dignity and freedom, and to become bond-flaves and miferable captives to the spirits of darkness? Let us therefore confider, first the glory of Christ, then our estate, our dignity, and freedom, wherein God hath fet us, by giving us his holy Spirit; and let us valiantly defend the fame against Satan, and all his crafty affaults, that Christ may be honoured, and that we lose not our liberty or freedom, but ftill remain in one spirit with him. Moreover, in his Epistle to the Ephesians, the blessed Eph. v.

Apostle willeth us to be so pure and free from adultery, fornication, and all uncleanness, that we not once name them among us, (as it becometh faints) nor filthiness, nor foolight talking, nor jessing, which are not comely, but rather giving of thanks. For this ye know, faith he, that no whore- i Cor. vi. monger, neither unclean person, or coverous person, which is an idolater, bath any inheritance in the kingdom of Christ and of God. And that we should remember to be holy, pure, and free from all uncleanness, the holy Apostle calleth us saints, because we are sanstified and made holy by the blood of Christ, through the Holy Ghost.

Now if we be faints, what have we to do with the manners of the Heathen? St. Peter faith, As be which called 1 Pet. is you is holy, even so be ye holy also in your conversation, beLevit. xix. cause it is written, Be ye holy, for I am holy. Hitherto have we heard how grievous a fin formication and whoredom is, and how greatly God doth abhor it throughout the whole Scripture: how can it any otherwise be than a fin of most abomination, seeing it may not once be named among the Christians, much less may it in any point be committed.

And surely, if we would weigh the greatness of this sin, and consider it in the right kind, we should find the sin of whoredom to be that most silthy lake, foul puddle, and stinking sink, whereunto all kinds of sins and evils flow, where also they have their resting-place and abiding.

For hath not the adulterer a pride in his whoredom? As the Wife Man faith, They are glad when they have done evil, and rejoice in things that are flark naught. Is not the adulterer also idle, and delighteth in no godly exercise, but only in that his most filthy and beastly pleasure? Is not his mind plucked and utterly drawn away from all virtuous studies, and fruitful labours, and only given to carnal and fleshly imagination? Doth not the whoremonger give his mind to gluttony, that he may be the more apt to ferve his lusts and carnal pleasures? Doth not the adulterer give his mind to covetousness, and to polling and pilling of others, that he may be the more able to maintain his harlots and whores, and to continue in his filthy and unlawful love? Swelleth he not also with envy against others, fearing that his prey should be allured and taken away from him? Again, is he not ireful, and replenished with wrath and displeasure, even against his best beloved, if at any time his beaftly and devilish request be letted? What fin or kind of fin is it, that is not joined with fornication and whoredom? It is a monster of many heads; it receiveth all kinds of vices, and refuseth all kinds of virtues. If one feveral fin bringeth damnation, what is to be thought of that fin which is accompanied with all evils, and hath waiting on it whatfoever is hateful to God, damnable to man, and pleafant to Satan?

Great is the damnation that hangeth over the heads of fornicators and adulterers. What shall I speak of other incommodities, which issue and flow out of this stinking puddle of whoredom? Is not that treasure, which before all other is most regarded of honest persons, the good same and name of man and woman, lost through whoredom? What patrimony or livelihood, what substance, what goods, what riches, doth whoredom shortly consume and bring to nought? What valiantness and strength is many times

made weak, and destroyed with whoredom? What wit is fo fine, that is not befotted and defaced through whoredom? What beauty (although it were never so excellent) is not disfigured through whoredom? Is not whoredom an enemy to the pleafant flower of youth, and bringeth it not gray hairs and old age before the time? What gift of nature (although it were never fo precious) is not corrupted with whoredom? Come not many foul and most loathsome diseases of whoredom? From whence come so many bastards and misbegotten children, to the high displeasure of God, and dishonour of holy wedlock, but of whoredom? How many confume all their fubstance and goods, and at the last fall into such extreme poverty, that afterward they steal, and so are hanged through whoredom? What contention and manflaughter cometh of whoredom? How many maidens be deflowered, how many wives corrupted, how many widows defiled through whoredom? How much is the public and commonweal impoverished and troubled through whoredom? How much is God's word contenined and depraved through whoredom and whoremongers? Of this vice cometh a great part of the divorces, which now-a-days be fo commonly accustomed and used by men's private authority, to the great displeafure of God, and the breach of the most holy knot and bond of matrimony. For when this most detestable sin is once crept into the breast of the adulterer, so that he is intangled with unlawful and unchaste love, straightways his true and lawful wife is despised, her presence is abhorred, her company stinketh and is loathfome, whatfoever she doth is dispraised: there is no quietness in the house so long as she is in his fight; therefore, to make short work, she must away, for her husband can brook her no longer. Thus, through whoredom, is the honest and harmless wife put away, and an harlot received in her flead: and in like fort, it happeneth many times in the wife towards her husband. O abonination! Christ our Saviour, very God and man, coming to restore the law of his heavenly Father unto the right fense, understanding, and meaning, among other things, reformed the abuse of this law of God. For whereas the Jews used a long sufferance, by custom, to put away their wives at their pleafure, for every cause, Christ, correcting that evil custom, did teach, that if any man put away his wife, and marrieth Matt. xix. another, for any cause, except only for adultery, (which then was death by the law) be was an adulterer, and forced also bis wife, so divorced, to commit adultery, if she were joined to any other man, and the man also, so joined with her, to commit adultery.

In what case then are these adulterers, which for the love of an whore put away their true and lawful wife, against all law, right reason, and conscience? O how damnable is the state wherein they stand! Swift destruction shall fall on them, if they repent not, and amend not: for God will not fuffer holy wedlock thus to be dishonoured, hated, and despised. He will once punish this fleshly and licentious manner of living, and cause that this holy ordinance shall be had in reverence and honour. For furely wedlock, as the Apostle saith, is bonourable among all men, and the bed undefiled: but whoremongers and fornicators God will judge, that is to fay, punish and condemn. But to what purpose is this labour taken to describe and set forth the greatness of the sin of whoredom, and the discommodities that iffue and flow out of it, feeing that breath and tongue shall sooner fail any man, than he shall or may be able to fet it out according to the abomination and heinousness thereof? Notwithstanding this is spoken to the intent that all men should flee whoredom, and live in the fear of God. God grant that it may not be spoken in vain.

The Third Part of the Sermon against Adultery.

TN the Second Part of this Sermon against Adultery that was last read, you have learned how earnestly the Scripture warneth us to avoid the fin of adultery, and to embrace cleanness of life; and that through adultery we fall into all kinds of fin, and are made bond-flaves to the Devil; through cleanness of life we are made members of Christ; and finally, how far adultery bringeth a man from all goodness, and driveth him headlong into all vices, mischief, and mifery. Now will I declare unto you in order, with what grievous punishments God in times past plagued adultery, and how certain worldly princes also did punish it, that ye may perceive that whoredom and fornication be fins no less detestable in the fight of God and all good men, than I have hitherto uttered. In the first Book of Moses we read, that when mankind began to be multiplied upon the earth, the men and women gave their minds fo greatly to fleshly delight and filthy pleasure, that they lived without all fear of God. God, feeing this their beastly beaftly and abominable living, and perceiving that they amended not, but rather increased daily more and more in their finful and unclean manners, repented that he had ever made man : and, to flew how greatly he abhorreth adultery, whoredom, fornication, and all uncleanness, he made all the fountains of the deep earth to burst out, and the fluices of heaven to be opened, fo that the rain came down upon the earth by the space of forty days and forty nights, and by this means destroyed the whole world, and all mankind, eight persons only excepted; that is to say, Noah, the preacher of righteousness, as St. Peter calleth him, and his wife, his three fous and their wives. O what a grievous plague did God cast here upon all living creatures for the fin of whoredom! For the which God took vengeance, not only of man, but of all beafts, fowls, and all living creatures. Manslaughter was committed before; Gen. iv. yet was not the world deflroyed for that: but for whoredom all the world (few only excepted) was overflowed with waters, and fo perished. An example worthy to be remembered, that ye may learn to fear God.

We read again, that for the filthy fin of uncleanness, Sodom and Gomorrah, and the other cities nigh unto them, were destroyed by fire and brimstone from heaven, so Gen. xix. that there was neither man, woman, child, nor beaft, nor yet any thing that grew upon the earth there, left undeflroyed. Whose heart trembleth not at the hearing of this history? Who is so drowned in whoredom and uncleanness, that will not now for ever after leave this abominable living, feeing that God fo grievously punisheth uncleanness, to rain fire and brimstone from heaven, to destroy whole cities, to kill man, woman, and child, and all other living creatures there abiding, to confume with fire all that ever grew? What can be more manifest tokens of God's wrath and vengeance against uncleanness and impurity of life? Mark this history, good people, and fear the vengeance of God. Do you not read also, that God did smite Pharaoh and his house with great plagues, Gen. xii. because that he ungodlily desired Sarah, the wife of Abraham? Likewise we read of Abimelech, king of Gerar, al-Gen. xx. though he touched her not by carnal knowledge. These plagues and punishments did God cast upon filthy and unclean persons, before the Law was given, (the law of nature only reigning in the hearts of men) to declare how great love he had to matrimony and wedlock; and again, how much he abhorreth adultery, fornication, and all uncleanness. And when the Law that forbad whoredom was Lev. xxii.

given by Mofes to the Jews, did not God command that the breakers thereof should be put to death? The words of the Law be these; Whoso committeth adultery with any man's wife, shall die the death, both the man and the woman, because he bath broken wedlock with his neighbour's wife. In the Law also it was commanded, that a damosel and a man taken together in suboredom, should be both stoned to death. Num. xxv. In another place we also read, that God commanded Mofes to take all the head rulers and princes of the people, and to hang them upon gibbets openly, that every man might fee them, because they either committed, or did not punish Again, did not God fend fuch a plague whoredom. among the people for fornication and uncleanness, that there died in one day three and twenty thousand? I pass over, for lack of time, many other histories of the Holy Bible, which declare the grievous vengeance and heavy displeasure of God against whoremongers and adulterers. Certes, this extreme punishment appointed of God sheweth evidently how greatly God hateth whoredom. And let us not doubt, but that God at this prefent abhorreth all manner of uncleanness, no less than he did in the old Law, and will undoubtedly punish it, both in this world and in the world to come. For he is a God, that can abide no wickedness; therefore ought it to be eschewed of all that tender the glory of God, and the falvation of their own fouls.

St. Paul faith, All thefe things are written for our example, and to teach us the fear of God, and the obedience to his holy Law. For if God spared not the natural branches, neither will be spare us that be but grafts, if we commit the like offence. If God destroyed many thousands of people, many cities, yea, the whole world, for whoredom; let us not flatter ourselves, and think we shall escape free and without punishment. For he hath promifed in his holy Law, to fend most grievous plagues upon them that transgress or break his holy commandments. Thus have we heard how God punisheth the fin of adultery: let us now hear certain laws, which the civil magistrates devised in their countries for the punishment thereof, that we may learn how uncleanness hath ever been detested in all wellordered cities and commonwealths, and among all honest perfons. The law among the Lepreians was this, that vised for the when any were taken in adultery, they were bound and runishment carried three days through the city, and afterwards, as long as they lived, they were defpifed, and with shame and confusion counted as persons void of all honesty. Among the Locrenfians, the adulterers had both their eyes thrust out.

z. Cor. x.

The Romans in times past punished whoredom, sometime by fire, fometime by fword. If any man among the Egyptians had been taken in adultery, the law was, that he should openly, in the presence of all the people, be fcourged naked with whips, unto the number of a thoufand stripes: the woman that was taken with him had her nose cut off, whereby she was known ever after to be a whore, and therefore to be abhorred of all men. Among the Arabians, they that were taken in adultery had their heads stricken from their bodies. The Athenians punished whoredom with death in like manner. So likewife did the barbarous Tartarians. Among the Turks even at this day, they that be taken in adultery, both man and woman, are stoned straightway to death, without mercy. Thus we fee what godly acts were devised, in times past, of the high powers, for the putting away of whoredom, and for the maintaining of holy matrimony or wedlock, and pure conversation; and the authors of these acts were no Christians, but the Heathen: yet were they so inflamed with the love of honesty and pureness of life, that for the maintenance and confervation or keeping up of that, they made godly statutes, suffering neither fornication or adultery to reign in their realms unpunished. Christ said to the people, The Ninevites Shall rife at the judgment with Matt. xii. this nation, (meaning the unfaithful Jews) and shall condemn them: for they repented at the preaching of Jonas: but behold, faith he, a greater than Jonas is here, (meaning himfelf) and yet they repent not. Shall not, think you, likewife the Locrenfians, Arabians, Athenians, with fuch other, rife up in the judgment and condemn us, forafmuch as they ceased from their whoredom at the commandment of man; and we have the law and manifest precepts and commandments of God, and yet forfake we not our filthy conversation? Truly, truly, it shall be easier at the day of judgment to these Heathens than to us, except we repent and amend. For though death of body feemeth to us a grievous punishment in this world for whoredom; yet is that pain nothing in comparison of the grievous torments which adulterers, fornicators, and all unclean perions shall suffer after this life: for all such shall be excluded and shut out of the kingdom of heaven, as St. Paul saith, Be not deceived; for neither suboremongers, nor I Col. vi. worshippers of images, nor adulterers, nor effeminate persons, Eph. v. nor fodomites, nor thieves, nor covetous perfons, nor drunkards, nor cursed speakers, nor revilers, shall inherit the kingdom of God. And St. John in his Revelation faith, That whore- Apoc. xx.

chanters, liars, idolaters, and fuch other, in the lake which burneth with fire and brimstone, which is the second death. The punishment of the body, although it be death, hath an end; but the punishment of the foul, which St. John calleth the fecond death, is everlasting; there shall be fire Matt. xiii. and brimftone, there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth; the evorm, that there shall guarv the conscience of the damned, shall never die. O! whose heart distilleth not even drops of blood, to hear and confider these things? If we tremble and shake at the hearing and naming of these pains, O what shall they do that shall feel them, that shall suffer them, yea, and ever shall fuffer, worlds without end! God have mercy upon us. Who is now fo drowned in fin, and past all godliness, that he will set more by filthy and stinking pleafure, which foon paffeth away, than by the lofs of everlafting glory? Again, who will fo give himfelf to the lusts of the slessi, that he feareth nothing at all the pain of hell-fire? But let us hear how we may eschew the fin of whoredom and adultery, that we may walk in the fear of God, and be free from those most grievous and intolerable torments, which abide all unclean persons. Now to avoid whereby to fornication, adultery, and all uncleanness, let us provide avoid forni- that above all things we may keep our hearts pure and clean from all evil thoughts and carnal lufts: for if that be once infected and corrupt, we fall headlong into all kind of ungodlinefs. This shall we easily do, if, when we feel inwardly, that Satan our old enemy tempteth us unto whoredom, we by no means confent to his crafty fuggeftions, but valiantly refift and withstand him by strong faith in the word of God: alleging against him always in our heart this commandment of God; Scriptum of, Non machaheris: it is written, Thou shalt not commit whoredom. It shall be good also for us ever to live in the fear of God, and to fet before our eyes the grievous threatenings of God against all ungodly finners; and to consider in our mind how filthy, beaftly, and fhort that pleafure is, whereunto Satan continually fürreth and moveth us: and again, how the pain appointed for that fin is intolerable and everlasting. Moreover, to use a temperance and sobriety in eating and drinking, to eichew unclean communication, to avoid all filthy company, to flee idlenefs, to delight in reading the holy Scriptures, to watch in godly prayers and virtuous meditation, and at all times to exercife fome godly travels, shall help greatly to the eschewing of whoredom. And

. And here are all degrees to be monished, whether they be married or unmarried, to love chaftity and cleanness of life. For the married are bound by the law of God fo purely to love one another, that neither of them feek any strange love. The man must only cleave to his wife, and the wife again only to her husband: they must so delight one in another's company, that none of them covet any other. And as they are bound thus to live together in all godliness and honesty, so likewise it is their duty virtuously to bring up their children, and provide that they fall not into Satan's fnare, nor into any uncleanness, but that they come pure and honest unto holy wedlock, when time requireth. So likewise ought all masters and rulers to provide that no whoredom, nor any point of uncleanness, be used among their servants. And again, they that are single, and feel in themselves that they cannot live without the company of a woman, let them get wives of their own, and so live godly together: for it is better to marry I Cor. vii.

And, to avoid fornication, faith the Apostle, let every man have his own wife, and every woman her own husband. Finally, all fuch as feel in themselves a sufficiency and ability, through the working of God's Spirit, to lead a fole and continent life, let them praise God for his gift, and feek all means possible to maintain the same; as by reading of holy Scriptures, by godly meditations, by continual prayers, and fuch other virtuous exercifes. If we all on this wife will endeavour ourselves to eschew fornication, adultery, and all uncleanness, and lead our lives in all godliness and honesty, serving God with a pure and clean heart, and glorifying him in our bodies by the leading an innocent and harmless life, we may be fure to be in the number of those, of whom our Saviour Christ speaketh in the Gospel on this manner, Blessed are the pure in heart, Matt. v. for they shall see God: to whom alone be all glory, honour, rule, and power, world without end. Amen.

Contention and Brawling.

HIS day, good Christian people, shall be declared unto you, the unprofitableness and shameful unhonesty of contention, strife, and debate; to the intent that, when you shall see, as it were in a table painted before your eyes, the evil-favouredness and deformity of this most detestable vice, your stomachs may be moved to rife against it, and to detest and abhor that sin, which is so much to be hated, and pernicious, and hurtful to all men. among all kinds of contention, none is more hurtful than is contention in matters of religion. Eschew, faith St. Paul, foolish and unlearned questions, knowing that they breed 2 Tim. ii. Strife. It becometh not the servant of God to fight, or strive, but to be meek toward all men. This contention and strife was in St. Paul's time among the Corinthians, and is at this time among us Englishmen. For too many there be, which, upon the ale-benches or other places, delight to fet forth certain questions, not so much pertaining to edification, as to vain-glory, and shewing forth of their cunning, and fo unfoberly to reason and dispute, that, when neither part will give place to other, they fall to chiding and contention, and fometime from hot words to further inconvenience. St. Paul could not abide to hear among the Corinthians these words of discord or diffension, I hold of Paul, I of Cephas, and I of Apollos: what would he then fay if he heard these words of contention, which be now almost in every man's mouth? He is a Pharifee, he is a Gospeller, he is of the new fort, he is of the old faith,

he is a new-broached brother, he is a good catholic father, he is a papift, he is an heretic. O how the church is divided! O how the cities be cut and mangled! O how the coat of Christ, that was without seam, is all to rent and torn! O body mystical of Christ, where is that holy and happy unity, out of the which whofoever is, he is not in Christ? If one member be pulled from another, where is the body? If the body be drawn from the head, where is the life of the body? We cannot be joined to Christ our Head, except we be glued with concord and charity one to another. For he that is not of this unity is not of the Church of Christ, which is a congregation or unity together, and not a division. St. Paul faith, That as long I Cor. iii. as emulation or envying, contention, and factions or feets be among us, we be carnal, and walk according to the fleshly man. And St. James faith, If ye have bitter emulation or James iii. envying, and contention in your hearts, glory not of it: for where contention is, there is unsteadfastness and all evil deeds. And why do we not hear St. Paul, which prayeth us, whereas he might command us, faying, I befeech you in 1 Cor. i. the name of our Lord Jefus Christ, that you will speak all one thing, and that there be no discension among you; but that you will be one whole body, of one mind, and of one opinion in the truth. If his defire be reasonable and honest, why do we not grant it? If, his request be for our profit, why do we refuse it? And if we list not to hear his petition of prayer, yet let us hear his exhortation, where he faith, I exhort you, that you walk as it becometh the vocation, Ephef. iv. in which you be called, with all submission and meekness, with lenity and softness of mind, bearing with one another in charity, studying to keep the unity of the Spirit by the bond of peace: for there is one body, one Spirit, one faith, one baptism. There is, faith he, but one body, of the which he can be no lively member, that is at variance with the other members. There is one Spirit, which joineth and knitteth all things in one. And how can this one Spirit reign in us, when we among ourfelves be divided? There is but one faith; and how can we then fay, he is of the old faith, and he is of the new faith? There is but one baptism; and then shall not all they which be baptized be one? Contention causeth division, wherefore it ought not to be among Christians, whom one faith and baptism joineth in an unity. But if we contemn St. Paul's request and exhortation, yet at the least let us regard his earnest entreating, in the which he doth very earnestly charge us, and (as I may so speak) conjure us in this form and manner, If there be any confolation in Christ, if there Phil. ii.

be any comfort of love, if you have any fellowship of the Spirit, if you have any bowels of pity and compassion, fulfil my joy, being all alike affected, having one charity, being of one mind, of one opinion, that nothing be done by contention, or vain-glory. Who is he, that hath any bowels of pity, that will not be moved with these words so pithy? Whose heart is fo ftony, that the fword of these words, which be more than than any two-edged fword, may not cut and break afunder? Wherefore, let us endeavour ourselves to fulfil St. Paul's joy here in this place, which shall be at length to our great joy in another place. Let us fo read should read the Scripture, that by reading thereof we may be made the better livers, rather than the more contentious disputers. If any thing be necessary to be taught, reasoned, or disputed, let us do it with all meckness, softness, and lenity. If any thing shall chance to be spoken uncomely, let one bear another's frailty. He that is faulty, let him rather amend, than defend that which he hath spoken amifs, left he fall by contention from a foolish error into an obstinate herefy. For it is better to give place meekly, than to win the victory with the breach of charity, which chanceth when every man will defend his opinion obstinately. If we be the Christian men, why do we not Mauth. xi. follow Christ, who saith, Learn of me, for I am meek and lowly in heart? A disciple must learn the lesson of his fehoolmaster, and a fervant must obey the commandment of his master; He that is wife and learned, saith St. James, let him show his goodness by his good conversation, and sobernels of his wifdom. For where there is envy and contention, that wifdom cometh not from God, but is worldly wifdom, man's wifdom, and devilifb wifdom. For the wifdom that cometh from above, from the spirit of God, is chaste and pure, corrupted with no evil affections; it is quiet, meek, and peaceable, abhorring all defire of contention; it is tractable, obedient, not grudging to learn, and to give place to them that teach better for the reformation. For there shall never be an end of striving and contention, if we contend who in contention shall be master, and have the overhand: we shall heap error upon error, if we continue to defend that obfinately, which was fpoken unadvifedly. For truth it is, that stiffness in maintaining an opinion preedeth contention, brawling, and chiding, which is a vice among all other most pernicious and pessilent to common peace and quietness. And as it standeth betwixt two perfons and parties, (for no man commonly doth chide with himself) so it comprehendeth two most detestable vices: the one is picking of quarrels, with fharp and contentious words: the other standeth in froward answering, and multiplying evil words again. The first is so abominable, that St. Paul faith, If any that is called a brother be I Cor. v. a worshipper of idols, a brawler, a picker of quarrels, a thief, or an extortioner, with him that is fuch a man fee that ye eat not. Now here confider that St. Paul numbereth a Against fcolder, a brawler, or a picker of quarrels, among thieves quarrel and idolaters; and many times there cometh less hurt of a picking. thief, than of a railing tongue: for the one taketh away a man's good name; the other taketh but his riches, which is of much lefs value and estimation than is his good name. And a thief hurteth but him from whom he stealeth: but he that hath an evil tongue troubleth all the town where he dwelleth, and fometime the whole country. And a railing tongue is a peftilence fo full of contagiousness, that St. Paul willeth Christian men to forbear the company of fuch, and neither to eat nor drink i Cor. v. with them. And whereas he will not that a Christian woman should forfake her husband, although he be an Infidel, or that a Christian servant should depart from his mafter, which is an Infidel and Heathen, and fo fuffereth a Christian man to keep company with an Infidel: yet he forbiddeth us to eat or drink with a scolder, or quarrelpicker. And also in the fixth chapter to the Corinthians, he faith thus, Be not deceived; for neither fornicators, neither I Car. vi. worshippers of idols, neither thieves, nor drunkards, nor cursed Speakers, Shall dwell in the kingdom of beaven. It must needs be a great fault, that doth move and cause the father to difinherit his natural fon. And how can it otherwife be, but that this curfed speaking must needs be a most damnable fin, the which doth cause God, our most merciful and loving Father, to deprive us of his most bleffed kingdom of heaven? Against the other sin, that standeth Against sroin requiting taunt for taunt, speaketh Christ hinsfelf, say-ward aning, I fay unto you, Resist not evil; but love your cnemies, and Matt. v. fay well by them that fay evil by you, do well unto them that do evil unto you, and pray for them that do burt and persecute you; that you may be the children of your Father which is in beaven, who suffereth his fun to rife both upon good and evil, and fendeth his rain both upon the just and unjust. To this doctrine of Christ agreeth very well the teaching of St. Paul, that chosen vessel of God, who ceaseth not to exhort and call upon us, faying, Blefs them that curfe you; blefs, I Rom. xii. fay, and curfe not; recompense to no man evil for evil; if it be possible (as much as lieth in you) live peaceably with all men.

IT hath been declared unto you in this Sermon against Strife and Brawling, what great inconvenience cometh thereby, specially of such contention as groweth in matters of religion: and how when as no man will give place to another, there is no end of contention and difcord; and that unity, which God requireth of Christians, is utterly thereby neglected and broken; and that this contention standeth chiefly in two points, as in picking of quarrels, and making of froward answers. Now ye shall hear St. Paul's words, faying, Dearly beloved, avenge not yourselves, but rather give place unto wrath; for it is written, Vengeance is mine, and I will revenge, faith the Therefore if thine enemy hunger, feed him; if be thirst, give him drink. Be not overcome with evil, but overcome evil with goodness. All these be the words of St. Paul. But they that be full of ftomach, and fet fo much by themselves, that they may not abide so much as one evil word to be spoken of them, peradventure will say, If I be reviled, shall I stand still, like a goose, or a fool, with my finger in my mouth? Shall I be fuch an idiot and dizard, to fuffer every man to speak upon me what they lift, to rail what they lift, to spew out all their venom against me at their pleafures? Is it not convenient, that he that speaketh evil should be answered accordingly? If I shall use this lenity and softness, I shall both increase mine enemies frowardness, and provoke others to do the like. Such reasons make they, that can suffer nothing, for the defence An answer, of their impatience. And yet, if, by froward answering to a froward person, there were hope to remedy his frowardness, he should less offend that so should answer, doing the same not of ire or malice, but only of that intent, that he that is fo froward or malicious may be reformed. But he that cannot amend another man's fault, or cannot amend it without his own fault, better it were that one should perish than two. Then if he cannot quiet him with gentle words, at the least let him not follow him in wicked and uncharitable words. If he can pacify him with fuffering, let him fuffer; and if not, it is better to fuffer evil than to do evil, to fay well than to fay evil. For to speak well against evil, cometh of the Spirit of God: but to render evil for evil, cometh of the contrary spirit. And he that cannot temper nor rule his own anger is but weak and feeble, and rather more like a woman or a child, than a strong man. For the true strength and manliness is to overcome wrath, and to despise injuries and other men's foolishness. And, befides this, he that shall despife the wrong done unto him by his enemy, every man shall perceive that it was spoken or done without cause: whereas contrarily, he that doth fume and chafe at it shall help the cause of his adversary, giving fuspicion that the thing is true. And in so going about to revenge evil, we shew ourselves to be evil; and while we punish and revenge another man's folly, we double and augment our own folly. But many pretences find they that be wilful to colour their impatience. Mine enemy, fay they, is not worthy to have gentle words or deeds, being fo full of malice or frowardness. The less he is worthy, the more art thou therefore allowed of God, and the more art thou commended of Christ, for whose fake thou shouldest render good for evil, because he hath commanded thee, and also deferved that thou shouldest so do. Thy neighbour hath peradventure with a word offended thee: call thou to thy remembrance with how many words and deeds, how grievously thou hast offended thy Lord God. What was man, when Christ died for him? Was he not his enemy, and unworthy to have his favour and mercy? Even fo, with what gentleness and patience doth he forbear, and tolerate, and fuffer thee, although he is daily offended by thee? Forgive therefore a light trefpals to thy neighbour, that Christ may forgive thee many thousands of trespasses, which art every day an offender. For if thou forgive thy brother, being to thee a trespasser, then hast thou a fure fign and token that God will forgive thee, to whom all men be debtors and trefpaffers. How wouldest thou have God merciful to thee, if thou wilt be cruel unto thy brother? Canst thou not find in thy heart to do that towards another, that is thy fellow, which God hath done to thee, that art but his fervant? Ought not one finner to forgive another, feeing that Christ, which was no finner, did pray to his Father for them, that without mercy and despitefully put him to death? Who, when he was re- 1 Pet. ii. viled, he did not use reviling words again; and when he suffered wrongfully, be did not threaten, but gave all vengeance to the judgment of his Father, which judgeth rightfully. And what crackest thou of thy head, if thou labour not to be in the body? Thou canst be no member of Christ, if thou follow not the steps of Christ; who (as the Pro-Isa. liii. phet faith) was led to death like a lamb, not opening his mouth

Inke xxiii. them that crucified him, faying, Father, forgive them, for Acts vii. they cannot tell what they do. The which example, anon after Chrift, St. Stephen did follow, and after St. Paul:

after Christ, St. Stephen did follow, and after St. Paul: z Cor. iv. We be evil spoken of, faith he, and we speak well: We suffer persecution, and take it patiently: Men curse us, and we gently intreat. Thus St. Paul taught that he did, and he did that he taught. Blefs you, faith he, them that perfecute you: blefs you, and curfe not. Is it a great thing to fpeak well to thine adversary, to whom Christ doth command thee to do well? David, when Shimei did call him all to nought, did not chide again, but faid patiently, Suffer bim to speak evil, if perchance the Lord will have mercy on mc. Histories be full of examples of Heathen men, that took very meekly both opprobrious and reproachful words, and injurious or wrongful deeds. And shall those Heathen excel in patience us that profess Christ, the teacher and example of all patience? Lyfander, when one did rage against him, in reviling of him, he was nothing moved, but faid, Go to, go to, speak against me as much and as oft as thou wilt, and leave out nothing, if perchance by this means thou mayest difcharge thee of those naughty things, with the which it feemeth that thou art full laden. Many men speak evil of all men, because they can speak well of no man. After this fort, this wife man avoideth from him the reproachful words fpoken unto him, imputing and laying them to the natural fickness of his adversary. Pericles, when a certain feolder or railing fellow did revile him, he answered not a word again, but went into a gallery; and after, towards night, when he went home, this feolder followed him, raging still more and more, because he faw the other to fet nothing by him: and after that he came to his gate, (being dark night) Pericles commanded one of his fervants to light a torch, and to bring the feolder home to his own house. He did not only with quietness suffer this brawler patiently, but also recompenfed an evil turn with a good turn, and that to his enemy. Is it not a thame for us that profess Christ, to be worfe than Heathen people, in a thing chiefly pertaining to Christ's religion? Shall philosophy persuade them more than God's word shall perfuade us? Shall natural reason prevail more with them, than religion shall with us? Shall man's wifdom lead them to those things, whereunto the heavenly doctrine cannot lead us? What blindness, wilfulness, or rather madness is this! Pericles, being provoked to anger with many villainous words, answered not a word. But we, stirred but with one little word, what foul work do we make! How do we fume, rage, stamp, and stare like mad men! Many men of every trifle will make a great matter, and of a spark of a little word will kindle a great fire, taking all things in the worst part. But how much better is it, and more Reasons to like to the example and doctrine of Christ, to make ra-move men ther a greater fault in our neighbour a finall fault, rea-rel picking. foning with ourselves after this fort: He spake these words; but it was in a fudden heat; or the drink fpake them, and not he; or he spake them at the motion of fome other; or he spake them being ignorant of the truth; he fpake them not against me, but against him whom he thought me to be. But as touching evil fpeaking, he that is ready to speak evil against other men, first let him examine himself, whether he be faultless, and clear of the fault which he findeth in another. For it is a shame, when he, that blameth another for any fault, is guilty himfelf, either in the fame fault, or in a greater. It is a shame for him that is blind to call another man blind; and it is more flame for him that is whole blind to call him blinkard that is but purblind: for this is to fee a ftraw in another man's eye, when a man hath a block in his own eye.

Then let him confider, that he that ufeth to speak evil shall commonly be evil spoken of again. And he that speaketh what he will for his pleasure, shall be compelled to hear what he would not to his displeasure. Moreover, let him remember that faying, that we shall Matt. xii. give an account for every idle word. How much more then shall we make reckoning for our sharp, bitter, brawling, and chiding words, which provoke our brother to be angry, and fo to the breach of his charity? And as touching evil answering, although we be never so much provoked by other men's evil speaking, yet we shall not follow their frowardness by evil answering, if we confider that anger is a kind of madness, and that he which is angry is, as it were, for the time in a phrenzy. Wherefore let him beware, left in his fury he speak any Reasons to thing, whereof afterward he may have just cause to be move men forry. And he that will defend that anger is not fury, from frobut that he hath reason even when he is most angry; swering. then let him reason thus with himself when he is angry: Now I am so moved and chased, that within a little while after I shall be otherwise minded: wherefore then fhould I now fpeak anything in mine anger, which hereafter, when I would faineft, cannot be changed? Wherefore shall I do any thing, now being, as it were, out of my wit, for the which, when I shall come to myself again, I shall be very fad? Why doth not reason, why doth not godliness, yea, why doth not Christ obtain that thing now of me, which hereafter time shall obtain of me? If a man be called an adulterer, usurer, drunkard, or by any other shameful name, let him consider earnestly whether he be fo called truly or falfely: if truly, let him amend his fault, that his adversary may not after wor-. thily charge him with fuch offences: if these things be laid against him falsely, yet let him consider whether he hath given any occasion to be suspected of such things; and so he may both cut off that suspicion, whereof this flander did arife, and in other things shall live more warily. And thus using ourselves, we may take no hurt, but rather much good, by the rebukes and flanders of our enemy. For the reproach of an enemy may be to many men a quicker spur to the amendment of their life, than the gentle monition of a friend. Philippus, the king of Macedonia, when he was evil spoken of by the chief rulers of the city of Athens, he did thank them heartily, because by them he was made better, both in his words and deeds: for I fludy, faith he, both by my fayings and doings to prove them liars.

The Third Part of the Sermon against Contention.

Strife and Brawling, how we may answer them which maintain their froward fayings in contention, and that will revenge with words such evil as other men do them; and finally how we may according to God's will order ourselves, and what to consider towards them when we are provoked to contention and strife with railing words. Now to proceed in the same matter, you shall know the right way how to disprove and overcome your adversary and enemy. This is the best way to disprove a man's adversary, so to live, that all which shall know his honesty may bear witness that he is slandered unworthily. If the fault, whereof he is slandered, be such, that, for the defence of his honesty, he must needs make answer, let him answer quietly and foftly on this fashion, that those faults be laid against him falsely. For it is truth that the Wise Man faith, A foft answer assuageth Prov. xv. anger, and a bard and sharp answer doth stir up rage and fury. The sharp answer of Nabal provoked David to Kings cruel vengeance: but the gentle words of Abigailxxv. quenched the fire again, that was all in a flame. And a special remedy against malicious tongues, is to arm ourfelves with patience, meeknefs, and filence, left with multiplying words with the enemy we be made as evil as he. But they that cannot bear one evil word, perad- An objecventure, for their own excuse, will allege that which is tion. written, He that despiseth his good name is cruel. Also we Prov. xxvi. read, Answer a fool according to his foolishness. And our Lord Jefus did hold his peace at certain evil fayings: but to fome he answered diligently. He heard men call him · a Samaritan, a carpenter's son, a wine drinker; and he held his peace: but when he heard them fay, Thou bast the Devil within thee, he answered to that earnestly. Truth Answer. it is indeed, that there is a time, when it is convenient to answer a fool according to his foolishness, lest he should seem in his own conceit to be wife. And sometime it is not profitable to answer a fool according to his foolishness, lest the wife man be made like to the fool. When our infany, or the reproach that is done unto us, is joined with the peril of many, then it is necessary in answering to be quick and ready. For we read, that many holy men of good zeal have fharply and fiercely both spoken and answered tyrants and evil men: which sharp words came not of anger, rancour, or malice, or defire of vengeance, but of a fervent defire to bring them to the true knowledge of God, and from ungodly living, by an earnest and sharp rebuke and chiding. In this zeal, St. John Baptist called the Pharifees adders' brood: and St. Paul called the Ga-Matt. iii. latians fools; and the men of Crete he called liars, evil Gal. iii. beafts, and fluggish bellics; and the false apostles he called Titus i. dogs, and crafty workmen. And his zeal is godly, and to Phil. iii. be allowed, as it is plainly proved by the example of Christ, who although he were the fountain and spring of all meekness, gentieness, and softness, yet he called the obstinate Scribes and Pharifees, blind guides, fools, painted Matt. xxiii. graves, hypocrites, serpents, adders' brood, a corrupt and wicked generation. Also he rebuketh Peter eagerly, faying, Go bebind me, Satan. Likewise St. Paul reproveth Matt. xvi. Elymas, faying, O thou full of all craft and guile, enemy to Asis xiii. all justice, thou ceasest not to destroy the right ways of God:

and now, lo, the hand of the Lord is upon thee, and thou shalt be blind, and not fee for a time. And St. Peter reprehendeth Ananias very tharply, faying, Ananias, how is it that Satan bath filled thine beart, that thou shouldest lie unto the Holy Gboff? This zeal hath been fo fervent in many good men, that it hath flirred them not only to fpeak bitter and eager words, but also to do things, which might feem to some to be cruel; but indeed they be very just, charitable, and godly, because they were not done of ire, malice, or contentious mind, but of a fervent mind, to the glory of God, and the correction of fin, executed by men called to that office. For in this zeal our Lord Jesus Christ did drive with a whip the buyers and fellers out

Phineas, the fon of Eleazer, did thrust through with his fword Zimri and Cozbi, whom he found together joined in the act of nucleanness. Wherefore now to return be followed again to contentious words, and specially in matters of of every bo-religion and God's word, (which would be used with all modefly, foberness, and chastity,) the words of St. James called to of-ought to be well marked and borne in memory, where he faith, that of contention rifeth all evil. And the wife King Solomon faith, Honour is due to a man that keepeth himfelf from contention; and all that mingle themselves therewith be fools. And because this vice is so much hurtful to the fociety of a commonwealth, in all well-ordered cities, these common brawlers and scolders be punished with a notable kind of pain, as to be fet on the cucking-flool, pillory, or fuch like. And they be unworthy to live in a commonwealth, the which do as much as lieth in them. with brawling and foolding, to diffurb the quietness and peace of the same. And whereof cometh this contention, flrife, and variance, but of pride and vain-glory? Let us therefore bumble ourselves under the mighty band of God, which bath promifed to rest upon them that be bumble and love in spirit. If we be good and quiet Christian men, let it appear in our speech and tongues. If we have forfaken the Devil, let us use no more devilish tongues. He that hath been a railing feolder, now let him be a fober counfellor. He that hath been a malicious flanderer, now let him be a loving comforter. that hath been a vain railer, now let him be a ghostly teacher. He that hath abused his tongue in cursing, now now let him use it in bleffing. He that hath abused his tongue in evil-speaking, now let him use it in speaking well. All bitternefs, anger, railing, and blasphemy, let it be avoided from you. If you may, and if it be possible, in no wife be angry. But if you may not be clean void of this passion, yet then so temper and bridle it, that it fiir you not to contention and brawling. If you be provoked with evil-speaking, arm yourself with patience, lenity, and filence, either speaking nothing, or else being very foft, meek, and gentle in answering. Overcome thine adverfary with benefits and gentleness; and, above all things, keep peace and unity. Be no peace-breakers, but peace-makers: and then there is no doubt, but that God, the Author of comfort and peace, will grant us peace of conscience, and such concord and agreement, that with one mouth and mind we may glorify God, the Father of our Lord Jefus Chrift; to whom be all glory, now and for ever. AMEN.

HEREAFTER shall follow Sermons of Fasting, Prayer, Alms-deeds, of the Nativity, Passion, Resurrection, and Ascension of our Saviour Christ: of the due Receiving of his blessed Body and Blood, under the form of Bread and Wine: against Idleness, against Gluttony and Drunkenness, against Covetousness, against Envy, Ire, and Malice; with many other matters, as well fruitful as necessary to the edisying of Christian people, and the increase of godly living.

AN

HOMILY

OF THE

Right Use of the Church or Temple of God, and of the Reverence due unto the same.

THE FIRST CHAPTER.

THEREAS there appeareth in these days great flackness and negligence of a great fort of people, in reforting to the Church, there to ferve God their heavenly Father, according to their most bounden duty, as also much uncomely and unreverent behaviour of many perfons in the same, when they be there assembled, and thereby may just fear arise of the wrath of God, and his dreadful plagues hanging over our heads for our grievous offences in this behalf, amongst other many and great fins which we daily and hourly commit before the Lord: therefore, for the discharge of all our consciences, and for the avoiding of the common peril and plague hanging over us, let us consider what may be said out of God's holy Book concerning this matter, whereunto I pray you give good audience, for that it is of great weight, and concerneth you all. Although the eternal and incomprehenfible Majesty of God, the Lord of heaven and earth, whose feat is heaven, and the earth his footstool, cannot be inclosed in temples or houses made with man's hand, as in dwelling-places able to receive or contain his Majesty, according as is evidently declared by the Prophet Isaiah, and by the doctrine of St. Stephen and St. Isa. lxvi. Paul in the Acts of the Apostles. And where king Solo-Acts vii. mon (who builded unto the Lord the most glorious tem-xvii.

in, are the bodies and minds of true Christians, and the chosen people of God, according to the doctrine of the ple that ever was made) faith, Who shall be able to build a meet or worthy bouse for him? If heaven, and the heaven above all heavens, cannot contain him, how much less can that which I have builded? And further confesseth, What am I, that I should be able to build thee an house, O Lord? But yet for this purpose only it is made, that thou mayest regard the prayer of thy servant, and his humble supplication. Much less then be our churches meet dwelling-places to receive the incomprehensible Majesty of God. And indeed the chief and special temples of God, wherein he hath greatest pleasure, and most delighteth to dwell and continue holy Scripture, declared in the first Epistle to the Corinthians: Know ye not, saith St. Paul, that ye he the temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you? If any man defile the temple of God, him will God destroy. For the temple of God is holy, which ye are. And again in the

cor. vi. fame Epissie: Know ye not that your body is the temple of the Holy Ghost dwelling in you, whom ye have given you of God, and that ye be not your own? For ye are dearly bought.

Glorify ye now therefore God in your body and in your spirit, which are God's. And therefore, as our Saviour Christ teacheth in the Gospel of St. John, they that worthin God.

teacheth in the Gospel of St. John, they that worthip God the Father in spirit and truth, in what place soever they do it, worship bim aright: for such worshippers doth God the Father look for. For God is a Spirit; and those that worship bim must worship bim in spirit and truth, saith our Saviour Christ. Yet all this notwithstanding, the material church or temple is a place appointed, as well by the usage and continual examples expressed in the Old Testament, as in the New, for the people of God to refort together unto, there to hear God's holy word, to call upon his holy name, to give him thanks for his innumerable and unfpeakable benefits bestowed upon us, and duly and truly to celebrate his holy Sacraments; (in the unfeigned doing and accomplishing of the which standeth that true and right worshipping of God afore mentioned;) and the same church or temple is by the holy Scriptures, both of the Old Testament and New, called the House and Temple of the Lord, for the peculiar service there done to his Majefty by his people, and for the effectuous prefence of his heavenly grace, wherewith he, by his faid holy word, endueth his people fo there affembled. And to the faid House or Temple of God, at all times, by common order appointed, are all people that be godly indeed bound with all diligence to refort, unless by fickness, or other most argent causes, they be letted therefore. And all the same so reforting thither ought with all quietness and reverence there to behave themselves, in doing their bounden duty and service to Almighty God, in the congregation of his faints. All which things are evident to be proved by God's holy word, as hereaster shall plainly appear.

And first of all, I will declare by the Scriptures, that it is called (as it is indeed) the house of God, and temple of the Lord. He that sweareth by the temple, saith our Sa-John ii. viour Christ, swearetb by it, and him that dwelleth therein, Matt. xxiii. meaning God the Father; which he also expresseth plainly in the Gospel of St. John, faying, Do not make the boufe John ii. of my Father the bouse of merchandize. And in the book of the Pfalms the Prophet David faith, I will enter into Pfalm v. thine house; I will worship in thy holy temple, in thy fear. And it is almost in infinite places of the Scripture, especially in the Prophets and book of Psalms, called the House of God, or House of the Lord. Sometimes it is named the Tabernacle of the Lord, and fometimes the Exod. xxv. Sanctuary, that is to fay, the holy place, or house of the Lord. And it is likewife called the House of Prayer, as Levit. xix. Solomon, who builded the temple of the Lord at Jerusa- 1 Kings viii. lem, doth oft call it the house of the Lord, in the which 2 Chron. vi, the Lord's name should be called upon. And Isaiah in the fifty-fixth chapter, My bouse shall be called the bouse of Ita. Ivi. prayer amongst all nations. Which text our Saviour Christ Matt. xii. allegeth in the New Testament, as doth appear in three of the Evangelists, and in the parable of the Pharifee and the Publican, which went to pray: in which parable our Saviour Christ saith, They went up into the temple to pray. Matt. xxi. And Anna, the holy widow and prophetess, ferved the Mark xi. Lord in fasting and prayer in the temple night and day. Luke xix. xviii. ii. And in the story of the Acts it is mentioned, how that Acts iii. Peter and John went up into the temple at the hour of prayer. And St. Paul, praying in the temple at Jerusalem, was wrapt in the Spirit, and did fee Jefus speaking unto him. And as in all convenient places prayer may be used of the godly privately; fo it is most certain, that the church, or temple, is the due and appointed place for common and public prayer. Now that it is likewife the place of thankfgiving unto the Lord for his innumerable and unipeakable benefits bestowed upon us, appeareth notably at the latter end of the Gospel of St. Luke, and the be-Luke xxiv. ginning of the flory of the Acts, where it is written, that the Apostles and Disciples, after the ascension of the Lord, Acts ii. K 3

continued with one accord daily in the temple, always praising and bleffing God. And it is likewise declared in the first Epistle to the Corinthians, that the church is the due place appointed for the use of the sacraments. It remaineth now to be declared, that the church, or temple, is the place where the lively word of God (and not man's inventions) ought to be read and taught, and that the people are bound thither with all diligence to refort; and this proof likewise to be made by the Scriptures, as hereafter shall

In the flory of the Acts of the Apostles we read, that

Acts xv.

Paul and Barnabas preached the word of God in the temples of the Jews at Salamine. And when they came to Antiochia, they entered on the fabbath-day into the fynagogue, or church, and jat down; and after the leffon, or reading of the Law and the Prophets, the ruler of the temple fent unto them, faying, Ye men and brethren, if any of you have any exhortation to make unto the people, fay it. And fo Paul standing up, and making silence with his hand, said, Ye men that be Ifraelites, and ye that fear God, give ear, &c. preaching to them a fermon out of the Scriptures, as there at large appeareth. And in the fame flory of the Acts, the seventeenth chapter, is testified, how Paul preached Christ out of the Scriptures at Theffalonica. And in the fifteenth chapter, James the Apostle, in that holy council and affembly of his fellow-apostles, saith, Moses of old time bath in every city certain that preach him in the lynagogues or temples, where he is read every fabbath-day. By these places ye may fee the usage of reading the Scriptures of the Old Testament among the Jews in their synagogues every fabbath-day, and fermons usually made upon the same. How much more then is it convenient that the Scriptures of God, and specially the Gospel of our Saviour Christ, should be read and expounded unto us, that be Christians, in our churches, specially our Saviour Christ and his Apoftles allowing this most godly and necessary usage, and by their examples confirming the fame.

Matt. iv. Mark i. Luke iv.

vlark vi. Luke xini. Luke iv.

It is written in the stories of the Gospel in divers places, that Jesus went round about all Galilee, teaching in their Matt. xiii. Synagogues, and preaching the Gospel of the kingdom: in which places is his great diligence in continual preaching and teaching of the people most evidently set forth.

In Lake ye read, how Jefis, according to his accuftomed use, came into the temple, and bow the book of Isaiah the Prophet was delivered him, how he read a text therein, and made a fermon upon the fame.

And

And in the nincteenth is expressed how he taught daily Luke xix. in the temple. And it is thus written in the eighth of John: Jesus came again early in the morning into the tem-John viii. ple, and all the people came unto him; and he sate down and taught them. And in the eighteenth of John our Saviour testifieth before Pilate, that he spake openly unto the world, John xviii. and that he always taught in the synagogue and in the temple, whither all the Jews resorted, and that secretly he spake nothing. And in St. Luke: Jesus taught in the temple, Luke xxi. and all the people came early in the morning unto him, that they might hear him in the temple.

Here ye fee as well the diligence of our Saviour in teaching the word of God in the temple daily, and specially on the sabbath-days, as also the readiness of the people resorting all together, and that early in the morning, into the temple to hear him.

The fame example of diligence in preaching the word of God in the temple, shall ye find in the Apostles, and the people reforting unto them, Acts the fifth. Where the Apostles, although they had been whipped and fcourged the day before, and by the High Priest commanded that they should preach no more in the name of Jefus, yet the day following they entered early in the morning into the temple, and did not cease to teach and declare Jesus Christ. And in fundry other places of the story of the Acts ye shall find like diligence, both in Acts xiii. the Apostles in teaching, and in the people in coming to xv. xvii. the temple to hear God's word. And it is testified in the first of Luke, that when Zachary, the boly priest, and father Luke i. to John Baptist, did facrifice within the temple, all the people flood without a long time praying; fuch was their zeal and fervency at that time. And in the fecond of Luke Luke ii. appeareth what great journeys men, women, yea and children took, to come to the temple on the feast-day, there to ferve the Lord; and specially the example of Joseph, the bleffed Virgin Mary, mother to our Saviour Jesus Christ, and of our Saviour Christ himself, being yet but a child, whose examples are worthy for us to follow. So that if we would compare our negligence in reforting to the house of the Lord, there to serve him, with the dir ligence of the Jews, in coming daily very early, fometimes by great journeys, to their temple; and when the multitude could not be received within the temple, the fervent zeal that they had was declared in standing long without and praying; we may justly in this comparison condemn our sothfulness and negligence, yea plain con-unto us, fo feldom, and scarcely at any time. So far is it from a great many of us to come early in the morning, or give attendance without, who difdain to come into the temple: and yet we abhor the very name of the Jews, when we hear it, as of a most wicked and ungodly people. But it is to be feared, that in this point we be far worfe than the Jews, and that they shall rife at the day of judgment to our condemnation, who, in comparison to them, show such slackness and contempt in resorting to the house of the Lord, there to serve him, according as we are of duty most bound. And besides this most horrible dread of God's just judgment in the great day, we shall not in this life escape his heavy hand and vengeance, for this contempt of the house of the Lord, and his due fervice in the fame, according as the Lord himfelf threateneth in the first chapter of the Prophet Haggai, after this fort: Because you have left my bouse desert and without company, faith the Lord, and ve have made bafte every man to his own bouse, for this cause are the beavens stayed over you, that they should give no deav, and the earth is forbidden, that it should bring forth her fruit; and I have called drought upon the earth, and upon the mountains, and upon corn, and upon wine, and upon oil, and upon all things that the earth bringeth forth, and upon men, and upon beafts, and upon all things that men's hands labour for. Behold, if we be fuch worldlings, that we care not for the eternal judgments of God, (which yet of all other are most dreadful and horrible) we shall not escape the punishment of God in this world by drought and famine, and the taking away of all worldly commodities, which we as worldlings feem only to regard and care for. Whereas, on the contrary part, if we would amend this fault or negligence, flothfulness and contempt of the house of the Lord, and his due service there, and with diligence refort thither together, to ferve the Lord with one accord and confent, in all holinefs and righteoutiefs before him, we have promifes of Matt. xviii, benefits both heavenly and worldly. Wherefoever two or three be gathered in my name, faith our Saviour Christ, there am I in the midst of them. And what can be more dragon and serpent, Satan the Devil, in the midst of us? In the fecond of Luke it is written, how that the mother of Christ and Joseph, when they had long fought Christ, whom they had loft, and could find him no where, that at the last they found bim in the temple, sitting in the midst of the doctors. So if we lack Jefus Christ, that is to fay, the Saviour of our fouls and bodies, we shall not find him in the market-place, or in the guildhall, much lets in the alehouse or tavern, amongst good fellows, (as they call them) fo foon as we shall find him in the temple, the Lord's house, amongst the teachers and preachers of his word, where indeed he is to be found. And as concerning worldly commodities, we have a fure promife of our Saviour Christ: Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and the righteoufness thereof, and all these things shall withat he given unto you. And thus we have in the first part of this Homily declared by God's word, that the temple or church is the house of the Lord, for that the service of the Lord (as teaching and hearing of his hely word, calling upon his holy name, giving thanks to him for his great and innumerable benefits, and due ministering of his facraments) is there used. And it is likewise declared by the Scriptures, how all godly and Christian men and women ought, at times appointed, with diligence to refort unto the house of the Lord, there to serve him and to glorify him, as he is most worthy, and we most bound; to whom be all glory and honour, world without end. Amen.

T was declared in the first part of this Homily, by God's word, that the temple, or church, is the house of the Lord, for that the service of the Lord (as teaching and hearing of his holy word, calling upon his holy name, giving thanks to him for his great and innumerable benefits, and due ministering of the sacraments) is there used. And it is likewise already declared by the Scriptures, how all godly and Christian men and women ought, at times appointed, with diligence to refort unto the house of the Lord, there to serve him, and to glorify him, as he is most worthy, and we most bounden.

Now it remaineth in this fecond part of the Homily concerning the right use of the temple of God, to be likewise declared by God's word, with what quietness, filence, and reverence, those that refort to the house of the Lord ought there to use and behave themselves.

It may teach us fufficiently how well it doth become us Christian men reverently to use the church and holy house of our prayers, by confidering in how great reverence and veneration the Jews in the old law had their temple, which appeared by fundry places, whereof I will note unto you certain. In the twenty-fixth of Matthew it is laid to our Saviour Christ's charge before a temporal judge, as a matter worthy of death, by the two false witnesses, that he had said, he could destroy the temple of God, and in three days build it again; not doubting, but if they might make men to believe that he had faid any thing against the honour and majesty of the temple, he should feem to all men most worthy of death. And in the twenty-first of the Acts, when the Jews found Paul in the temple, they laid hands upon him, crying, Ye men Ifraclites, help; this is that man who teacheth all men every where against the people and the law, and against this place: besides that, be hath brought the Gentiles into the temple, and hath profaned this boly place. Behold how they took it for a like offence to speak against the temple of God, as to speak against the law of God; and how they judged it convenient, that none but godly perfons, and the true worshippers of God, should enter into the temple of God. And the fame fault is laid to Paul's charge by Tertullus, an eloquent man, and by the Jews, in the twenty-fourth of the Acts, before a temporal judge, as a matter worthy of Acts xxiv. death, that he went about to pollute the temple of God. And in the twenty-feventh of Matthew, when the chief · priefts had received again the pieces of filver at Judas's

Mat. xxvii. hand, they faid, It is not lawful to put them into Corban, (which was the treasure-house of the temple) because it is the price of blood. So that they could not abide that not only any unclean person, but also any other dead thing that was judged unclean, should once come into the temple, or any place thereto belonging. And to this end is St. Paul's faying in the fecond Epiftle to the Corinthians, the fixth chapter, to be applied. What fellowship is there 2 Cor. vi. betwixt righteoufness and unrighteoufness? Or what communion between light and darkness? Or what concord between Christ and Belial? Or what part can the faithful have with the unfaithful? Or what agreement can there be between the temple of God and images? Which fentence, although it be chiefly referred to the temple of the mind of the godly; yet seeing that the similitude and pith of the argument

ment is taken from the material temple, it enforceth that no ungodlinefs, specially of images or idols, may be suffered in the temple of God, which is the place of worshipping God; and therefore can no more be suffered to stand there, than light can agree with darkness, or Christ with Belial; for that the true worshipping of God, and the worshipping of images, are most contrary. And the fetting of them up in the place of worthipping may give great occasion to the worshipping of them. But to turn to the reverence, that the Jews had to their temple: you will fay that they honoured it fuperstitiously, and a great deal too much, crying out, The temple of the Lord, the tem- yer, vis. ple of the Lord, being not withflanding most wicked in life, and be therefore most justly reproved of Jeremiah, the Prophet of the Lord. Truth it is, that they were fuperfitiously given to the honouring of their temple. But I would we were not as far too thort from the due reverence of the Lord's house, as they overshot themselves therein. And if the Prophet justly reprehended them, hearken also what the Lord requireth at our hands, that we may know whether we be blame-worthy or no.

It is written in Ecclefiastes, the fourth chapter, When Eccles. iv. thou dost enter into the house of God, faith he, take heed to thy feet; draw near that thou mayest hear: for obedience is much more worth than the facrifice of fools, which know not what evil they do. Speak nothing rashly there, neither let thine heart be swift to utter words before God: for God is in beaven, and thou art upon the earth; therefore let thy words be few. Note, well-beloved, what quietness in gesture and behaviour, what filence in talk and words, is required in the house of God; for so he calleth it. See whether they take heed to their feet, as they be here warned. which never cease from uncomely walking and jetting up and down and overthwart the church, shewing an evident fignification of notable contempt, both of God, and all good men there prefent: and what heed they take to their tongues and speech, which do not only speak words swiftly and rashly before the Lord, (which they be here forbidden) but also oftentimes speak filthily, covetously, and ungodlily, talking of matters scarce houest or sit for the alehouse or tavern, in the house of the Lord; little confidering that they fpeak before God, who dwelleth in heaven, (as is here declared) when they be but vermin here creeping upon the earth, in comparison to his eternal Majesty, and less regarding that they must give an ac-Matt. xin count at the great day of every idle word, where fewer it be spoken, much more of filthy, unclean, or wicked words spoken in the Lord's house, to the great dishonour of his Majesty, and offence of all that hear them. And indeed. concerning the people and multitude, the temple is prepared for them to be hearers rather than speakers, considering that as well the word of God is there read and taught, whereunto they are bound to give diligent car with all reverence and filence, as also that common prayer and thanksgiving are rehearsed and said by the public miuister in the name of the people and the whole multitude prefent, whereunto they, giving their ready audience, Cor. xiv. should affent and fav, Amen, as St. Paul teacheth in the first Epistle to the Corinthians. And in another place, glorifying God with one spirit and mouth; which cannot be when every man and woman, in feveral pretences of devotion, prayeth privately; one asking, another giving thanks, another reading doctrine, and not regarding to hear the common prayer of the minister. And peculiarly, what due reverence is to be used in the ministering of the facraments in the temple, the same St. Paul teacheth to the Corinthians, rebuking fuch as did unreverently use themfelves in that behalf. Have ye not boules to eat and drink in? faith he. Do re despite the church or congregation of God? Il bat shall I say unto you? Shall I praise you? In this I praise you not. And God requireth not only this outward reverence of behaviour and silence in his house, but all inward reverence in cleanfing of the thoughts of our hearts, threatening by his Prophet Hofea in the ninth chapter, that, for the malice of the inventions and devices of Hofea ix. the people, be will cast them out of his bouse: whereby is also fignified the eternal casting of them out of his heavenly house and kingdom, which is most horrible. And Levit, xix, therefore in the nineteenth of Leviticus God faith, Fear you with reverence my fanttuary, for I am the Lord. And according to the fame the Prophet David faith, I will enter into thine bouse, I will worship in thy boly temple, in thy fear: shewing what inward reverence and humbleness of mind the godly man ought to have in the house of the Lord. And to allege fomewhat concerning this matter out of the New Testament, in what honour God would have his house or temple kept, and that by the example of our Saviour Christ, whose authority ought of good reafon with all true Christians to be of most weight and estimation. It is written of all the four Evangelists, as a notable act, and worthy to be testified by many holy wit-

neffes, how that our Saviour Jefus Christ, that merciful

Ifa. 1. to a lamb led without relistance to the flaughter, which Matt. v. gave his body to them that did fmite him, answered not him that reviled, nor turned away his face from them that did reproach him and spit upon him, and, according to his own example, gave precepts of mildness and fufferance to his disciples: yet when he feeth the temple and holy house of his heavenly Father misordered, polluted, and profaned, ufeth great feverity and tharpness, overturneth the tables of the exchangers, subverteth the feats of them that fold doves, maketh a whip of cords, and fcourgeth out those wicked abusers and profauers of the temple of God, faying, My boufe shall be called the boufe of prayer; but ye have made it a den of thieves. And in the fecond of John, Do not ye make the house of my Father the John it. bouse of merchandize? For as it is the house of God, when God's fervice is duly done in it; fo when we wickedly abuse it with wicked talk or covetous bargaining, we make it a den of thieves, or an house of merchandize. Yea, and fuch reverence would Christ should be therein. that he would not fuffer any veffel to be carried through the temple. And whereas our Saviour Christ (as is be-Mark xi. fore mentioned out of St. Luke) could be found no where (when he was fought) but only in the temple amongst the doctors; and now again he exerciseth his authority and jurisdiction, not in castles and princely palaces amongst foldiers, but in the temple : ye may hereby understand in what place his fpiritual kingdom (which he denieth to be of this world) is foonest to be found, and best to be * The peoknown of all places in this world. And according to this ple's fault example of our Saviour Christ in the primitive Church, grievous. which was most holy and godly, and in the which due The sendiscipline with severity was used against the wicked, open tence executed otheroffenders were not fuffered once to enter into the house of wife and the Lord, nor admitted to common prayer, and the use of more cruel the holy facraments, with other true Christians, until than it should. they had done open penance before the whole church. + He was And this was practifed not only upon mean persons, but only dealso upon the rich, noble, and mighty persons, yea, upon horted from Theodosius, that puissant and mighty emperor, whom, the facrafor committing * a grievous and wilful murder, St. Am-ment, unbrofe, bishop of Milan, reproved sharply, and + did also til by reexcommunicate the faid emperor, and brought him to he might open penauce. were taken (as they be indeed) for men divided and separated from Christ's church, and in most dangerous estate, yea, as St. Paul faith, even given unto Satan the Devil fer a time; and their company was shunned and avoided of all godly men and women, until fuch time as they by repentance and public penance were reconciled. Such was the honour of the Lord's house in men's hearts, and outward reverence also at that time, and so horrible a thing was it to be shut out of the church and house of the Lord in those days, when religion was most pure, and nothing so corrupt as it hath been of late days. And yet we willingly, either by abfenting ourselves from the house of the Lord, do, as it were, excommunicate ourselves from the church and fellowship of the faints of God; or else coming thither, by uncomely and unreverent behaviour there, by hafty, rath, yea, unclean and wicked thoughts and words before the Lord our God, horribly dishonour his holy house, the church of God, and his holy name and majesty, to the great danger of our souls, yea, and certain damnation also, if we do not speedily and earnestly repent us of this wickedness. Thus ye have heard, dearly beloved, out of God's word. what reverence is due to the holy house of the Lord, how all godly persons ought with diligence at times appointed thither to repair, how they ought to behave themselves there, with reverence and dread before the Lord, what plagues and punishments, as well temporal as eternal, the Lord in his holy word threateneth, as well to fuch as neglect to come to his holy house, as also to such who, coming thither, do unreverently by geflure or talk there behave themselves. Wherefore if we defire to have seafonable weather, and thereby to enjoy the good fruits of the earth; if we will avoid drought and barrenness, thirst and hunger, which are plagues threatened unto fuch as make haste to go to their own houses, to alchouses and taverns, and leave the house of the Lord empty and desolate; if we abhor to be fourged, not with whips made of cords, out of the material temple only, (as our Saviour Christ ferved the desilers of the house of God in Jerusalem) but also to be beaten and driven out of the eternal temple and house of the Lord (which is his heavenly kingdom) with the iron rod of everlasting danmation, and east into utter darkness, where is weeping and gnashing of teeth; if we fear, dread, and abhor this, I fay, as we have most just cause to do, then let us amend this our negligence and contempt in coming to the house of the Lord,

Ephes. iii.

Lord, this our unreverent behaviour in the house of the Lord; and reforting thither diligently together, let us there with reverent hearing of the Lord's holy word, calling on the Lord's holy name, giving of hearty thanks unto the Lord for his manifold and inestimable benefits daily and hourly bestowed upon us, celebrating also reverently the Lord's holy facraments, ferve the Lord in his holy house, as becometh the servants of the Lord, in holiness and righteousness before him all the days of our life; and then we shall be assured after this life to rest in his holy hill, and to dwell in his tabernacle, there to praise and magnify his holy name in the congregation of his faints, in the holy house of his eternal kingdom of heaven, which he hath purchased for us by the death and fhedding of the precious blood of his Son our Saviour Jefus Christ, to whom, with the Father and the Holy Ghoft, one immortal God, be all honour, glory, praife, and thankfgiving, world without end. Amen.

AN

HOMILY

AGAINST

Peril of Idolatry, and superfluous Decking of Churches.

THE FIRST PART.

IN what points the true ornaments of the church or temple of God do confift and fland, hath been declared in the two last Homilies, treating of the right use of the temple or house of God, and of the due reverence that all true Christian people are bound to give unto the same. The fum whereof is, that the church or house of God is a place appointed by the holy Scriptures, where the lively word of God ought to be read, taught, and heard, the Lord's holy name called upon by public prayer, hearty thanks given to his Majesty for his infinite and unspeakable benefits bestowed upon us, his holy facraments duly and reverently ministered; and that therefore all that be godly indeed ought both with diligence, at times appointed, to repair together to the faid church, and there with all reverence to use and behave themselves before the Lord. And that the faid church thus godly used by the fervants of the Lord, in the Lord's true fervice, for the effectual prefence of God's grace, wherewith he doth by his holy word and promifes endue his people there prefent and affembled, to the attainment, as well of commodities worldly, necessary for us, as also of all heavenly gifts, and life everlasting, is called by the word of God (as it is indeed) the Temple of the Lord, and the House of God, and that therefore the due reverence thereof is tirred up in the hearts of the godly, by the confideration of

of these true ornaments of the said house of God, and not by any outward ceremonies or coftly and glorious decking of the faid house or temple of the Lord, contrary to the which most manifest doctrine of the Scriptures, and contrary to the usage of the primitive church, which was most pure and uncorrupt, and contrary to the fentences and judgments of the most ancient, learned, and godly doctors of the church, (as hereafter shall appear) the corruption of these latter days hath brought into the church infinite multitudes of images, and the fame, with other parts of the temple also, have decked with gold and filver, painted with colours, fet them with stone and pearl, clothed them with filks and precious vestures, fancying untruly that to be the chief decking and adorning of the temple or house of God, and that all people should be the more moved to the due reverence of the fame, if all corners thereof were glorious, and glistering with gold and precious stones. Whereas indeed they by the said images, and fuch glorious decking of the temple, have nothing at all profited fuch as were wife and of understanding; but have thereby greatly hurt the simple and unwife, occasioning them thereby to commit most horrible idolatry. And the covetous perfons, by the fame occasion, seeming to worship, and peradventure worshipping indeed, not only the images, but also the matter of them, gold and filver, as that vice is of all others in the Scriptures peculiarly called idolatry, or worshipping of Ephes. v. images. Against the which foul abuses and great enor-Coloss. iii. mities shall be alleged unto you; first, the authority of God's holy word, as well out of the Old Testament, as of the New. And fecondly, the testimonies of the holy and ancient learned fathers and doctors, out of their own works and ancient histories ecclefiastical, both that you may at once know their judgments; and withal understand what manner of ornaments were in the temples in the primitive church, in those times which were most pure and fincere. Thirdly, the reasons and arguments made for the defence of images or idols, and the outrageous decking of temples and churches with gold, filver, pearl, and precious stones, shall be consuted, and so this whole matter concluded. But left any should take occafion by the way, of doubting by words or names, it is thought good here to note first of all, that although in common speech we use to call the likeness or similitudes of men or other things, images, and not idols: yet the Scriptures use the said two words (idols and images) indifferently differently for one thing alway. They be words of divers tongues and founds, but one in fense and fignification in the Scriptures. The one is taken of the Greek word Eidwhov, an idol, and the other of the Latin word Imago, an image, and fo both used as English terms in the translating of Scriptures indifferently, according as the Septuaginta have in their translation in Greek Eldwha, and St. Jerome in his translation of the fame places in Latin hath Simulachra, in English, images. And in the New Testament, that which St. John calleth Eldwhov, St. Jerome likewife translateth Simulachrum, as in all other like places of Scripture usually he doth fo translate. And Tertullian, a most ancient doctor, and well learned in both the tongues, Greek and Latin, interpreting this place of Lib. de ce- St. John, Beware of idols, that is to fay, faith Tertullian, of the images themselves: the Latin words, which he useth, be Effigies and Imago, that is to fay, an image. And therefore it skilleth not, whether in this process we use the one term or the other, or both together, seeing they both (though not in common English speech, yet in Scripture) fignify one thing. And though fome, to blind men's eyes, have heretofore craftily gone about to make them to be taken for words of divers figuifications in matters of religion, and have therefore usually named the likeness or similitude of a thing set up amongst the heathen in their temples, or other places, to be worshipped, an idol. But the like fimilitude with us, fet up in the church, the place of worshipping, they call an image, as though these two words (idol and image) in Scripture. did differ in property and fense, which (as is aforesaid) differ only in found and language, and in meaning be indeed all one, especially in the Scriptures and matters of religion. And our images also have been, and be, and, if they be publicly fuffered in churches and temples, ever will be also worshipped, and so idolatry committed to them, as in the last part of this Homily shall at large be declared and proved. Wherefore our images in temples and churches be indeed none other but idols, as unto the which idolatry hath been, is, and ever will be com-the fame. For when God had chosen to himself a peculiar and special people from amongst all other nations that knew not God, but worshipped idols and false gods, he gave unto them certain ordinances and laws to be kept and observed of his faid people. But concerning none other matter did he give either more, or more carnest and express laws to his faid people, than those that concerned the true worshipping of him, and the avoiding and fleeing of idols, and images, and idolatry: for that both the faid idolatry is most repugnant to the right worshipping of him and his true glory, above all other vices, and that he knew the proneness and inclination of man's corrupt kind and nature to that most odious and abominable vice. Of the which ordinances and laws, so given by the Lord to his people concerning this matter, I will rehearfe and allege fome that be most special for this purpose, that you by them may judge of the rest.

my, is a notable place, and most worthy with all diligence Numb. to be marked, which beginneth thus: And now, Ifrael, xxii. hear the commandments and judgments which I teach thee, faith the Lord, that thou doing them mayest live, and enter and possess the land which the Lord God of your fathers will give you. Ye shall put nothing to the word which I speak to you, neither shall we take any thing from it. Keep ye the commandments of the Lord your God, which I command you. And by and by after he repeateth the same sentence three or four times, before he come to the matter that he would specially warn them of, as it were for a preface, to make them to take the better heed unto it. Take beed to thyself, saith he, and to thy soul, with all carefulness, lest thou forgettest the things which thine eyes have seen, and that they go not out of thine heart all the days of thy life; thou shalt teach them to thy children and nepheavs, or posterity. And shortly after, The Lord spake unto you out of the middle of fire; ye heard the voice or found of his words, but you did fee no form or Shape at all. And by and by followeth, Take beed therefore diligently unto your fouls: you faw no manner of image in the day, in the which the Lord spake unto you in Horeb, out of the midst of the fire, lest peradventure you, being deceived, should make to yourfelves any graven image, or likeness of man or woman, or the likeness of any beast which is upon the earth, or of the birds that fly under beaven, or of any creeping thing that is moved on the earth, or of the fishes that do continue in the waters: lest peraducature thou, lifting up thine eyes to beaven, do see the fun and the moon, and the stars of heaven, and so thou, being deceived by error, shouldest bonour and worship them, which the Lord thy God bath created to ferve all nations that be under beaven. And again, Beware that thou forget not the covenant of the Lord thy God, which he made with thee, and so make to thyself any carved image, of them which the Lord hath forbidden to be made: for the Lord thy God is a confuming fire, and a jealous God. If you have children and nepheros, and do tarry in the land, and, being deceived, do make to yourselves any similitude, doing evil before the Lord your God, and provoke him to anger; I do this day call upon beaven and earth to witness, that ye shall quickly perish out of the land which you shall posses; you shall not druell in it any long time; but the Lord will destroy you, and will scatter you amongst all nations; and ye shall remain but a very few among it the nations, whither the Lord will lead you arvay; and then shall you serve gods which are made with man's bands, of wood and flone, which fee not, and hear not, neither eat nor smell, and fo forth. This is a notable chapter, and treateth almost altogether of this matter. But because it is too long to write out the whole, I have noted you certain principal points out of it. First, how earnestly and oft he calleth upon them to mark and to take heed, and that upon the peril of their fouls, to the charge which he giveth them. Then how he forbiddeth, by a folemn and long rehearfal of all things in heaven, in earth, and in the water, any image or likeness of any thing at all to be made. Thirdly, what penalty and horrible destruction he solemnly, with invocation of heaven and earth for record, denounceth and threateneth to them, their children and posterity, if they, contrary to this commandment, do make or worship any images or fimilitude, which he fo firictly hath forbidden. And when they, this notwithstanding, partly by inclination of man's corrupt nature, most prone to idolatry, and partly occasioned by the Gentiles and heathen people dwelling about them, who were idolaters, did fall to the making and worshipping of images; God, according to his word, brought upon them all those plagues which he threatened them with, as appeareth in the Books of the Kings and the Chronicles, in fundry places at large. And agreeable hereunto are many other notable places in the Old Testament, Deuteronomy xxvii. Curfed be he that maketh a carved image, or a cast or molten image, which is abomination hefore the Lord, the swork of the artificer's hand, and fetteth it up in a feeret corner; and all the people shall say, Amen. Read

Read the thirteenth and fourteenth chapters of the Book of Wisdom concerning idols or images, how they be made, fet up, called upon, and offered unto, and how he praifeth the tree whereof the gibbet is made, as happy in comparison to the tree that an image or idol is made of, even by these very words; Happy is the tree wherethrough righteousness cometh (meaning the gibbet); but curfed is the idol that is made with hands, yea, both it, and he that made it, and fo forth. And by and by he sheweth, how that the things which were the good creatures of God before, (as trees or stones) when they be once altered and fashioned into images to be worshipped, become abomination, a temptation unto the fouls of men, and a fnare for the feet of the unwife. And why? The feeking out of images is the beginning of whoredom, faith he; and the bringing up of them is the destruction of life: for they were not from the beginning, neither shall they continue for ever. The wealthy idleness of men hath found them out upon earth, therefore shall they come shortly to an end: and so forth to the end of the chapter, containing these points; how idols or images were first invented and offered unto, how by an ungracious custom they were established, how tyrants compel men to worship them, how the ignorant and the common people are deceived by the cunning of the workman, and the beauty of the image, to do honour unto it, and fo to err from the knowledge of God, and of other great and many mischiefs that come by images. And for a conclusion he faith, that the honouring of abominable images is the cause, the beginning, and end of all evil, and that the worshippers of them be either mad or most wicked. See and view the whole chapter with diligence, for it is worthy to be well confidered, especially that is written of the deceiving of the fimple and unwife common people by idols and images, and repeated twice or thrice, left it should be forgotten. And in the chapter following be these words: The painting of the picture Wisd. xv. and carved image with divers colours enticeth the ignorant, fo that he honoureth and loveth the picture of a dead image that hath no foul. Nevertheless, they that love fuch evil things, they that trust in them, they that make them, they that favour them, and they that honour them, are all worthy of death, and fo forth.

In the Book of Pfalms, the Prophet curfeth the imagehonourers in divers places. Confounded be all they that Pfal, exv.

Pfal.cxxxv. worfhip carved images, and that delight or glory in them. Like be they unto the images that make them, and all they that put their trust in them.

And in the Prophet Isaiah, saith the Lord: Even I am Ifa. xlii. the Lord, and this is my name, and my glory will I give to none other, neither my bonour to graven images. And by and by; Let them be confounded with shame that trust in idols or images, or fay to them, You are our Gods. And in the fortieth chapter, after he hath fet forth the incomprehenfible Majesty of God, he asketh, To whom then will Ifa. xl. ye make God like? Or what similitude will ye set up unto bim? Shall the carver make bim a carved image? And shall the goldsmith cover him with gold, and cast him into a form of filver plates? And for the poor man, shall the imagemaker frame an image of timber, that he may have somewhat to fet up also? And after this he crieth out, Owretches, beard ye never of this? Hath it not been preached unto you fince the beginning, and so forth, how by the creation of the world, and the greatness of the work, they might understand the Majesty of God, the Creator and Maker of all, to be greater than that it should be expressed, or set forth in any image or bodily similitude? And besides this preaching, even in the law of God, written with his own singer, (as Exod. xx. the Scripture speaketh) and that in the first table, and the beginning thereof, is this doctrine aforefaid against images, not briefly touched, but at large fet forth and preached, and that with denunciation of destruction to the contemners and breakers of this law, and their posterity after them. And, left it should not yet be marked, or not remembered, the fame is written and reported not in one, but in fundry places of the word of God, that, by oft hearing and reading of it, we might once learn and remember it, as you also hear daily read in the church,

God spake these words, and said, I am the Lord thy God. Thou shalt have none other Gods but me. Thou shalt not make to thyself any graven image, nor the likeness of any thing that is in beaven above, nor in the earth heneath, nor in the water under the earth: thou shalt not bow down to them, nor worship them: for I the Lord thy God am a jealous God, and wifit the sin of the fathers upon the children, unto the third and fourth generation of them that bate me, and show mercy unto thousands in them that love me, and keep my Commandments. All this notwithstanding, neither could the notableness of the place, being the very beginning of the very loving Lord's law, make us to mark it, nor the plain

Lev. xxvi. Deut. v. Exod. xx. plain declaration, by recounting of all kind of fimilitudes, cause us to understand it, nor the oft repeating and reporting of it in divers and fundry places, the oft reading and hearing of it, could cause us to remember it, nor the dread of the horrible penalty to ourselves, our children, and posterity after us, fright us from transgressing of it, nor the greatness of the reward to us and our children after us, move us any thing to obedience, and the observing of this the Lord's great law: but as though it had been written in some corner, and not at large expreffed, but briefly and obscurely touched; as though no penalty to the transgressors, nor reward to the obedient, had been adjoined unto it, like blind men without all knowledge and understanding, like unreasonable beasts, without dread of punishment or respect of reward, have diminished and dishonoured the high Majesty of the living God, by the baseness and vileness of fundry and divers images of dead flocks, flones, and metals. And as the Majesty of God, whom we have left, forsaken, and dishonoured, and therefore the greatness of our fin and offence against his Majesty, cannot be expressed; so is the weakness, vileness, and foolishness, in device of the images (whereby we have dishonoured him) expressed at large in the Scriptures, namely, the Pfalms, the Book Places of of Wisdom, the Prophet Isaiah, Ezekiel, and Baruch, the Scripture against especially in these places and chapters of them: Psalm idols or exv. and exxxiv. Ifaiah xl. and xliv. Ezekiel vi. Wif-images. dom xiii. xiv. and xv. Barneh vi. The which places, as I exhort you often and diligently to read, fo are they too long at this prefent to be rehearfed in an Homily. withstanding, I will make you certain brief or short notes out of them, what they fay of thefe idols or images. First, that they be made but of small pieces of wood, stone, or metal, and therefore they cannot be any fimilitudes of the great Majesty of God, whose seat is heaven, and the earth his footfool. Secondly, that they be dead, have eyes, and fee not, hands, and feel not, feet, and cannot go, &c. and therefore they cannot be fit fimilitudes of the living God. Thirdly, that they have no power to do good nor harm to others, though fome of them have an axe, some a sword, some a spear in their hands, yet do thieves come into their temples and rob them, and they cannot once flir to defend themselves from the thieves: nay, if the temple or church be fet afire, that their priefts can run away and fave themselves, but they cannot once move, but tarry still like blocks as they are, and be burned, and therefore they can be no meet figures of the puiffant and mighty God, who alone is able both to fave his fervants, and to defiroy his enemies everlastingly. They be trimly decked in gold, filver, and stone, as well the images of men as of women, like wanton wenches, (faith the Prophet Baruch) that love paramours, and therefore can they not teach us, nor our wives and daughters, any soberness, modesty, and chastity. And therefore although it is now commonly said, that they be the laymen's books, yet we see they teach no good lesson, neither of God, nor godliness, but all error and wickedness. Therefore God by his word, as he forbiddeth any idols or images to be made or set up, so doth he command such as we find made and set up to that is, the people of God, have no images among them, but that God was with them, and that therefore their enemies cannot hurt them, as appeareth in the process of that chapter. And as concerning images already fet up, thus faith the Lord in Deuteronomy: Overturn their altars, and break them to pieces, cut down their groves, burn their images; for thou art an boly people unto the Lord. And the fame is repeated more vehemently again in the twelfth chapter of the fame book. Here note, what the people of God ought to do to images, where they find them. But left any private persons, upon colour of destroying images, should make any flir or disturbance in the commonwealth, it must always be remembered, that the redrefs of fuch public enormities pertaineth to the magistrates, and such as be in authority only, and not to private persons, and therefore the good kings of Judah, Afa, Hezekiah, Jofaphat, and Josias, are highly commended for the breaking down and destroying of the altars, idols, and images. And the Scriptures declare, that they specially in that point did that which was right before the Lord. And contrariwife, Jeroboam, Achab, Joas, and other princes, which either fet up, or fuffered fuch altars or images undestroyed, are by the word of God reported to have done evil before the Lord. And if any, contrary to the commandment of the Lord, will needs fet up fuch altars or images, or fuffer them undeftroyed amongst them, the Lord himfelf threateneth in the first chapter of the Book of Numbers, and by his holy Prophets Ezekiel, Micah, and

Habakkuk, that he will come himself and pull them down. And how he will handle, punish, and destroy the people that so set up or suffer such altars, images, or idols undestroyed, he denounceth by his Prophet Ezekiel on this manner: I myself, faith the Lord, will bring a sword Ezek vi, over you, to destroy your bigh places; I will cast down your altars, and break down your images; your stain men will I lay before your gods, and the dead carcajes of the children of Ifrael will I cast before their idols; your bones will I strew round about your altars and develling-places, your cities shall be defolate, the bill chapels laid wafte, your altars destroyed and broken, your gods cast down and taken away, your temples laid even with the ground, your own works clean rooted out, your flain men shall lie among st you, that ye may learn to know how that I am the Lord, and so forth to the chapter's end, worthy with diligence to be read: that they that be near shall perish with the sword; they that be far off, with the pestilence; they that slee into holds or wildernefs, with hunger: and if any be yet left, that they shall be carried away prisoners to servitude and bondage. So that if either the multitude or plainness of the places might make us to understand, or the earnest charge that God giveth in the faid places move us to regard, or the horrible plagues, punishments, and dreadful destruction, threatened to fuch worshippers of images or idols, setters up, or maintainers of them, might engender any fear in our hearts, we would once leave and forfake this wickedness, being in the Lord's fight so great an offence and abomination. Infinite places almost might be brought out of the Scriptures of the Old Testament concerning this matter: but thefe few at this time shall ferve for all.

You will fay, peradventure, these things pertain to the Jews; what have we to do with them? Indeed they pertain no less to us Christiaus, than to them. For if we be the people of God, how can the word and law of God not appertain to us? St. Paul, alleging one text out of the Old Testament, concludeth generally for other Scriptures of the Old Testament as well as that, saying, What-Rom. xv. soever is written before (meaning in the Old Testament) is written for our instruction: which sentence is most specially true of such writings of the Old Testament, as contain the immutable law and ordinances of God, in no age or time to be altered, nor of any persons of any nations or age to be disobeyed, such as the above-rehearted places be. Notwithstanding, for your further satisfying herein, according according to my promife, I will, out of the Scriptures of the New Testament or Gospel of our Saviour Christ, likewise make a confirmation of the said doctrine against idols or images, and of our duty concerning the same. First, the Scriptures of the New Testament do in sundry places make mention with rejoicing, as for a most excellent benefit and gift of God, that they which received the faith of Christ were turned from their dumb and dead images, unto the true and living God, who is to be blessed for ever: namely, in these places; the sourteenth and seventeenth of the Acts of the Apostles, the eleventh to the Romans; and the sirst Episile to the Corinthians, the twelfth chapter; to the Galatians, the fourth; and the sirst to the Thessalonians, the sirst chapter.

And likewise the said idols, images, and worshipping of them, are in the Scriptures of the New Testament by the spirit of God much abhorred and detested, and earnestly forbidden, as appeareth both in the forenamed places, and also many other besides, as in the seventh and sifteenth of the Acts of the Apostles, the sirst to the Romans, where is set forth the horrible plague of idolaters, given over by God unto a reproduct sense, to work all wickedness and abominations not to be spoken, as usually fpiritual and carnal fornication go together.

In the first Epistle to the Corinthians, the fifth chapter, we are forbidden once to keep company, or to eat and drink with such as be called brethren or Christians, that do worship images. In the fifth to the Galatians, the worshipping of images is numbered amongst the works of the flesh: and in the first to the Corinthians, the tenth, it is called the fervice of devils, and that fuch as use it shall be destroyed. And in the fixth chapter of the faid Epiftle, and the fifth to the Galatians, is denounced, that fuch image-worshippers shall never come into the inheritance of the kingdom of beaven. And in fundry other places is threatened, that the wrath of God shall come upon all such. And therefore St. John in his Epistle exhorteth us, as his dear children, to bezvare of images. And St. Paul warneth us to flee from the worshipping of them, if we be wife, that is to fay, if we care for health, and fear destruction, if we regard the kingdom of God and life everlasting, and dread the wrath of God and everlasting damnation. For it is not possible that we should be worshippers of images and the true fervants of God also, as St. Paul teacheth, in the second to the Corinthians, the fixth chapter, affirming expressly that there can be no more confent or agreement between

I Cor. x.

images, than between rightconfness and unrightconfness, between light and darkness, between the faithful and the unfaithful, or between Christ and the Devil. Which place enforceth both that we should not worship images, and that we should not have images in the temple, for fear and occasion of worshipping them, though they be of themselves things indifferent: for the Christian is the holy temple and lively image of God, as the place well declareth, to fuch as will read and weigh it. And whereas all godly men did ever abhor that any kneeling and worshipping or offering should be used to themselves when they were alive, (for that it was the honour due to God only) as appeareth in the Acts of the Apostles, by Acts x. St. Peter forbidding it to Cornelius, and by St. Paul and Acts xiv. Barnabas forbidding the fame to the citizens in Lystra: yet we like mad men fall down before the dead idols or images of Peter and Paul, and give that honour to stocks and stones, which they thought abominable to be given to themselves being alive. And the good angel of God, as appeareth in the Book of St. John's Revelation, refused to be kneeled unto, when that honour was offered him of John: Beware, faith the angel, that thou do it not, for I am thy fellow-fervant. But the evil angel, Satan, defireth nothing to much as to be kneeled unto, and thereby at once both to rob God of his due honour, and to work the damnation of fuch as make him to low courtefy, as in the flory of the Gospel appeareth in fundry places. Yea, and he offered our Saviour Christ all earthly goods, on the condition that he would kneel down and worship him. But our Saviour repelleth Satan by the Scriptures, faying, It is written, Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, Matt. iv. and bim alone shalt thou serve. But we, by not worthipping Luke ii. and ferving God alone, (as the Scriptures teach us) and by worshipping of images, contrary to the Scriptures, pluck Satan to us, and are ready without reward to follow his defire: yea, rather than fail, we will offer him gifts and oblations to receive our fervice. But let us, brethren, rather follow the counsel of the good angel of God, than the fuggestion of subtle Satan, that wicked angel and old ferpent; who, according to the pride whereby he first fell, attempteth always by such facrilege to deprive God (whom he envieth) of his due honour; and (because his own face is horrible and ugly) to convey it to himself by the mediation of gilt stocks and stones, and withal to make us the enemies of God, and his own fuppliants pliants and flaves, and, in the end, to procure us for a reward, everlasting destruction and damnation. Therefore above all things, if we take ourselves to be Christians indeed, (as we be named) let us credit the word, obey the law, and follow the doctrine and example of our Saviour and Master Christ, repelling Satan's suggestion to idolatry and worshipping of images, according to the truth alleged and taught out of the Testament and Gospel of our faid heavenly Doctor and Schoolmaster Jesus Christ, who is God to be bleffed for ever. Amen.

YOU have heard, well-beloved, in the first part of I this Homily, the doctrine of the word of God against idols and images, against idolatry and worshipping of images, taken out of the Scriptures of the Old Testament and the New, and confirmed by the examples as well of the Apostles as of our Saviour Christ himself. Now although our Saviour Christ taketh not or needeth not any testimony of men, and that which is once confirmed by the certainty of his eternal truth hath no more need of the confirmation of man's doctrine and writings, than the bright fun at noontide hath need of the light of a little candle, to put away darkness, and to increase his light: yet, for your further content, it shall in this second part be declared (as in the beginning of the first part was promifed) that this truth and doctrine concerning the forbidding of images, and worshipping of them, taken out of the holy Scriptures, as well of the Old Testament as the New, was believed and taught of the old holy fathers, and most ancient learned doctors, and received in the old primitive church, which was most uncorrupt and pure. And this declaration shall be made out of the faid holy doctor's own writings, and out of the ancient histories ecclefiafical to the fame belonging.

Tertullian, a most ancient writer and doctor of the church, who lived about one hundred and threefcore years after the death of our Saviour Christ, both in fundry other places of his works, and specially in his book Lib. contra written against The Manner of Crowning, and in another little treatife, entitled, Of the Soldier's Crown or Garland,

doth most sharply and vehemently write and inveigh against images or idols: and upon St. John's words, the first epistle and fifth chapter, saith thus; St. John, John v. (faith he) deeply confidering the matter, faith, My little children, keep yourselves from images or idols. He faith not now, keep yourselves from idolatry, as it were from the fervice and worthipping of them; but from the images or idols themselves, that is, from the very shape and likenefs of them: for it were an unworthy thing, that the image of the living God should become the image of a dead idol. Do you not think those persons which place images and idols in churches and temples, yea, shrine them even over the Lord's Table, even as it were of purpose to the worshipping and honouring of them, take good heed either to St. John's counfel, or Tertullian's? For fo to place images and idols, is it to keep themselves from them, or elfe to receive and embrace them?

Origen, in his book against Celfus, faith thus: "Christian men and Jews, when they hear these words of the law, (Thou Shalt fear the Lord thy God, and Shalt not make any image) do not only abhor the temples, altars, and images of the gods, but, if need be, will rather die than they should defile themselves with any impiety." 'And shortly after he faith, "In the commonwealth of the Jews, the carver of idols and image-maker was cast far off and forbidden, lest they should have any occasion to make images, which might pluck certain foolish persons from God, and turn the eyes of their fouls to the contemplation of earthly things." And in another place of the fame book, "It is not only (faith he) a mad and frantic part to worship images, but also once to diffemble or wink at it. And a man may know God and his only Son, and those which have had fuch honour given them by God, that they be called gods: but it is not possible that any should by worthipping of images get any knowledge of God."

Athanasius, in his book against the Gentiles, hath these words: "Let them tell, I pray you, how God may be known by an image. If it be by the matter of an image, then there needeth no shape or form, seeing that God hath appeared in all material creatures, which do testify his glory. Now if they say he is known by the form or fashion, is he not better to be known by the living things themselves, whose fashions the images express? For of surety, the glory of God should be more evidently known, if it were declared by reasonable and living creatures, rather than by dead and unmoveable images.

There.

Therefore, when ye do grave or paint images, to the end to know God thereby, furely ye do an unworthy and unfit thing." And in another place of the fame book he faith, "The invention of images came of no good, but of evil; and whatfoever hath an evil beginning can never in any thing be judged good, feeing it is altogether naught." Thus far Athanafius, a very ancient, holy, and learned bishop and doctor, who judgeth both the first beginning and the end, and altogether of images or idols to be naught.

Lactantius likewise, an old and learned writer, in his book of the Original of Error, hath these words: "God is above man, and is not placed beneath, but is to be sought in the highest region. Wherefore there is no doubt, but that no religion is in that place wheresoever any image is: for if religion stand in godly things, (and there is no godlines but in heavenly things) then be images without religion." These be Lactantius's words, who was above thirteen hundred years ago, and within three hundred years after our Saviour Christ.

Cyrillus, an old and holy doctor, upon the Gospel of St. John hath these words: "Many have left the Creator, and have worshipped the creature; neither have they been abashed to say unto a stock, Thou art my father; and to a stone, Thou begottest me. For many, yea, almost all (alas for forrow) are fallen unto such folly, that they have given the glory of deity, or godhead, to things without fense or feeling."

Epiphanius, Bishop of Salamine in Cyprus, a very holy and learned man, who lived in Theodosius the Emperor's time, about three hundred and ninety years after our Saviour Christ's ascension, writeth thus to John Patriarch of Jerusalem: "I entered (faith Epiphanius) into a certain church to pray: I found there a linen cloth hanging in the church-door, painted, and having in it the image of Christ, as it were, or of some other faint; (for I remember not well whose image it was:) therefore when I did see the image of a man hanging in the church of Christ, contrary to the authority of the Scriptures, I did tear it, and gave counsel to the keepers of the church, that they should wind a poor man that was dead, in the said cloth, and so bury him."

And afterwards the fame Epiphanius, fending another unpainted cloth, for that painted one which he had torn, to the faid Patriarch, writeth thus: "I pray you, will the elders of that place to receive this cloth, which I have

Lib. ii. c. 16. fent by this bearer, and command them that from henceforth no fuch painted cloths, contrary to our religion, be hanged in the church of Christ. For it becometh your goodness rather to have this care, that you take away fuch forupulofity, which is unfitting for the church of Christ, and offensive to the people committed to your charge." And this Epistle, as worthy to be read of many, did St. Jerome himself translate into the Latin tongue. And that ye may know that St. Jerome had this holy and learned bishop Epiphanius in most high estimation, and therefore did translate this Epistle as a writing of authority, hear what a testimony the said St. Jerome giveth him in another place, in his Treatife against the Errors of John Bishop of Jerusalem, where he hath these words: "Thou hast (faith St. Jerome) Pope Epiphanius, which All notable doth openly in his letters call thee an heretic. Surely Bishops were then thou art not to be preferred before him, neither for age, called nor learning, nor godliness of life, nor by the testimony Popes. of the whole world?' And shortly after in the same Treatile, faith St. Jerome, Bishop Epiphanius was ever of so great veneration and estimation, that Valens the Emperor, who was a great perfecutor, did not once touch him. For heretics, being princes, thought it their shame, if they should persecute such a notable man. And in the Tripartite Ecclefiaftical Hiftory, the ninth book, and forty-eighth chapter, is testified, that "Epiphanius, being yet alive, did work miracles, and that after his death devils, being expelled at his grave or tomb, did roar." Thus you fee what authority St. Jerome, and that most ancient hiftory, give unto the holy and learned Bishop Epiphanius, Lib. ix. whose judgment of images in churches and temples, c. 48. then beginning by flealth to creep in, is worthy to be noted.

First, he judged it contrary to Christian religion, and the authority of the Scriptures, to have any images in Christ's church. Secondly, he rejected not only carved, graven, and molten images, but also painted images out of Christ's church. Thirdly, that he regarded not whether it were the image of Christ, or of any other faint; but being an image would not suffer it in the church. Fourthly, that he did not only remove it out of the church, but with a vehement zeal tare it in funder, and exhorted that a corfe should be wrapped and buried in it, judging it meet for nothing but to rot in the earth, following herein the example of the good king Hezekiah, who brake the brazen serpent to pieces, and burned it to ashes, for that idolatry was committed to it. Last of all, that Epiphanius thinketh it the duty of vigilant bishops to be careful that no images be permitted in the church, for that they be occasion of scruple and offence to the people committed to their charge. Now whereas neither St. Jerome, who did translate the same Epistle, nor the authors of that most ancient History Ecclesistical Tripartite, (who do most highly commend Epiphanius, as is aforefaid) nor any other godly or learned bishop at that time, or shortly after, have written any thing against Epiphanius's judgment concerning images; it is an evident proof, that in those days, which were about four hundred years after our Saviour Christ, there were no images publicly used and received in the church of Christ, which was then much less corrupt and more pure than now it is. And whereas images began at that time fecretly and by stealth to creep out of private men's houses into the churches, and that first in painted cloths and walls, such bishops as were godly and vigilant, when they spied them, removed them away, as unlawful and contrary to Christian religion, as did here Epiphanius, to whose judgment you have not only St. Jerome, the translator of his Epistle, and the writer of the History Tripartite, but also all the learned and godly clerks, yea, and the whole church of that age, and fo upward to our Saviour Christ's time, by the space of about four hundred years, confenting and agreeing. This is written the more largely of Epiphanius, for that our image-maintainers now-a-days, feeing themselves so pressed with this most plain and earnest act and writing of Epiphanius, a bishop and doctor of such antiquity and authority, labour by all means (but in vain against the truth) either to prove that this Epifle was neither of Epiphanius's writing, nor St. Jerome's translation: Either if it be, say they, it is of no great force: for this Epiphanius, fay they, was a Jew, and being converted to the Christian faith and made a bishop, retained the hatred which Jews have to images fill in his mind, and fo did and wrote against them as a Jew, rather than as a Christian. O Jewish impudency and malice of fuch devifers! It should be proved, and not faid only, that Epiphanius was a Jew. Furthermore, concerning the reason they make, I would admit it gladly. For if Epiphanius's judgment against images is not to be admitted, for that he was born of a Jew, an enemy to images, which be God's enemies, converted to Christ's religion, religion, then likewife followeth it, that no fentence in the old doctors and fathers, founding for images, ought to be of any authority; for that in the primitive church the most part of learned writers, as Tertullian, Cyprian, Ambrofe, Austin, and infinite others more, were of Gentiles (which be favourers and worshippers of images) converted to the Christian faith, and so let somewhat slip out of their pens, founding for images, rather as Gentiles than Christians, as Eusebius in his History Ecclesiastical, and St. Jerome faith plainly, "that images came first from the Gentiles to us Christians." And much more doth it follow, that the opinion of all the rabblement of the Popith church, maintaining images, ought to be efteemed of fmall or no authority, for that it is no marvel that they, which have from their childhood been brought up amongst images and idols, and have drunk in idolatry almost with their mothers' milk, hold with images and idols, and speak and write for them. But indeed it would not be fo much marked, whether he were of a Jew, or a Gentile, converted unto Christ's religion, that writeth, as how agreeable or contrary to God's word he doth write, and fo to credit or diferedit him. Now what God's word faith of idols and images, and the worshipping of them, you heard at large in the first part of this Homily.

St. Ambrofe, in his treatife of the death of Theodofius the Emperor, faith, "Helene found the Crofs and the title on it. She worshipped the King, and not the wood, furely, (for that is an heathenish error, and the vanity of the wicked,) but she worshipped him that hanged on the Crofs, and whose name was written in the title;" and so forth. See both the godly Empress's fact, and St. Ambrose's judgment at once: they thought it had been an heathenish error and vanity of the wicked, to have worshipped the Crofs itself, which was embrued with our Saviour Christ's own precious blood. And we fall down before every crofs piece of timber, which is but an image of that Crois.

St. Augustine, the best learned of all ancient doctors, in his forty-fourth Epistle to Maximus, faith, "Know thou, that none of the dead, nor any thing that is made of God, is worshipped as God of the Catholic Christians, of whom there is a church also in your town." Note, that by St. Augustine, such as worshipped the dead, or creatures, be not Catholic Christians.

The fame St. Augustine teacheth, in the twelfth book

Lib. de

Civ. Dei,

temples or churches ought to be builded or made for martyrs or faints, but to God alone: and that there ought no priests to be appointed for martyr or faint, but to God only." The fame St. Augustine, in his book of the Manners of the Catholic Church, hath these words; "I know that many be worshippers of tombs and pictures; I know that there be many that banquet most riotously over the graves of the dead, and giving meat to dead carcafes, do bury themselves upon the buried, and attribute their gluttony and drunkenness to religion." See, he esteemeth worshipping of faints' tombs and pictures as good religion as gluttony and drunkenness, and no better at all. St. Augustine greatly alloweth Marcus Varro, affirming, that religion is most pure without images, and faith himfelf, "Images be of more force to crooken an unhappy foul, than to teach and instruct it." And faith further, "Every child, yea, every beast knoweth that it is not God that they fee." Wherefore then doth the Holy Ghoft fo often admonish us of that which all men know? Whereunto St. Augustine himself answereth thus: "For (faith he) when images are placed in temples, and fet in honourable Pfal. xxxvi. fublimity, and begin once to be worthipped, forthwith breedeth the most vile affection of error." This is St. and cxiii. Augustine's judgment of images in churches, that by and by they breed error and idolatry. It would be tedious to rehearfe all other places, which might be brought out of the ancient doctors, against images and idolatry. Wherefore we shall hold ourselves contented with these sew at this prefent. Now as concerning histories ecclefiastical, touching this matter, that ye may know why, and when, and by whom images were first used privately, and afterwards not only received into Christian churches and temples, but in conclusion worshipped also, and how the fame was gainfaid, refifted, and forbidden, as well by godly bishops and learned doctors, as also by fundry Christian princes: I will briefly collect into a compendious history, that which is at large and in fundry places written by divers ancient writers and historiographers concerning this matter.

> As the Jews, having a most plain and express commandment of God, that they should neither make nor worship any image, (as it is at large before declared) did, notwithstanding, by the example of the Gentiles or Heathen people that dwelt about them, fall to the making of images, and worthipping of them, and fo to the committing of most abominable idolatry, for the which God by his holy Prophets doth most sharply reprove and threaten them, and afterward did accomplish his said threatenings by extreme punishing of them, (as is also above specified;) even fo fome of the Christians in old time, which were converted from worshipping of idols and false gods, unto the true living God, and to our Saviour Jesus Christ, did of a certain blind zeal (as men long accustomed to images) paint or carve images of our Saviour Christ, his mother Mary, and of the Apostles, thinking that this was a point of gratitude and kindness toward those, by whom they had received the true knowledge of God, and the doctrine of the Goipel. But thefe pictures or images came not yet into churches, nor were yet worshipped of a long time after. And lest you should think that I do say this of mine own head only, without authority, I allege for me Eusebius, Bishop of Cæsarea, and the most aucient author of the Ecclefiaftical History, who lived about the three hundred and thirtieth year of our Lord, in Constantius Magnus's days, and his fon Conftantius, emperors, in the feventh book of his History Ecclesiastical, the fourteenth chapter, and St. Jerome upon the tenth chapter of the Prophet Jeremiah, who both expressly fay, "That the errors of images (for fo St. Jerome calleth it) have come in and passed to the Christians from the Gentiles, by an heathenish use and custom." The cause and means Eufebius sheweth, faying, "It is no marvel, if they which being Gentiles before, and did believe, feemed to offer this as a gift to our Saviour, for the benefits which they had received of him; yea, and we do fee now that images of Peter and Paul, and of our Saviour himself, be made, and tables to be painted, which I think to have been obferved and kept indifferently by an heathenish custom. For the Heathen are wont to to honour them whom they judged honour worthy, for that fome tokens of old men should be kept. For the remembrance of posterity is a token of their honour that were before, and the love of those that come after."

Thus far I have rehearfed Eusebius's words. Where note ye, that both St. Jerome and he agree herein, that these images came in amongst Christian men by such as were Gentiles, and accustomed to idols, and being converted to the faith of Christ, retained yet some remnants of gentility not throughly purged: for St. Jerome calleth it an error manifestly. And the like example we see in the Acts of the Aposiles, of the Jews, who, when they were converted to Christ, would have brought in their circumcision (whereunto they were so long accustomed) with them, into Christ's religion. With whom the Apostles (namely St. Paul) had much ado for the staying of that matter. But of circumcision was less marvel, for that it came first in by God's ordinance and commandment. A man may most justly wonder of images, so directly against God's holy word and strict commandment, how they should enter in. But images were not yet worshipped in Eusebius's time, nor publicly set up in churches and temples; and they who privately had them did err of a certain zeal, and not by malice: but afterwards they crept out of private houses into churches, and so bred first superstition, and last of all idolatry amongst

In the time of Theodofius and Martian, emperors, who reigned about the year of our Lord 460, and 1117 years ago, when the people of the city of Nola once a year did celebrate the birth-day of St. Felix in the temple, and used to banquet there sumptuously, Pontius Paulinus, bishop of Nola, cansed the walls of the temple to be painted with stories taken out of the Old Testament, that the people beholding and confidering those pictures, might the better abstain from too much surfeiting and riot. And about the fame time Aurelius Prudentius, a very learned and Christian poet, declareth how he did sce painted in a church the history of the passion of St. Casfian, a schoolmaster and martyr, whom his own scholars, at the commandment of the tyrant, tormented with the pricking or flabbing in of their pointels, or brazen pens, into his body, and fo by a thousand wounds and more (as faith Prudentius) most cruelly slew him. And these were the first paintings in churches that were notable of antiquity. And fo by this example came in painting, and afterward images of timber and stone, and other matter, into the churches of Christians. Now, if ye well consider this beginning, men are not so ready to worthip a picture on a wall, or in a window, as an emboffed and gilt image, fet with pearl and fione. And a process of a story, painted with the gestures and actions of many perfons, and commonly the fum of the story written withal, hath another use in it, than one dumb idol or image standing by itself. But from learning by painted stories, it came by little and little to idolatry. Which when godly men (as well emperors and learned -bishops as others) perceived, they commanded that such pictures.

pictures, images, or idols, should be used no more. And I will, for a declaration thereof, begin with the decree of the ancient Christian emperors, Valens and Theodosius II. who reigned about four hundred years after our Saviour Christ's ascension, who forbad that any images should be made or painted privately: for certain it is, that there were none in temples publicly in their time. These emperors did write unto the captain of the army attending on the emperors, after this fort: "Valens and Theodofius, emperors, unto the captain of the army: Whereas we have a diligent care to maintain the religion of God above in all things, we will grant to no man to fet forth, grave, carve, or paint the image of our Saviour Christ in colours, stone, or any other matter; but in what place soever it shall be found, we command that it be taken away, and that all fuch as shall attempt any thing contrary to our decrees or commandment herein, shall be most sharply punished." This decree is written in the books named Libri Augustales, the Imperial Books, gathered by Tribonianus, Bafilides, Theophilus, Diofcorus, and Satira, men of great authority and learning, at the commandment of the Emperor Justinian; and is alleged by Petrus Crinitus, a notable learned man, in the ninth book and ninth chapter of his work, entitled De bonesta Disciplina, that is to fay, Of honest Learning. Here you see what Christian princes of most ancient times decreed against images, which then began to creep in amongst the Christians. For it is certain, that by the space of three hundred years, and more, after the death of our Saviour Christ, and before these godly emperors reigned, there were no images publicly in churches or temples. How would the idolaters glory, if they had so much antiquity and authority for them, as is here against them!

Now, fhortly after these days, the Goths, Vandals, Huns, and other barbarous and wicked nations, burst into Italy, and all parts of the West countries of Europe, with huge and mighty armies, spoiled all places, destroyed cities, and burned libraries, so that learning and true religion went to wrack, and decayed incredibly. And so the bishops of those latter days being of less learning, and in the midst of the wars, taking less heed also than did the bishops afore, by ignorance of God's word, and negligence of bishops, and especially barbarous princes, not rightly instructed in true religion, bearing the rule, images came into the church of Christ in the said West parts, where these barbarous people ruled, not now in painted painted cloth only, but emboffed in stone, timber, metal, and other like matter, and were not only fet up, but began to be worshipped also. And therefore Screnns, bishop of Massile, the head town of Gallia Narbonensis. (now called the Province,) a godly and learned man, who was about fix hundred years after our Saviour Christ, seeing the people, by occasion of images, fall to most abominable idolatry, brake to pieces all the images of Christ and faints, which were in that city; and was therefore complained upon to Gregory, the first of that name, bishop of Rome, who was the first learned bishop that did allow the open having of images in churches, that can be known by any writing or history of antiquity. And upon this Gregory do all image-worshippers at this day ground their defence. But as all things that be amifs have from a tolerable beginning grown worfe and worfe, till they at the last became intolerable, so did this matter of images. First, men used privately stories painted in tables, cloths, and walls. Afterwards groß and emboffed images privately in their own houses. Then afterwards, pictures first, and after them, embossed images began to creep into churches, learned and godly men ever speaking against them. Then by use it was openly maintained, that they might be in churches; but yet forbidden, that they should be worshipped. Of which opinion was Gregory, as by the taid Gregory's Epistle to the forenamed Serenus, bithop of Mathle, plainly appeareth. Which Epiftle is to be found in the book of Epiftles of Gregory, or Regifter, in the tenth part of the fourth Epiftle, where he hath these words: "That thou didst forbid images to be worshipped, we praise altogether; but that thou didst break them, we blame. For it is one thing to worship the picture, and another thing by the picture of the flory to learn what is to be worshipped. For that which Scripture is to them that read, the same doth picture perform unto idiots, or the unlearned, beholding:" and fo forth. And after a few words: "Therefore it should not have been broken, which was fet up, not to be worshipped in churches, but only to instruct the minds of the ignorant." And a little after: "Thus thou shouldst have faid, If you will have images in the church for that instruction, wherefore they were made in old time, I do permit that they may be made, and that you may have them, and fhew them; that not the fight of the ftory, which is opened by the picture, but that worshipping, which was inconveniently given to the pictures, did mislike you. And And if any would make images, not to forbid them, but avoid by all means to worthip any image." By thefe fentences taken here and there out of Gregory's Epifile to Serenus, (for it were too long to rehearle the whole) ye may understand whereunto the matter was now come, fix hundred years after Christ: That the having of images or pictures in the churches were then maintained in the West part of the world, (for they were not to forward yet in the East church,) but the worshipping of them was utterly forbidden. And you may withal note, that feeing there is no ground for worthipping of images in Gregory's writing, but a plain condemnation thereof, that fuch as do worship images do unjustly allege Gregory for them. And further; if images in the church do not teach men, according to Gregory's mind, but rather blind them; it followeth, that images should not be in the church by his fentence, who only would they should be placed there, to the end that they might teach the ignorant. Wherefore, if it be declared, that images have been, and be worshipped; and also, that they teach nothing but errors and lies, (which shall by God's grace hereafter be done;)

I trust that then, by Gregory's own determination, all images and image-worshippers shall be overthrown. But in the mean feafon, Gregory's authority was fo great in all the West church, that by his encouragement men set up images in all places: but their judgment was not fo good to confider, why he would have them fet up, but they fell all on heaps to manifest idolatry, by worshipping of them, which Bishop Serenus (not without just cause) feared would come to pass. Now if Serenus's judgment, thinking it meet that images, whereunto idolatry was committed, should be destroyed, had taken place, idolatry had been overthrown: for to that which is not no man committeth idolatry. But of Gregory's opinion, thinking that images might be fuffered in churches, so it were taught that they should not be worshipped; what ruin of religion, and what mischief ensued afterward to all Christendom, experience hath to our great hurt and forrow proved. First, by the schism rising between the East and the West church about the said images. Next, by the divifion of the empire into two parts, by the same occasion of images, to the great weakening of all Christendom; whereby, last of all, hath followed the utter overthrow of the Christian religion and noble empire in Greece, and all the East parts of the world, and the increase of Mahomet's false religion, and the cruel dominion and tyranny M 4 of the Saracens and Turks, who do now hang over our necks also, that dwell in the West parts of the world, ready at all occasions to over-run us. And all this do we owe unto our idols and images, and our idolatry in worshipping of them.

Eutrop. lib. de Rebus Rom. 23.

Platina in Vitis Constantini et Greg. II.

But now give you ear a little to the process of the hiftory, wherein I do much follow the histories of Paulus Diaconus, and others, joined with Entropius, an old wri-For though some of the authors were favourers of images, yet do they most plainly and at large profecute the histories of those times, whom Baptist Platina also, in his History of Popes, as in the Lives of Constantine and Gregory II. bishops of Rome, and other places, (where he treateth of this matter) doth chiefly follow. After Gregory's time, Constantine, bishop of Rome, assembled a council of bishops in the West church, and did condemn Philippicus, then emperor, and John, bishop of Constantinople, of the herefy of the Monothelites, not without a cause indeed, but very justly. When he had so done, by the confent of the learned about him, the faid Constantine, bishop of Rome, caused the images of the ancient fathers, which had been at those fix councils, which were allowed and received of all men, to be painted in the entry of St. Peter's church at Rome. When the Greeks had knowledge hereof, they began to dispute and reason the matter of images with the Latins, and held this opinion; that images could have no place in Christ's church; and the Latins held the contrary, and took part with the images. So the East and West churches, which agreed well before, upon this contention about images, fell to utter enmity, which was never well reconciled yet. But in the mean feafon Philippicus and Arthemius, or Anastasius, emperors, commanded images and pictures to be pulled down, and rafed out in every place of their dominion. After them came Theodofius III. he commanded the defaced images to be painted again in their places: but this Theodofius reigned but one year. Leo, the third of that name, fucceeded him; who was a Syrian born, a very wife, godly, merciful, and valiant prince. This Leo by proclamation commanded, that all images, fet up in churches to be worshipped, should be plucked down and defaced: and required specially the Bishop of Rome, that he should do the same; and himself, in the mean feason, caused all images, that were in the imperial city of Conflantinople, to be gathered on an heap in the midft of the city, and there publicly burned them to athes; and whited over, over, and rafed out all pictures, painted upon the walls of the temples; and punished sharply divers maintainers of images. And when fome did therefore report him to be a tyrant, he answered, "That such of all other were most justly punished, who neither worshipped God aright, nor regarded the imperial majesty and authority, but maliciously rebelled against wholesome and profitable laws." When Gregorius, the third of that name, bishop of Rome, heard of the Emperor's doings in Greece concerning the images, he affembled a council of Italian bishops against him; and there made decrees for images, and that more reverence and honour should yet be given to them than was before; and flirred up the Italians against the Emperor, first at Ravenna, and moved them to rebellion. And as Ulpurgenfis and Anthonius, bishops of Florence, testify in their Chro-Treason nicles, he caused Rome and all Italy, at the least, to refuse and rebel-their obedience, and the payment of any more tribute to desence of the Emperor; and so by treason and rebellion maintained images. their idolatry. Which example other bishops of Rome have continually followed, and gone through withat most

After this Lco, who reigned thirty-four years, succeeded his fon Constantine V. who, after his father's example, kept images out of the temples; and being moved with the council, which Gregory had affembled in Italy, for images against his father, he also assembled a council of all the learned men and bishops of Asia and Greece, although some writers place this council in Leo Hauricus his father's latter days. In this great affembly they fat A council in council from the fourth of the Idus of February, to against the fixth of the Idus of August, and made concerning the images. use of images this decree: "It is not lawful for them that believe in God through Jesus Christ to have any images, neither of the Creator, nor of any creatures, let up in temples to be worshipped; but rather that all things by the law of God, and for the avoiding of offence, ought to be taken out of the churches?" And this decree was executed in all places, where any images were found in Asia or Greece. And the Emperor sent the determination of this council, holden at Conffantinople, to Paul, then bishop of Rome, and commanded him to cast all images out of the churches: which he (trufting in the friendship of Pipine, a mighty prince) refused to do. And both he and his fuccessor Stephanus III. (who assembled another council in Italy for images) condemned the Emperor and the council of Constantinople of herefy; and made a decree, "That the holy images, (for fo they called them)

them) of Christ, the blessed Virgin, and other faints, were indeed worthy honour and worthipping." When Constantine was dead, Leo IV. his fon, reigned after him, who married a woman of the city of Athens, named Theodora, & Eirene, who also was called Irene, by whom he had a fon, named Constantine VI. and dying whilst his fon was yet young, left the regiment of the empire, and governance of his young ion, to his wife Irene. Thefe things were done in the church about the year of our Lord 760. Note here, I pray you, in this process of the story, that in the churches of Asia and Greece there were no images publicly by the space of almost seven hundred years. And there is no doubt but the primitive church next the Apostles' time was most pure. Note also, that when the contention began about images, how of fix Christian emperors, who were the chief magistrates by God's law to be obeyed, only one, which was Theodofius, who reigned but one year, held with images. All the other emperors, and all the learned men and bishops of the East church, and that in affembled councils, condemned them, besides the two emperors before mentioned, Valens and Theodofius II. who were long before thefe times, who strictly forbad that any images should be made. And univerfally after this time all the emperors of Greece (only Theodosius excepted) destroyed continually all images. Now, on the contrary part, note ye, that the bishops of Rome, being no ordinary magistrates appointed of God, out of their diocefe, but usurpers of princes authority, contrary to God's word, were the maintainers of images against God's word, and stirrers up of fedition and rebellion, and workers of continual treafon against their fovereign lords, contrary to God's law, and the ordinances of all human laws, being not only enemies to God, but also rebels and traitors against their princes. These be the first bringers in of images openly into churches. These be the maintainers of them in the churches; and thefe be the means, whereby they have maintained them; to wit, conspiracy, treason, and rebellion against God and their princes.

Now to proceed in the history, most worthy to be known. In the nonage of Constantine VI. the Empress Irene, his mother, in whose hands the regiment of the empire remained, was governed much by the advice of Theodore, bishop, and Tharasins, patriarch of Constantinople, who practifed and held with the Bishop of Rome in maintaining of images most earnestly. By whose counsel and entreaty, the Empress first most wickedly digged up the body of her father-in-law Constantine V. and commanded it to be openly burned, and the ashes to be thrown into the fea. Which example (as the constant report goeth) had like to have been put in practice with princes' corfes in our days, had the authority of the holy father continued but a little longer. The cause, why the Empress Irene thus used her father-in-law, was, for that he, when he was alive, had deftroyed images, and had taken away the fumptuous ornaments of churches, faying, "that Christ, whose temples they were, allowed poverty, and not pearls and precious flones." Afterward the faid Irene, at the perfuasion of Adrian, bishop of Rome, and Paul, the patriarch of Constantinople, and his successor Tharasius, affembled a council of the bishops of Asia and Greece, at the city Nicea; where the Bishop of Rome's legates being prefidents of the council, and ordering all things as they lifted, the council, which were affembled before under the Emperor Constantine V. and had decreed, that all images should be destroyed, was condemned as an heretical council and affembly: and a decree was made, that images should be put up in all the churches of Greece; and that honour and worship also should be given unto A decree the faid images. And fo the Empress, sparing no diligence that images in setting we of integers per sed in decline them in all should be in fetting up of images, nor cost in decking them in all worshipped. churches, made Conflantinople within a fhort time altogether like Rome itself. And now you may see that come to pass, which Bishop Screnus feared, and Gregory I. forbad in vain; to wit, that images should in no wife be worshipped. For now not only the simple and unwife. (unto whom images, as the Scriptures teach, be specially a fnare,) but the bishops, and learned men also, fall to idolatry by occasion of images, yea, and make decrees and laws for the maintenance of the fame. So hard is it, and indeed impossible, any long time to have images publicly in churches and temples without idolatry, as by the space of a little more than one hundred years betwixt Gregory I. forbidding most strictly the worshipping of images, and Gregory III. Paul, and Leo III. bishops of Rome, with this council, commanding and decreeing that images should be worshipped, most evidently appeareth.

Now when Confiantine, the young emperor, came to the age of twenty years, he was daily in lefs and lefs eftimation. For fuch as were about his mother perfuaded her, that it was God's determination, that she should reign alone, and not her son with her. The ambitious woman, believing the same, deprived her son of all imperial dignity; and compelled all the men of war, with their captains, to fivear to her, that they would not fuffer her fon Conflantine to reign during her life. With which indignity the young prince being moved, recovered the regimen of the empire unto himself by force; and being brought up in true religion in his father's time, feeing the fuperstition of his mother Irene, and the idolatry committed by images, cast down, brake, and burned all the idols and images that his mother had fet up. But within a few years after, Irene, the empress, taken again into her fon's favour, after the had perfuaded him to put out Nicephorus his uncle's eyes, and to ent out the tongues of his four other uncles, and to forfake his wife, and by fuch means to bring him into hatred with all his Subjects; now further to declare that she was no changeling, but the fame woman that had before digged up and burned her father-in-law's body, and that she would be as natural a mother as the had been a kind daughter, feeing the images, which she loved so well, and had with fo great cost set up, daily destroyed by her own son, the Emperor, by the help of certain good companions, deprived her fon of the empire; and first, like a kind and loving mother, put out both his eyes, and laid him in prifon, where, after long and many torments, the at the last most cruelly slew him.

In this history, joined to Eutropius, it is written, that the fun was darkened by the space of seventeen days most ftrangely and dreadfully, and that all men faid, that for the horribleness of that cruel and unnatural fact of Irene, and the putting out of the Emperor's eyes, the fun had loft his light. But, indeed, God would fignify, by the darkness of the fun, into what darkness and blindness of ignorance and idolatry Christendom should fall by the occasion of images. The bright fun of his eternal truth, and light of his holy word, by the miss and black clouds of men's traditions being blemished and darkened, as by fundry most terrible earthquakes, that happened about the fame time, God fignified, that the quiet chate of true religion should by such idolatry be most horribly tossed and turmoiled. And here may you fee what a gracious and virtuous lady this Irene was, how loving a niece to her hufband's uncles, how kind a mother-in-law to her fon's wife, how loving a daughter to her father-in-law, how natural a mother to her own fon, and what a flout and valiant captain the bishops of Rome had of her, for the fetting up and maintenance of their idols or images. Surely they could not have found a meeter patron for the maintenance of fuch a matter, than this Irene, whose ambition and defire of rule was insatiable, whose treason, continually studied and wrought, was most abominable, whose wicked and unnatural cruelty passed Medea and Progne, whose detestable parricides have minifiered matter to poets to write their horrible tragedies.

And yet certain historiographers, who do put in writing all these her horrible wickednesses, for love they had to images, which the maintained, do praife her as a godly empress, and as fent from God. Such is the blindness of false superstition, if it once take possession in a man's mind, that it will both declare the vices of wicked princes, and also commend them. But not long after, the faid Irene being suspected to the princes and lords of Greece of treason, in alienating the empire to Charles king of the Francous, and for practifing a fecret marriage between herfelf and the faid King, and being convicted of the fame, was by the faid lords deposed and deprived again of the empire, and carried into exile into the island Lesbos, where the ended her lewd life.

While thefe tragedies about images were thus working in Greece, the same question of the use of images in churches began to be moved in Spain also. And at Eli-Another beri, a notable city, now called Granada, was a council council of Spanish bishops and other learned men assembled; and against images. there, after long deliberation and debating of the matter, it was concluded at length by the whole council, after this fort, in the thirty-fixth Article.

We think that pictures ought not to be in churches, Doctors of left that which is honoured or worshipped be painted on the council walls. And in the forty-first canon of that council, it is images. thus written: We thought good to admonish the faithful, that, as much as in them lieth, they fuffer no images to be in their houses: but if they fear any violence of their fervants, at the least let them keep themselves clean and pure from images; if they do not fo, let them be accounted as none of the church. Note here, I pray you, how a whole and great country in the west and south parts of Europe, nearer to Rome a great deal than to Greece in fituation of place, do agree with the Greeks against images, and do not only forbid them in churches, but also in private houses, and do excommunicate them that do the contrary: and another council of the learned Yet another men of all Spain alfo, called Concilium Toletanum Duodeci-council mum, decreed and determined likewife against images and against image-worthippers. But when thefe decrees of the Spanish council at Eliberi came to the knowledge of the Bishop of Rome and his adherents, they, fearing lest all Germany also would decree against images and forsake them, thought to prevent the matter, and by the confent and help of the Prince of Francons (whose power was then most great in the west parts of the world) assembled a council of Germans at Frankfort, and there procured the Spanish council against images aforementioned to be condemned by the name of the Felician herefy, (for that Felix, bishop of Aquitania, was chief in that council,) and obtained that the acts of the fecond Nicene council affembled by Irene, (the holy empress whom we heard of before) and the fentence of the Bishop of Rome for images, might be received. For much after this fort do the Papills report of the history of the council of Frankfort. Notwithstanding the book of Carolus Magnus's own writing, as the title sheweth, which is now put in print, and commonly in men's hands, sheweth the judgment of that Prince, and of the whole council of Frankfort also, to be against images, and against the second council of Nice assembled by Irene for images; and calleth it an arrogant, foolish, and ungodly council; and declareth the affembly of the council of Frankfort to have been directly made and gathered against the Nicene council, and the errors of the same. So that it must needs follow, that either there were in one prince's time two councils affembled at Frankfort, one contrary to the other, which by no history doth appear; or elfe that after their custom the Popes and Papists have most shamefully corrupted the council, as their manner is to handle, not only councils, but also all histories and writings of the old doctors, falfifying and corrupting them for the maintenance of their wicked and ungodly purpofes, as hath in times of late come to light, and doth in our days more and more continually appear most evidently. The forged Let the forged gift of Confiantine, and the notable attempt gift of Con- to fallify the first Nicene council for the Pope's supremacy, practifed by popes in St. Augustine's time, be a witness hereof: which practice indeed had then taken effect, had not the diligence and wifdom of St. Augustine, and other learned and godly bishops in Afric, by their great labour and charges also, refisted and stopped the same. Now to come towards an end of this history, and to shew you the principal point that came to pass by the maintenance of images. Whereas, from Constantinus Magnus's time, until this day, all authority imperial and princely dominion of the empire of Rome remained continually in the right right and possession of the emperors, who had their continuance and feat imperial at Constantinople, the city royal. Leo the third, then bishop of Rome, seeing the Greek emperors fo bent against his gods of gold and silver, timber and stone, and having the King of the Francons or Frenchmen, named Charles, whose power was exceeding great in the West countries, very appliable to his mind, for causes hereafter appearing, under the pretence that they of Confrantinople were for that matter of images under the Pope's ban and curfe, and therefore unworthy to be emperors, or to bear rule, and for that the emperors of Greece, being far off, were not ready at a beck to defend the Pope against the Lombards his enemies, and others with whom he had variance: this Leo the third, I fay, attempted a thing exceeding frange and unheard of before, and of incredible boldness and presumption: for he by his papal authority doth translate the government of the empire and the crown and name imperial from the Greeks, and giveth it unto Charles the Great, king of the Francous, not without the confent of the forenamed Irene, empress of Greece, who also sought to be joined in marriage with the faid Charles. For the which cause the faid These Irene was by the lords of Greece deposed and banished, things were as one that had betrayed the empire, as ye before have the year of heard. And the faid princes of Greece did, after the de-our Lord privation of the faid Irene, by common confent, elect and 803create, as they always had done, an emperor named Nicephorus, whom the Bishop of Rome, and they of the West, would not acknowledge for their emperor; for they had already created them another, and so there became two emperors. And the empire, which was before one, was divided into two parts, upon occasion of idols and images, and the worshipping of them: even as the kingdom of the Ifraelites was in old time, for the like caufe of idolatry, divided in King Rehoboam's time. And fo the Bishop of Rome having the favour of Charles the Great by this means affured to him, was wondroufly enhanced in power and authority, and did in all the West church, especially in Italy, what he lift, where images were fet up, garnished, and worshipped of all forts of men. But images were not fo fast set up, and so much honoured in Italy and the West, but Nicephorus, emperor of Constantinople, and his successors Scauratius, the two Mi- or, Stauchaels, Leo, Theophorus, and other emperors their fuc-ratius. cessors in the empire of Greece, continually pulled them down, brake them, burned them, and destroyed them as fast. And when Theodorus the emperor would at the council of Lyons have agreed with the Bishop of Rome, and have fet up images, he was by the nobles of the empire of Greece deprived, and another chosen in his place; and so rose a jealousy, suspicion, grudge, hatred, and enmity between the Christians and empires of the East countries and West, which could never be quenched nor pacisied. So that when the Saracens sirst, and afterward the Turks, invaded the Christians, the one part of Christendom would not help the other. By reason whereof at the last, the noble empire of Greece, and the city imperial Constantinople, was lost, and is come into the hands of the Insidels, who now have over-run almost all Christendom, and possessing past the middle of Hungary, which is part of the West empire, do hang over all our heads, to the utter danger of all Christendom.

Thus we fee what a fea of mischiefs the maintenance of images hath brought with it; what an horrible fchism between the East and the West church; what an hatred between one Christian and another; councils against councils, church against church, Christians against Christians, princes against princes, rebellions, treasons, unnatural and most cruel murders; the daughter digging up and burning her father the emperor's body; the mother, for love of idols, most abominably murdering of her own fon, being an emperor; at the last, the tearing in funder of Christendom and the empire into two pieces, till the Infidels, Saracens and Turks, common enemies to both parts, have most cruelly vanquished, destroyed, and fubdued the one part, the whole empire of Greece, Afia the Lefs, Thracia, Macedonia, Epirus, and many other great and goodly countries and provinces, and have won a great piece of the other empire, and put the whole in dreadful fear and most horrible danger. For it is not without a just and great cause to be dreaded, lest as the empire of Rome was even for the like cause of images, and the worshipping of them, torn in pieces and divided, as was for idolatry the kingdom of Ifrael in old time divided; fo like punithment, as for the like offence fell upon the Jews, will also light upon us: that is, lest the cruel tyrant, and enemy of our commonwealth and religion, the Turk, by God's just vengeance, should likewise partly murder, and partly lead away into captivity us Christians, as did the Assyrian and Babylonian kings murder and lead away the Ifraelites; and left the empire of Rome and Christian religion be so utterly brought under foot, as was then the kingdom of Ifrael and true religion of God, whereunto the matter already (as I have declared) shrewdly inclineth on our part, the greater part of Christendom, within less than three hundred years fpace, being brought into captivity and most miserable thraldom under the Turk, and the noble empire of Greece clean everted. Whereas, if the Christians, divided by thefe image-matters, had holden together, no infidels and miscreants could thus have prevailed against Christendom. And all this mischief and misery, which we have hitherto fallen into, do we owe to our mighty gods of gold and filver, stock and stone, in whose help and defence (where they cannot help themselves) we have trusted so long, until our enemies the infidels have overcome and overrun us almost altogether. A just reward for those that have left the mighty living God, the Lord of Hofts, and have stooped and given the honour due to him to dead blocks and flocks, who have eyes and fee not, feet and cannot go, and fo forth, and are curfed of God, and all they that make them, and that put their trust in them.

Thus you understand, well-beloved in our Saviour Christ, by the judgment of the old learned and godly doctors of the church, and by ancient historics ecclefiastical, agreeing to the verity of God's word, alleged out of the Old Testament and the New, that images and imageworshipping were in the primitive church (which was most pure and uncorrupt) abhorred and detested, as abominable and contrary to true Christian religion. And that when images began to creep into the church, they were not only fpoken and written against by godly and learned bishops, doctors, and clerks, but also condemned by whole councils of bishops and learned men assembled together; yea, the faid images by many Christian emperors and bishops were defaced, broken, and destroyed, and that above feven hundred and eight hundred years ago, and that therefore it is not of late days, (as fome would bear you in hand) that images and image-worthipping have been spoken and written against. Finally, you have heard what mischief and miscry hath by the occasion of the faid images fallen upon whole Christendom, besides the loss of infinite fouls, which is most horrible of all. Wherefore let us befeech God, that we, being warned by his holy word, forbidding all idolatry, and by the writing of old godly doctors, and ecclefiaftical histories, written and preferved by God's ordinance for our admonition and warning, may flee from all idolatry, and to escape the horrible punish:- punishment and plagues, as well worldly as everlasting, threatened for the same, which God our heavenly Father grant us, for our only Saviour and Mediator, Jesus Christ's sake. Amen.

The Third Part of the Homily against Images, and the worshipping of them, containing the Consultation of the principal Arguments which are used to be made for the Maintenance of Images. Which Part may serve to instruct the Curates themselves, or Men of good Understanding.

OW ye have heard how plainly, how vehemently, and that in many places, the Word of God speaketh against not only idolatry and worshipping of images, but also against idols and images themselves: (I mean always thus herein, in that we be stirred and provoked by them to worship them, and not as though they were simply forbidden by the New Testament, without such occasion and dauger.) And ye have heard likewife out of histories ecclefiaftical, the beginning, proceeding, and fuccess of idolatry by images, and the great contention in the church of Christ about them, to the great trouble and decay of Christendom. And withal ye have heard the fentences of old ancient fathers, and godly learned doctors and bifliops, against images and idolatry, taken out of their own writings. It remaineth, that fuch reasons as be made for the maintenance of images, and excessive painting, gilding, and decking, as well of them as of the temples or churches, also be answered and confuted, partly by application of some places before alleged to their reasons, and partly by otherwife answering the same. Which part hath the last place in this treatife, for that it cannot be well understood of the meaner fort, nor the arguments of image-maintainers can, without prolixity too much tedious, be answered without the knowledge of the treatise going before. And although divers things before mentioned be here rehearfed again, yet this repetition is not fuperfluous, but in a manner necessary, for that the simple fort cannot else understand how the foresaid places are to be applied to the arguments of fuch as do maintain images, wherewith otherwise they might be abused.

First, it is alleged by them that maintain images, that all laws, prohibitions, and curfes, noted by us out of the holy Scripture, and fentences of the doctors also by us

alleged, against images and the worshipping of them, appertain to the idols of the Gentiles or Pagans, as the idol of Jupiter, Mars, Mercury, &c. and not to our images of God, of Christ, and his faints. But it shall be declared both by God's Word, and the fentences of the ancient doctors, and judgment of the primitive church, that all images, as well ours as the idols of the Gentiles, be forbidden and unlawful, namely in churches and temples. And first this is to be replied out of God's Word, that the images of God the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghoft, either feverally, or the images of the Trinity, which we had in every church, be by the Scriptures expressly and directly forbidden and condemned, as appeareth by these places: The Lord spake unto you out of the middle of sire: you Deut. iv. heard the voice or found of his words, but you did fee no form or shape at all, lest peradventure you, being deceived, flould make to yourfelf any graven image or likeness; and fo forth, as is at large rehearsed in the first part of this treatife against images. And therefore in the old Law, the middle of the propitiatory, which reprefented God's feat, was empty, left any fliould take occasion to make any similitude or likeness of him. Isaiah, after he hath fet forth the incomprehensible majesty of God, he asketh, To whom then will ye make God like? or Isa. x1. what similitude will ye fet up unto bim? Shall the carver make him a carved image? And shall the goldsmith cover him with gold, or cast him into a form of silver plates? And for the poor man, shall the image-maker frame an image of timber, that he may have somewhat to set up also? And after this he crieth out: O wretches, heard ye never of this? Hath it not been preached to you fince the beginning, bow by the creation of the world, and the greatness of the work, they might understand the majesty of God, the Maker and Creator of all, to be greater than that it could be expressed or set forth in any image or bodily similitude? Thus far the Prophet Isaiah, who, from the forty-fourth chapter to the forty-ninth, treateth in a manner of no other thing. And St. Paul, in the Acts of the Apostles, evidently teacheth the fame, that no similitude can be made unto God, in gold, Alls xvii, filver, stone, or any other matter. By these and many other places of Scripture it is evident, that no image either ought or can be made unto God. For how can God, a most pure spirit, whom man never faw, be expressed by a grofs, bodily, and visible similitude? How can the infinite majefty and greatness of God, incomprehensible to man's mind, much more not able to be compassed with the ienie, a dead and dumb image express the living God? What can an image, which, when it is fallen, cannot rife up again, which can neither help his friends, nor hurt his enemies, express of the most puillant and mighty God, who alone is able to reward his friends, and to destroy his enemies everlastingly? A man might justly cry with the prophet Habakkuk, Shall fuch images instruct or teach any thing right of God? or shall they become doctors? Wherefore men that have made an image of God, whereby to honour him, have thereby dishonoured him most highly, diminished his majesty, blemished his glory, and fallished his truth. And therefore St. Paul faith, that fuch as have framed any fimilitude or image of God, like a mortal man, or any other likeness, in timber, stone, or other matter, bave changed his truth into a lie. For both they thought it to be no longer that which it was, a flock or flone, and took it to be that which it was not, as God, or an image of God. Wherefore an image of God is not only a lie, but a double lie also. But the Devil is a liar, John viii. and the father of lies: wherefore the lying images, which be made of God, to his great dishonour, and horrible danger of his people, came from the Devil.

Wherefore they be convict of foolifliness and wickedness in making of images of God, or the Trinity, for that no image of God ought or can be made, as by the Scriptures and good reason evidently appeareth: yea, and once to defire an image of God, cometh of infidelity, thinking not God to be prefent, except they might fee fome fign or image of him, as appeareth by the Hebrews in the wildernefs, willing Aaron to make them gods, whom they might fee go before them. Where they object, that feeing Haiah and Daniel, by certain deferiptions of God, as fitting on a high feat, &c. why may not a painter likewise set him forth in colours to be seen, as it were a judge fitting on a throne, as well as he is deferibed in writing by the prophets, feeing that fcripture, or writing, and picture differ but a little? First, it is to be anfwered, that things forbidden by God's word, as painting of images of God, and things permitted of God, as fuch descriptions used of the prophets, be not all one: neither ought, nor can man's reason (although it shew never To goodly) prevail any thing against God's express word, and plain flatute-law, as I may well term it. Furthermore, the Scripture, although it have certain descriptions of God, yet if you read forward, it expoundeth itself, declaring, that God is a pure Spirit, infinite, who replenisheth heaven and earth, which the picture doth not, nor expoundeth itself, but rather, when it hath set God forth in a bodily fimilitude, leaveth a man there, and will eafily bring one into the herefy of the Anthropomorphites, thinking God to have hands and feet, and to fit as a man doth: which they that do (faith St. Augustine in his book De Fide et Symbolo, cap. vii.) fall into that facrilege, which the Apostle detesteth in those, who have changed the glory of the incorruptible God into the fimilitude of a corruptible man. For it is wickedness for a Christian to erect fuch an image to God in a temple, and much more wickedness to erect such an one in his heart, by believing of it. But to this they reply, that, this reason notwithstanding, images of Christ may be made, for that he took upon him fleth, and became man. It were well that they would first grant, that they have hitherto done most wickedly, in making and maintaining of images of God and of the Trinity in every place, whereof they are by force of God's word and good reason convicted; and then to descend to the trial for other images.

Now concerning their objection, that an image of Christ may be made, the answer is easy: for in God's word and religion, it is not only required whether a thing may be done or no; but also, whether it be lawful and agreeable to God's word to be done or no. For all wickedness may be and is daily done, which yet ought not to be done. And the words of the reasons above alleged out of the Scriptures are, that images neither ought nor can be made unto God. Wherefore to reply, that images of Christ may be made, except withal it be proved that it is lawful for them to be made, is, rather than to hold one's peace, to fay fomewhat, but nothing to the purpose. And yet it appeareth that no image can be made of Christ, but a lying image, (as the Scripture peculiarly calleth images lies) for Christ is God and man. Rom. i. Seeing therefore, that for the Godhead, which is the most excellent part, no images can be made, it is falfely called the image of Christ. Wherefore images of Christ be not only defects, but also lies. Which reason serveth alfo for the images of laints, whose fouls, the most excellent parts of them, can by no images be prefented and expressed. Wherefore they be no images of faints, whose fouls reign in joy with God, but of the bodies of faints, which as yet lie putrefied in the graves. Furthermore, no true image can be made of Christ's body, for it is unknown now of what form and countenance he was. And there be in Greece and at Rome, and in other places, divers images of Christ, and none of them like to other; and yet every of them affirmeth, that theirs is the true and lively image of Christ, which cannot possibly be. Wherefore, as foon as an image of Christ is made, by and by is a lie made of him, which by God's word is forbidden. Which also is true of the images of any faints of antiquity, for that it is unknown of what form and countenance they were. Wherefore feeing that religion ought to be grounded upon truth, images, which cannot be without lies, ought not to be made, or put to any use of religion, or to be placed in churches and temples, places peculiarly appointed to true religion and fervice of God. And thus much, that no true image of God, our Saviour Christ, or his faints, can be made: wherewithal is also confuted that their allegation, that images be the laymen's books, For it is evident, by that which is afore rehearfed, that they teach no things of God, of our Saviour Christ, and of his faints, but lies and errors. Wherefore, either they be no books, or, if they be, they be falle and lying books, that it should be made, yea, or that the image of any faint should be made, specially to be set up in temples, to the great and unavoidable danger of idolatry, as hereafter shall be proved. And first concerning the image of Christ, that though it might be had truly, yet it were unlawful to have it in churches publicly. It is a notable Lib.i.c. 24 place in Irenœus, who reproved the heretics, called Gnoftici, for that they carried about the image of Christ, made truly after his own proportion in Pilate's time, (as they faid) and therefore more to be effected than those lying images of him, which we now have. The which Gnoftici also used to set garlands upon the head of the said image, to shew their affection to it.—But to go to God's word. Be not, I pray you, the words of the Scriptures plain? Levit. xxvi. Beware left thou, being deceived, make to thefelf (to fay, to any use of religion) any graven image, or any similitude of any thing, &c. And curfed be the man that maketh a graven our images such? Be not our images of Christ and his faints either carved, or molten, or cast, or similitudes of men and women? It is happy that we have not followed the Gentiles in making of images of beafts, fishes, and vermines also. Notwithstanding, the image of an horse, as also the image of the ass that Christ rode on, have in divers places been brought into the church and temple of God. And is not that which is written in the beginning of the Lord's most holy law, and daily read unto you, most evident also? Thou shalt not make any likeness of any thing Exod. xx. in beaven above, in earth beneath, or in the water under the earth, &c. Could any more be forbidden and faid than this; either of the kinds of images, which be either carved, molten, or otherwise fimilitudes; or of things, whereof images are forbidden to be made? Are not all things either in heaven, earth, or water under the earth? And be not our images of Christ and his faints likenesses of things in heaven, earth, or in the water? If they continue in their former answer, that these prohibitions concern the idols of the Gentiles, and not our images; first, that answer is already confuted, concerning the images of God and the Trinity, at large, and concerning the images of Christ also, by Irenæus. And that the law of God is likewise to be understood against all our images, as well of Christ as his faints, in temples and churches, appeareth further by the judgment of the old doctors, and primitive church. Epiphanius renting a painted cloth, wherein was the picture of Christ, or of some saint, affirming it to be against our religion, that any such image should be had in the temple or church, (as is before at large declared) judged, that not only idols of the Gentiles, but that all images of Christ and his faints also, were forbidden by God's word and our religion. Lactantius affirming it to be certain, that no true religion can be where any image or picture is, (as is before declared) judged, that as well all images and pictures, as the idols of the Gentiles, were forbidden, else would he not so generally have fpoken and pronounced of them. And St. Lib. iv. Augustine (as is before alleged) greatly alloweth M. c. 3. DeCiv. Dei, Varro, affirming that religion is most pure without in Pfal. images; and faith himself, images be of more force xxxvi & to crook an unhappy foul, than to teach and instruct it. exili. And he faith further, Every child, yea, every beaft knoweth that it is not God that they fee. Wherefore then doth the Holy Ghost so often admonish us of that which all men know? Whereunto St. Augustine answereth us: For, faith he, when images are placed in temples, and fet in honourable fublimity, and begin once to be worthipped, forthwith breedeth the most vile affection of error. This is St. Augustine's judgment of images in churches,

The Christian emperors, the learned bishops, all the learned men of Afia, Greece, and Spain, affembled in conneils at Constantinople and in Spain seven and eight hundred years ago, and more, condemning and deftroying all images, as well of Christ as of the faints, fet up by the Christians, (as is before at large declared) testify, that they underflood God's word fo, that it forbad our images, as well as the idols of the Gentiles. And as it is written, Wifd, xiv. that images were not from the beginning, neither thall they continue to the end: fo were they not in & viii. Cy- the beginning in the primitive church; God grant they may in the end be destroyed. For all Christians in the primitive church, as Origen against Celfus, Cyprian also, and Arnobius do testify, were fore charged and complained on, that they had no altars nor images. Wherefore did they not, I pray you, conform themselves to the Gentiles in making of images, but for lack of them fuftained their heavy displeasure, if they had taken it to be lawful by God's word to have images? It is evident, therefore, that they took all images to be unlawful in the church or temple of God, and therefore had none, (though the Gentiles therefore were most highly displeased) following this rule, We must obey God rather than men. And Zephyrus, in his notes upon the Apology of Tertullian, gathereth, that all his vehement perfuasion should be but cold, except we know this once for all, that Christian men in his time did most hate images, with their ornaments. And Irenaus (as is above declared) reproveth the heretics called Gnoflici, for that they carried about the image of Christ. And therefore the primitive church, which is specially to be followed, as most incorrupt and pure, had publicly in churches neither idols of the Gentiles, nor any other images, as things directly forbidden by God's word. And thus it is declared by God's word, the fentences of the doctors, and the judgment of the primitive church, which was most pure and fincere, that all images, as well ours as the idols of the Gentiles, be by God's word forbidden, and therefore unlawful, specially in temples and churches.

Now if they (as their custom is) flee to this answer, that God's word forbiddeth not abfolutely all images to be made, but that they should not be made to be worshipped; and that therefore we may have images, so we worship them not, for that they be things indifferent, which may be abused, or well used. Which seemeth also to be the judgment of Damascene and Gregory I. as is above de-Damas. clared. And this is one of their chief allegations for the Orth. c. 17. maintenance of images, which have been alleged fince Greg. in Gregory the first's time.

Well then, we be come to their fecond allegation, Maffil. which in part we would not flick to grant them. For we are not fo superstitious, or scrupulous, that we do abhor either flowers wrought in carpets, hangings, and other arras; either images of princes, printed or stamped in their coins, which when Christ did see in a Roman coin, we read not that he reprehended it; neither do we condemn the arts of painting and image-making, as wicked of themselves. But we would admit and grant them, that images used for no religion, or superstition rather, we mean images of none worshipped, nor in danger to be worshipped of any, may be suffered. But images placed publicly in temples cannot possibly be without danger of worshipping and idolatry, wherefore they are not pub-origen. liely to be had or fuffered in temples and churches. The cont. Cel-Jews, to whom this law was first given; (and yet being a fum, l. iv. moral commandment, and not ceremonial, as all doctors tig. I. xvii. interpret it, it bindeth us as well as them:) the Jews, I c.8. l. xviii. fay, who should have the true sense and meaning of God's c. 5. l. xviii, law, fo peculiarly given unto them, neither had in the beginning any images publicly in their temple, (as Origen and Josephus at large declare) neither, after the restitution of the temple, would by any means confent to Herod, Pilate, or Petronius, that images should be placed only in the temple at Jerusalem, although no worshipping of images was required at their hands; but rather offered themselves to the death, than to assent that images should once be placed in the temple of God; neither would they fuffer any image-maker among them. And Origen added this cause, lest their minds should be plucked from GoD, to the contemplation of earthly things. And they are much commended for this earnest zeal, in maintaining of Gon's honour and true religion. And truth it is, that the Jews and Turks, who abhor images and idols, as directly forbidden by GoD's word, will never come to the truth of our religion, whilst the stumbling-blocks of images remain amongst us, and lie in their way. If they object yet the brazen ferpent, which Mofes did fet up, or the images of the cherubims, or any other images, which the Jews had in their temple, the answer is easy: We must in religion obey God's general law, which bindeth all men, and not follow examples of particular dispensation, which be no warrants for us; elfe we may by the fame reason resume circumcision and sacrificing of beasts, and other rites permitted to the Jews. Neither can those images of cherubims, set in secret where no man might come, nor behold, be any example for our public setting up of images in churches and temples. But to let the Jews go. Where they say that images, so they be not worshipped, as things indifferent may be tolerable in temples and churches; we infer and say for the adversative, that all our images of God, our Saviour Christ, and his saints, publicly set up in temples and churches, places peculiarly appointed to the true worshipping of God, be not things indifferent, nor tolerable, but against God's law and commandment, taking their own interpretation and exposition of it.

First, for that all images, so set up publicly, have been worshipped of the unlearned and simple fort shortly after they have been publicly so set up, and in conclusion, of the wife and learned also.

Secondly, for that they are worshipped in fundry places

now in our time also.

And thirdly, for that it is impossible that images of God, Christ, or his faints, can be fuffered (especially in temples and churches) any while or space, without worfhipping of them: and that idolatry, which is most abominable before God, cannot possibly be escaped and avoided, without the abolishing and destruction of images and pictures in temples and churches, for that idolatry is to images, specially in temples and churches, an inseparable accident, (as they term it;) fo that images in churches and idolatry go always both together, and that therefore the one cannot be avoided, except the other, specially in all public places, be destroyed. Wherefore, to make images, and publicly to fet them up in the temples and churches, places appointed peculiarly to the fervice of God, is to make images to the ufe of religion, and not only against this precept, Thou shalt make no manner of images; but against this also, Thou shalt not bow down to them, nor worthip them. For they being fet up, have been, be, and ever will be worthipped. And the full proof of that which in the beginning of the first part of this treatife was touched, is here to be made and performed; to wit, that our images and idols of the Gentiles be all one, as well in the things themselves, as also in that our images have been before, be now, and ever will be worshipped, in like form and manner, as the idols of the

the Gentiles were worshipped, so long as they be suffered in churches and temples. Whereupon it followeth, that our images in churches have been, be, and ever will be, none other but abominable idols, and be therefore no things indifferent. And every of these parts shall be proved in order, as hereafter followeth. And first, that our images and the idols of the Gen-Simulachia tiles be all one concerning themselves, is most evident, gentium, argentum the matter of them being gold, filver, or other metal, et aurum. ftone, wood, clay, or plaster, as were the idols of the Fusile, si-Gentiles; and so being either molten or cast, either militudo, carved, graven, howen, or otherwise formed and fashioned finulaafter the fimilitude and likeness of man or woman, bechrum dead and dumb works of man's hands, having mouths opera maand speak not, eyes and see not, hands and feel not, feet minum. and go not, and fo, as well in form as matter, be altogether like the idols of the Gentiles. Infomuch that all' the titles, which be given to the idols in the Scriptures, may be verified of our images. Wherefore, no doubt but the like curfes which are mentioned in the Scriptures will light upon the makers and worshippers of them both. Secondly, that they have been and be worshipped in our time, in like form and manner as were the idols of the Gentiles, is now to be proved. And for that idolatry standeth chiefly in the mind, it shall in this part first be proved, that our image-maintainers have had and have the fame opinions and judgment of faints, whose images they have made and worthipped, as the Gentiles idolaters had of their gods. And afterwards shall be declared, that our image-maintainers and worshippers have used and use the same outward rites and manner of honouring and worshipping their images, as the Gentiles did use before their idols; and that therefore they commit idolatry, as well inwardly and outwardly, as did the wicked Gentiles idolaters.

And concerning the first part of the idolatrous opinions of our image-maintainers. What, I pray you, be fuch faints with us, to whom we attribute the defence of certain countries, spoiling God of his due honour herein, but Dii Tutelares of the Gentiles idolaters? Such as were Dii Tutela-Belus to the Babylonians and Assyrians, Osiris and Iss to res. the Egyptians, Vulcan to the Lemnians, and to fuch other. What be fuch faints, to whom the safeguard of certain cities are appointed, but Dii Præsides with the Dij Præsi-Gentiles idolaters? Such as were at Delphos, Apollo; at des. Athens, Minerva; at Carthage, Juno; at Rome, Quirinus;

&c. What be fuch faints, to whom, contrary to the ufe of the primitive church, temples and churches be builded, Da Patroni, and altars erected, but Dii Patroni of the Gentiles idolaters? Such as were in the Capitol, Jupiter; in Paphus Temple, Venus; in Ephefus Temple, Diana; and fuch like. Alas, we feem in thus thinking and doing to have learned our religion, not out of God's word, but out of the Pagan poets, who fay, Excesser omnes adytis, arisque relictis, Dii, quibus imperium boc fleterat, &c. That is to fay, All the gods, by whose defence this empire stood, are gone out of the temples, and have forfaken their altars. And where one faint hath images in divers places, the fame faint hath divers names thereof, most like to the Gentiles. When you hear of our Lady of Walfingham, our Lady of Ipswich, our Lady of Wilfdon. and fuch others; what is it but an imitation of the Gentiles idolaters? Diana Agrotera. Diana Coriphea, Diana Ephefia, &c. Venus Cypria, Venus Paphia, Venus Gnidia. Whereby is evidently meant, that the faint for the image fake should in those places, yea, in the images themfelves, have a dwelling, which is the ground of their idolatry. For where no images be, they have no fuch means. Terentius Varro sheweth, that there were three hundred Jupiters in his time: there were no fewer Veneres and Diana's: we had no fewer Christophers, Ladies, and Mary Magdalens, and other faints. Oenomaus and Hefiodus fliew, that in their time there were thirty thousand gods. I think we had no fewer faints, to whom we gave the honour due to God. And they have not only spoiled the true living God of his due honour in temples, cities, countries, and lands, by fuch devices and inventions, as the Gentiles idolaters have done before them: but the fea and waters have as well special faints with them, as they had gods with the Gentiles, Neptune, Triton, Nereus, Caftor and Pollnx, Venus, and fuch other; in whose places become St. Christopher, St. Clement, and divers other, and specially our Lady, to whom thipmen fing Ave, maris flella. Neither hath the fire feaped the idolatrous inventions. For, instead of Vulcan and Vesta, the Gentiles' gods of the fire, our men have placed St. Agatha, and make letters on her day for to quench fire with. Every artificer and profession hath his special faint, as a peculiar god. As for example, scholars have St. Nicholas and St. Gregory; painters, St. Luke; neither lack foldiers their Mars, nor lovers their Venus, amongst Christians. All diseases have their special faints, as gods the curers of them; the pox St. Roche, the falling-evil St. Cornelis, the tooth-ache St. Apollin, &c. Neither do beafts nor cattle lack their gods with us; for St. Loy is the horfeleech, and St. Anthony the fwineherd, &c. Where is God's providence and due honour in the mean feafon? Who faith, The beavens be mine, and the earth is mine, the robole world and all that in it is: I do give victory, and I put to flight: of me be all counfels and help, &c. Except I keep the city, in vain doth he watch that keepeth it: Thon, Lord, Shalt fave both men and beafts. But we have left him neither heaven, nor earth, nor water, nor country, nor city, peace nor war to rule and govern, neither men, nor beafts, nor their diseases to cure; that a godly man might juftly for zealous indignation ery out, O heaven, O earth, and feas, what madnefs and wickednefs against God are men fallen into! What dishonour do the creatures to their Creator and Maker! And if we remember God fometimes, yet, because we doubt of his ability or will to help, we join to him another helper, as if he were a noun adjective, using these sayings: such as learn, God and St. Nicholas be my fpeed: fuch as neefe, God help and St. John: to the horse, God and St. Loy fave thee. Thus are we become like horfes and mules, which have no understanding. For is there not one God only, who by his power and wifdom made all things, and by his providence governeth the fame, and by his goodness maintaineth and saveth them? Be not all things of him, by him, and through him? Why dost thou turn from the Creator to the creatures? This is the manner of the Gentiles idolaters: but thou art a Christian, and therefore by Christ alone hast access to God the Father, and help of him only. These things are not written to any reproach of the faints themselves, who were the true fervants of God, and did give all honour to him, taking none unto themselves, and are blessed souls with God; but against our foolithness and wickedness, making of the true fervants of God, falfe gods, by attributing to them the power and honour which is God's, and due to him only. And for that we have fuch opinions of the power and ready help of faints, all our legends, hymns, fequences, and maffes, did contain ftories, lands, and praises of them, and prayers to them; yea, and fermons also altogether of them, and to their praises, God's word being clean laid afide. And this we do altogether agreeable to the faints, as did the Gentiles idolaters to their false gods. For these opinions which men have had of mortal persons, were they never so holy, the old old most godly and learned Christians have written against the feigned gods of the Gentiles, and Christian princes have destroyed their images, who, if they were now living, would doubtless likewise both write against our false opinions of faints, and also destroy their images. is evident, that our image-maintainers have the fame opinion of faints which the Gentiles had of their false gods, and thereby are moved to make them images, as the Gentiles did. If answer be made, that they make faints but intercessors to God, and means for such things as they would obtain of God: that is, even after the Gentiles' idolatrous usage, to make them of faints, gods, called Dii Medioximi, to be mean intercessors and helpers to God, as though he did not hear, or should be weary if he did all alone. So did the Gentiles teach, that there was one chief power working by other, as means; and fo they made all gods subject to fate or destiny; as Lucian in his Dialogues feigneth that Neptune made fuit to Mercury, that he might speak with Jupiter. And therefore in this also, it is most evident, that our imagemaintainers be all one in opinion with the Gentiles idoremonies, in honouring and worthipping of the images or faints, be all one with the rites which the Gentiles idolaters used in honouring their idols. First, what meaneth it, that Christians, after the example of the Gentiles idolaters, go on pilgrimage to vifit images, where they have the like at home, but that they have a greater opinion of holinefs and virtue in fome images, than other fome, like as the Gentiles idolaters had? Which is the readiest way to bring them to idolatry by worshipping of them, and directly against God's word, who saith, Seek me, and ye shall live; and do not feek Bethel; enter not into Gilgal, neither go to Beersheba. And against such as had any fuperstition in the holiness of the place, as though they should be heard for the place's fake, faying, Our Fathers worshipped in this mountain: and ye say, that at Jerufalem is the place where men should worship; our Saviour Christ pronounceth, Believe me, the hour cometh, when you shall worship the Father neither in this mountain, nor at Jerusalem; but true worshippers shall worship the Father in spirit and truth. But it is too well known, that by such pilgrimage going, Lady Venus and her fon Cupid were rather worshipped wantonly in the flesh, than God the Father, and our Saviour Christ his Son, truly worshipped in the spirit. And

Now remaineth the third part, that their rites and ce-

And it was very agreeable (as St. Paul teacheth) that Rom. is they which fell to idolatry, which is fpiritual fornication, should also fall into carnal fornication, and all uncleanness, by the just judgments of God, delivering them over to abominable concupifeences. What meaneth it, that Christian men, after the use of the Gentiles idolaters, cap and kneel before images? which, if they had any fense and gratitude, would kneel before men, carpenters, masons, plasterers, founders, and goldfmiths, their makers and framers, by whose means they have attained this honour, which elfe should have been evil-favoured and rude lumps of clay, or plaster, pieces of timber, stone, or metal, without shape or fashion, and fo without all estimation and honour, as that idol in the Pagan Poet confesseth, faying, "I was once a vile Horatius. block, but now I am become a god," &c. What a fond thing is it for man, who hath life and reason, to bow Adorare. himself to a dead and insensible image, the work of his own hand! Is not this stooping and kneeling before Gen. xxiii. them, adoration of them, which is forbidden fo earneftly xxxiii. by God's word? Let fuch as fo fall down before images of faints, know and confess that they exhibit that honour to dead flocks and flones, which the faints themselves. Peter, Paul, and Barnabas, would not to be given to them I Kings i. being alive; which the angel of God forbiddeth to be Acts x. xiv. given to him. And if they fay they exhibit fuch honour Apoc. xix. not to the image, but to the faint whom it representeth. they are convicted of folly, to believe that they please faints with that honour, which they abhor as a fpoil of God's honour: for they be no changelings; but now both having greater understanding, and more fervent love of God, do more abhor to deprive him of his due honour: and being now like unto the angels of God, do with angels flee to take unto them by facrilege the honour due to God: and herewithal is confuted their lewd distinction of Latria and Dulia; where it is evident, that the faints of God cannot abide, that as much as any outward worshipping be done or exhibited to them. But Satan, God's enemy, desiring to rob God of his honour, defireth exceedingly that fuch honour might be given to him. Wherefore those which give the honour due to Matt. iv. the Creator, to any creature, do fervice acceptable to no faints, who be the friends of God, but unto Satan, God and man's mortal and fworn enemy. And to attribute fuch defire of divine honour to faints, is to blot them with a most odious and devilish ignominy and villany.

and indeed of faints to make them Satans and very devils, whose property is to challenge to themselves the honour which is due to God only.

And furthermore, in that they fay that they do not worship the images, as the Gentiles did their idols, but God and the faints, whom the images do represent; and therefore that their doings before images be not like the idolatry of the Gentiles before their idols; St. Augustine, Lactantius, and Clemens, do prove evidently, that by this their answer they be all one with the Gentiles idolaters. The Gentiles (faith St. Augustine) which seem to be of the purer religion, fay, We worship not the images, but by the corporal image we do behold the figure of the things which we ought to worship figns of the things which we ought to worship.

And Lactantius faith, The Gentiles fay, we fear not the images, but them after whose likeness the images be made, and to whose names they be consecrated. Thus far Lactantius.

And Clemens faith, That ferpent the Devil uttereth these words by the mouth of certain men: We, to the honour of the invisible God, worship visible images: which furely is most false. See how, in using the same excuses which the Gentiles idolaters pretended, they fhew themselves to join with them in idolatry. For, notwithstanding this excuse, St. Augustine, Clemens, and Lactantius prove them idolaters. And Clemens faith, That the ferpent, the Devil, putteth fuch excuses in the mouth of idolaters. And the Scriptures fay, they worship the stocks and stones, (notwithstanding this excuse) even as our image-maintainers do. And Ezekiel therefore calleth the gods of the Affyrians, flocks and flones, aithough they were but images of their gods, So are our images of God and the faints named by the names of God and his faints, after the use of the Gentiles.

And the fame Clemens faith thus, in the fame book: They dare not give the name of the emperor to any other, for he punisheth his offender and traitor by and by: but they dare give the name of God to others, because he for repentance sufferesth his offenders. And even so do our image-worshippers give both names of God and the faints, and also the honour due to God, to their images, even as did the Gentiles idolaters to their idols. What should it mean, that they, according as did the Gentiles idolaters, light candles at noon-time, or at midnight, before them, but therewith to honour them? For other use is there none in so doing. For in the day

it needeth not, but was ever a proverb of foolishness, to light a candle at noon-time. And in the night it availeth not to light a candle before the blind, and God hath neither use nor honour thereof. And concerning this candle-lighting, it is notable that Lactantius, above a thousand years ago, hath written after this manner; If Lib. vi. Inthey would behold the heavenly light of the fun, then flit. cap. 2. should they perceive that God hath no need of their candles, who for the use of man hath made so goodly a light. And whereas in so little a circle of the sun, which for the great distance seemeth to be no greater than a man's head, there is fo great brightness, that the fight of man's eye is not able to behold it, but if one fleadfastly look upon it a while, his eyes will be dulled and blinded with darkness. How great light, how great clearness may we think to be with God, with whom is no night nor darkness? And so forth.

And by and by he faith, Seemeth he therefore to be in his right mind, who offereth up to the Giver of light the light of a wax candle for a gift? He requireth another light of us, which is not finoky, but bright and clear, even the light of the mind and understanding.

And shortly after he faith, But their gods, because they be earthly, have need of light, left they remain in darknefs, whose worshippers, because they understand no heavenly thing, do draw religion, which they use, down to the earth, in the which, being dark of nature, is need of light. Wherefore they give to their gods no heavenly, but the earthly understanding of mortal men. And therefore they believe those things to be necessary and pleafant unto them, which are fo to us, who have need either of meat when we be hungry, or drink when we be thirsty, or clothing when we be a cold, or when the fun is fet, candle light, that we may fee. Thus far Lactantius, and much more, too long here to write, of candle-lighting in temples before images and idols for religion: whereby appeareth both the foolifhness thereof, and also that in opinion and act we do agree altogether in our candle-religion with the Gentiles idolaters. What meaneth it that they, after the example of the Gentiles idolaters, burn incense, offer up gold to images, hang up crutches, chains, and ships, legs, arms, and whole men and women of wax, before images, as though by them, or faints (as they fay) they were delivered from lameness, sickness, captivity, or shipwreck? Is not this colere imagines, to worship images, so earnestly forbidden Colere.

in God's word? If they deny it, let them read the eleventh chapter of Daniel the Prophet, who faith of Antichrift, He shall worship God, whom his fathers knew not, with gold, filver, and with precious stones, and other things of pleasure: in which place the Latin word is Colet. And in the fecond of Paralipomenon, the twenty-ninth chapter, all the outward rites and ceremonies, as burning of incense, and such other, wherewith God in the temple was honoured, is called Cultus, (to fay) worshipping, which is forbidden strictly by God's word to be given to images. Do not all stories ecclesiastical declare, that our holy martyrs, rather than they would bow and kneel, or offer up one crum of incense before an image or idol, have fuffered a thousand kinds of most horrible and dreadful death? And what excuses soever they make, yet that all this running on pilgrimage, burning of incenfe and candles, hanging up of crutches, chains, ships, arms, legs, and whole men and women of wax, kneeling and holding up of hands, is done to the images, appeareth by this, that where no images be, or where they have been, and be taken away, they do no fuch things at all. But all the places frequented when the images were there, now they be taken away, be forfaken and left defert; nay, now they hate and abhor the place deadly; which is an evident proof, that that which they did before was done in respect of the images. Wherefore, when we see men and women on heaps go on pilgrimage to images, kneel before them, hold up their hands before them, fet up candles, burn incense before them, offer up gold and filver unto them, hang up thips, crutches, chains, men and women of wax before them, attributing health and safeguard, the gifts of God, to them, or the saints whom they represent, as they rather would have it; who, I fay, who can doubt, but that our image-maintainers, agreeing in all idolatrous opinions, outward rites and ceremonies, with the Gentiles idolaters, agree also with them in committing most abominable idolatry; and to increase this madness, wieked men, which have the keeping of fuch images, for their greater lucre and advantage, after the example of the Gentiles idolaters, have reported and spread abroad, as well by lying tales as written fables, divers miracles of images: as that fuch an image miraculoufly was fent from heaven, even like the Palladium, or Magna Diana Ephefiorum. Such another was as miraculously found in the earth, as the man's head was in the Capitol, or the horse's head in Capua. Such an image was brought by angels. Such an one came itself far far from the East to the West, as dame Fortune fled to Rome. Such an image of our Lady was painted by St. Luke, whom of a phylician they have made a painter for that purpose. Such an one an hundred yokes of oxen could not move, like Bona Dea, whom the ship could not carry, or Jupiter Olympius, which laughed the artificers to fcorn, that went about to remove him to Rome. Some images, though they were hard and stony, yet, for tender heart and pity, wept. Some, like Castor and Pollux, helping their friends in battle, sweat, as marble pillars do in dampish weather. Some speak more monstrously than ever did Balaam's ass, who had life and breath in him. Such a cripple came and faluted this faint of oak, and by and by he was made whole; and lo, here hangeth his crutch. Such an one in a tempest vowed to St. Christopher, and scaped; and behold, here is his ship of wax. Such an one by St. Leonard's help brake out of prison; and fee where his fetters hang. And infinite thousands more miracles, by like or more shameless lies were reported. Thus do our image-maintainers in earnest apply to their images all fuch miracles, as the Gentiles have feigned of their idols. And if it were to be admitted, that some miraculous acts were by illusion of the Devil done where images be; (for it is evident that the most part were feigned lies, and crafty jugglings of men) yet followeth it not therefore, that fuch images are either to be honoured, or fuffered to remain, no more than Hezekiah left the brazen ferpent undestroyed, when it was worshipped, although it were both set up by God's commandment, and also approved by a great and true miracle, for as many as beheld it were by and by healed: neither ought miracles to perfuade us to do contrary to God's word. For the Scriptures have for a warning hereof foreshewed, that the kingdom of Antichrist Shall be mighty in miracles and wonders, to the strong illusion of all the reprobates. But in this they pass the folly and wickedness of the Gentiles, that they honour and worship the relics and bones of our faints, which prove that they be mortal men and dead, and therefore no gods to be worshipped, which the Gentiles would never confess of their gods for very shame. But the relics we must kiss and offer unto, specially on relic-funday. And while we offer, (that we should not be weary, or repent us of our cost) the music and minstrelfy goeth merrily all the offertory time, with praising and calling upon those faints, whose relics be then in presence. Yea, and the water also, Macchabæis.

wherein those relies have been dipped, must with great reverence be referved, as very holy and effectual. Is this Homilia de agreeable to St. Chryfostom, who writeth thus of relics? "Do not regard the ashes of the faints' bodies, nor the relies of their flesh and bones, consumed with time: but open the eyes of thy faith, and behold them clothed with heavenly virtue, and the grace of the Holy Ghoft, and shining with the brightness of the heavenly light." But our idolaters found too much vantage of relics and relic-water, to follow St. Chryfoftom's counfel. And because relics were fo gainful, few places there were but they had relics provided for them. And for more plenty of relics, some one faint had many heads, one in one place, and another in another place. Some had fix arms and twenty-fix fingers. And where our Lord bare his crofs alone, if all the pieces of the relics thereof were gathered together, the greatest ship in England would fcarcely bear them; and yet the greatest part of it, they fay, doth yet remain in the hands of the Infidels, for the which they pray on their beads bidding, that they may get it also in their hands, for such godly use and purpose. And not only the bones of the faints, but every thing appertaining to them was an holy relic. In some place they offer a fword, in some the scabbard, in some a shoe, in fome-a faddle that had been fet upon fome holy horfe, in fome the coals wherewith St. Laurence was roafted, in some places the tail of the ass which our Lord Jesus Christ sate on, to be kissed and offered unto for a relic. For rather than they would lack a relic, they would offer you a horfe-bone, instead of a virgin's arm, or the tail of the ass to be kissed and offered unto for relics. O wicked, impudent, most shameless men, the devisers of these things! O filly, foolish, and dastardly daws, and more beaftly than the ass whose tail they kissed, that believe fuch things. Now God be merciful to fuch miferable and filly Christians, who by the fraud and falsehood of those which should have taught them the way of truth and life, have been made not only more wicked than the Gentiles idolaters, but also no wifer than asses, horses, and mules, which have no understanding.

Of these things already rehearsed, it is evident, that our image-maintainers have not only made images, and fet them up in temples, as did the Gentiles idolaters their idols; but also that they have had the same idolatrous opinions of the faints, to whom they have made images, which the Gentiles idolaters had of their false

gods; and have not only worshipped their images with the fame rites, ceremonies, superstition, and all circumflances, as did the Gentiles idolaters their idols, but in many points also have far exceeded them in all wickedness, foolishness, and madness. And if this be not sufficient to prove them image-worshippers, that is to fay, idolaters, lo, you shall hear their own open confession; I mean, not only the decrees of the fecond Nicene council under Irene, the Roman council under Gregory III. in which, as they teach that images are to be honoured and worshipped, as is before declared; so yet do they it warily and fearfully, in comparison to the blasphenious bold blazing of manifest idolatry to be done to images, set forth of late, even in these our days; the light of God's truth fo shining, that above other abominable doings and writings, a man would marvel most at their impudent, shameless, and most shameful blustering boldness, who would not at the least have chosen them a time of more darkness, as meeter to utter their horrible blasphemies in; but have now taken an harlot's face, not purposed to blush in setting abroad the furniture of their spiritual whoredom. And here the plain blasphemy of the reverend father in God, James Naclantus, bishop of Clugium, written in his exposition of St. Paul's Epistle to the Romans, and the first chapter, and put in print now of late at Venice, may stand instead of all, whose words of imageworshipping be these in Latin, as he did write them, not one fyllable altered.

Ergo non folum fatendum est, sideles in ecclesia adorare coram imagine, (ut nonnulli ad cautelam forte loquuntur) sed et adorare imaginem, sine quo volucris scrupulo, quin et co illam venerantur cultu, quo et prototypon ejus propter quod si illud babet adorare latria, et illa latria: si dulia, vel byperdulia, et illa pariter ejusmodi cultu adoranda est.

The fense whereof in English is this: Therefore it is not only to be confessed, that the faithful in the church do worship before an image, (as some peradventure do warily speak) but also do worship the image itself, without any scruple or doubt at all: yea, and they worship the image with the same kind of worship, wherewith they worship the copy of the image, or the thing whereafter the image is made. Wherefore if the copy itself is to be worshipped with divine honour, (as is God the Father, Christ, and the Holy Ghost) the image of them is also to be worshipped with divine honour. If the copy ought to be worshipped with inferior honour or higher worship, the image also is to be worshipped with the same honour and worship. Thus far hath Naclantus, whose blasphemies let Pope Gregorius I. confute, and by his authority damn them to hell, as his fuccessors have horribly thun-For although Gregory permitteth images to be had, yet he forbiddeth them by any means to be worshipped, and praifeth much Bishop Serenus for the forbidding the worshipping of them, and willeth him to teach the people to avoid by all means to worship any image. But Naclantus bloweth forth his blasphemous idolatry, willing images to be worshipped with the highest kind of adoration and worship: and lest such wholesome doctrine should lack authority, he groundeth it upon Aristotle, in his book De Somno ct Vigilia, that is, Of Sleeping and Waking, as by his printed book, noted in the margin, is to be feen; whose impudent wickedness and idolatrous judgment I have therefore more largely fet forth, that ye may (as Virgil speaketh of Sinon) of one know all these image-worshippers and idolaters, and understand to what point in conclusion the public having of images in temples and churches hath brought us; comparing the times and writings of Gregory I. with our days, the blasphemies of fuch idolaters, as this instrument of Belial, named Naclantus, is. Wherefore, now it is by the testimony of the old godly fathers and doctors, by the open confession of biflions affembled in councils, by most evident figns and arguments, opinions, idolatrous acts, deeds, and worshipping done to their images, and by their own open confession and doctrine set forth in their books, declared and shewed, that their images have been and be commonly worshipped, yea, and that they ought so to be: I will out of God's word make this general argument against all such makers, setters-up, and maintainers of images in public places. And first of all I will begin Matt. xviii. with the words of our Saviour Christ. Woe be to that man by whom an offence is given. Woe be to him, that offendeth one of these little ones, or weak ones. Better were it for him, that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and he cast into the middle of the fea, and drowned, than he should offend one of these little ones, or weak ones. And in Deuteronomy, God himself denounceth him accurred, that maketh the blind to wander in his way. And in Leviticus, Thou shalt not lay a slumbling-block, or slone, before the blind. But images in churches and temples have been, and be, and (as afterwards fhall be proved) ever will be, offences and flumbling-blocks, fpecially to the weak, fimple, and blind common people, deceiving their hearts by the cunning of the artificer, (as the Scripture expressly in fundry places doth teftify) and so bringing them to idolatry: Therefore woe be Wisd. xiii. to the erceter, fetter-up, and maintainer of images in churches xiv. and temples; for a greater penalty remaineth for him than the death of the body. If answer be yet made, that this offence may be taken away by diligent and fincere doctrine and preaching of God's word, as by other means; and that images in churches and temples therefore be not things abfolutely evil to all men, although dangerous to fome; and therefore that it were to be holden, that the public having of them in churches and temples is not expedient, as a thing perilous rather than unlawful, and a thing utterly wicked: then followeth the third article to be proved, which is this: That it is not possible, if images be suffered in churches and temples, either by preaching of God's word, or by any other means, to keep the people from worshipping of them, and fo to avoid idolatry. And first concerning preaching. If it should be admitted, that although images were fuffered in churches, yet might idolatry by diligent and fincere preaching of God's word be avoided; it should follow of necessity, that sincere doctrine might always be had and continue as well as images, and fo that wherefoever, to offence, were erected an image, there alfo, of reason, a godly and sincere preacher should and might be continually maintained. For it is reason, that the warning be as common as the stumbling-block, the remedy as large as is the offence, the medicine as general as the poison: but that is not possible, as both reason and experience teacheth. Wherefore preaching cannot stay idolatry, images being publicly fuffered. For an image, which will last for many hundred years, may for a little be bought: but a good preacher cannot without much be continually maintained. Item, if the prince will fuffer it, there will be by and by many, yea, infinite images: but fincere preachers were, and ever shall be, but a few in respect of the multitude to be taught. For our Saviour Christ saith, The harvest is plentiful, but the workmen be but few: which hath been hitherto continually true, and will be to the world's end: and in our time, and here in our country fo true, that every shire should scarcely have one good preacher, if they were divided.

Now images will continually to the beholders preach their doctrine, that is, the worshipping of images and idolatry; to the which preaching mankind is exceeding prone, and inclined to give ear and credit, as experience of all nations and ages doth too much prove. But a true preacher, to flay this mischief, is in very many places scarcely heard once in a whole year, and fomewhere not once in feven years, as is evident to be proved. And that evil opinion, which hath been long rooted in men's hearts, cannot fuddenly by one fermion be rooted out clean. And as few are inclined to credit found doctrine; as many, and almost all, be prone to superstition and idolatry. So that herein appeareth not only a difficulty, but also an impossibility of the remedy. Further, it appeareth not by any flory of credit, that true and fincere preaching hath endured in any one place above one hundred years: but it is evident, that images, superstition, and worshipping of images and idolatry, have continued many hundred years. For all writings and experience do teftify, that good things do by little and little ever decay, until they be clean banished; and, contrariwise, evil things do more and more increase, till they come to a full perfection of wickedness. Neither need we to seek examples far off for a proof hereof; our present matter is an example. For preaching of God's word most sincere (in the beginning) by process of time waxed less and less pure, and after corrupt, and last of all, altogether laid down and left off, and other inventions of men crept in place of it. And on the other part, images among Christian men were first painted, and that in whole stories together, which had fome fignification in them; afterwards they were emboffed, and made of timber, stone, plaster, and metal. And first they were only kept privately in private men's houses; and then after they crept into churches and temples, but first by painting, and after by embossing; and yet were they no where at the first worshipped. But shortly after they began to be worshipped of the ignorant fort of men, as appeareth by the Epiftle that Gregory the first of that name, bishop of Rome, did write to Screnus, bishop of Marseilles. Of the which two bishops, Serenus, for idolatry committed to images, brake them, and burned them. Gregory, although he thought it tolerable to let them fland, yet he judged it abominable, that they should be worshipped; and thought (as is now alleged) that the worshipping of them might be slayed, by teaching of God's word, according as he exhorteth Serenus

Serenus to teach the people, as in the fame Epiftle appeareth. But whether Gregory's opinion or Serenus's judgment were better herein, confider ye, I pray you, for experience by and by confuteth Gregory's opinion. For notwithstanding Gregory's writing, and the preaching of others, images being once publicly fet up in temples and churches, simple men and women shortly after fell on heaps to worshipping of them: and at the last the learned also were carried away with the public error, as with a violent stream, or flood. And at the second council of Nicene, the bishops and clergy decreed, that images should be worshipped: and so, by occasion of these stumbling-blocks, not only the unlearned and fimple, but the learned and wife, not the people only, but the bishops, not the sheep, but also the shepherds themselves, (who should have been guides in the right way, and lights to shine in darkness,) being blinded by the bewitching of images, as blind guides of the blind, fell both into the pit of damnable idolatry. In the which all the world, as it were drowned, continued until our age, by the space of above eight hundred years, unspoken against in a manner. And this fuccefs had Gregory's order; which mifchief had never come to pass, had Bishop Serenus's way been taken, and all idols and images been utterly destroyed and abolished: for no man worshippeth that that is not. And thus you fee, how from having of images privately, it came to public fetting of them up in churches and temples, although without harm at the first, as was then of some wife and learned men judged; and from simple having them there, it came at the last to worshipping of them: first, by the rude people, who specially (as the Scripture teacheth) are in danger of superstition Wild. xiii. and idolatry, and afterwards by the bishops, the learned, xiv. and by the whole clergy. So that laity and clergy, learned and unlearned, all ages, fects, and degrees of men, women, and children of whole Christendoni (an horrible and most dreadful thing to think) have been at once drowned in abominable idolatry, of all other vices most detested of God, and most damnable to man, and that by the space of eight hundred years and more. And to this end is come that beginning of fetting up of images in churches, then judged harmless, in experience proved not only harmful, but exitious and pestilent, and to the destruction and fubversion of all good religion universally. So that I conclude, as it may be possible in some one city, or little country, to have images fet up in temples and churches, and yet idolatry, by earnest and continual preaching of God's true word, and the fincere Gospel of our Saviour Christ, may be kept away for a short time: so it is impossible that (images once fet up and suffered in temples and churches) any great countries, much less the whole world, can any long time be kept from idolatry. And the godly will respect, not only their own city, country, and time, and the health of men of their age, but be careful for all places and times, and the falvation of men of all ages. At the least, they will not lay such stumblingblocks and fnares for the feet of other countrymen and ages, which experience hath already proved to have been the ruin of the world. Wherefore I make a general conclufion of all that I have hitherto faid: if the flumblingblocks and poisons of men's fouls, by fetting up of images, will be many, yea, infinite, if they be fuffered, and the warnings of the fame flumbling-blocks, and remedies for the faid poisons by preaching but few, as is already declared; if the stumbling-blocks be easy to be laid, the poifons foon provided, and the warnings and remedies hard to know, or come by; if the stumbling-blocks lie continually in the way, and poifon be ready at hand every where, and warnings and remedies but feldom given; and if all men be more ready of themselves to stumble and be offended, than to be warned, all men more ready to drink of the poison, than to taste of the remedy, (as is before partly, and shall hereafter more fully be declared,) and fo in fine, the poifon continually and deeply drunk of many, the remedy feldom and faintly tasted of by a few; how can it be but that infinite of the weak and infirm shall be offended, infinite by ruin shall break their necks, infinite by deadly venom be poisoned in their fouls? And how is the charity of God, or love of our neighbours, in our hearts then, if, when we may remove such dangerous stumbling-blocks, fuch pestilent poisons, we will not remove them? What shall I say of them, which will lay stumbling-blocks where before there was none, and set fnares for the feet, nay, for the fouls of weak and fimple ones, and work the danger of their everlasting destruction, for whom our Saviour Christ shed his most precious blood, where better it were that the arts of painting, plastering, carving, graving, and founding, had never been found nor used, than one of them, whose souls in the fight of God are fo precious, should by occasion of image or picture perish and be lost. And thus is it declared, that preaching cannot possibly stay idolatry, if images images be fet up publicly in temples and churches. as true is it, that no other remedy, as writing against idolatry, councils affembled, decrees made against it, scvere laws likewife, and proclamations of princes and emperors, neither extreme punishments and penalties, nor any other remedy, could or can be possibly devised for the avoiding of idolatry, if images be publicly fet up and fuffered. For concerning writing against images, and idolatry to them committed, there hath been alleged unto you, in the fecond part of this Treatife, a great many places out of Tertullian, Origen, Lactantius, St. Augustine, Epiphanius, St. Ambrose, Clemens, and divers other learned and holy bishops and doctors of the church. And besides these, all histories ecclesiastical, and books of other godly and learned bishops and doctors, are full of notable examples and fentences against images, and the worshipping of them. And as they have most earnestly written, so did they fincerely and most diligently in their time teach and preach, according to their writings and examples. For they were then preaching bishops, and more often seen in pulpits than in princes' palaces, more often occupied in his legacy, who faid, Go ye into the whole world, and preach the Gofpel to all men, than in embassages, and affairs of princes in this world. And as they were most zealous and diligent, fo were they of excellent learning and godliness of life, and by both of great authority and credit with the people, and fo of more force and likelihood to perfuade the people, and the people more like to believe and follow their doctrine. But if their preachings could not help, much lefs could their writings, which do but come to the knowledge of a few that be learned, in comparison to continual preaching, whereof the whole multitude is partaker. Neither did the old fathers, bishops, and doctors, feverally only by preaching and writing, but also together, great numbers of them assembled in fynods and councils, make decrees and ecclefiaftical laws against images, and the worshipping of them; neither did they fo once or twice, but divers times, and in divers ages and countries, affembled fynods and councils, and made fevere decrees against images, and worshipping of them, as hath been at large in the fecond part of this Homily before declared. But all their writing, preaching, affembling in councils, decreeing and making of laws ecclefiastical, could nothing help, either to pull down images, to whom idolatry was committed, or against idolatry whilst images stood. For those blind books and dumb dumb school-masters, I mean images and idols, (for they call them laymen's books and fchool-mafters) by their carved and painted writings, teaching and preaching idolatry, prevailed against all their written books, and preaching with lively voice, as they call it. Well, if preaching and writing could not keep men from worshipping of images and idolatry, if pen and words could not do it, you would think that penalty and fword might do it; I mean, that princes by fevere laws and punishments might flay this unbridled affection of all men to idolatry, though images were fet up and fuffered. experience proveth, that this can no more help against idolatry, than writing and preaching. For Christian emperors, (whose authority ought of reason, and by God's law, to be greateft) above eight in number, and fix of them fuccessively reigning one after another, (as is in the histories before rehearfed) making most fevere laws and proclamations against idols and idolatry, images and the worshipping of images, and executing most grievous punishments, yea, the penalty of death, upon the maintainers of images, and upon idolaters and image-worshippers, could not bring to pass, that either images once set up might throughly be destroyed, or that men should refrain from the worshipping of them, being set up. And what think you then will come to pass, if men of learning should teach the people to make them, and should maintain the fetting up of them, as things necessary in religion? To conclude: it appeareth evidently by all flories and writings, and experience in times past, that neither preaching, neither writing, neither the confent of the learned, nor authority of the godly, nor the decrees of councils, neither the laws of princes, nor extreme punishments of the offenders in that behalf, nor any other remedy or means, can help against idolatry, if images be suffered publicly. And it is truly faid, that times past are schoolmasters of wisdom to us that follow and live after. Therefore, if in times past the most virtuous and best learned, the most diligent also, and in number almost infinite, ancient fathers, bishops, and doctors, with their writing, preaching, industry, earnestness, authority, assemblies, and councils, could do nothing against images and idolatry, to images once fet up; what can we, neither in learning, nor holinefs of life, neither in diligence, neither in authority, to be compared with them, but men in contempt, and of no estimation (as the world goeth now,) few also in number, in fo great a multitude and malice of men; what what can we do, I fay, or bring to pass, to the stay of idolatry or worshipping of images, if they be allowed to stand publicly in temples and churches? And if so many, fo mighty emperors, by fo fevere laws and proclamations, fo rigorous and extreme punishments and executions, could not flay the people from fetting up and worshipping of images; what will enfue, think you, when men shall commend them as necessary books of the laymen? Let us therefore of these latter days learn this lesson of the experience of ancient antiquity, that idolatry cannot possibly be feparated from images any long time: but that as an unseparable accident, or as a shadow followeth the body, when the fun shineth; so idolatry followeth and cleaveth to the public having of images in temples and churches. And finally, as idolatry is to be abhorred and avoided, fo are images (which cannot be long without idolatry) to be put away and destroyed. Besides the which experiments and proof of times before, the very nature and origin of images themselves draweth to idolatry most violently, and men's nature and inclination also is bent to idolatry fo vehemently, that it is not possible to fever or part images, nor to keep men from idolatry, if images be fuffered publicly. That I speak of the nature and origin of images is this: even as the first invention of them is naught, and no good can come of that which had an evil beginning, for they be altogether naught, as Athanasius, in his book against the Gentiles, declareth, and St. Jerome also upon the Prophet Jeremy, the fixth chapter, and Eusebius, in the feventh book of his Ecclefiaffical History, the eighteenth chapter, testifieth, that as they first came from the Gentiles, which were idolaters and worshippers of images, unto us; and as the invention of them was the beginning of spiritual fornication, as the word of God testifieth, Wild. xiv. fo will they naturally (as it were of necessity) turn to their origin from whence they came, and draw us with them most violently to idolatry, abominable to God, and all godly men. For if the origin of images, and worshipping of them, as it is recorded in the eighth chapter of the book of Wisdom, began of a blind love of a fond father, framing for his comfort an image of his fon, being dead, and fo at the last men fell to the worshipping of the image of him, whom they did know to be dead; how much more will men and women fall to the worshipping of the images of God, our Saviour Christ, and his faints, if they be fuffered to stand in churches and temples publicly? For the greater the opinion is of

is made, the fooner will the people fall to the worshipping of the faid image. Wherefore the images of God, our Saviour Christ, the blessed Virgin Mary, the Apostles, Martyrs, and others of notable holiness, are of all other images most dangerous for the peril of idolatry, and therefore greatest heed to be taken that none of them be suffered to stand publicly in churches and temples. For there is no great dread left any should fall to the worshipping of the images of Annas, Caiaphas, Pilate, or Judas the traitor, if they were fet up. But to the other, it is already at full proved, that idolatry hath been, is, and is mest like continually to be committed. Now, as was before touched, and is here most largely to be declared, the nature of man is none otherwise bent to worshipping of images (if he may have them, and fee them) than it is bent to whoredom and adultery in the company of harlots. And as unto a man given to the lust of the flesh, seeing a wanton harlot, sitting by her, and embracing her, it profiteth little for one to fay, Beware of fornication; God will condemn fornicators and adulterers: for neither will he, being overcome with greater enticements of the strumpet, give ear, or take heed to fuch godly admonitions; and when he is left afterwards alone with the harlot, nothing can follow but wickedness: even so, suffer images to be set in the churches and temples, ye shall in vain bid them beware of images, as St. John doth, and flee idolatry, as all the Scriptures warn us; ye shall in vain preach and teach them against idolatry. For a number will notwithftanding fall headlong unto it, what by the nature of firumpet, is to tempt God; fo is it likewise to erect an idol in this proneness of man's nature to idolatry, nothing but a tempting. Now if any will fay that this finilitude proveth nothing; yet I pray them let the word of God, out of the which the fimilitude is taken, prove fomething. Doth not the word of God call idolatry, spiritual fornication? Doth it not call a gilt or painted Num. xxv. idol, or image, a strumpet with a painted face? Be not Deut. xxxi. the spiritual midlednesses of an idol's entiring like the Baruc. vi. the spiritual wickednesses of an idol's enticing like the flatterics of a wanton harlot? Be not men and women as prone to spiritual fornication (I mean idolatry) as to carnal fornication? If this be denied, let all nations upon the earth, which have been idolaters, (as by all stories appeareth) prove it true. Let the Jews and the people of God, which were fo often and fo earneftly warned, fo dreadfully threatened, concerning images and idolatry, and fo extremely punished therefore, (and yet fell into it) prove it to be true; as in almost all the books of the Old Testament, namely, the Kings, and the Chronicles, and the Prophets, it appeareth most evidently. Let all ages and times, and men of all ages and times, of all degrees and conditions, wife men, learned men, princes, idiots, unlearned, and commonalty, prove it to be true. If you require examples: for wife men, ye have the Egyptians, and the Indian Gymnosophists; for wisest men of the world, you have Solomon, the wifeft of all other; for learned men, the Greeks, and namely the Athenians, exceeding all other nations in superstition and idolatry, as in the history of the Acts of the Apostles St. Paul Acts xvii, chargeth them; for princes and governors, you have the Romans, the rulers of the roaft (as they fay), you Rom. i. have the same forenamed King Solomon, and all the kings of Ifrael and Judah after him, faving David, Hezekiah, and Josiah, and one or two more. All these, I fay, and infinite others, wife, learned princes and governors, being all idolaters, have you for examples and a proof of men's inclination to idolatry. That I may pals over with filence, in the mean time, infinite multitudes and millions of idiots and unlearned, the ignorant and gross people, like unto borses and mules, in subom is no Psal xxiii. understanding, whose peril and danger to fall on heaps to idolatry by occasion of images, the Scriptures specially wird. xiii. foreshew and give warning of. And indeed how should xiv. the unlearned, fimple, and foolish scape the nets and fnares of idols and images, in the which the wifest and the best learned have been so entangled, trapped, and wrapped? Wherefore the argument holdeth this ground fure, that men be as inclined of their corrupt nature to spiritual fornication, as to carnal; which the wisdom of God forefeeing, to the general prohibition, that none should make to themselves any image or similitude, addeth a cause depending of man's corrupt nature: Left, faith God, Deut. iv. thou, being deceived with error, bonour and worship them. And of this ground of man's corrupt inclination, as well to spiritual fornication, as to carnal, it must needs follow, that as it is the duty of the godly magistrate, loving honesty, and hating whoredom, to remove all strumpets and harlots, especially out of places notoriously sufpected, pected, or reforted unto of naughty packs, for the avoiding of carnal fornication: fo it is the duty of the same godly magistrate, after the examples of the godly kings. Hezekinh and Josiah, to drive away all spiritual harlots, (I mean idols and images) especially out of suspected places, churches and temples, dangerous for idolatry to be committed to images placed there, as it were in the appointed place and height of honour and worship, as St. Augustine faith, where the living God only (and not dead stones and exiii. et lib. stocks) is to be worshipped: it is, I say, the office of godly magistrates likewise to avoid images and idols out of churches and temples, as spiritual harlots out of suspected places for the avoiding of idolatry, which is spiritual fornication. And as he were the enemy of all honesty, that should bring strumpets and harlots out of their secret corners into the public market-place, there freely to dwell and practife their filthy merchandife; fo is he the enemy of the true worshipping of God, that bringeth idols and images into the temple and church, the house of God, there openly to be worshipped, and to rob the zealous God of his honour, who will not give it to any other, nor his glory to carved images; who is as much forfaken, and the bond of love between man and him as much broken by idolatry, which is spiritual fornication, as is the knot and bond of marriage broken by carnal fornication. Let all this be taken as a lie, if the word of God enforce it not Deut.xxvii. to be true. Curfed be the man, faith God in Deuteronomy, that maketh a carved or molten image, and placeth it in a fecret corner: and all the people shall say, Amen. faith God; for at that time no man durst have or worship images openly, but in corners only: and the whole world being the great temple of God, he that in any corner thereof robbeth God of his glory, and giveth it to stocks and stones, is pronounced by God's word accurfed. Now he that will bring these spiritual harlots out of their lurking corners, into public churches and temples, that spiritual fornication may there openly of all men and women without shame be committed with them, no doubt that person is cursed of God, and twice curfed, and all good and godly men and women will fay, Amen, and their Amen will take effect also. Yea, and furthermore the madness of all men professing the religion of Christ, now by the space of a fort of hundred years, and yet even in our time in so great light of the Gospel, very many running on heaps by sea and land, to the great loss of their time, expence, and waste of their goods, destitution of their wives, children, and families, and danger of their own bodies and lives, to Compostella, Rome, Jerusalem, and other far countries, to visit dumb and dead stocks and stones, doth sufficiently prove the proneness of man's corrupt nature to the seeking of idols once fet up, and the worshipping of them. And thus as well by the origin and nature of idols and images themselves, as by the proneness and inclination of man's corrupt nature to idolatry, it is evident, that neither images, if they be publicly fet up, can be feparated, nor men, if they fee images in temples and churches, can be flaid and kept from idolatry. Now whereas they yet allege, that howfoever the people, princes, learned, and wife, of old time, have fallen into idolatry by occasion of images, that yet in our time the most part, specially the learned and wife, of any authority, take no hurt nor offence by idols and images, neither do run into far countries to them, and worthip them; and that they know well what an idol or image is, and how to be used; and that therefore it followeth, images in churches and temples to be an indifferent thing, as the which of some is not abused, and that therefore they may juffly hold (as was in the beginning of this part by them alleged) that it is not unlawful or wicked, absolutely to have images in churches and temples, though it may, for the danger of the simple fort, feem to be not altogether expedient.

Whereunto may be well replied, that Solomon also, the wifest of all men, did well know what an idol or image was, neither took any harm thereof a great while himself, and also with his godly writings armed others against the danger of them. But yet afterward the Wisd. xiii. fame Solomon suffering his wanton paramours to bring xiv. their idols into his court and palace, was by carnal harlots perfuaded, and brought at the last to the committing of spiritual fornication with idols, and, of the wifest and godliest prince, became the most foolish and wicked alfo. Wherefore it is better even for the wifest to regard this warning, He that loveth danger shall perish Eccl. iii. therein: and Let him that standeth beware lest be fall, and xid. rather than wittingly and willingly to lay fuch a stumbling-block for his own feet and others, that may perhaps bring him at last to break his neck. The good 2 Kings King Hezekiah did know well enough, that the brazen xviii. ferpent was but a dead image, and therefore he took no hurt himself thereby through idolatry to it. Did he therefore let it stand, because himself took no hurt

thereof? No, not fo: but being a good king, and therefore regarding the health of his filly fubjects, deceived by that image, and committing idolatry thereto, he did not only take it down, but also brake it to pieces; and this he did to that image that was fet up by the commandment of God, in the presence whereof great miracles were wrought, as that which was a figure of our Saviour Christ to come, who should deliver us from the mortal sting of the old serpent, Satan. Neither did he spare it in respect of the ancientness or antiquity of it, which had continued above feven hundred years, nor for that it had been fuffered, and preferved by fo many godly kings before his time. How, think you, would that godly prince (if he were now living) handle our idols, fet up against God's commandment directly, and being figures of nothing but folly, and for fools to gaze on, till they become as wife as the blocks themselves which they stare on, and so fall down as dared larks in that gaze, and being themselves alive, worship a dead stock or stone, gold or silver, and so become idolaters, abominable and curfed before the living God, giving the honour due unto him which made them when they were nothing, and to our Saviour Christ, who redeemed them being loft, to the dead and dumb idol, the work of man's hand, which never did nor can do any thing for them, no, is not able to stir, nor once to move, and therefore worse than a vile worm, which can move and creep? The excellent King Josiah also did take himself no hurt of images and idols, for he did know well what they were. Did he therefore, because of his own knowledge, let idols and images fland? Much lefs did he fet any up: or rather did he not by his knowledge and authority also succour the ignorance of such as did not know what they were, by utter taking away of all fuch fumbling-blocks as might be occasion of ruin to his people and subjects? Will they, because a few took no hurt by images or idols, break the general law of God, Thou shalt make to thee no similitude, &c? They might as well, because Moses was not seduced by Jethro's daughter, nor Boaz by Ruth, being firangers, reason, that all the Jews might break the general law of God, forbidding his people to join their children in marriage with strangers, lest they seduce their children that they should not follow God. Wherefore they which thus reason, though it be not expedient, yet it is lawful to have images publicly, and do prove that lawfulness by a few picked and chosen men; if they object that indifferently to all men, which a very few can have without hurt and offence, they feem to take the multitude for vile fouls, (as he faith in Virgil) of whose loss and safeguard no reputation is to be had, for whom yet Christ paid as dearly, as for the mightiest prince, or the wifest and best learned in the earth. And they that will have it generally to be taken for indifferent, that a very few take no hurt of it, though infinite multitudes befides perish thereby, shew that they put little difference between the multitudes of Christians and brute beafts, whose danger they do so little esteem. Besides this, if they be bishops, or parsons, or otherwise having charge of men's consciences, that thus reason, It is lawful to have images publicly, though it be not expedient, what manner of pastors shew they themselves to be to their flock, which thrust unto them that which they themselves confeis not to be expedient for them, but to the utter ruin of the fouls committed to their charge, for whom they shall give a strict account before the Prince of paftors at the last day? For indeed to object to the weak, and ready to fall of themselves, such stumbling-blocks, is a thing not only not expedient, but unlawful, yea, and most wicked also. Wherefore it is to be wondered how they can call images, fet up in churches and temples to no profit or benefit of any, and to fo great peril and danger, yea, hurt and destruction of many, or rather infinite,. things indifferent. Is not the public fetting up of them rather a fnare for all men, and the tempting of God? I befeech these reasoners to call to mind their own accustomed ordinance and decree, whereby they determined that the Scripture, though by God himfelf commanded to be known of all men, women, and children, should not be read of the fimple, nor had in the vulgar tongue, for that, as they faid, it was dangerous, by bringing the simple people into errors. And will they not forbid Deut. xxxiimages to be fet up in churches and temples, which are not commanded, but forbidden most strictly by God, but let them still be there, yea, and maintain them also, feeing the people are brought not into danger only, but indeed into most abominable errors and detestable idolatry thereby? Shall God's word, by God commanded to be read unto all, and known of all, for danger of herefy, as they fay, be shut up? And idols and images, notwithstanding they be forbidden by God, and notwithstanding the danger of idolatry by them, shall they yet be fet up, fusiered, and maintained in churches and temples? O worldly P 2

worldly and fleshly wisdom, even bent to maintain the inventions and traditions of men by carnal reason, and by the fame to disannul or deface the holy ordinances, laws, and honour of the Eternal God, who is to be honoured and praifed for ever. Amen.

Now it remaineth for the conclusion of this treatife, to declare as well the abuse of churches and temples, by too coftly and fumptuous decking and adorning of them, as also the lewd painting, gilding, and clothing of idols and images, and fo to conclude the whole treatile.

Tertul. Apolog. cap. 39.

v. Eccl. Hift.

Hieronymus.

In Tertullian's time, an hundred and threefcore years after Christ, Christians had none other temples but common houses, whither they for the most part secretly reforted. And so far off was it that they had before his time any goodly or gorgeous decked temples, that laws Euseb. lib. were neade in Antonius, Verus, and Commodus the emperors times, that no Christians should dwell in houses, come in public baths, or be feen in freets, or any where abroad; and that, if they were once accused to be Christians, they should by no means be suffered to escape. As was practifed on Apollonius, a noble fenator of Rome, who being accused of his own bondman and slave that he was a Christian, could neither by his defence and apology, learnedly and eloquently written and read publicly in the fenate, nor in respect that he was a citizen, nor for the dignity of his order, nor for the vilencis and unlawfulness of his accuser, being his own flave, by likelihood of malice moved to forge lies against his lord, nor for other respect or help, be delivered from death. So that Christians were then driven to dwell in caves and dens: fo far off was it that they had any public temples adorned and decked as they now be, which is here rehearfed to the confutation of those, which report fueh glorious gloffed fables of the goodly and gorgeous temple, that St. Peter, Linus, Cletus, and those thirty bishops their successors had at Rome, until the time of the Emperor Constantine, and which St. Polycarp should have in Asia, or Irenaus in France, by such lies, contrary to all true histories, to maintain the superfluous gilding and decking of temples now-a-days, wherein they put almost the whole sum and pith of our religion. But in those times the world was won to Christendom, not by gorgeous, gilded, and painted temples of Christians, which had fearcely houses to dwell in; but by the godly, and, as it were, golden minds and firm faith of fuch as in all adverfity and perfecution professed the truth of our religion.

religion. And after these times in Maximinian and Constantius the emperors proclamation, the places where Christians resorted to public prayer, were called Conventicles. And in Galerius Maximinus the emperor's epifile, they are called Oratories and Dominica, to fay, Eufeb. lib. places dedicated to the fervice of the Lord. And here viii. cap. by the way, it is to be noted, that at that time there ix cap. 9. were no churches or temples erected unto any faint, De Civitabut to God only, as St. Augustine also recordeth, fay-te, lib. viii. ing, "We build no temples unto our Martyrs." And cap. 1. Eufebius himself calleth churches, houses of prayer, and fheweth that in Conflantine the emperor's time, all men rejoiced, feeing, instead of low conventicles, which tyrants had destroyed, high temples to be builded. Lo, unto the time of Conflantine, by the space of above three hundred years after our Saviour Christ, when Christian religion was most pure, and indeed golden, Christians had but low and poor conventicles, and fimple oratories, yea caves under the ground, called Crypta, where they for Crypta. fear of perfecution affembled fecretly together. A figure whereof remaineth in the vaults which yet are builded under great churches, to put us in remembrance of the old state of the primitive church before Constantine; whereas in Constantine's time, and after him, were builded great and goodly temples for Christians, called Basilica, either for that the Greeks used to call all great Basilica. and goodly places Bafilicas, or for that the high and everlatting King, God and our Saviour Christ, was served in them. But although Consantine, and other princes, of good zeal to our religion, did fumptuously deck and adorn Christians temples, yet did they dedicate at that time all churches and temples to God, or our Saviour Christ, and to no faint; for that abuse began long after in Justinian's time. And that gorgeousness then used, as it Novel, was borne with, as rising of a good zeal; so was it signi- consit. 3. fied of the godly learned even at that time, that fuch cost et 47. might otherwise have been better bestowed. Let St. Jerome (although otherwife too great a liker and allower of external and outward things) be a proof hereof, who hath these words in his epistle to Demetriades: "Let others (faith St. Jerome) build churches, cover walls with tables of marble, carry together huge pillars, and gild their tops or heads, which do not feel or understand their precious decking and adorning; let them deck the doors with ivory and filver, and fet the golden altars with precious stones; I blame it not; let every man abound in his own fense; P 3 and better is it so to do, than carefully to keep their riches laid up in store. But thou hast another way appointed thee, to clothe Christ in the poor, to visit him in the sick, feed him in the hungry, lodge him in those who do lack harbour, and especially such as be of the houshold of faith."

And the fame St. Jerome toucheth the fame matter fonewhat more freely in his Treatife of the Life of Clerks to Nepotian, faying thus: "Many build walls, and erect pillars of churches; the fmooth marbles do glifter, the roof shineth with gold, the altar is set with precious stones: but of the ministers of Christ there is no election or choice. Neither let any man object and allege against me the rich temple that was in Jewry, the table, candlefticks, incenfe, thips, platters, cups, mortars, and other things all of gold. Then were these things allowed of the Lord, when the priests offered facrifices, and the blood of beafts was accounted the redemption of fins. Howbeit all these things went before in figure, and they were written for us, upon whom the end of the world is come. And now when that our Lord, being poor, hath dedicated the poverty of his house, let us remember his crofs, and we thall efteem riches as mire and dung. What do we marvel at that which Christ calleth wicked Mammon? Whereto do we so highly esteem and love that which St. Peter doth for a glory teftify that he had not?" Hitherto St. Jerome.

Thus you fee how St. Jerome teacheth the fumptuoufness amongst the Jews to be a figure to fignify, and not an example to follow, and that those outward things were fuffered for a time until Christ our Lord came, who turned all those outward things into spirit, faith, and truth. And the same St. Jerome, upon the seventh chapter of Jeremy, faith, "God commandeth both the Jews at that time, and now us who are placed in the church, that we have no trust in the goodliness of building and gilt roofs, and in walls covered with tables of marble, and Tay, The temple of the Lord, the temple of the Lord. For that is the temple of the Lord, wherein dwelleth true faith, godly conversation, and the company of all virtues." And upon the Prophet Haggai, he describeth the true and right decking or ornaments of the temple after this fort: "I (faith St. Jerome) do think the filver, wherewith the house of God is decked, to be the doctrine of the Scriptures, of the which it is spoken, The doctrine of the Lord is a pure doctrine, filver tried in the fire, purged from drofs, purified seven times. And I do take gold to be that which remaineth in the hid fense of the saints and the fecret of the heart, and shineth with the true light of God. Which is evident that the Apostle also meant of the faints that build upon the foundation of Christ, fome filver, fome gold, fome precious stones: that by the gold, the hid fenfe; by filver, godly utterance; by precious flones, works which pleafe God, might be fignified. With these metals the church of our Saviour is made more goodly and gorgeous, than was the fynagogue in old time. With these lively stones is the church and house of Christ builded, and peace is given to it for ever." All these be St. Jerome's sayings. No more did the old godly bishops and doctors of the church allow the overfumptuous furniture of temples and churches, with plate, veffels of gold, filver, and precious veftments. St. Chryfostom faith, in the ministry of the holy facraments there is no need of golden veffels, but of golden minds. And St. Ambrose faith, "Christ fent his Apostles without gold, 2 Offic. caand gathered his church without gold. The church hath pite 28. gold, not to keep it, but to bestow it on the necessities of the poor. The facraments look for no gold, neither do they please God for the commendation of gold, which are not bought for gold. The adorning and decking of the facraments is the redemption of captives." Thus much faith St. Ambrose.

St. Jerome commendeth Exuperius, bishop of Tolose, that he carried the facrament of the Lord's body in a wicker basket, and the facrament of his blood in a glass, and fo cast covetousness out of the church. And Boni-Tit. de confacius, bishop and martyr, as is recorded in the decrees, secra. can. testifieth, that in old time the ministers used wooden, and Triburien. not golden vessels. And Zephyrinus, the fixteenth bishop of Rome, made a decree, that they should use vessels of glafs. Likewife were the veftures used in the church in old time very plain and fingle, and nothing coftly. And Rabanus at large declareth, that this coftly and ma-Lib. i. Inft. nifold furniture of vertments of late used in the church cap. 14. was fetched from the Jewish usage, and agreeth with Aaron's apparelling almost altogether. For the maintenance of the which, Innocentius the pope pronounceth boldly, that all the customs of the old law be not abolished, that we might in such apparel, of Christians the more willingly become Jewish. This is noted, not against churches and temples, which are most necessary, and ought to have their due use and honour, as is in another Homily for that purpose declared, nor against the convenient cleanness and ornaments thereof; but against the fumptuousness and abuses of the temples and churches. For it is a church or temple also that glittereth with no marble, thineth with no gold nor filver, glistereth with no pearls nor precious stones: but with plainness and frugality, fignisieth no proud doctrine nor people, but humble, frugal, and nothing esteeming earthly and outward things, but gloriously decked with inward ornaments, according as the Prophet declareth, faying, with painting, gilding, adorning with precious vestures, pearl, and stone, what is it else, but for the further provocation and enticement to spiritual fornication, to deck spiritual harlots most costly and wantonly, which the idolatrous church understandeth well enough. For she

being indeed not only an harlot, (as the Scripture calleth her) but also a foul, filthy, old, withered harlot, (for she is indeed of ancient years) and understanding her lack of natural and true beauty, and great loathfomeness which of herfelf she hath, doth, after the custom of such harlots, paint herfelf, and deck and tire herfelf with gold, pearl, stone, and all kind of precious jewels, that the, thining with the outward beauty and glory of them, may please the foolish fantaly of fond lovers, and so entice them to spiritual fornication with her: who, if they saw her (I will not fay naked) but in fimple apparel, would abhor her, as the foulest and filthiest harlot that ever was feen: according as appeareth by the defeription of the garnishing of the great strumpet of all strumpets, the Mother of Apoc. xvii. Whoredom, fet forth by St. John in his Revelation, who by her glory provoked the princes of the earth to commit whoredom with her. Whereas, on the contrary part, the true church of God, as a chafte matron, espoused (as the Scripture teacheth) to one hufband, our Saviour Jefus Christ, whom alone she is content only to please and ferve, and looketh not to delight the eyes or fantafies of any other strange lovers or wovers, is content with her natural ornaments, not doubting by fuch fincere fimplicity best to please him, who can well skill of the difference between a painted vifage and true natural beauty. And concerning fuch glorious gilding and decking of images, both God's word written in the tenth chapter of the Prophet Jeremy, and St. Hierom's Commentaries upon the same, are most worthy to be noted. First, the words of the Scriptures be these: The workman with his axe Jer. x. bewed the timber out of the wood with the work of his hands; be decked it with gold and filver; he joined it with nails and pins, and the stroke of an bammer, that it might hold together. They be made smooth as the palm, and they cannot Speak: if they be borne, they remove, for they cannot go. Fear ye them not, for they can neither do evil nor good. Thus faith the Prophet. Upon which text St. Hierom hath thefe words: "This is the description of idols, which the Gentiles worship; their matter is vile and corruptible. And whereas the artificer is mortal, the things he maketh must needs be corruptible: he decketh it with filver and gold, that with the glittering or shining of both metals he may deceive the finiple. Which error indeed hath paffed over from the Gentiles, that we should judge religion to fland in riches." And by and by after he faith, "They have the beauty of metals, and be beautified by the art of painting; but good or profit is there none in them." And shortly after again, "They make great promifes, and devife an image of vain worshipping of their own fantafies; they make great brags to deceive every fimple body; they dull and amaze the understanding of the unlearned, as it were with golden fentences, and eloquence, shining with the brightness of silver. And of their own devifers and makers are these images advanced and magnified, in the which is no utility nor profit at all, and the worshipping of the which properly pertaineth to the Gentiles and Heathen, and fuch as know not God."

Thus far St. Jerome's words. Whereupon you may note as well his judgment of images themselves, as also of the painting, gilding, and decking of them: that it is an error which came from the Gentiles, that it persuadeth religion to remain in riches, that it amazeth and deceiveth the simple and unlearned with golden sentences, and silver-shining eloquence, and that it appertaineth properly to the Gentiles and Heathens, and such as know not God. Wherefore the having, painting, gilding, and decking of images, by St. Jerome's judgment, is erroneous, seducing and bringing into error, (specially the simple and unlearned,) heathenish, and void of the knowledge of God.

Surely the Prophet Daniel, in the eleventh chapter, declareth fuch fumptuous decking of images with gold, filver, and precious flones, to be a token of Antichrist's kingdom, who (as the Prophet foresheweth) shall wor-

fhip God with fuch gorgeous things. Now usually such excessive adorning and decking of images hath risen and been maintained, either of offerings provoked by fuperstition and given in idolatry, or of spoils, robberies, usury, or goods otherwife unjufily gotten, whereof wicked men have given part to the images or faints, (as they call them) that they might be pardoned of the whole: as of divers writings and old monuments concerning the cause and end of certain great gifts, may well appear. And indeed fuch money, so wickedly gotten, is most meet to be put to fo wicked a use. And that which they take to be amends for the whole before God, is more abominable in his fight, than both the wicked getting, and the more wicked spending of all the rest. For how the Lord alloweth fuch gifts, he declareth evidently in the Prophet Isaiah, saying, I (saith the Lord) do love judgment, and I bate spoil and raveny offered in facrifice: which the very Gentiles understood. For Plato sheweth, that such men as fuppose that God doth pardon wicked men, if they give part of their spoils and rapine to him, take him to be like a dog, that would be entreated and hired with part of the prey, to fuffer the wolves to worry the sheep. And in case the goods, wherewith images be decked, were justly gotten, yet it is extreme madness, so foolishly and wickedly to beltow goods purchased by wisdom and Lib. ii. Inft. truth. Of fuch lewdness Lactantius writeth thus: "Men do in vain deck images of the gods with gold, ivory, and precious stone, as though they could take any pleasure in those things. For what use have they of precious gifts, which understand nor feel nothing? Even the same that dead men have. For with like reason do they bury dead bodies, farced with spices and odours, and clothed with precious vestures, and deck images, which neither felt nor knew when they were made, nor understand when they be honoured, for they get no fense and understanding by their confecration." Thus far Lactantius, and much more, too long here to rehearfe, declaring, that as little girls play with little puppets, fo be thefe decked images great puppets for old fools to play with. And that we may know what, not only men of our religion, but Ethnicks also, judge of such decking of dead images, it is not unprofitable to hear what Seneca, a wife and excellent learned fenator of Rome, and philosopher, faith concerning the foolishness of ancient and grave men, used in his time in worshipping and decking of images: "We (faith Seneca) be not twice children, (as the common fay-

ing is) but always children: but this is the difference, that we being elder, play the children: and in these plays they bring in before great and well-decked puppets (for fo he calleth images) ointments, incense, and odours. To these puppets they offer up facrifice, which have a mouth, but not the use of teeth. Upon these they put attiring and precious apparel, which have no use of clothes. To these they give gold and silver, which they who receive it (meaning the images) lack, as well as they that have given it from them." And Seneca much commendeth Dionysius, king of Sieily, for his merry robbing of fuch decked and jewelled puppets. But you will ask, what doth this appertain to our images, which is written against the idols of the Gentiles? Altogether furely. For what use or pleasure have our images of their decking and precious ornaments? Did our images understand when they were made? or know when they be fo trimmed and decked? Be not these things bestowed upon them as much in vain, as upon dead men, which have no fense? Wherefore it followeth, that there is like foolishnefs and lewdnefs in decking of our images, as great puppets for old fools, like children, to play the wicked play of idolatry, as was before among the Ethnicks and Gen-Our churches stand full of such great puppets, wondroufly decked and adorned; garlands and coronets be fet on their heads, precious pearls hanging about their necks; their fingers shine with rings, fet with precious stones; their dead and stiff bodies are clothed with garments stiff with gold. You would believe that the images of our men-faints were some princes of Persia land with their proud apparel, and the idols of our women-faints were nice and well-trimmed harlots, tempting their paramours to wantonness: whereby the faints of God are not honoured, but most dishonoured, and their godliness, soberness, chastity, contempt of riches, and of the vanity of the world, defaced and brought in doubt by fuch monstrous decking, most differing from their fober and godly lives. And because the whole pageant must throughly be played, it is not enough thus to deck idols, but at last come in the priests themselves, likewife decked with gold and pearl, that they may be meet fervants for fuch lords and ladies, and fit worshippers of fuch gods and goddeffes. And with a folemu pace they pass forth before there golden puppets, and fall down to the ground on their marrow-bones before their honourable idols; and then rifing up again, offer up odours and incenfe ad Ser. muin Hi de rice co tho l. iv. C. 17.

incense unto them, to give the people an example of double idolatry, by worshipping not only the idal, but the gold also, and riches, wherewith it is garnished. Which things, the most part of our old martyrs, rather than they would do, or once kneel, or offer up one er imb of incense before an image, suffered most cruel and terrible deaths, as the histories of them at large do declare. And Greg. Epist. here again their allegation out of Gregory the first and Damascen, that images be the laymen's books, and that El. Damas, pictures are the scripture of idiots and simple persons, is worthy to be confidered. For as it hath been touched in divers places before, how they be books teaching nothing but lies, as by St. Paul in the first chapter to the Romans evidently appeareth, of the images of God; fo what manner of books and feripture these painted and gilt images of faints be unto the common people, note well I pray you. For after that our preachers shall have instructed and exhorted the people to the following of the virtues of the faints, as contempt of this world, poverty, fobernefs, chastity, and fuch like virtues, which undoubtedly were in the faints; think you, as foon as they turn their faces from the preacher, and look upon the graven books and painted feripture of the glorious gilt images and idols, all thining and glittering with metal and stone, and covered with precious vestures, or else with Chærea in Terence, behold a painted table, wherein is fet forth by the art of the painter, an image, with a nice and wanton apparel and countenance, more like to Venus or Flora, than Mary Magdalen; or if like to Mary Magdalen, it is when the played the harlot, rather than when the wept for her fins; -when, I fay, they turn about from the preacher, to these books and set oolmassers, and painted feriptures, shall they not find them lying books? teaching other manner of lesions, of esteeming of riches, of pride, and vanity in apparel, of niceness and wantonness, and peradventure of whoredom, as Chærea of like pictures was taught. And in Lucian, one learned of Venus Gnidia a lesson too abominable here to be remembered. Be not thefe, think you, pretty books and feriptures for fimple people, and especially for wives and young maidens to look in, read on, and learn fuch leffons of? What will they think either of the preacher, who taught them contrary lesions of the faints, and therefore by these carved doctors are charged with a lie, or of the faints themfelves, if they believe these graven books and painted feriptures of them, who make the faints, now reigning in heaven heaven with God, to their great dishonour, schoolmasters of fuch vanity, which they in their life-time most abhorred? For what leftons of contempt of riches, and vanity of this world, can fuch books, fo befmeared with gold, fet with precious flones, covered with filks, teach? What leffons of foberness and chastity can our women learn of these pictured scriptures, with their nice apparel and wanton looks? But away, for shame, with these coloured cloaks of idolatry, of the books and scriptures of images and pictures to teach idiots, nay, to make idiots and flark fools and beafts of Christians. Do men, I pray you, when they have the same books at home with them, run on pilgrimage to feek like books at Rome, Compostella, or Jerusalem, to be taught by them, when they have the like to learn at home? Do men reverence fome books, and despite and fet light by other of the same fort? Do men kneel before their books, light candles at noontime, burn incense, offer up gold and filver, and other gifts, to their books? Do men either feign or believe miracles to be wrought by their books? I am fure that the New Testament of our Saviour Jesus Christ, containing the word of life, is a more lively, express, and true image of our Saviour, than all carved, graven, molten, and painted images in the world be; and yet none of all these things he done to that book or scripture of the Gospel of our Saviour, which be done to images or pictures, the books and fcriptures of laymen and idiots, as they call them. Wherefore, call them what they lift, it is most evident by their deeds, that they make of them no other books nor feripture, than fuch as teach most filthy and horrible idolatry, as the users of fuch books daily prove by continual practifing the fame. O books and feriptures, in the which the devilish schoolmaster, Satan, hath penned the lewd lessons of wicked idolatry, for his dastardly disciples and scholars to behold, read, and learn, to God's most high difhonour, and their most horrible damnation. Have not we been much bound, think you, to those which should have taught us the truth out of God's Book and his holy Scripture, that they have thut up that Book and Scripture from us, and none of us fo bold as once to open it, or read in it? and instead thereof, to spread us abroad these goodly, carved, and gilded books and painted seriptures, to teach us such good and godly lessons? Have not they done well, after they ceased to ftand in pulpits themselves, and to teach the people committed to their instruction, keeping silence of God's word, and become dumb dogs, (as the Prophet calleth them) to fet up in their stead, on every pillar and corner of the church, fuch goodly doctors, as dumb, but more wicked than themselves be? We need not to complain of the lack of one dumb parfon, having fo many dumb devilish vicars (I mean these idols and painted puppets) to teach in their flead. Now in the mean feafon, whilft the dumb and dead idols stand thus decked and clothed, contrary to God's law and commandment, the poor Christian people, the lively images of God, commended to us fo tenderly by our Saviour Christ, as most dear to him, stand naked, shivering for cold, and their teeth chattering in their heads, and no man covereth them, are pined with hunger and thirst, and no man giveth them a penny to refresh them; whereas pounds be ready at all times (contrary to God's will) to deck and trim dead stocks and stones, which neither feel cold, hunger, nor thirff.

Clemens hath a notable fentence concerning this matter, faying thus; "That ferpent the devil doth by the mouth of certain men utter these words; We, for the bonour of the invisible God, do worship visible images: which doubtless is most false. For if you will truly honour the image of God, you shall, by doing well to man, honour the true image of God, in him. For the image of God is in every man: but the likeness of God is not in every one, but in those only which have a godly heart and pure mind. If you will therefore truly honour the image of God, we do declare to you the truth, that ye do well to man, who is made after the image of God, that you give honour and reverence to him, and refresh the hungry with meat, the thirfly with drink, the naked with clothes, the fick with attendance, the stranger harbourless with lodging, the prisoners with necessaries: and this shall be accounted as truly bestowed upon God. And these things are so directly appertaining to God's honour, that whofoever doth not this, shall feem to have reproached and done villany to the image of God. For what honour of God is this, to run to images of flock and stone, and to honour vain and dead sigures of God, and to despise man, in whom is the true image of God?" And by and by after he faith, "Understand ye therefore that this is the fuggestion of the serpent Satan, lurking within you, which perfuadeth you that you are godly, when you honour infentible and dead images, and that you be not ungodly, when you hurt or leave unfuccoured coured the lively and reasonable creatures." All these be the words of Clemens.

Note, I pray you, how this most ancient and learned doctor, within one hundred years of our Saviour Christ's time, most plainly teacheth, that no service of God, or religion acceptable to him, can be in henouring of dead images; but in succouring of the poor, the lively images of God, according to St. James, who saith, This is the pure and true religion before God the Father, to succour fatherless and motherless children, and widows in their affliction, and to keep himself undefiled from this world.

True religion then, and pleasing of God, standeth not in making, fetting up, painting, gilding, clothing and decking of dumb and dead images, (which be but great puppets and babies for old fools in dotage, and wicked idolatry, to dally and play with,) nor in kiffing of them, capping, kneeling, offering to them, incenting of them, fetting up of candles, hanging up of legs, arms, or whole bodies of wax before them, or praying and atking of them, or of faints, things belonging only to God to give. But all these things be vain and abominable, and most damnable before God. Wherefore all such do not only bestow their money and labour in vain; but with their pains and cost purchase to themselves God's wrath and utter indignation, and everlasting damnation both of body and foul. For ye have heard it evidently proved in these homilies against idolatry, by God's word, the doctors of the church, ecclefiastical histories, reason and experience, that images have been and be worshipped, and so idolatry committed to them by infinite multitudes, to the great offence of God's majesty, and danger of infinite souls; and that idolatry cannot possibly be separated from images set up in churches and temples, gilded and decked glorioully, and that therefore our images be indeed very idols, and fo all the prohibitions, laws, curfes, threatenings of horrible plagues, as well temporal as eternal, contained in the holy Scripture, concerning idols and the makers and maintainers, and worshippers of them, appertain also to our images fet up in churches and temples, and to the makers, maintainers, and worshippers of them. And all those names of abomination, which God's word in the holy Scriptures giveth to the idols of the Gentiles, appertain to our images, being idols like to them, and having like idolatry committed unto them. And God's own mouth in the holy Scriptures calleth them vanities, chief, and abomination before the Lord. Wherefore God's horrible wrath, and our most dreadful danger cannot be avoided, without the deflruction and utter abolishing of all images and idols out of the church and temple of God, which to accomplish, God put in the minds of all Christian princes. And in the mean time, let us take heed and be wife, O ye beloved of the Lord, and let us have no ftrange gods, but one only God, who made us when we were John xvii. nothing, the Father of our Lord Jefus Christ, who redeemed us when we were loft, and with his holy Spirit doth fanctify us. For this is life everlasting, to know him to be the only true God, and Jefus Christ, whom he hath fent. Let us honour and worship for religion's fake none but him; and him let us worship and honour as he will himfelf, and hath declared by his word; that he will be honoured and worshipped, not in nor by images or idols, which he hath most strictly forbidden, neither in kneeling, lighting of candles, burning of incenfe, offering up of gifts unto images and idols, to believe that we shall please him; for all these be abomination before God: but let us honour and worship God in spirit and in truth, fearing and loving him above all things, truffing in him only, calling upon him, and praying to him only, praising and lauding of him only, and all other in him, and for him. For fuch worshippers doth our heavenly Father love, who is a most pure Spirit, and therefore will be worshipped in fpirit and in truth. And fuch worshippers were Abraham, Moses, David, Elias, Peter, Paul, John, and all other the holy Patriarchs, Prophets, Apostles, Martyrs, and all true Saints of God, who all, as the true friends of God, were enemies and destroyers of images and idols, as the enemies of God and his true religion. Wherefore take heed and be wife, O ye beloved of the Lord, and that which others, contrary to God's word, bestow wickedly, and to their damnation, upon dead flocks and stones (no images, but enemies of God and his faints) that beflow ye, as the faithful fervants of God, according to God's word, mercifully upon poor men and women, fatherless children, widows, fick persons, ftrangers, prisoners, and fuch others that be in any neceffity, that ye may, at that great day of the Lord, hear that most blessed and comfortable saying of our Saviour

Christ: Come, ye bleffed, into the kingdom of my Father, prepared for you before the beginning of the world. For I was bungry, and ye gave me meat; thirfly, and ye gave me drink; naked, and ye clothed me; barbourlefs, and ye lodged me; in prison, and ye visited me; sick, and ye comforted me. For what-sower ye have done for the peor and needy in my name, and for my sake, that have ye done for me. To the which his heavenly kingdom, God the Father of mercies bring us, for Jesus Christ's sake, our only Saviour, Mediator, and Advocate, to whom with the Holy Ghost, one immortal, invisible, and most glorious God, be all honour, and thanksgiving, and glory, world without end. Amen.

AN

HOMILY

FOR

Repairing and keeping clean, and comely adorning of Churches.

TT is a common cuftom used of all men, when they intend to have their friends or neighbours to come to their houses to cat or drink with them, or to have any folemn affembly to treat and talk of any matter, they will have their houses, which they keep in continual reparations, to be clean and fine, left they should be counted fluttish, or little to regard their friends and neighbours. How much more then ought the house of God, which we commonly call the church, to be fufficiently repaired in all places, and to be honourably adorned and garnished, and to be kept clean and fweet, to the comfort of the people that shall refort thereunto!

It appeareth in the holy Scripture, how God's house, which was called his holy temple, and was the mother church of all Jewry, fell fometimes into decay, and was oftentimes profaned and defiled, through the negligence and ungodliness of such as had the charge thereof. But when godly kings and governors were in place, then commandment was given forthwith, that the church and temple of God should be repaired, and the devotion of the people to be gathered for the reparation of the fame. 2 Kings xii. We read in the fecond Book of the Kings, how that King

Joas, being a godly prince, gave commandment to the priefts to convert certain offerings of the people towards the reparation and amendment of God's temple.

Like commandment gave that most godly King Josias, concerning the reparation and re-edification of God's temple, which in his time he found in fore decay. hath pleafed Almighty God, that thefe histories touching the

the re-edifying and repairing of his holy temple, should be written at large, to the end we should be taught thereby; first, that God is well pleased, that his people should have a convenient place to refort unto, and to come together, to praife and magnify God's holy name. And fecondly, he is highly pleafed with all those, which diligently and zealously go about to amend and restore fuch places as are appointed for the congregation of God's people to refort unto, and wherein they humbly and jointly render thanks to God for his benefits, and with one heart and voice praise his holy name. Thirdly, God was fore displeased with his people, because they builded, decked, and trimmed up their own houses, and suffered God's house to be in ruin and decay, to lie uncomely and fulfomely. Wherefore God was fore grieved with them, and plagued them, as appeareth in the Prophet Haggai. Thus faith the Lord: Is it time for you to dwell in your Haggai i. ceiled houses, and the Lord's house not regarded? Ye have forced much, and gathered in but little; your meat and your clothes have neither filled you, nor made you warm; and be that had his wages, put it in a bottomless purse. By these plagues, which God laid upon his people for neglecting of his temple, it may evidently appear, that God will have his temple, his church, the place where his congregation shall refort to magnify him, well edified, well repaired, and well maintained. Some, neither regarding godliness, nor the place of godly exercise, will say, the temple in the old law was commanded to be built and repaired by God himfelf, because it had great promises annexed unto it, and because it was a figure, a facrament, or a fignification of Christ, and also of his church. To this may be eafily answered; first, that our churches are not destitute of promises, forasmuch as our Saviour Christ faith, Where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst among them. A great number therefore coming to church together in the name of Chrift, have there, that is to fay in the church, their God and Saviour Jefus Chrift, prefent among the congregation of his faithful people, by his grace, by his favour and godly affiftance, according to his most affured and comfortable promifes. Why then ought not Christian people to build them temples and churches, having as great promifes of the presence of God, as ever had Solomon for the material temple, which he did build? As touching the other point, that Solomon's temple was a figure of Christ: we know that now in the time of the clear light of Christ Jesus, 0 2

the Son of God, all fludows, figures, and fignifications are utterly gone, all vain and unprofitable ceremonies, both Jewish and Heathenish, fully abolished. And therefore our churches are not fet up for figures and fignifications of Messiahs and Christ to come, but for other godly and necessary purposes; that is to fay, that like as every man hath his own house to abide in, to refresh himself in, to rest in, with fuch like commodities; fo Almighty God will have his house and place, whither the whole parish and congregation shall refort, which is called the church and temple of God, for that the church, which is the company of God's people, doth there affemble and come together to ferve him. Not meaning hereby, that the Lord, whom the heaven of heavens is not able to hold or comprise, doth dwell in the church of lime and flone, made with man's hands, as wholly and only contained there within, and no where else; for so he never dwelt in Solomon's temple. Moreover, the church or temple is counted and called holy, yet not of itself, but because God's people reforting thereunto are holy, and exercise themselves in holy and heavenly things. And to the intent ye may understand further, why churches were built among Christian people, this was the greatest consideration; that God might have his place, and that God might have his time, duly to be honoured and ferved of the whole multitude in the parish: first, there to hear and learn the bleffed word and will of the everlasting God. Secondly, that there the bleffed facraments, which our Lord and Saviour Chrift Jefus hath ordained and appointed, flould be duly, reverently, and decently ministered. Thirdly, that there the whole multitude of God's people in the parish should with one voice and heart call upon the name of God, magnify and praise the name of God, render earnest and hearty thanks to our heavenly Father for his heap of benefits daily and plentifully poured upon us, not forgetting to beliew our alms upon God's poor, to the intent God may blefs us the more richly. Thus ye may well perceive and understand wherefore churches were built and fet up amongst Christian people, and dedicated and appointed to these godly uses, and wholly exempted from all filthy, profane, and worldly uses. Wherefore all they that have little mind or devotion to repair and build God's temple, are to be counted people of much ungodliness, spurning against good order in Christ's church, despising the true honour of God, with evil examples offending and hindering their neighbours, other-

wife well and godly difpofed. The world thinketh it but a trifle to fee their church in ruin and decay. But whofo doth not lay to their helping hands, they fin against God and his holy congregation. For if it had not been fin to neglect and flightly regard the re-edifying and building up again of his temple, God would not have been fo much grieved, and fo foch have plagued his people, because they builded and decked their own houses so gorgeously, and despised the house of God their Lord. It is fin and fliame to fee to many churches to ruinous, and fo foully decayed, almost in every corner. If a man's private house, wherein he dwelleth, be decayed, he will never cease till it be restored up again. Yea, if his barn, where he keepeth his corn, be out of reparations, what diligence useth he to make it in perfect thate again! If his stable for his horse, yea, the sty for his swine, be not able to hold out water and wind, how careful is he to do cost thereon! And shall we be so mindful of our common base houses, deputed to so vile employment, and be forgetful towards the house of God, wherein be treated the words of our eternal falvation, wherein be ministered the facraments and mysteries of our redemption? The fountain of our regeneration is there prefented unto us, the partaking of the body and blood of our Saviour Christ is there offered unto us; and shall we not esteem the place, where fo heavenly things are handled? Wherefore, if ye have any reverence to the service of God, if ye have any common honesty, if ye have any conscience in keeping of neceffary and godly ordinances, keep your churches in good repair, whereby ye shall not only please God, and deserve his manifold bleflings, but also deserve the good report of all godly people.

The fecond point, which appertaineth to the maintenance of God's house, is to have it well adorned, and comely and clean kept: which things may be the more easily reformed, when the church is well repaired. For like as men are well refreshed and comforted, when they find their houses having all things in good order, and all corners clean and fweet; so when God's house, the church, is well adorned, with places convenient to sit in, with the pulpit for the preacher, with the Lord's table for the ministration of his holy supper, with the font to christen in, and also is kept clean, comely, and sweetly, the people are more desirous and the more comforted to refort thither, and to tarry there the whole time appointed them. With what earnestness, with what vehement

Matt. xxi. zeal did our Saviour Christ drive the buyers and sellers out of the temple of God, and hurled down the tables of the changers of money, and the feats of the dove-fellers, and could not abide any man to carry a veffel through the temple! He told them, that they had made his Father's house a den of thieves, partly through their superfittion, hypocrify, falle worthip, falle doctrine, and infatiable covetoniness, and partly through contempt, abusing that place with walking and talking, with worldly matters without all fear of God, and due reverence to that place. What dens of thieves the churches of England have been made by the blatphemous buying and felling the most precious body and blood of Christ in the mass, as the world was made to believe, at diriges, at months minds, at trentalls, in abbeys and chantrie, beside other horrible abuses, (God's holy name be blessed for ever) which we now fee and understand. All these abominations they that fupply the room of Christ have cleanfed and purged the churches of England of, taking away all fuch fulfomeness and sithiness, as through blind devotion and ignorance hath crept into the church these many hundred years. Wherefore, O ye good Christian people, ye dearly beloved in Christ Jesus, ye that glory not in worldly and vain religion, in fantattical adorning and decking, but rejoice in heart to fee the glory of God truly fet forth, and the churches restored to their ancient and godly use, render your hearty thanks to the goodness of Almighty God, who hath in our days flirred up the hearts, not only of his godly preachers and ministers, but also of his faithful and most Christian magistrates and governors, to bring fuch godly things to pass.

And forafinich as your churches are feoured and fwept from the finful and fuperfittious filthinets, wherewith they were defiled and disfigured, do ye your parts, good people, to keep your churches comely and clean; fuffer them not to be defiled with rain and weather, with dung of doves and owls, fiares and choughs, and other filthinets, as it is foul and lamentable to behold in many places of this country. It is the houte of prayer, not the house of talking, of walking, of brawling, of minfirelfy, of hawks, and dogs. Provoke not the displeasure and plagues of God, for despising and abusing his holy house, as the wicked Jews did. But have God in your heart, be obedient to his blessed will, bind yourselves every man and woman to your power toward the reparations and clean keeping of the church, to the intent that ye may be par-

takers of God's manifold bleffings, and that ye may be the better encouraged to refort to your parish-church, there to learn your duty towards God and your neighbour, there to be present and partakers of Christ's holy sacraments, there to render thanks to your heavenly Father for the manifold benefits, which he daily poureth upon you, there to pray together, and to call upon God's holy name, which be bleffed world without end. Amen.

Good Works. And first, of Fasting.

THE life which we live in this world, good Christian people, is of the free benefit of God lent us, yet not to use it at our pleasure, after our own fleshly will, but to trade over the fame in those works which are befeeming them that are become new creatures in Christ. works the Apostle calleth good works, faying, We are God's workmanship, created in Christ Jesus to good works, which God bath ordained, that we should walk in them. And yet his meaning is not by these words to induce us to have any affiance, or to put any confidence in our works, as by the merit and deferving of them to purchate to ourselves and others remission of sin, and so consequently everlasting life; for that were mere blasphemy against God's mercy, and great derogation to the bloodshedding of our Saviour Jesus Christ. For it is of the free grace and mercy of God, by the mediation of the blood of his Son, Jefus Chrift, without merit or deferving on our part, that our fins are forgiven us, that we are reconciled and brought again into his favour, and are made Aug. de Di-heirs of his heavenly kingdom: Grace, saith St. Auver. Quant. gustine, belonging to God, who doth call us; and then lib,i.quæft. hath he good works, who foever receiveth grace. Good works then bring not forth grace, but are brought forth by grace. The wheel, faith he, turneth round, not to the end that it may be made round; but because it is first made round, therefore it turneth round. So, no man doth good works, to receive grace by his good works; but because he hath first received grace, therefore consequently quently he doth good works. And in another place he Aug. de faith, Good works go not before in him which shall after-Fide ct Ward be justified; but good works do follow after, when a cap. 4. man is first justified. St. Paul therefore teacheth, that we must do good works for divers respects: first, to shew ourselves obedient children unto our heavenly Father, who hath ordained them, that we should walk in them. Secondly, for that they are good declarations and telli-monies of our juffification. Thirdly, that others, feeing our good works, may the rather by them be stirred up and excited to glorify our Father which is in heaven. Let us not therefore be flack to do good works, feeing it is the will of God that we should walk in them, afturing ourselves that at the last day every man shall receive of God for his labour done in true faith, a greater reward than his works, have deferved. And because somewhat shall now be spoken of one particular good work, whose commendation is both in the Law and in the Gospel, thus much is faid in the beginning generally of all good works: first, to remove out of the way of the simple and unlearned this dangerous stumbling-block, that any man should go about to purchase or buy heaven with his works. Secondly, to take away, fo much as may be, from envious minds and flanderous tongues, all just occafion of flanderous speaking, as though good works were rejected. This good work which now thall be treated of is fasting, which is found in the Scriptures to be of two forts; the one outward, pertaining to the body; the other inward, in the heart and mind. This outward fast is an abitinence from meat, drink, and all natural food, yea from all delicious pleasures and delectations worldly. When this outward fast pertaineth to one particular man, or to a few, and not the whole number of the people, for causes which hereafter shall be declared, then it is called a private fast: but when the whole multitude of men, women, and children, in a township or city, yea through a whole country, do fast, it is called a public fast. Such was that fast which the whole multitude of the children of Israel were commanded to keep the tenth day of the feventh mouth, because Almighty God appointed that day to be a cleanfing day, a day of atonement, a time of reconciliation, a day wherein the people were cleanfed from their fins. The order and manner how it was done is written in the fixteenth and twenty-third chapters of Levit. xvi. Leviticus. That day the people did lament, mourn, weep, and xxiii.

and bewail their former fins. And whofoever upon that day did not humble his foul, bewailing his fins, as is faid, abitaining from all bodily food until the evening, that foul (faith the Almighty God) should be destroyed from among his people. We do not read that Mofes ordained, by order of law, any days of public fast throughout the whole year, more than that one day. The Jews notwithflanding had more times of common faffing, which Zach. viii. the Prophet Zachary reciteth to be the fast of the fourth, the fast of the fifth, the fast of the seventh, and the fast of the tenth month. But for that it appeareth not in the Law when they were instituted, it is to be judged, that those other times of fasting, more than the fast of the seventh month, were ordained among the Jews, by the appointment of their governors, rather of devotion, than by an express commandment given from God. Upon the ordinance of this general fast, good men took occasion to appoint to themselves private fasts, at such times as they did either earneftly lament and bewail their finful lives, or did addict themselves to more fervent prayer, that it might pleafe God to turn his wrath from them, when either they were admonished and brought to the confideration thereof by the preaching of the Prophets, or otherwife when they faw prefent danger to hang over their heads. This forrowfulness of heart, joined with faffing, they uttered fometimes by their outward behaviour and gesture of body, putting on sackcloth, sprinkling themtelves with ashes and dust, and fitting or lying upon the earth. For when good men feel in themselves the heavy burthen of fin, fee damnation to be the reward of it, and behold with the eye of their mind the horror of hell, they tremble, they quake, and are inwardly touched with forrowfulness of heart for their offences, and cannot but accuse themselves, and open this their grief unto Almighty God, and call unto him for mercy. This being done feriously, their mind is so occupied, partly with forrow and heaviness, partly with an earnest defire to be delivered from this danger of hell and damnation, that all defire of meat and drink is laid apart, and loathfomeness of all worldly things and pleafure cometh in place; fo that nothing then liketh them more, than to weep, to lament, to mourn, and, both with words and behaviour of body, to flew themselves weary of this life. Thus did David fast, when he made intercession to Almighty God for the child's life, begotten in adultery of Bathsheba, Uriah's wife.

wife. King Ahab fasted after this fort, when it repented him of murdering of Naboth, bewailing his own finful doings. Such was the Ninevites fast, brought to repentance by Jonas preaching. When forty thousand of the Ifraelites were flain in battle against the Benjamites, the Scripture faith, All the children of Ifrael, and the whole Judges xx. multitude of the people, went to Bethel, and fate there weeping before the Lord, and fasted all that day till night. So did Daniel, Efther, Nehemiah, and many others in the Old Testament, fast. But if any man will fay, it is true, so they fasted indeed; but we are not now under the yoke of the Law, we are fet at liberty by the freedom of the Gospel; therefore those rites and customs of the old Law bind not us, except it can be shewed by the Scriptures of the New Testament, or by examples out of the same, that fasting now under the Gospel is a restraint of meat, drink, and all bodily food and pleasures from the body, as before. First, that we ought to fast, is a truth more manifest, than that it should here need to be proved; the Scriptures which teach the fame are evident. The doubt therefore is, whether, when we fast, we ought to withhold from our bodies all meat and drink during the time of our fast, or no? That we ought fo to do, may be well gathered upon a question moved by the Pharifees to Christ, and by his answer again to the same. Why (say they) do John's dif-Luke v. ciples fast often, and pray, and we likewife? But thy difciples cat and drink, and fast not at all. In this smooth question they couch up subtilly this argument or reason: Whoso fasteth not, that man is not of God: for fasting and prayer are works both commended and commanded of God in the Scriptures; and all good men, from Mofes till this time, as well the Prophets as others, have exercifed themselves in these works. John also and his difciples at this day do fast oft, and pray much; and so do we the Pharifees in like manner: but thy disciples fast not at all, which if thou wilt deny, we can eafily prove it. For whofoever eateth and drinketh, fasteth not. Thy disciples eat and drink, therefore they fast not. Of this we conclude, fay they, necessarily, that neither art thou, nor yet thy disciples, of God. Christ maketh answer, faying, Can ye make that the children of the wedding shall fast, while the Bridegroom is with them? The days shall come, when the Bridegroom shall be taken from them: in those days shall they fast. Our Saviour Christ, like a good mafter, defendeth the innocency of his disciples against the malice of the arrogant Pharifees, and proveth that his disciples are not guilty of transgressing any jot of God's Law, although as then they safed, and in his answer reproveth the Pharisees of superstition and ignorance. Superstition, because they put a religion in their doings, and ascribed holiness to the outward work wrought, not regarding to what end sasting is ordained. Of ignorance, for that they could not discern between time and time. They knew not that there is a time of rejoicing and mirth, and a time again of lamentation and mourning, which both he teacheth in his answer, as shall be touched more largely hereafter, when we shall shew what time is most sit to saft in.

But here, beloved, let us note, that our Saviour Christ, in making his answer to their question, denied not, but confessed that his disciples fasted not, and therefore agreeth to the Pharifees in this, as unto a manifest truth, that whofo eateth and drinketh, fasteth not. Fasting then, even by Christ's assent, is a withholding of meat, drink, and all natural food from the body, for the determined time of fasting. And that it was used in the primitive church, appeareth most evidently by the Chalcedon council, one of the four first general councils. The fathers assembled there, to the number of fix hundred and thirty, confidering with themselves how acceptable a thing fasting is to God, when it is used according to his word; again, having before their eyes also the great abuses of the same crept into the church at those days, through the negligence of them which should have taught the people the right use thereof, and by vain glosses devised of men; to reform the faid abuses, and to restore this so good and godly a work to the true use thereof, decreed in that council, that every perfon, as well in his private as public fast, should continue all the day without meat and drink, till after the evening prayer. And whofoever did eat or drink before the evening prayer was ended, should be accounted and reputed not to confider the purity of his fast. This canon teacheth fo evidently how fatting was used in the primitive church, as by words it cannot be more plainly expressed.

Fasting then, by the decree of those fix hundred and thirty fathers, grounding their determination in this matter upon the facred Scriptures, and long continued usage or practice, both of the Prophets and other godly persons before the coming of Christ, and also of the Apostles and other devout men in the New Testament, is a withholding of meat, drink, and all natural food from the body, for the determined time of fafting. Thus much is spoken hitherto to make plain unto you what fasting is. Now hereafter shall be shewed the true and right use of fasting.

Good works are not all of one fort. For fome are of themselves, and of their own proper nature always good: as to love God above all things, to love thy neighbour as thyfelf, to honour thy father and mother, to honour the higher powers, to give to every man that which is his due, and fuch like. Other works there be, which confidered in themselves, without further refpect, are of their own nature merely indifferent, that is, neither good nor evil, but take their denomination of the use or end whereunto they serve. Which works having a good end, are called good works, and are fo indeed; but yet that cometh not of themselves, but of the good end, whereunto they are referred. On the other fide, if the end that they ferve unto be evil, it cannot then otherwife be, but that they must needs be evil also. Of this fort of works is faffing, which or itself is a thing merely indifferent; but it is made better or worfe by the end that it ferveth unto. For when it respecteth a good end, it is a good work; but the end being evil, the work ittelf is allo evil. To fast then with this perfuasion of mind, that our fasting and our good works can make us perfect and just men, and finally bring us to heaven, is a devilish perfuation; and that fast is to far off from pleasing of God, that it refuieth his mercy, and is altogether derogatory to the merits of Christ's death, and his precious bloodfhedding. This doth the parable of the Pharifee and the Publican teach. Two men (faith Christ) went up together Luke xviii. into the temple to pray; the one a Pharifee, the other a Publican. The Pharifee flood and prayed thus with bimfelf: I thank thee, O God, that I am not as other men are, extortioners, unjust, adulterers, and as this Publican is: I fast twice in the week, I give tithes of all that I poffefs. The Publican flood afar off, and would not lift up his eyes to heaven; but smote his breast, and said, God be merciful to me a finner. In the person of this Pharisee, our Saviour Christ setteth out to the eye and to the judgment of the world, a perfect, just, and righteous man, such a one as is not spotted with those vices that men commonly are infected with; extortion, bribery, polling and pilling their neighbour, robbers and spoilers of commonweals, crafty and fubtil in chopping and changing, using false weights, and detestable perjury in their buying and felling, forni-

no fuch man, neither faulty in any fuch like notorious crime. But where other transgressed by leaving things undone, which yet the Law required, this man did more than was requifite by the Law: for he fasted twice in the week, and gave tithes of all that he had. What could the world then juftly blame in this man? Yea, what outward thing more could be defired to be in him, to make him a more perfect and a more just man? Truly, nothing by man's judgment: and yet our Saviour Christ preferreth the poor Publican without fafting, before him with his fast. The cause why he doth so is manifest; for the Publican having no good works at all to trust unto, yielded up himself unto God, confessing his sins, and hoped certainly to be faved by God's free mercy only. The Pharifee gloried and truffed fo much to his works, that he thought himself sure enough without mercy, and that he should come to heaven by his fasting, and other deeds. To this end ferveth that parable; for it is fpoken to them that trusted in themselves, that they were righteous, and despised others. Now, because the Pharisee direceth his works to an evil end, feeking by them justification, which indeed is the proper work of God without our merits, his fafting twice in the week, and all his other works, though they were never fo many, and feemed to the world never to good and holy, yet in very deed before God they are altogether evil and abominable. The mark alfo, that the hypocrites shoot at with their fast, is, to appear holy in the eye of the world, and fo to win commendation and praife of men. But our Saviour Christ faith of them, they have their reward; that is, they have praise and commendation of men, but of God they have none at all. For whatfoever tendeth to an evil end is itfelf, by that evil end, made evil alfo. Again, fo long as we keep ungodlinefs in our hearts, and fuffer wicked thoughts to tarry there, though we fail as oft as did either St. Paul or John Baptist, and keep it as strictly as did the Ninevites, yet shall it be not only unprofitable to us, but alfo a thing that greatly difpleafeth Almighty God. For he faith that bis foul abborreth and hateth fuch fastings, yea, thy are a burthen unto bim, and he is weary of bearing them. And therefore he inveigheth most sharply against Ifaiah Iviii. them, faying by the mouth of the Prophet Ifaiah, Bebold, when you fast, your lust remaineth still, for ye do no less vio-tence to your debtors. Lo, ye fast to stripe and debate, and to finite with the fift of wickedness. Now we shall not fall

thus, that you may make your voice to be heard above. Think ye this fast pleaseth me, that a man should chasten bimself for a day? Should that be called a fasting, or a day that pleaseth the Lord? Now, dearly beloved, seeing that Almighty God alloweth not our fast for the work's sake, but chiefly respecteth our heart, how it is affected, and then esteemeth our fast either good or evil, by the end that it serveth for; it is our part to rend our hearts, and not our garments, as we are advertised by the Prophet Joel; that is, our forrow and mourning must be inward in Joel is heart, and not in outward shew only; yea, it is requisite that sirst, before all things, we cleanse our hearts from sin, and then direct our fast to such an end as God will allow to be good.

There be three ends, whereunto if our fast be directed, it is then a work profitable to us, and accepted of God.

The first is, to chastife the sless, that it be not too wanton, but tamed and brought in subjection to the spirit. This respect had St. Paul in his fast, when he said, I a Cor. ix. chastife my body, and bring it into subjection, left by any means it cometh to pass, that, when I have preached to others, I myfelf he found a cast-arvay.

The fecond, that the fpirit may be more earnest and fervent to prayer. To this end fasted the Prophets and Teachers that were at Antioch, before they sent forth Assaiii. Paul and Barnabas to preach the Gospel. The same two Apostles fasted for the like purpose, when they commended to God, by their earnest prayers, the congregations that were at Autioch, Pisidia, Iconium, and Assaiv.

Lystra, as we read in the Acts of the Apostles.

The third, that our fast be a testimony and witness with us before God, of our humble fubmission to his high Majesty, when we confess and acknowledge our fins unto him, and are inwardly touched with forrowfulness of heart, bewaiting the fame in the affliction of our bodies. These are the three ends or right uses of fasting. first belongeth most properly to private fasts: the other two are common, as well to public fasts, as to private: and thus much for the use of fasting Lord have mercy upon us, and give us grace, that while we live in this miferable world, we may through thy help bring forth this and fuch other fruits of the Spirit, commended and commanded in thy holy word, to the glory of thy name, and to our comforts, that, after the race of this wretched life, we may live everlaftingly with thee in thy heavenly kingdom, kingdom, not for the merits and worthiness of our works, but for thy mercies sake, and the merits of thy dear Son, Jesus Christ, to whom, with thee and the Holy Ghost, be all laud, honour, and glory, for ever and ever.

Amen.

The Second Part of the Homily of Fasting.

IN the former Homily, beloved, was shewed, that I among the people of the Jews, fasting, as it was commanded them from God by Mofes, was to abstain the whole day, from morning till night, from meat, drink, and all manner of food, that nouritheth the body; and that whoso tasted aught before the evening, on the day appointed to fasting, was accounted among them a breaker of his fast. Which order, though it feem flrange to some in these our days, because it hath not been fo generally used in this realm of many years past; vet that it was fo among God's people, (I mean the Jews) whom, before the coming of our Saviour Christ, God did vouchfafe to choose unto himself, a peculiar people above all other nations of the earth; and that our Saviour Christ fo understood it, and the Apostles after Christ's ascension did fo use it, was there sufficiently proved by the testimonies and examples of the holy Scriptures, as well of the New Testament, as of the Old. The true use of fafting was there also shewed. In this second part of this Homily shall be shewed, that no constitution or law made by man, for things which of their own proper nature be merely indifferent, can bind the confcience of Chriftian men to a perpetual observation and keeping thereof; but that the higher powers have full liberty to alter and change every fuch law and ordinance, either ecclefiaftical or political, when time and place shall require. But sirst an answer shall be made to a question that some may make, demanding what judgment we ought to have of fuch abstinences as are appointed by public order and laws made by princes, and by the authority of the magistrates, upon policy, not respecting any religion at all in the fame. As when any realm, in confideration of the maintaining of fither-towns bordering upon the feas, and for the increase of fishermen, of whom do fpring mariners to go upon the fea, to the furnishing of the navy of the realm, whereby not only commodities of other countries may be transported, but also may be a necessary desence to resist the invasion of the ad-

For the better understanding of this question, it is neceffary that we make a difference between the policies of princes, made for the ordering of their commonweals, in provision of things ferving to the most sure defence of their subjects and countries, and between ecclefiastical policies, in preferibing fuch works, by which, as by fecondary means, God's wrath may be pacified, and his mercy purchased. Positive laws made by princes, for conservation of their policy, not repugnant unto God's law, ought of all Christian subjects with reverence of the magistrate to be obeyed, not only for fear of punishment, but also, as the Apostle saith, for conscience fake. Conscience, I say, not of the thing, which of its own nature is indifferent, but of our obedience, which by the law of God we owe unto the magistrate, as unto God's minister. By which positive laws, though we fubjects, for certain times and days appointed, be restrained from some kinds of meats and drink, which Ged by his holy word hath left free to be taken and used of all men, with thanksgiving, in all places, and at all times; yet for that fuch laws of princes and other magistrates are not made to put holiness in one kind of meat and drink more than another, to make one day more holy than another, but are grounded merely upon policy, all fubjects are bound in conscience to keep them by God's commandment, who by the Apostle willeth all, without exception, to fubmit themselves unto the authority of the higher powers. And in this point concerning our duties which be here dwelling in England, environed with the fea, as we be, we have great occasion in reason to take the commodities of the water, which Almighty God by his divine Providence hath laid fo nigh unto us, whereby the increase of victuals upon the land may the better be spared and cherished, to the fooner reducing of victuals to a more moderate price, to the better fustenance of the poor. And doubtless he feemeth to be too dainty an Englishman, who considering the great commodities which may enfue, will not forbear fome piece of his licentious appetite upon the ordinance of his prince, with the confent of the wife of the realm. What good English heart would not wish that the old ancient glory should return to the realm, wherein it hath with great commendations excelled before our days, in the furniture of the navy of the fame? What will more daunt the hearts of the adverfaries, than to fee us well fenced and armed on the fea, as we be reported to be on the land? If the prince requested our obedience to forbear one day from flesh more than we do, and to be contented with one meal in the same day, should not our own commodity thereby persuade us to subjection? But now that two meals be permitted on that day to be used, which sometime our elders in very great numbers in the realm did use with one only spare meal, and that in fish only; shall we think it so great a burthen that is prescribed?

Furthermore, confider the decay of the towns nigh the feas, which should be most ready by the number of the people there to repulse the enemy; and we which dwell further off upon the land, having them as our buckler to defend us, should be the more in fafety. they be our neighbours, why should we not wish them to prosper? If they be our defence, as nighest at hand to repel the enemy, to keep out the rage of the feas, which elfe would break in upon our fair pastures, why should we not cherish them? Neither do we urge that in the ecclefiaftical policy, preferibing a form of fafting, to humble ourselves in the fight of Almighty God, that that order, which was used among the Jews, and practifed by Christ's Apostles after his ascension, is of such force and necessity, that that only ought to be used among Christians, and none other; for that were to bind God's people unto the yoke and burthen of Moses's policy; yea, it were the very way to bring us, which are fet at liberty by the freedom of Christ's Gospel, into the bondage of the Law again, which God forbid that any man should attempt or purpose. But to this end it ferveth, to flew how far the order of fasting now used in the church at this day differeth from that which was then used. God's church ought not, neither may it be so tied to that or any other order now made, or hereafter to be made and devised by the authority of man, but that it may lawfully, for just causes, alter, change, or mitigate those ecclesiaftical decrees and orders, yea, recede wholly from them, and break them, when they tend either to fupersition, or to impiety; when they draw the people from God, rather than work any edification in them. This authority Christ himself used, and left it to his church. He used it, I say, for the order or decree made by the elders for washing ofttimes, which was diligently diligently observed of the Jews; yet tending to superflition, our Saviour Christ altered and changed the same in his church, into a profitable facrament, the facrament of our regeneration, or new birth. This authority to mitigate laws and decrees ecclefiaffical, the Apostles practifed, when they, writing from Jerusalem unto the congregation that was at Antioch, fignified unto them, that Acts xv. they would not lay any further burthen upon them, but there necessaries: that is, that they should abstain from things offered unto idols, from blood, from that which is Ilrangled, and from fornication, notwithstanding that Mofes's law required many other observances. This authority to change the orders, decrees, and conflitutions of the church, was after the Apostles' time used of the fathers about the manner of fasting, as it appeareth in the Tripartite History, where it is thus written: "Touching Tripart. fasting, we find that it was diversely used in divers places, His. 1, ix. by divers men. For they at Rome fast three weeks to by divers men. For they at Rome fast three weeks together before Easter, faving upon the Saturdays and Sundays, which fast they call Lent." And after a few lines in the same place it followeth: "They have not all one uniform order in falling. For some do fast and abstain both from fish and flesh. Some, when they fast, eat nothing but fish. Others there are, which, when they fast, eat of all water-fowls, as well as of fish, grounding themfelves upon Mofes, that fuch fowls have their fubftance of the water, as the fishes have. Some others, when they fast, will neither eat herbs nor eggs. Some fasters there are, that eat nothing but dry bread. Others, when they fast, eat nothing at all, no, not so much as dry bread. Some fast from all manner of food till night, and then eat, without making any choice or difference of meats." And a thousand such like divers kinds of fasting may be found in divers places of the world, of divers men diverfely used. Euseb. lib. And for all this great diversity in fasting, yet charity, v. cap. 24. the very true bond of Christian peace, was not broken, neither did the diversity of fasting break at any time their agreement and concord in faith. To abstain sometimes from certain meats, not because the meats are evil, but because they are not necessary, this abstinence, Dogma faith St. Augustine, is not evil. And to restrain the use Ecclesiast, of meats when necessity and time shall require, this, faith c. 66. he, doth properly pertain to Christian men.

Thus ye have heard, good people, first that Christian subjects are bound even in conscience to obey princes' laws, which are not repugnant to the laws of God. Ye have also heard that Christ's church is not so bound to observe any order, law, or decree made by man, to preferibe a form in religion, but that the church hath full power and authority from God to change and alter the fame, when need shall require; which hath been shewed you by the example of our Saviour Christ, by the practice of the Apostles, and of the Fathers since that time.

Eccles. iii.

Now shall be shewed briefly what time is meet for fasting, for all times ferve not for all things: but, as the Wife Man faith, All things have their times. There is a time to weep, and a time again to laugh, a time to mourn, and a time to rejoice, &c. Our Saviour Christ excused his disciples, and reproved the Pharisees, because they neither regarded the use of fasting, nor considered what time was meet for the fame. Which both he teach-Matth. iz. eth in his answer, faying, The children of the marriage cannot mourn, while the bridegroom is with them. Their question was of fasting, his answer is of mourning, fignifying unto them plainly, that the outward fast of the body is no fast before God, except it be accompanied with the inward fast, which is a mourning and a lamentation of the heart, as is before declared. Concerning the time of fasting, he faith, The days will come, when the bridegroom shall be taken from them; in those days they fall fast. By this it is manifest, that it is no time of fasting while the marriage lasteth, and the bridegroom is Matth. vi. there prefent. But when the marriage is ended, and the bridegroom gone, then is it a meet time to fast. Now to make plain unto you what is the fenfe and meaning of these words, We are at the marriage, and again, The bridegroom is taken from us; ye shall note, that so long as God revealeth his mercy unto us, and giveth us of his benefits, either spiritual or corporal, we are said to be with the bridegroom at the marriage. So was that good old father Jacob at the marriage, when he understood that his fon Joseph was alive, and ruled all Egypt under King Pharaoh. So was David in the marriage with the bridegroom, when he had gotten the victory of great Goliath, and had fmitten off his head. Judith, and all the people of Bethulia, were the children of the wedding, and had the bridegroom with them, when God had by the hand of a woman flain Holofernes, the grand captain of the Affyrians hoft, and discomfitted all their enemies. Thus were the Apostles the children of the marriage, while Christ was corporally present with them, and defended them from all dangers, both spiritual and corporal. But the marriage is faid then to be ended, and the bridegroom to be gone, when Almighty God fmiteth us with affliction, and feemeth to leave us in the midst of a number of adversities. So God sometimes striketh private men privately with fundry advertities, as trouble of mind, loss of friends, loss of goods, long and dangerous ficknesses, &c. Then is it a sit time for that man to humble himself to Almighty God by fasting, and to mourn and bewail his fins with a forrowful heart, and to pray unfeignedly, faying with the Prophet David, Turn away thy face, O Lord, from my fins, and blot Pfal. li. out of thy remembrance all mine offences. Again, when God shall afflict a whole region or country with wars, with famine, with peftilence, with strange diseases and unknown ficknesses, and other fuch like calamities; then it is time for all states and forts of people, high and low, men, women, and children, to humble themfelves by fasting, and bewail their finful living before God, and pray with one common voice, faying thus, or some other such like prayer: Be favourable, O Lord, be favourable unto thy people, which turn unto thee, in weeping, fasting, and praying: Spare thy people, whom thou hast redeemed with thy precious blood, and suffer not thine inheritance to be destroyed, and brought to confusion. Fasting thus used with prayer is of great efficacy, and weigheth much with God. So the angel Raphael told Tobias. It also appeareth by that which our Saviour Christ anfwered to his disciples, demanding of him why they could not cast forth the evil spirit out of him that was brought unto them. This kind, faith he, is not cast out but by fasting and prayer. How available fasting is, how much it weigheth with God, and what it is able to obtain at his hand, cannot better be fet forth, than by opening unto you, and laying before you fome of those notable things, that have been brought to pass by it. Fasting was one of the means, whereby Almighty God was occasioned to alter the thing which he had purposed concerning Ahab, for murdering the innocent man Naboth, to posless his vineyard. God spake unto Elijab, faying, Go thy way, and Kingsxxi. fay unto Abab, Hast thou killed, and also gotten possession? Thus faith the Lord, In the place where dogs licked the blood of Naboth, Shall dogs even lick thy blood also. Bebold, I will bring evil upon thee, and will take away thy posterity: yea, the dogs shall eat him of Abab's stock that dieth in the city, and bim that dieth in the field shall the fowls of the air eat. This punishment hath Almighty God determined for Ahab in this world, and to deftroy all the male-kind that was begotten of Ahab's body, R 3

besides that punishment which should have happened unto him in the world to come. When Abab beard this, be rent his clothes, and put fackcloth upon him, and fasted, and lay in sackcloth, and went barefooted. Then the word of the Lord came to Elijah, faying, Seeft thou bow Ahab is bumbled before me? Because be submitteth himself before me, I will not bring that evil in his days; but in his fon's days will I bring it upon his boufe. Although Ahab, through the wicked counsel of Jezabel his wife, had committed fhameful murder, and against all right disinherited and dispossessed for ever Naboth's stock of that vineyard; yet upon his hum-ble submission in heart unto God, which he declared outwardly by putting on fackcloth and fasting, God changed his fentence, fo that the punishment which he had determined fell not upon Ahab's house in his time, but was deferred unto the days of Joram his fon. Here we may fee of what force our outward fast is, when it is accompanied with the inward fast of the mind, which is (as is faid) a forrowfulness of heart, detefting and bewailing our finful doings. The like is to be feen in the Ninevites: for when God had determined to destroy the whole city of Nineveh, and the time which he had appointed was even now at hand, he fent the Prophet Jonah to fay unto them, Yet forty days, and Nineveb shall be overthrown. people by and by believed God, and gave themselves to fasting; yea, the king, by the advice of his counsel, caused to be proclaimed, faying, Let neither man nor beaft, bullock nor sheep taste any thing, neither feed nor drink water: but let man and beaft put on fackcloth, and cry mightily unto God; yea, let every man turn from his evil way, and from the wickedness that is in their hands. Who can tell if God will turn and repent, and turn away from his fierce wrath, that we periff not? And upon this their hearty repentance, thus declared outwardly with fasting, renting of their clothes, putting on fackcloth, and sprinkling themselves with dust and ashes, the Scripture faith, God face their works, that they turned from their evil ways; and God repented of the evil that he bad faid he would do unto them, and he did it not. Now, beloved, ye have heard first what fasting is, as well that which is outward in the body, as that which is inward in the heart. Ye have heard also that there are three ends or purposes, whereunto if our outward fast be directed, it is a good work that God is pleafed with. Thirdly,

Thirdly, hath been declared, what time is most meet for to fast, either privately or publicly. Last of all, what things fasting hath obtained of God, by the examples of Ahab and the Ninevites. Let us therefore, dearly beloved, feeing there are many more causes of fasting and mourning in these our days, than have been of many years heretofore in any one age, endeavour ourselves both inwardly in our hearts, and also outwardly with our bodies, diligently to exercise this godly exercise of fasting, in fuch fort and manner, as the holy Prophets, the Apoftles, and divers other devout persons for their time used the fame. God is now the fame God that he was then; God that loveth righteoufness, and that hateth iniquity; God which willeth not the death of a finner, but rather that he turn from his wickedness and live; God that hath promifed to turn to us, if we refuse not to turn to him: yea, if we turn our evil works from before his eves, ceafe to do evil, learn to do well, feek to do right, relieve the oppressed, be a right judge to the fatherless, defend the widow, break our bread to the hungry, bring the poor that wander into our house, clothe the naked. and depife not our brother which is our own flesh; Then Shalt thou call, faith the Prophet, and the Lord Shall anfiver; thou shalt cry, and be shall fay, Here am I: yea, God, which heard Ahab and the Ninevites, and spared them. will also hear our prayers, and spare us so, that we, after their example, will unfeignedly turn unto him: yea, he will blefs us with his heavenly benedictions, the time that we have to tarry in this world, and, after the race of this mortal life, he will bring us to his heavenly kingdom, where we shall reign in everlasting blessedness with our Saviour Christ, to whom with the Father and the Holy Ghost be all honour and glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

HOMILY

AGAINST

Gluttony and Drunkenness.

TE have heard in the former Sermon, well-beloved, the description and the virtue of fasting, with the true use of the same. Now ye shall hear how foul a thing gluttony and drunkenness is before God, the rather to move you to use fasting the more diligently. Understand ye therefore, that Almighty God (to the end that we might keep ourselves undefiled, and serve him in holiness and righteoufness, according to his word) hath charged in his Scriptures to many as look for the glorious appearing of our Saviour Christ, to lead their lives in all sobriety, modesty, and temperance. Whereby we may learn how necessary it is for every Christian, that will not be found unready at the coming of our Saviour Christ, to live fober-minded in this prefent world, forafmuch as otherwife being unready, he cannot enter with Christ into glory: and being unarmed in this behalf, he must needs be in continual danger of that cruel adverfary, the roaring Lion, against whom the Apostle Peter warneth us to prepare ourselves in continual sobriety, that we may resist, being steadfast in faith. To the intent therefore that this foberness may be used in all our behaviour, it shall be expedient for us to declare unto you how much all kind of excess offendeth the Majesty of Almighty God, and how grievoully he punisheth the immoderate abuse of those his creatures, which he ordaineth to the maintenance of this our needy life, as meats, drinks, and apparel; and again, to show the noisome difeases and great mischiefs, that commonly do follow them that inordinately give up themselves to be carried headlong with such pleasures as are joined either with dainty and over-large fare, or elfe with coftly and fumptuous apparel. And

1 Pet. v.

And first, that ye may perceive how detestable and hateful all excess in eating and drinking is before the face of Almighty God, ye shall call to mind what is written by St. Paul to the Galatians, where he number-Galat. v. eth gluttony and drunkenness among those horrible crimes, with the which (as he faith) no man should inherit the kingdom of heaven. He reckoneth them among the deeds of the flesh, and coupleth them with idolatry, whoredom, and murder, which are the greatest offences that can be named among men. For the first fpoileth God of his honour; the fecond defileth his holy temple, that is to wit, our own bodies; the third maketh us companions of Cain in the flaughter of our brethren; and whoso committeth them, as St. Paul faith, cannot inherit the kingdom of God. Certainly, that fin is very odious and loathfome before the face of God, which caufeth him to turn his favourable countenance fo far from us, that he should clean bar us out of the doors, and difinherit us of his heavenly kingdom. But he fo much abhorreth all beaftly banquetting, that, by his Son our Saviour Christ in the Gospel, he declareth his terrible indignation against all belly-gods, in that he pronounceth them accurred, faying, Woe be to you that are full, for ye Luke vi. Shall bunger. And by the Prophet Isaiah he crieth out, Woe be to you that rife up early, to give yourselves to drunken- Isa. v. nefs, and fet all your mind fo on drinking, that you fit fwilling thereat until it be night. The harp, the lute, the shalm, and plenty of wine are at your feasts: but the works of the Lord ve do not behold, neither consider the works of his hands. Woe be unto you that are strong to drink wine, and are mighty to advance drunkenness. Here the Prophet plainly teacheth, that featling and banquetting make men forgetful of their duty towards God, when they give themselves to all kinds of pleafures, not confidering nor regarding the works of the Lord, who hath created meats and drinks, as St. Paul faith, to be received thankfully of them that I Tim. iv. believe and know the truth. So that the very beholding of these creatures (being the handy-work of Almighty God) might teach us to use them thankfully, as God hath ordained. Therefore they are without excuse before God, which either filthily feed themselves, not respecting the fanctification which is by the word of God and prayer, or elfe unthankfully abuse the good creatures of God by furfeiting and drunkenness, forasmuch as God's ordinances in his creatures plainly forbid it. They that give themselves therefore to bibbing and banquetting,

fuddenly oppressed in the day of vengeance. Therefore Christ faith to his disciples, Take beed to your felves, lest at any time your hearts be overcome with surfeiting and drunkenness, and cares of this world, and so that day come on you unawares. Wholoever then will take warning at Christ, let him take heed to himfelf, left his heart being overwhelmed by furfeiting, and drowned in drunkenness, he be taken unawares with that unthrifty fervant, which, thinking not on his master's coming, began to smite his fellowfervants, and to eat, and to drink, and to be drunken, and being fuddenly taken, hath his just reward with unbelieving hypocrites; they that use to drink deeply, and to feed at full, (wallowing themselves in all kind of wickedness) are brought asleep in that slumbering forgetfulness of God's holy will and commandments. Therefore Almighty God crieth by the Prophet Joel, Awake ye drunkards, weep and bowl all ye drinkers of wine, because the new wine shall be pulled from your mouth. Here the Lord terribly threateneth to withdraw his benefits from fuch as abuse them, and to pull the cup from the mouth of drunkards. Here we may learn, not to fleep in drunkenness and surfeiting, lest God deprive us of the use of his creatures, when we unkindly abuse them. For certainly the Lord our God will not only take away his benefits when they are unthankfully abused, but also, in his wrath and heavy displeasure, take vengeance on such as immoderately abuse them. If our first parents, Adam and Eve, had not obeyed their greedy appetite in eating the forbidden fruit, neither had they loft the fruition of God's benefits which they then enjoyed in Paradife, neither had they brought fo many mischiefs both to thenifelves, and to all their posterity. But when they passed the bounds that God appointed them, as unworthy of God's benefits, they are expelled and driven out of Paradife; they may no longer eat the fruits of that garden, which by excess they had so much abused. As transgressors of God's commandment, they and their posterity are brought to a perpetual shame and confusion; and as accurfed of God, they must now sweat for their living, which before had abundance at their pleafure: even fo, if we in eating and drinking exceed, when God of his large liberality fendeth plenty, he will foon change plenty into scarceness. And whereas we gloried in fulness, he will make us empty, and confound us with penury; yea, we shall be compelled to labour and travel with pains, in

feeking for that which we fometime enjoyed at eafe. Thus the Lord will not leave them unpunished, who, not regarding his works, follow the lufts and appetites of their own hearts. The Patriarch Noah, whom the Apo-2 Peter ii, file calleth the preacher of righteousness, a man exceed-Noah. ingly in God's favour, is in holy Scripture made an example, whereby we may learn to avoid drunkenness. For when he had poured in wine more than was convenient, in filthy manner he lay naked in his tent, his privities discovered. And whereas sometime he was so much esteemed, he is now become a laughing-stock to his wicked fon Cham, no fmall grief to Sem and Japhet, his other two fons, which were ashamed of their father's beaftly behaviour. Here we may note that drunkenness bringeth with it shame and derision, so that it never escapeth unpunished. Lot, in like manner being over-Lot. come with wine, committed abominable incest with his own daughters. So will Almighty God give over drunkards to the shameful lusts of their own hearts. Here is Lot by drinking fallen fo far befide himfelf, that he knoweth not his own daughters. Who would have thought that an old man in that heavy cafe, having loft his wife and all that he had, which had feen even now God's vengeance in fearful manner declared on the five cities for their vicious living, should be so far past the remembrance of his duty? But men overcome with drink are altogether mad, as Seneca faith. He was deceived Epist. 84. by his daughters: but now many deceive themselves, never thinking that God by his terrible punishments will be avenged on them that offend by excess! It is no small plague that Lot purchased by his drunkenness. For he had copulation most filthily with his own daughters, which conceived thereby, fo that the matter is brought to light; it can no longer be hid. Two inceftuous children are born, Ammon and Moab, of whom came two nations, the Ammonites and Moabites, abhorred of God, and cruel adversaries to his people the Israelites. Lo, Lot hath gotten to himfelf, by drinking, forrow and care, with perpetual infamy and reproach unto the world's end. If God spared not his fervant Lot, being otherwise a godly man, nephew unto Abraham, one that entertained the angels of God; what will he do to these beastly belly-flaves, which, void of all godliness or virtuous behaviour, not once, but continually day and night, give themselves wholly to bibbing and banquetting? But let us yet further behold the terrible examples of God's indignation dignation against such as greedily follow their unsatiable 2 Sam. xiii. lusts. Anmon the son of David, feasting himself with his brother Abfalom, is cruelly murdered of his own Judith xiii. brother. Holofernes, a valiant and mighty captain, being overwhelmed with wine, had his head ftricken from his shoulders by that filly woman Judith. Simon the high priefl, and his two fons, Mattathias and Judas, being entertained of Ptolemy the fon of Abobus, who had before married Simon's daughter, after much cating and drinking were traitorously murdered of their own kinfman. If the Ifraelites had not given themselves to belly-Exod. xxxii, cheer, they had never fo often fallen to idolatry. Neither would we at this day be so addicted to superstition, were it not that we fo much effeemed the filling of our The Ifraelites, when they ferved idols, fate down to eat and drink, and role again to play, as the Scripture reporteth; therefore feeking to ferve their bellies, they forfook the service of the Lord their God. So are we drawn to confent unto wickedness, when our hearts are overwhelmed by drunkenness and feasting. So Herod setting his mind on banquetting, was content to grant, that the Matt. xiv. holy man of God, John Baptist, should be beheaded at the request of his whore's daughter. Had not the rich glutton been fo greedily given to the pampering of his belly, he would never have been so unmerciful to the poor Lazarus, neither had he felt the torments of the unquenchable fire. What was the cause that God so horribly punished Sodom and Gomorrah? Was it not their proud banquetting and continual idlenefs, which caufed them to be so lewd of life, and so unmerciful towards the poor? What shall we now think of the horrible excess, whereby fo many have perithed, and been brought to Alexander, defiruction? The great Alexander, after that he had conquered the whole world, was himself overcome by drunkenness, infomuch that, being drunken, he slew his faithful friend Clitus, whereof, when he was fober, he was to much ashamed, that for anguish of heart he wished death. Yet notwithstanding, after this he left not his banquetting; but in one night fwilled in fo much wine, that he fell into a fever, and when as by no means he would abstain from wine, within few days after in miserable fort he ended his life. The conqueror of the whole world is made a flave by excefs, and becometh fo mad, that he murdereth his dear friend; he is plagued with forrow, thame, and grief of heart for his intemperance; yet can be not leave it; he is kept in captivity; and he, which fometime had subdued many, is become a subject to the vile belly. So are drunkards and gluttons altogether without power of themselves; and the more they drink, the drier they wax; one banquet provoketh another; they Rudy to fill their greedy Romachs. Therefore it is commonly said, A drunken man is always dry, and A glutton's gut is never filled. Unfatiable truly are the affections and lufts of man's heart, and therefore we must learn to bridle them with the fear of God, so that we yield not to our own lufts, left we kindle God's indignation against ourselves, when we seek to satisfy our beastly appetite. St. Paul teacheth us, whether we eat or drink, 1 Cor. x. or aubatsoever are do, to do all to the glory of God. Where he appointeth, as it were by a measure, how much a man may eat and drink: that is to wit, fo much that the mind be not made fluggish by eraniming in meat, and pouring in drink, so that it cannot lift up itself to the glory and praise of God. Whosoever he be then, that by eating and drinking maketh himself unsit to serve God, let him not think to escape unpunished.

Ye have heard how much Almighty God detesteth the abuse of his creatures, as he himself declareth, as well by his holy word, as also by the fearful examples of his just judgment. Now if neither the word of God can restrain our raging lusts and greedy appetites, neither the manifest examples of God's vengeance fear us from riotous and excessive eating and drinking, let us yet consider the manifold mifchiefs that proceed thereof, fo shall we know the tree by the fruits. It hurteth the body, it infecteth the mind, it wasteth the substance, and is noisome to the neighbours. But who is able to express the manifold dangers and inconveniences that follow of intemperate diet? Oft cometh fudden death by banquetting; fometimes the members are diffolved, and fo the whole body is brought into a miserable state. He that eateth and drinketh immeasurably, kindleth ofttimes such an unnatural heat in his body, that his appetite is provoked thereby to desire more than it should, or else it overcometh his stomach, and silleth all the body full of sluggishness, makes it unable and unfit to ferve either God or man, not nourishing the body, but hurting it; and last of all, bringing many kinds of incurable difeases, whereof enfueth fometimes desperate death. But what should I need to fay any more in this behalf? For except God blefs our meats, and give them strength to feed us; again, except God give strength to nature to digest, so that we may take profit by them, either shall we filthily vomit them up again, or else shall they lie stinking in our bodies, as in a loathsome sink and channel, and so diversely infect the whole body. And surely the blessing of God is so far from such as use riotous banquetting, that in their saces be sonctimes seen the express tokens of this intemperancy: as Solomon noteth in his Proverbs. To whom

Prov. xxiii. perancy: as Solomon noteth in his Proverbs. To whom is swee? faith he, to whom is forrow? To whom is flrife? To whom is brawling? To whom are wounds without cause? And for whom is the redness of eyes? Even to them that tarry long at the wine. Mark, I beseech you, the terrible tokens of God's indignation: woe and forrow, strife and brawling, wounds without cause, disfigured face, and redness of eyes, are to be looked for, when men set themselves to excess and gormandize, devising all means to increase their greedy appetites by tempering the wine, and saucing it in such fort, that it may be more delectable and pleasant unto them. It were expedient that such delicate persons should be ruled by Solomon, who, in consideration of the aforesaid inconveniences, for-Prov. xxiii. biddeth the very sight of wine. Look not upon the wine,

Prov. xxiii. biddeth the very fight of wine. Look not upon the wine, faith he, when it is red, and when it sheweth his colour in the cup, or goeth down pleasantly: for in the end thereof it will hite like a serpent, and hurt like a cockatrice. Thine eyes shall look upon strange women, and thine heart shall speak level things; and thou shalt be as one that sleepeth in speak level things; and thou shalt be as one that sleepeth in the midfl of the sea, and as he that sleepeth on the top of the mast. They have stricken me, thou shalt say, but I was not fick; they have beaten me, but I felt it not; therefore will I feek it yet still. Certainly that must needs be very hurtful which biteth and infecteth like a poisoned ferpent, whereby men are brought to filthy fornication, which causeth the heart to devise mischief. He doubtless is in great danger that fleepeth in the midst of the sea, for soon he is overwhelmed with waves. He is like to fall fuddenly that fleepeth on the top of the maft. And furely he hath loft his fenfes, that cannot feel when he is stricken, that knoweth not when he is beaten. So, furfeiting and drunkenness bites by the belly, and causeth continual gnawing in the stomach, brings men to whoredom and lewdness of heart, with dangers unspeakable; so that men are bereaved and robbed of their fenses, and are altogether without power of themselves. Who seeth not now the miferable estate, whereinto men are brought by thefe foul filthy moniters, gluttony and drunkenness? The body is fo much disquieted by them, that as Jesus

the fon of Sirach affirmeth, The infatiable feeder never Ecclus. fleepeth quietly, fuch an unmeasurable beat is kindled, xxxi. whereof ensueth continual ache and pain to the subole body. And no less truly the mind is also annoyed by furfeiting banquets: for fometimes men are stricken with frenzy of mind, and are brought in like manner to mere madnefs; fome wax fo brutish and blockish, that they become altogether void of understanding. It is an horrible thing that any man should main himself in any member: but for a man of his own accord to bereave himfelf of his wits, is a mifchief intolerable. The Prophet Hofea, in the fourth chapter, faith, that Wine and drunkennefs take Hofea iv. away the heart. Alas then, that any man should yield unto that, whereby he might bereave himself of the posfession of his own heart. Winc and women lead wife men out of the way, and bring men of understanding to reproof and shame, faith Jesus the son of Sirach. Yea, he asketh, Ecclus.xix. what is the life of man that is overcome with drunkenness. Wine drunken with excess maketh bitterness of mind, Ecclus. and causeth brawling and strife. In magistrates it causeth xxxi. cruelty instead of justice, as that wife philosopher Plato perceived right well, when he affirmed, that a drunken man hath a tyrannous heart, and therefore will rule at his pleasure, contrary to right and reason. And certainly drunkenness maketh men forget both law and equity, which caused King Solomon fo strictly to charge that 110 Prov. xxxii. wine should be given unto rulers, lest peradventure by drinking they forget what the law appointeth them, and fo change the judgment of all the children of the poor. Therefore among all forts of men, excessive drinking is most intolerable in a magistrate or man of authority, as Plato faith: for a drunkard knoweth not where he is De Repub. himfelf. If then a man of authority should be a drunk-lib. iii. ard, alas! how might he be a guide unto other men, standing in need of a governor himself! Besides this, a drunken man can keep nothing fecret: many fond, foolish, and filthy words are spoken, when men are at their banquets. Drunkenness, as Seneca affirmeth, discovereth all wickedness, and bringeth it to light; it removeth all shamefastness, and increaseth all mischief. The proud man, being drunken, uttereth his pride, the cruel man his cruelty, and the envious man his envy, so that no vice can lie hid in a drunkard. Moreover, in that he knoweth not himfelf, he fumbleth and flammereth in his speech, staggereth to and fro in his going, beholding nothing fleadfastly with his staring eyes, believeth that the house runneth round about him. It is evident that the mind is brought clean out of frame by exceffive drinking, to that subofoever is deceived by wine or strong drink, becometh, as Solomon faith, a mocker, or madman, fo that be can never be wife. If any man think that he may drink much wine, and yet be well in his wits, he may as well suppose, as Seneca faith, that when he hath drunken poifon, he shall not die. For wherefoever excessive drinking is, there must needs follow perturbation of mind; and where the belly is stuffed with dainty fare, there the mind is oppressed with slothful sluggishness. A full belly maketh a grofs understanding, faith St. Bernard, and much meat maketh a weary mind. But alas, now-adays, men pass little either for body or mind; so they have worldly wealth and riches abundant to fatisfy their unmeafurable lufts, they care not what they do. They are not ashamed to shew their drunken faces, and to play the madman openly. They think themselves in good case, and that all is well with them, if they be not pinched by lack and poverty. Lest any of us therefore might take occasion to flatter himself in this beastly kind of excefs, by the abundance of riches, let us call to mind what Solomon writeth in the twenty-first of his Proverbs, He that loveth wine and fat fare, shall never be rich, faith

he. And in the twenty-third chapter he maketh a vehe-Prov. xxiii. ment exhortation on this wife: Keep not company with drunkards and gluttons, for the glutton and drunkard shall come to poverty.

He that draweth his patrimony through his throat, and eateth and drinketh more in one hour, or in one day, than he is able to earn in a whole week, must needs be an unthrift, and come to beggary. But some will say, what need any to find fault with this? He hurteth no man but himfelf, he is no man's foe but his own. Indeed I know this is commonly spoken in defence of these beaftly belly-gods: but it is eafy to fee how hurtful they are, not only to themselves, but also to the commonwealth, by their example. Every one that meeteth them is troubled with brawling and contentious language, and ofttimes raging in beaftly lusts, Like high-fed borfes, they neigh on their neighbours voives, as Jeremy faith, and defile their children and daughters. Their example is evil to them among whom they dwell; they are an occasion of offence to many; and whilft they walte their fubflance in banquetting, their own household is not provided of things necessary, their wives and their children are evilly treated, ed, they have not wherewith to relieve their poor neighbours in time of necessity, as they might have, if they lived foberly. They are unprofitable to the commonwealth: for a drunkard is neither fit to rule, nor to be ruled. They are a flander to the church or congregation of Christ, and therefore St. Paul doth excommunicate i Cor. v. them among whoremongers, idolaters, covetous persons, and extortioners, forbidding Christians to eat with any fuch. Let us therefore, good people, eschew, every one of us, all intemperancy, let us love fobriety and moderate diet, oft give ourselves to abstinency and fasting, whereby the mind of man is more lifted up to God, more ready to all godly exercifes, as prayer, hearing and reading God's word, to his spiritual comfort. Finally, whosoever regardeth the health and fafety of his own body, or wisheth always to be well in his wits, or defireth quietness of mind, and abhorreth fury and madness, he that would be rich, and escape poverty, he that is willing to live without the hurt of his neighbour, a profitable member of the commonwealth, a Christian without slander of Christ and his church, let him avoid all riotous and excessive banquetting, let him learn to keep fuch meafure as behoveth him that professeth true godliness, let him follow St. Paul's rule, and fo eat and drink to the glory and praise of God, who hath created all things to be foberly used with thankfgiving, to whom be all honour and glory for ever. Amen.

HOMILY

AGAINST

Excess of Apparel.

HEREAS ye have heretofore been excited and flirred to use temperance of meats and drinks, and to avoid the excess thereof, many ways hurtful to the flate of the commonwealth, and fo odious before Almighty God, being the author and giver of fuch creatures, to comfort and stablish our frail nature with thanks unto him, and not by abusing of them to provoke his liberality to fevere punishing of that disorder. In like manner it is convenient, that we be admonished of another foul and chargeable excess: I mean of apparel, at these days so gorgeous, that neither Almighty God by his word can flay our proud curiofity in the fame, neither yet godly and necessary laws, made by our princes, and oft repeated with the penaltics, can bridle this deteftable abuse, whereby both God is openly contemned, and the prince's laws manifefly disobeyed, to the great peril of the realm. Wherefore, that fobriety also in this excess may be espied among us, I shall declare unto you, both the moderate use of apparel, approved by God in his holy word, and also the abuses thereof, which he forbiddeth and difalloweth, as it may appear by the inconveniences which daily increase, by the just judgment of God, where that measure is not kept, which he himself hath appointed. If we confider the end and purpose whereunto Almighty God hath ordained his creatures, we shall easily perceive that he alloweth us apparel, not only for necessities fake, but also for an houest comeliness. Even as in herbs, trees, and fundry fruits, we have not only divers neeeffary uses, but also the pleasant sight and fweet finell, to delight us withal, wherein we may behold the fingular love of God towards mankind, in that he hath provided both to relieve our necessities, and also to refresh our senses with an honest and moderate recreation. Therefore David, in the hundred and fourth Pfalm, Pfal. civ. confessing God's careful providence, sheweth that God not only provideth things necessary for men, as herbs and other meats, but also such things as may rejoice and comfort, as wine to make glad the beart, oils and ointments to make the face to shine. So that they are altogether past the limits of humanity, who, yielding only to necessity, forbid the lawful fruition of God's benefits. With whose traditions we may not be led, if we give ear to St. Paul, writing to the Coloffians, willing them not to hearken Coloff. ii. unto fuch men as shall fay, Touch not, taste not, bandle not; superstitiously bereaving them of the fruition of God's creatures. And no less truly ought we to beware, lest, under pretence of Christian liberty, we take licence to do what we lift, advancing ourselves in sumptuous apparel, and despising others, preparing ourselves in fine bravery, to wanton, lewd, and unchaste behaviour. To the avoiding whereof, it behoveth us to be mindful of four leffons, 4 Leffons. taught in holy Scripture, whereby we shall learn to temper ourselves, and to restrain our immoderate affections, to that measure which God hath appointed. The first is, that we make not provision for the flesh, to accomplish Rom. xiii. the lufts thereof, with coftly apparel, as that harlot did, of whom Solomon speaketh, Proverbs vii. which perfumed Prov. vii. ber bed, and decked it with costly ornaments of Egypt, to the fulfilling of her leved lust: but rather ought we by moderate temperance to cut off all occasions, whereby the flesh might get the victory. The second is written by St. Paul, in the feventh chapter of his first Epistle to the Co- 1 Cor. vii. rinthians, where he teacheth us to use this world as though we used it not: whereby he cutteth away not only all ambition, pride, and vain pomp in apparel; but also all inordinate care and affection, which withdraweth us from the contemplation of heavenly things, and confideration of our duty towards God. They that are much occupied in caring for things pertaining to the body, are most commonly negligent and careless in matters concerning the foul. Therefore our Saviour Christ willeth us not to Matt. vi. take thought what we shall eat, or what we shall drink, or wherewith we shall be clothed; but rather to feek the kingdom of God, and the righteoufness thereof. Whereby we may learn to beware, left we use those things to our hindrance, which God hath ordained for our comfort and furtherance towards his kingdom. The third is, that we 3.

take in good part our estate and condition, and content ourselves with that which God sendeth, whether it be much or little. He that is assumed of base and simple attire, will be proud of gorgeous apparel, if he may get it. We must learn therefore of the Apostie St. Paul both Phil. iv to use plenty, and also to suffer penury, remembering that we must yield accounts of those things which we have received unto him who abhorreth all excess, pride, oftentation, and vanity, who also utterly condemneth and difalloweth whatfoever draweth us from our duty towards God, or diminisheth our charity towards our neighbours and children, whom we ought to love as ourfelves. The fourth and last rule is, that every man behold and consider his own vocation, in as much as God hath appointed every man his degree and office, within the limits whereof it behoveth him to keep himself. Therefore all may not look to wear like apparel, but every one according to his degree, as God hath placed him. Which, if it were observed, many one doubtless should be compelled to wear a ruffet-coat, which now ruffleth in filks and velvets, fpending more by the year in fumptuous apparel, than their fathers received for the whole revenue of their lands. But alas, now-a-days, how many may we behold occupied wholly in pampering the flesh, taking no care at all, but only how to deck themselves, setting their affection altogether on worldly bravery, abusing God's goodnefs when he fendeth plenty, to fatisfy their wanton lusts, having no regard to the degree wherein God hath Deut, xxix, placed them. The Ifraelites were contented with fuch apparel as God gave them, although it were base and fimple. And God fo bleffed them, that their shoes and clothes lasted them forty years; yea, and those clothes, which their fathers had worn, their children were contented to use afterwards. But we are never contented, and therefore we prosper not; so that most commonly he that ruffleth in his fables, in his fine furred gown, corked flippers, trim buskins, and warm mittens, is more ready to chill for cold, than the poor labouring man, which can abide in the field all the day long, when the north wind blows, with a few beggarly clouts about him. We are loth to wear fuch as our fathers have left us; we think not that fufficient or good enough for us. We must have one gown for the day, another for the night; one long, another fhort; one for winter, another for fummer; one of that colour; one of cloth, another of filk or damask. We must have change of apparel, one afore dinner, and another after; one of the Spanish fashion, another Turkey: and to be brief, never content with fufficient. Our Saviour Christ bade his disciples they should not have two coats: Matt. x. but the most men, far unlike to his scholars, have their presses so full of apparel, that many know not how many forts they have. Which thing caused St. James to pronounce this terrible curfe against such wealthy worldlings: Go to, ye rich men; weep and bowl on your wretched- James v. nels that shall come upon you: your riches are corrupt, and your garments are moth-eaten: ye have lived in pleasure on the earth, and in wantonness; ye have nourished your hearts, as in the day of flaughter. Mark, I befeech you, St. James calleth them miferable, notwithstanding their riches and plenty of apparel, forafmuch as they pamper their bodies to their own destruction. What was the Luke xvi. rich glutton the better for his fine fare and costly apparel? Did not he nourish himself to be tormented in hellfire? Let us learn therefore to content ourselves, having food and raiment, as St. Paul teacheth, left, defiring to be 1 Tim. vi. enriched with abundance, we fall into temptations, fnares, and many noisome lusts, which drown men in perdition and destruction. Certainly, such as delight in gorgeous apparel are commonly puffed up with pride, and filled with divers vanities. So were the daughters of Sion and people of Jerusalem, whom Isaiah the Prophet threaten-Isaii. eth, because they walked with stretched-out necks and wandering eyes, mincing as they went, and nicely treading with their feet, that Almighty God would make their heads bald, and discover their secret shame. In that day, faith he, shall the Lord take away the ornament of the Suppers, and the cauls, and the round attires, and the favect balls, and the bracelets, and the attires of the head, and the flops, and the head-bands, and the tablets, and the ear-rings, the rings, and the mufflers, the coftly apparel, and the veils, and coimples, and the crifping-pins, and the glaffes, and the fine linen, and the boods, and the lawns. So that Almighty God would not fuffer his benefits to be vainly and wantonly abused, no not of that people whom he most tenderly loved, and had chosen to himself before all other. No lefs truly is the vanity that is used among us in these days. For the proud and haughty flomachs of the daughters of England are so maintained with divers disguised forts of costly apparel, that, as Tertullian, an an-Apolog. cient father, faith, there is left no difference in apparel con. Genbetween tes, c. 6.

between an honest matron and a common strumpet. Yea, many men are become fo effeminate, that they care not what they fpend in difguifing themselves, ever defiring new toys, and inventing new fashions. Therefore a certain man, that would picture every countryman in his accustomed apparel, when he had painted other nations, he pictured the Englishman all naked, and gave him cloth under his arm, and bade him make it himfelf as he thought best, for he changed his fashion so often, that he knew not how to make it. Thus with our fantastical devices we make ourselves laughing-stocks to other nations; while one spendeth his patrimony upon pounces and cuts, another bestoweth more on a dancing shirt, than might fuffice to buy him honest and comely apparel for his whole body. Some hang their revenues about their necks, ruffling in their ruffs, and many a one jeopardeth his best joint, to maintain himself in sumptuous raiment. And every man, nothing confidering his estate and condition, feeketh to excel other in costly attire. Whereby it cometh to pass, that, in abundance and plenty of all things, we yet complain of want and penury, while one man spendeth that which might serve a multitude, and no man distributeth of the abundance which he hath received, and all men excessively waste that which should ferve to supply the necessities of other. There hath been very good provision made against fuch abuses, by divers good and wholesome laws; which if they were practifed as they ought to be of all true fubjects, they might in some part serve to diminish this raging and riotous excefs in apparel: but, alas! there appeareth amongst us little fear and obedience, either of God or man. Therefore must we needs look for God's fearful vengeance from heaven, to overthrow our prefumption and pride, as he overthrew Herod, who in his royal apparel, forgetting God, was finitten of an angel, and eaten up of worms. Ly which terrible example, God hath taught us, that we are but worms meat, although we pamper ourtelves never fo much in gorgeous apparel.

Ecclus. i.

Here we may learn that which Jesus the son of Sirach teacheth, not to be proud of clothing and raiment, neither to exalt ourselves in the day of bonour. because the works of the Lord are wonderful and glorious, secret and unknown, teaching us with hambleness of mind, every one to be mindful of the vocation whereunto God bath called him. Let Christians therefore endeavour themselves to quench the care of pleasing the sleth, let us use the benesits of God in this world.

world, in fuch wife, that we be not too much occupied in providing for the body. Let us content ourselves quietly with that which God fendeth, be it never fo little. And if it pleafe him to fend plenty, let us not wax proud thereof, but let us use it moderately, as well to our own comfort, as to the relief of such as stand in necessity. He that in abundance and plenty of apparel bideth his face from bim that is naked, despiseth bis own flesh, as Ifaiah the Pro-Isa. Iviii. phet faith. Let us learn to know ourselves, and not to despise others; let us remember that we stand all before the majesty of Almighty God, who shall judge us by his holy word, wherein he forbiddeth excess, not only to men, but also to women. So that none can excuse themfelves, of what estate or condition soever they be. Let us therefore present ourselves before his throne, as Tertullian exhorteth, with the ornaments which the Apostle speaketh of, Ephesians the fixth chapter, baving our loins Ephes. vi. girt about with verity, having the breast-plate of righteousness, and shod with shoes prepared by the gospel of peace. Let us take unto us simplicity, chastity, and comeliness, submitting our necks to the fiveet yoke of Christ. Let women be fub-Matt. xi. ject to their husbands, and they are sufficiently attired, faith Tertullian. The wife of one Philo, an Heathen philofopher, being demanded why she wore no gold, she answered, that she thought her husband's virtues suffieient ornaments. How much more ought Christian women, instructed by the word of God, to content themfelves in their husbands! Yea, how much more ought every Christian to content himself in our Saviour Christ, thinking himself sufficiently garnished with his heavenly virtues! But it will be here objected, and faid of some nice and vain women, that all which we do in painting our faces, in dying our hair, in embalming our bodies, in decking us with gay apparel, is to please our husbands, to delight his eyes, and to retain his love toward us. O vain excuse, and most shameful answer, to the reproach of thy husband. What couldst thou more fay to fet out his foolishness, than to charge him to be pleased and delighted with the Devil's attire? Who can paint her face, and curl her hair, and change it into an unnatural colour, but therein doth work reproof to her Maker, who made her? As though flie could make herfelf more comely than God hath appointed the measure of her beauty. What do these women, but go about to reform that which God hath made? not knowing that all things natural are the work of God, and things difguifed and $ 4 unnatural unnatural are the works of the Devil: and as though a wife and Christian husband should delight to see his wife in fuch painted and flourished visages, which common harlots mon do use, to train therewith their lovers to naughtinets; or, as though an honeft woman could delight to be like an harlet for pleafing of her hufband. Nay, nay, these be but vain excuses of such as go about to please rather others than their husbands. And such attires be but to provoke her to shew herfelf abroad, to entice others: a worthy matter. She must keep debate with her hufband to maintain fuch apparel, whereby the is the worfe housewife, the feldomer at home to fee her charge, and fo neglect his thrift, by giving great provocation to her household to waste and wantonness, while fhe must wander abroad to shew her own vanity, and her hutband's foolifhnets. By which her pride, the ftirreth up much envy of others, which he as vainly delighted as flie is. She doth but deferve mocks and feoris, to fet out all her commendation in Jewish and Ethnie apparel, and yet brag of her Christianity. She doth but waste superfluoufly her hufband's flock by fuch fumptuoufnefs, and fometimes the is the cause of much bribery, extortion, and deceit, in her hufband's dealings, that flie may be the more gorgeously fet out to the fight of the vain world, to pleafe the Devil's eyes, and not God's, who giveth to every creature fufficient and moderate comeliness, wherewith we should be contented, if we were of God. What other thing dost thou by those means, but provokest others to tempt thee, to deceive thy foul, by the bait of thy pomp and pride? What elfe doft thou, but fetteft out thy pride, and makest of the undecent apparel of thy body, the Devil's net, to eatch the fouls of them which behold thee? O thou woman, not a Christian, but worse than a Paynim, thou minister of the Devil! why pamperest thou that carrion flesh so high, which sometimes doth flink and rot on the earth as thou goest? Howfoever thou perfumest thyself, yet cannot thy beastlines be hidden, or overcome with thy finells and favours, which do rather deform and misshape thee, than beautify thee. What meant Solomon to fay of fuch trimming of vain women, when he faid, A fair woman, without good man-ners and conditions, is like a fow which hath a ring of gold upon her frout; but that the more thou garnish thyself with these outward blazings, the less thou carest for the inward garnishing of thy mind, and so dost but deform thyfelf by fuch array, and not beautify thyfelf? Hear, hear, what Christ's holy Apostles do write: Let not the 1 Pet, iii. outward apparel of women, faith St. Peter, be decked with the braiding of bair, with wrapping on of gold, or goodly clothing: but let the mind and the confcience, which is not feen with the eyes, be pure and clean; that is, faith he, an acceptable and an excellent thing before God. For so the old ancient boly women attired themselves, and were obedient to their bufbands. And St. Paul faith, that Women fould : Tim. ii. apparel themselves with shamefacedness and soberness, and not with braids of their hair, or gold, or pearl, or precious clothes, but as reomen should do, which will express godlines by their good outward works. If ye will not keep the Apostles' precepts, at the least let us hear what Pagans, which were ignorant of Christ, have said in this matter: Democrates faith, "The ornament of a woman flandeth in fearcity of speech and apparel." Sophooles faith of fuch apparel thus; "It is not an ornament, O thou fool, but a fhame and a manifest shew of thy folly." Socrates faith, "That that is a garnishing to a woman which declareth out her honesty." The Grecians use it in a proverb, "It is not gold or pearl, which is a beauty to a woman, but good conditions."

And Aristotle biddeth that a woman should use less apparel than the law doth fuffer. For it is not the goodlinefs of apparel, nor the excellency of beauty, nor the abundance of gold, that maketh a woman to be esteemed, but modesty, and diligence to live honestly in all things. This outrageous vanity is now grown fo far, that there is no shame taken of it. We read in histories, that when King Dionysius fent to the women of Lacedæmon rich robes, they answered and faid, that they shall do us more shame than honour; and therefore refused them. women in Rome in old time abhorred that gay apparel which King Pyrrhus fent to them, and none were fo greedy and vain to accept them. And a law was openly made of the fenate, and a long time observed, that no woman should wear over half an ounce of gold, nor should wear clothes of divers colours. But perchance fome dainty dame will fay and answer me, that they must do fomething to shew their birth and blood, to shew their husband's riches: as though nobility were chiefly feen by these things, which be common to those which be most vile; as though thy hufband's riches were not better beflowed than in fuch superfluities; as though, when thou wast christened, thou didst not renounce the pride of this world, and the pomp of the flesh. I speak not against convenient apparel for every flate agreeable, but against the superfluity, against the vain delight to covet such vanities, to devife new fathions to feed thy pride with, to fpend fo much upon thy carcafe, that thou and thy hufband are compelled to rob the poor, to maintain thy costlinefs. Hear how that noble holy woman Queen Esther setteth out these goodly ornaments, (as they be called) when (in respect of faving God's people) she was compelled to put on fuch glorious apparel, knowing that it was a fit stale to blind the eyes of carnal fools. Thus she prayed: Thou knowell, O Lord, the necessity, which I am driven to, to put on this apparel, and that I abbor this fign of pride and of this glory which I bear on my head, and that I defy it as a filthy cloth, and that I wear it not when I am alone. Again, by what means was Holofernes deceived by the glittering shew of apparel, which that holy woman Judith did put on her, not as delighting in them, nor feeking vain voluptuous pleafure by them? But the ware it of pure necessity by God's dispensation, using this vanity to overcome the vain eyes of God's enemy. Such defire was in those noble women, being very loth and unwilling otherwise to wear fuch fumptuous apparel, by the which others should be caused to forget themselves. These be commended in Scripture for abhorring fuch vanities, which by constraint and great necessity, against their hearts defire, they were compelled to wear them for a time. And shall fuch women be worthy commendations, which neither be comparable with these women aforesaid in nobility, nor comparable to them in their good zeal to God and his people, whose daily delight and feeking is to flourith in fuch gay shifts and changes, never satisfied, nor regarding who impreted for their apparel, fo they may come by it? O vain men, which be subjects to their wives in these inordinate affections! O vain women, to procure to much hurt to themselves, by the which they come the fooner to mifery in this world, and in the mean time be abhorred of God, hated and fcorned of wife men, and in the end like to be joined with fuch, who in hell, too late repenting themselves, shall openly complain with these words: What hath our pride profited us? Or what profit hath the pomp of riches brought us? All these things are passed away like a shadow. As for virtue, we did never flew any fign thereof: and thus we are confumed in our wickedness. If thou fayest that the custom is to be followed, and the use of the world doth compel thee to fuch curiofity; then I ask of thee, whose custom should be followed? wife folks manners, or fools? If thou fayest the wise; then I say, follow them: for sools customs, who should follow but sools? Consider that the consent of wife men ought to be alleged for a custom. Now if any lewd custom be used, be thou the first to break it, labour to diminish it and lay it down: and more laud before God, and more commendation shalt thou win by it, than by all the glory of such superfluity.

Thus ye have heard declared unto you, what God requireth by his word concerning the moderate use of his creatures. Let us learn to use them moderately, as he hath appointed. Almighty God hath taught us to what end and purpose we should use our apparel. Let us therefore learn so to behave ourselves in the use thereof, as becometh Christians, always shewing ourselves thankful to our heavenly Father for his great and merciful benefits, who giveth unto us our daily bread, that is to say, all things necessary for this our needy life: unto whom we shall render accounts for all his benefits, at the glorious appearing of our Saviour Christ: to whom with the Father and the Holy Ghott be all honour, praise, and glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

Concerning Prayer.

HERE is nothing in all man's life, well-beloved in our Saviour Christ, so needful to be spoken of, and daily to be called upon, as hearty, zealous, and devout prayer, the necessity whereof is so great, that without it nothing may be well obtained at God's hand. For as the Apostle James saith, Every good and perfect gift cometh from above, and proceedeth from the Father of lights; who is also said to be rich and liberal towards all them that call upon him, not because he either will not or cannot give without asking, but because he hath appointed prayer as an ordinary means between him and us. There is no doubt but he always knoweth what we have need of, and is always most ready to give abundance of those things that we lack.

Yet, to the intent we might acknowledge him to be the giver of all good things, and behave ourfelves thankfully towards him in that behalf, loving, fearing, and worshipping him fincerely and truly, as we ought to do, he hath profitably and wifely ordained, that in time of necessity we should humble ourselves in his fight, pour out the secrets of our heart before him, and crave help at his hands, with continual, earnest, and devout prayer. mouth of his holy Prophet David he faith on this wife: Call upon me in the days of thy trouble, and I will deliver Likewise in the Gospel, by the mouth of his wellbeloved Son Christ, he faith, Ask, and it shall be given you; knock, and it shall be opened : for whosover asketh, receiveth; who foever feeketh, findeth; and to him that knocketh, it shall be opened. St. Paul also most agreeably consenting hereunto, willeth men to pray every where, and to con- 1 Tim. ii. tinue therein with thank/giving. Neither doth the bleffed Phil. iv. Apostle St. James in this point any thing distent, but Col. v. earnestly exhorting all men to diligent prayer, saith, If Jam. i. any man lack wifdom, let bim ask it of God, which giveth liberally to all men, and reproacheth no man. Also in another place, Pray one for another, faith he, that ye may be Jam. v. bealed: for the righteous man's prayer availeth much, if it be fervent. What other thing are we taught by these and fuch other places, but only this, that Almighty God, notwithstanding his heavenly wisdom and foreknowledge, will be prayed unto, that he will be called upon, that he will have us no less willing on our part to ask, than he on his part is willing to give? Therefore most fond and foolish is the opinion and reason of those men, which therefore think all prayer to be fuperfluous and vain, because God searcheth the heart and the reins, and knoweth the meaning of the spirit before we ask. For if this fleshly and carnal reason were sufficient to disannul prayer, then why did our Saviour Christ so often cry to his disciples, Watch and pray? Why did he prescribe them a Luke xxii. form of prayer, faying, When ye pray, pray after this fort: Matt. vi. Our Father, which art in heaven, &c. Why did he pray fo often and fo earnestly himself before his passion? Finally, why did the Apostles, immediately after his ascen-Aasi. fion, gather themselves together into one several place, and there continue a long time in prayer? Either they must condemn Christ and his Apostles of extreme folly, or elfe they must needs grant, that prayer is a thing most necessary for all men, at all times, and in all places. Sure it is, that there is nothing more expedient or needful for mankind in all the world, than prayer. Pray always, faith St. Paul, with all manner of prayer and suppli- Ephef. vi. cation, and watch therefore with all diligence. Also in another place, be willeth us to pray continually, without any I Thess. v. intermission or ceasing; meaning thereby that we ought never to flack or faint in prayer, but to continue therein to our lives' end. A number of other fuch places might here be alleged of like effect, I mean, to declare the great neceffity and use of prayer: but what need many proofs in a plain matter? feeing there is no man fo ignorant but he knoweth, no man so blind but he seeth, that prayer is a thing most needful in all estates and degrees of men. For only by the help hereof we attain to those heavenly and everlasting treasures, which God our heavenly Father hath referved and laid up for his children in his dear and John xvi.

well-beloved Son Jefus Christ, with this covenant and promife most assuredly confirmed and sealed unto us, that, known, that our minds and hearts may be the more provoked and ffirred thereunto, let us briefly confider what wonderful strength and power it hath to bring strange and mighty things to pass. We read in the Book of Exedus, that Joshua, fighting against the Amalekites, did conquer and overcome them, not fo much by virtue of his own strength, as by the earnest and continual prayer of Mofes, who as long as he held up his hands to God, so long did Israel prevail; but when he fainted, and let his hands down, then did Amalek and his people prevail: infomuch that Aaron and Hur, being in the mount with him, were fain to flay up his hands until the going down of the fun, otherwise had the people of God that day been utterly discomsited, and put to flight. Also we read in another place of Joshua himself, how he at the belieging of Gibeon, making his humble petition to Almighty God, caused the fun and the moon to stay their course, and to fland still in the midst of heaven for the space of a whole day, until such time as the people were fufficiently avenged upon their enemies. 2 Chron.

And was not Jehosaphat's prayer of great force and ftrength, when God at his request caused his enemies to fall out among themselves, and wilfully to destroy one another? Who can marvel enough at the effect and virtue of Elijah's prayer? He, being a man subject to affections as we are, prayed to the Lord that it might not rain, and there fell no rain upon the earth for the space of three years and fix months. Again, he prayed that it might rain, and there fell great plenty, fo that the earth brought forth her increase most abundantly.

It were too long to tell of Judith, Efther, Sufannah, and of divers other godly men and women, how greatly they prevailed in all their doings, by giving their minds earnestly and devoutly to prayer. Let it be sufficient at this time to conclude with the fayings of Augustine and Chryfostom, whereof the one calleth prayer the key of Chryl. Sup. heaven; the other plainly affirmeth, that there is nothing Matt. xxii. in all the world more strong than a man that giveth him-

Now then, dearly beloved, feeing prayer is fo needful a thing, and of fo great strength before God, let us, according as we are taught by the example of Christ and his Apostles,

Apostles, be earnest and diligent in calling on the name of the Lord. Let us never faint, never flack, never give over; but let us daily and hourly, early and late, in feafon and out of feafon, be occupied in godly meditations and prayers. What if we obtain not our petitions at the first? Yet let us not be discouraged, yet let us continually cry and call upon God: he will furely hear us at length, if for no other cause, yet for very importunity's fake. Remember the parable of the unrighteous judge and the poor widow, Luke xviii. how the by her importunate means caufed him to do her justice against her adversary, although otherwise he feared neither God nor man. Shall not God much more avenge his cleet, faith our Saviour Christ, which cry unto him day and night? Thus he taught his disciples, and in them all other true Christian men, to pray always, and never to faint or shrink. Remember also the example of the woman of Canaan, how the was rejected of Christ, and called Matth. xv. dog, as one most unworthy of any benefit at his hands: yet she gave not over, but followed him still, crying and calling upon him to be good and merciful unto her daughter. And at length, by very importunity, she obtained her request. O let us learn by these examples to be earnest and fervent in prayer, affuring ourselves, that whatfoever we ask of God the Father, in the name of his John xvi. Son Chrift, and according to his will, he will undoubtedly grant it. He is truth itself; and as truly as he hath promifed it, fo truly will he perform it. God, for his great mercies fake, fo work in our hearts by his holy Spirit, that we may always make our humble prayers unto him, as we ought to do, and always obtain the thing which we ask, through Jesus Christ our Lord, to whom with the Father and the Holy Ghost be all honour and glory, world without end. Amen.

The Second Part of the Homily concerning Prayer.

In the first part of the Sermon ye heard the great necessity, and also the great force, of devout and earnest prayer declared and proved unto you, both by divers weighty testimonies, and also by fundry good examples of holy Scripture. Now shall you learn whom you ought to call upon, and to whom you ought always to direct your prayers. We are evidently taught in God's holy Testament, that Almighty God is the only sountain and well-spring of all goodness; and that whatsoever we have in this world, we receive it only at his hands: to this effect ferveth the place of St. James: Every good and perfect gift, faith he, cometh from above, and proceedeth from the Father of lights. To this effect also serveth the testimony of Paul, in divers places of his Epistles, witnessing that the spirit of wisdom, the spirit of knowledge and revelation, yea, every good and heavenly gift, as faith, hope, charity, grace, and peace, cometh only and folely of God. In consideration whereof, he bursteth out into a sudden passion, and saith, O man, what thing hast thou, which thou hast not received? Therefore, whensever we need or lack any thing, pertaining either to the body or to the soul, it behoveth us to run only unto God, who is the only giver of all good things. Our Saviour Christ in the Gospel, teaching his disciples how they should pray, sendeth them to the Father in his name, saying, Verily, verily, I

&c. And doth not God himself, by the mouth of his Prophet David, will and command us to call upon him? The Apostle wisheth grace and peace to all them that call on the name of the Lord, and of his Son Jesus Christ, as doth also the Prophet Joel, saying, And it shall come to pass, that whosever shall call on the name of the Lord shall be faved.

fay unto you, whatfoever ye ask the Father in my name, be will give it unto you. And in another place, When ye pray, pray after this fort: Our Father, which art in heaven,

Thus then it is plain by the infallible word of truth and life, that in all our necessities we must see unto God, direct our prayers unto him, call upon his holy name, defire help at his hands, and at none other's; whereof if we will yet have a further reason, mark that which followeth. There are certain conditions most requisite to be found in every such a one as must be called upon, which if they be not found in him unto whom we pray, then doth our prayer avail us nothing, but is altogether in vain.

The first is this, that he, to whom we make our prayers, be able to help us. The second is, that he will help us. The third is, that he be such a one as may hear our prayers. The fourth is, that he understand better than we ourselves what we lack, and how far we have need of help. If these things be to be found in any other saving only God, then may we lawfully call upon some other besides God. But what man is so gross, but he well understandeth that these things are only proper to him which is Omnipotent, and knoweth

all things, even the very fecrets of the heart? that is to fay, only and to God alone; whereof it followeth, that we ninft call neither upon angel, nor yet upon faint, but only and folely upon God, as St. Paul doth write: How [hall Rom. x. men call upon him, in whom they have not believed? So that invocation or prayer may not be made without faith in him on whom they call; but that we must first believe in him, before we can make our prayer unto him, whereupon we must only and solely pray unto God. For to fay that we should believe either in angel or faint, or in any other living creature, were mere horrible blasphemy against God and his holy word; neither ought this fancy to enter into the heart of any Christian man, because we are expressly taught in the word of the Lord only to repose our faith in the bleffed Trinity, in whose only name we are also baptized, according to the express commandment of our Saviour Jesus Christ, in the last of St. Matthew. Matt.

But that the truth hereof may the better appear, even xxviii. to them that be most simple and unlearned, let us consider De Spi. et what prayer is. St. Augustine calleth it a lifting up of Lit. cap. 50. the mind to God; that is to say, an humble and lowly Bono, cap. pouring out of the heart to God. Is dorus faith, that it 8. lib. iii. is an affection of the heart, and not a labour of the lips. So that, by these places, true prayer doth consist not so much in the outward found and voice of words, as in the inward groaning and crying of the heart to God.

Now then, is there any angel, any virgin, any patriarch or prophet among the dead, that can understand or know the meaning of the heart? The Scripture faith, It Pfal. vii. is God that fearcheth the heart and the reins, and that he Apoc. ii. only knoweth the hearts of the children of men. As for 2 Chron. vi. the faints, they have so little knowledge of the secrets of the heart, that many of the ancient Fathers greatly doubt whether they know any thing at all, that is commonly done on earth. And albeit fome think they do, yet St. Augustine, Lib. de Cua doctor of great authority and also antiquity, hath this rapro Mort. opinion of them; that they know no more what we do on 13. De vera earth, than we know what they do in heaven. For proof Rel. c. 22. whereof, he allegeth the words of Isaiah the Prophet, where Isaiah lxiii. it is faid, Abraham is ignorant of us, and Ifrael knoweth us not. Civit. Dei, His mind therefore is this, not that we should put any cap. 10. religion in worshipping of them, or praying unto them; but that we should honour them by following their virtuous and godly life. For, as he witnesseth in another place, the martyrs, and holy men in times past, were wont after their death to be remembered and named of the priest at divine service; but never to be invocated or called upon. And why so? Because the priest, saith he, is God's priest, and not theirs: whereby he is bound to call upon God, and not upon them.

Thus you fee, that the authority both of the Scripture, and also of Augustine, doth not permit, that we should pray unto them. O that all men would studiously read and fearch the Scriptures! then should they not be drowned in ignorance, but should easily perceive the truth, as well of this point of doctrine, as of all the rest. For there doth the Holy Ghost plainly teach us, that Christ is our only Mediator and Intercessor with God, and that we must not feek and run to another. If any

1 John ii. man finneth, faith St. John, we have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous; and he is the propitiation for our fins. St. Paul also saith, There is one God, and one Mediator Estween God and man, even the man Jesus Christ.

John xiv. Whereunto agreeth the testimony of our Saviour himself, witnessing that no man cometh to the Father, but only by him, who is the way, the truth, the life, yea, and the only door, whereby we must enter into the kingdom of heaven, because God is pleased in no other but in him.

heaven, because God is pleased in no other but in him. For which cause also he crieth, and calleth unto us, that we should come unto him, faying, Come unto me all ye that labour and be heavy laden, and I shall refresh you. Would Christ have us so necessarily come unto him? and shall we most unthankfully leave him, and run unto other? This is even that which God so greatly complaineth of by his Prophet Jeremy, saying, My people have committed two great offences; they have forsaken me the fountain of the waters of life, and have digged to themselves broken pits, that ean hold no water. Is not that man, think you, unwise, that will run for water to a little brook, when he may as well go to the head-spring? Even so may his wisdom be justly suspected, that will flee unto saints in time of necessity, when he may boldly and without fear declare his grief, and direct his prayer unto the Lord himself. If God were strange, or dangerous to be talked withal, then might we justly draw back, and seek to some other.

Plat. exiv. But the Lord is nigh unto all them that call upon him in Judith ix. faith and truth. And the prayer of the humble and meek hath always pleafed him. What if we be finners, shall we not therefore pray unto God? or shall we defpair to obtain any thing at his hands? Why did Christ then teach us to ask forgiveness of our sins, saying, And forgive us our trespasses, as we forgive them that trespass against against us? Shall we think that the saints are more merciful in hearing finners, than God? David faith, that the Lord is full of compassion and mercy, slow to anger, and Psal. ciii. of great kindness. St. Paul faith, that he is rich in mercy Ephes. ii. toward all them that call upon him. And he himself by the mouth of his Prophet Isaiah saith, For a little while Isaiah li. have I for faken thee, but with great compassion will I gather thee: for a moment in mine anger I have bid my face from thee, but with everlasting mercy I have had compassion upon thee. Therefore the fins of any man ought not to withhold him from praying unto the Lord his God. But if he be truly penitent and steadfast in faith, let him assure himself that the Lord will be merciful unto him, and hear his prayers. O but I dare not (will fome man fay) trouble God at all times with my prayers: we fee that in kings' houses, and courts of princes, men cannot be admitted, unless they first use the help and means of some special nobleman, to come to the speech of the king, and to obtain the thing that they would have. To this reason doth St. Ambrof. Ambrose answer very well, writing upon the first chapter super cap. i. to the Romans. Therefore, faith he, we use to go unto the king by officers and noblemen, because the king is a mortal man, and knoweth not to whom he may commit the government of the commonwealth. But to have God our friend, from whom nothing is hid, we need not any helper, that should further us with his good word, but only a devout and godly mind. And if it be fo, that we need one to entreat for us, why may we not content ourselves with that one Mediator, which is at the Heb. vii. right hand of God the Father, and there liveth for ever to make interceffion for us? As the blood of Christ did redeem us on the crofs, and cleanfe us from our fins; even fo it is now able to fave all them that come unto God by it. For Christ, sitting in heaven, hath an everlasting priesthood, and always prayeth to his Father for them that be penitent, obtaining by virtue of his wounds, which are evermore in the fight of God, not only perfect remission of our sins, but also all other necessaries that we lack in this world; fo that this only Mediator is Matth. vi. fufficient in heaven, and needeth no others to help him. James v. Why then do we pray one for another in this life? fome Tim. ii, man perchance will here demand. Forfooth we are willed fo to do, by the express commandment both of Christ and his disciples, to declare therein, as well the faith that we have in Christ towards God, as also the mutual charity that we bear one towards another, in that we

Hebr. xi. Rom. xiv. Rom. x. pity our brother's cafe, and make our humble petition to God for him. But that we should pray unto faints, neither have we any commandment in all the Scripture, nor yet example which we may fafely follow. So that being done without authority of God's word, it lacketh the ground of faith, and therefore cannot be acceptable before God. For whatsoever is not of faith is sin. And the Apostle saith, that Faith cometh by bearing, and bearing by the word of God. Yet thou wilt object further, that the faints in heaven do pray for us, and that their prayer proceedeth of an earnest charity, that they have towards their brethren on earth. Whereto it may be well anfwered, first, that no man knoweth whether they do pray for us, or no. And if any will go about to prove it by the nature of charity, concluding, that because they did pray for men on earth, therefore they do much more the fame now in heaven; then may it be faid by the fame reason, that as oft as we do weep on earth, they do also weep in heaven, because while they lived in this world, it is most certain and fure they did so. And for that place which is written in the Apocalypse, namely, that the angel did offer up the prayers of the faints upon the golden altar, it is properly meant, and ought properly to be understood, of those faints that are yet living on earth, and not of them that are dead; otherwise what need were it that the angel should offer up their prayers, being now in heaven before the face of Almighty God? But admit the faints do pray for us, yet do we not know how, whether specially for them which call upon them, or elfe generally for all men, wishing well to every man alike. If they pray specially for them which call upon them, then it is like they hear our prayers, and also know our hearts defire. Which thing to be false, it, is already proved, both by the Scriptures, and also by the authority of Augustine. Let us not therefore put our trust or considence in the faints or martyrs that be dead. Let us not call upon them, nor defire help at their hands: but let us always lift up our hearts to God, in the name of his dear Son Christ, for whose sake as God hath promifed to hear our prayer, fo he will truly perform it. Invocation is a thing proper unto God, which if we attribute unto the faints, it foundeth to their reproach, neither can they well bear it at our hands. When Paul had healed a certain lame man, which was impotent in his feet, at Lystra, the people would have done facrifice unto him and Barnabas; who rending their clothes refused

fused it, and exhorted them to worship the true God. Likewise in the Revelation, when St. John fell before the Apoc. xix. angel's feet to worship him, the angel would not permit him to do it, but commanded him that he should worship God. Which examples declare unto us, that the faints and angels in heaven will not have us to do any honour unto them, that is due and proper unto God. He only is our Father, he only is Omnipotent, he only knoweth and understandeth all things, he only can help us at all times, and in all places, he fuffereth the fun to shine upon the good and the bad, he feedeth the young ravens that cry unto him, he faveth both man and beast, he will not that any one hair of our head shall perish, but is always ready to help and preferve all them that put their trust in him, according as he hath promifed, faying, Before they call, I will answer; and whilst they speak, I will hear. Isaiah lxv. Let us not therefore any thing mistrust his goodness, letus not fear to come before the throne of his mercy, let us not feek the aid and help of faints, but let us come boldly ourselves, nothing doubting but God for Christ's sake, in whom he is well pleafed, will hear us without a spokesman, and accomplish our defire in all such things as shall be agreeable to his most holy will. So saith Chry-Chrysoft. fostom, an ancient doctor of the church, and so must we de Prosect. fleadfastly believe, not because he saith it, but much Evang, more because it is the doctrine of our Saviour Christ himfelf, who hath promifed, that if we pray to the Father in his name, we shall certainly be heard, both to the relief of our necessities, and also to the falvation of our souls, which he hath purchased unto us, not with gold or filver, but with his precious blood fhed once for all upon

To him therefore, with the Father and the Holy Ghoft, three persons and one God, be all honour, praise, and glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

The Third Part of the Homily concerning Prayer.

YE were taught in the other part of this Sermon, unto whom ye ought to direct your prayers in time of need and necessity, that is to wit, not unto angels or faints, but unto the eternal and ever-living God, who, because he is merciful, is always ready to hear us, when we call upon him in true and perfect faith. And because he

the thing that we request to have at his hands. To doubt of his power, it were a plain point of infidelity, and clean against the doctrine of the Holy Ghost, which teacheth that he is all in all. And as touching his good will in this behalf, we have express testimonies in Scripture, how Pfal. cvii.

ftructed for what kind of things, and what kind of perfons, ye ought to make your prayers unto God. It greatly behoveth all men, when they pray, to confider well and diligently with themselves what they ask and require at God's hands, left, if they defire that thing which they ought not, their petitions be made void, and of none effect. There came on a time unto Agefilaus the king, a certain importunate fuitor, who requested him in a matter earnestly, saying, Sir, and it please your Grace, you did once promise me. Truth, quoth the king, if it be just that thou requirest, then I promised thee; otherwife I did only speak it, and not promise it. The man would not be fo answered at the king's hand; but still urging him more and more, faid, It becometh a king to perform the least word he hath spoken, yea, if he should only beck with his head. No more, faith the king, than that he will help us, and also deliver us, if we call upon him in time of trouble. So that, in both thefe respects, we ought rather to call upon him than upon any other. Neither ought any man therefore to doubt to come boldly unto God, because he is a sinner. For the Lord, as the Prophet David faith, is gracious and merciful; yea, his mercy and goodness endureth for ever. He that fent his own Son into the world to fave finners, will he not also hear finners, if with a true penitent heart and a steadfast faith they pray unto him? Yea, if we acknowledge our fins, God is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteou[nefs, as we are plainly taught by the examples of David, Peter, Mary Magdalen, the Publican, and divers others. And whereas we must needs use the help of fome Mediator and Interceffor, let us content ourselves with him that is the true and only Mediator of the New Testament, namely, the Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. For, as St. John faith, If any man fin, we have an Advocate with the Father, Jefus Christ the righteous, who is the propitiation for our fins. And St. Paul in his first Epistle to Timothy faith, There is one God, and one Mediator between God and man, even the man Jefus Christ, who gave himself a ranfom for all men, to be a testimony in due time. Now after this doctrine established, you shall be init behoveth one, that cometh to a king, to speak and ask those things which are rightful and houest. Thus the king cast off this unreasonable and importunate suitor.

Now, if so great consideration be to be had, when we kneel before an earthly king, how much more ought to be had, when we kneel before the heavenly King, who is only delighted with justice and equity, neither will admit any vain, foolish, or unjust petition! Therefore it shall be good and profitable, throughly to confider and determine with ourselves, what things we may lawfully ask of God, without fear of repulse, and also what kind of perfons we are bound to commend unto God in our daily prayers. Two things are chiefly to be respected in every good and godly man's prayer: his own necessity, and the glory of Almighty God. Necessity belongeth cither outwardly to the body, or elfe inwardly to the foul. Which part of man, because it is much more precious and excellent than the other, therefore we ought first of all to crave such things as properly belong to the falvation thereof; as the gift of repentance, the gift of faith, the gift of charity and good works, remission and forgiveness of fins, patience in adversity, lowliness in profperity, and fuch other like fruits of the Spirit, as hope, Gal. v. love, joy, peace, long-fuffering, gentlenefs, goodnefs, meekness, and temperance; which things God requireth of all them that profess themselves to be his children, faying unto them in this wife; Let your light so shine be- Matth. v. fore men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven. And in another place also he faith, Seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his right-Matth. vi. cousness, and then all other things shall be given unto you. Wherein he putteth us in mind, that our chief and greatest care ought to be for those things which pertain to the health and safeguard of the foul, because we have here, as the Apostle saith, no continuing city, but do seek after another Heb. xiii. in the world to come.

Now when we have fufficiently prayed for things belonging to the foul, then may we lawfully, and with fafe confeience, pray also for our bodily necessities, as meat, drink, clothing, health of body, deliverance out of prison, good luck in our daily affairs, and so forth, according as we shall have need. Whereof, what better example can we defire to have, than of Christ himself, who taught his disciples, and all other Christian men, first to pray for heavenly things, and afterward for earthly things, as is to be seen in that prayer which he left unto his church, com-Matth. vi.

monly called the Lord's prayer? In the third book of Kings, and third chapter, it is written, that God appeared by night in a dream unto Solomon the king, faying, Ask of me what soever thou wilt, and I will give it thee. Solomon made his humble prayer, and asked a wife and prudent heart, that might judge and understand what were good, and what were ill; what were godly, and what were ungodly; what were righteous, and what were unrighteous in the fight of the Lord. It pleased God wondrously that be bad asked this thing. And God faid unto him, Because thou hast requested this word, and hast not defired many days and long years upon the earth, neither abundance of riches and goods, nor yet the life of thine enemies which hate thee, but haft defired wisdom to sit in judgment; behold I have done unto thee according to thy words; I have given thee a wife heart, full of knowledge and understanding, so that there was never any like thee before time, neither shall be in time to come. Moreover, I have besides this given thee that which thou hast not required, namely, worldly wealth and riches, princely bonour and glory, so that thou shalt therein also pass all kings that ever were. Note this example, how Solomon being put to his choice to ask of God whatsoever he would, requested not vain and transitory things, but the high and heavenly treasures of wisdom; and that, in so doing, he obtaineth, as it were in recompence, both riches and honour. Wherein is given us to understand, that, in our daily prayers, we should chiefly and principally ask those things which concern the kingdom of God, and the falvation of our own fouls, nothing doubting but all other things shall (according to the promise of Christ) be given unto us. But here we must take heed that we forget not that other end, whereof mention was made before, namely, the glory of God. Which unless we mind, and fet before our eyes in making our prayers, we may not look to be heard, or to receive any thing of the Lord. In the twentieth chapter of Matthew, the mother of the two fons of Zebedee came unto Jefus, worshipping him, and faying, Grant that my two fons may fit in thy kingdom, the one on thy right hand, and the other at thy left band. In this petition she did not respect the glory of God, but plainly declared the ambition and vain-glory of her own mind; for which cause she was also most worthily repelled and rebuked at the Lord's hand. In like manner we read in the Acts of one Simon Magus, a forcerer, bow that he, perceiving that through laying on of the Apostles' hands the Holy Ghost was given, offered them money, saying, Give me alfo also this power, that on whomsoever I lay my hands, he may receive the Holy Ghost. In making this request, he fought not the honour and glory of God, but his own private gain and lucre, thinking to get great store of money by this feat; and therefore it was justly faid unto him, Thy money perish with thee, because thou thinkest that the gift of God may be obtained with money. By these and such other examples we are taught, whenfoever we make our prayers unto God, chiefly to respect the honour and glory of his name. Whereof we have this general precept in the Apostle Paul; Whether ye eat or drink, or whatsoever ye do, I Cor. x. look that ye do it to the glory of God. Which thing we Coloss iii. Matt. xxvi. shall best of all do, if we follow the example of our Sa-Luke xxii. viour Christ, who praying that the bitter cup of death might pass from him, would not therein have his own will fulfilled, but referred the whole matter to the good will and pleafure of his Father.

And hitherto concerning those things, that we may lawfully and boldly ask of God.

Now it followeth, that we declare what kind of perfons we are bound in conscience to pray for. St. Paul, writing to Timothy, exhorteth him to make prayers and I Tim. ii. fupplications for all men, exempting none, of what degree or state soever they be. In which place he maketh mention by name of kings and rulers which are in authority, putting us thereby to acknowledge how greatly it concerneth the profit of the commonwealth, to pray diligently for the higher powers. Neither is it without good cause, that he doth so often in all his Epistles crave colost. iv. the prayers of God's people for himself. For in so doing, Rom. xv. he declareth to the world how expedient and needful it 2 Theff. iii. is daily to call upon God for the ministers of his holy word and facraments, that they may have the door of Ephef. vi. utterance opened unto them, that they may truly underftand the Scriptures, that they may effectually preach the fame unto the people, and bring forth the true fruits thereof, to the example of all other.

After this fort did the congregation continually pray for Peter at Jerusalem, and for Paul among the Gentiles, Ass xii. to the great increase and furtherance of Christ's Gospel. And if we, following their good example herein, will study to do the like, doubtless it cannot be expressed how greatly we shall both help ourselves, and also please God.

To discourse and run through all degrees of persons it were too long. Therefore ye shall briefly take this one conclusion

conclusion for all; whomsoever we are bound by express commandment to love, for those also are we bound in conscience to pray. But we are bound by express commandment to love all men as ourselves: therefore we are also bound to pray for all men, even as well as if it were for ourfelves, notwithstanding we know them to be our extreme and deadly enemies: for fo doth our Saviour Christ plainly teach us in his Gospel, faying, Love your enemies, blefs them that curfe you, do good to them that bate you, pray for them that perfecute you, that ye may be the children of your Father which is in beaven. And as he taught his disciples, so did he practise himself in his life-time, Luke xxiii, praying for his enemies upon the crofs, and defiring his Father to forgive them, because they knew not what they did. As did also that holy and bleffed martyr Stephen, when he was cruelly stoned to death of the stubborn and stiff-necked Jews; to the example of all them that will truly and unfeignedly follow their Lord and Master Christ in this miserable and mortal life.

Now, to entreat of that question, whether we ought to pray for them that are departed out of this world, or no? Wherein, if we will cleave only unto the word of God, then must we needs grant, that we have no commandment so to do. For the Scripture doth acknowledge but two places after this life: the one proper to the elect and bleffed of God, the other to the reprobate and damned fouls; as may be well gathered by the parable of Lazarus and the rich man: which place St. Augustine expounding, faith in this wife; That which Abraham fpeaketh unto the rich man in Luke's Gospel, namely, that the just cannot go into those places where the wicked are tormented; what other thing doth it fignify, but only this, that the just, by reason of God's judgment, which may not be revoked, can shew no deed of mercy in helping them which after this life are cast into prison, until they pay the uttermost farthing? These words, as they confound the opinion of helping the dead by prayer, fo they do clean confute and take away the vain error of purgatory, which is grounded upon the faying of the Gospel, Thou shalt not depart thence, until thou hast paid the uttermost farthing. Now doth St. Augustine say, that those men which are cast into prison after this life, on that condition, may in no wife be holpen, though we would help them never fo much. And why? Because the fentence of God is unchangeable, and cannot be revoked again. Therefore let us not deceive ourselves, thinking thinking that either we may help other, or other may help us by their good and charitable prayers in time to come. For, as the Preacher faith, When the tree falleth, Eccles. xi. whether it be toward the fouth, or toward the north, in what place foever the tree falleth, there it lieth: meaning thereby, that every mortal man dieth either in the state of falvation or damnation, according as the words of the Evangelist John do also plainly import, saying, He that John iii. believeth on the Son of God bath eternal life: but be that believeth not on the Son shall never see life, but the wrath of God abideth upon him. Where is then the third place, which they call purgatory? Or where shall our prayers help and profit the dead? St. Augustine doth only ac-Lib. v. Hyknowledge two places after this life, heaven and hell. pogno. As for the third place, he doth plainly deny that there is Chrysoft. in any fuch to be found in all Scripture. Chryfostom like-Homil. v. wife is of this mind, that, unless we wash away our fins in in Cyprian. this prefent world, we shall find no comfort afterward. contra De-And St. Cyprian faith, that, after death, repentance and forrow of pain shall be without fruit; weeping also shall be in vain, and prayer shall be to no purpose. Therefore he counfelleth all men to make provision for themselves while they may, because, when they are once departed out of this life, there is no place for repentance, nor yet

Let these and such other places be sufficient to take away the gross error of purgatory out of our heads; neither let us dream any more, that the fouls of the dead are any thing at all holpen by our prayers: but, as the Scripture teacheth us, let us think that the foul of man, paffing out of the body, goeth firaightways either to heaven, or else to hell, whereof the one needeth no prayer, the other is without redemption. The only purgatory, wherein we must trust to be faved, is the death and blood of Christ, which if we apprehend with a true and steadfast faith, it purgeth and cleanfeth us from all our fins, even as well as if he were now hanging upon the cross. The blood of 1 John i. Christ, faith St. John, bath cleansed us from all sin. blood of Christ, faith St. Paul, bath purged our consciences Heb. ix. from dead works, to ferve the living God. Also in another place he faith, We be fanctified and made holy by the offer- Heb. x. ing up of the body of Jefus Christ done once for all. Yea, he addeth more, faying, With the one oblation of his bleffed Ibidem. body and precious blood, be bath made perfect for ever and ever, all them that are fanctified. This then is that purgatory, wherein all Christian men put their whole trust and confidence, nothing doubting, but if they truly repent them of their fins, and die in perfect faith, that then they shall forthwith pass from death to life. If this kind of purgation will not ferve them, let them never hope to be released by other men's prayers, though they should continue therein unto the world's end. He that cannot be faved by faith in Christ's blood, how shall he look to be delivered by man's interceffions? Hath God more respect to man on earth, than he hath to Christ in heaven? If any man fin, faith St. John, we have an advocate with the Father, even Jelus Christ the righteous, and he is the propitiation for our fins. But we must take heed that we call upon this advocate while we have fpace given us in this life, left, when we are once dead, there be no hope of falvation left unto us. For as every man fleepeth with his own cause, so every man shall rife again with his own cause. And look in what state he dieth, in the same flate he shall be also judged, whether it be to falvation or damnation. Let us not therefore dream either of purgatory, or of prayer for the fouls of them that be dead: but let us earneftly and diligently pray for them which are expressly commanded in holy Scripture, namely, for kings and rulers, for ministers of God's holy word and facraments, for the faints of this world, otherwife called the faithful; to be short, for all men living, be they never fo great enemies to God and his people, as Jews, Turks, Pagans, Infidels, Heretics, &c. Then shall we truly fulfil the commandment of God in that behalf, and plainly declare ourselves to be the true children of our heavenly Father, who fuffereth the fun to shine upon the good and the bad, and the rain to fall upon the just and the unjust. For which, and all other benefits most abundantly bestowed upon mankind from the beginning, let us give him hearty thanks, as we are most bound, and praise his name for ever and ever. Amen.

AN

HOMILY

OF THE

Place and Time of Prayer.

OD, through his almighty power, wifdom, and goodness, created in the beginning heaven and earth, the fun, the moon, the stars, the fowls of the air, the beafts of the earth, the fishes in the fea, and all other creatures, for the use and commodity of man, whom also he had created to his own image and likeness, and given him the use and government over them all, to the end he should use them in such fort as he had given him in charge and commandment, and also that he should declare himself thankful and kind for all those benefits, so liberally and fo graciously bestowed upon him, utterly without any deferving on his behalf. And although we ought at all times, and in all places, to have in remembrance, and to be thankful to our gracious Lord, according as it is written, I will magnify the Lord at all times: Pfal, cili. and again, Wherefoever the Lord beareth rule, O my foul, praise the Lord: yet it appeareth to be God's good will and pleasure, that we should at special times, and in special places, gather ourselves together, to the intent his name might be renowned, and his glory fet forth in the congregation and affembly of his faints. As concerning the time which Almighty God hath appointed his people to affemble together folemnly, it doth appear by the fourth commandment of God: Remember, faith God, that thou keep boly the Sabbath-day. Upon the which day, as is plain in the Acts of the Apostles, the people accustomably Acts xiii. reforted together, and heard diligently the Law and the Prophets read among them. And albeit this commandment of God doth not bind Christian people so straitly to observe and keep the utter ceremonies of the Sabbathday, as it was given unto the Jews, as touching the forbearing of work and labour in time of great necessity, and as touching the precise keeping of the seventh day; after the manner of the Jews; for we keep now the first day, which is our Sunday, and make that our Sabbath, that is, our day of rest, in the honour of our Saviour Christ; who as upon that day rose from death, conquering the same most triumphantly: yet notwithstanding, whatfoever is found in the commandment appertaining to the law of nature, as a thing most godly, most just, and needful for the fetting forth of God's glory, it ought to be retained and kept of all good Christian people. And therefore, by this commandment, we ought to have a time, as one day in the week, wherein we ought to rest, yea, from our lawful and needful works. For like as it appeareth by this commandment, that no man in the fix days ought to be flothful or idle, but diligently to labour in that state wherein God hath set him: even so, God hath given express charge to all men, that upon the Sabbath-day, which is now our Sunday, they should cease from all weekly and work-day labour, to the intent that like as God himfelf wrought fix days, and rested the feventh, and bleffed and fanctified it, and confecrated it to quietness and rest from labour; even so God's obedient people should use the Sunday holily, and rest from their common and daily bufiness, and also give themselves wholly to heavenly exercises of God's true religion and fervice. So that God doth not only command the obfervation of this holy day, but also by his own example doth flir and provoke us to the diligent keeping of the fame. Good natural children will not only become obedient to the commandment of their parents, but also have a diligent eye to their doings, and gladly follow the fame. So if we will be the children of our heavenly Father, we must be careful to keep the Christian Sabbathday, which is the Sunday, not only for that it is God's express commandment, but also to declare ourselves to be loving children, in following the example of our gracious Lord and Father.

Thus it may plainly appear, that God's will and commandment was to have a folemu time and flanding day in the week, wherein the people should come together and have in remembrance his wonderful benefits, and to render him thanks for them, as appertained to loving, kind, and obedient people. This example and commandment of God, the godly Christian people began to follow immediately after the ascension of our Lord Christ, and began to choose them a standing day of the week to come together in: yet not the feventh day, which the Jews kept; but the Lord's day, the day of the Lord's refurrection, the day after the feventh day, which is the first day of the week. Of the which day mention is made by St. Paul on this wife: In the first day of the Sab- 1 Cor. xvi. bath, let every man lay up what he thinketh good; meaning for the poor. By the first day of the Sabbath is meant our Sunday, which is the first day after the Jews' seventh day. And in the Apocalypie it is more plain, whereas St. John faith, I was in the spirit upon the Lord's day. Apoc. i. Sithence which time God's people hath always, in all ages, without any gainfaying, used to come together upon the Sunday, to celebrate and honour the Lord's Numb. xv. bleffed name, and carefully to keep that day in holy rest and quietness, both man, woman, child, servant, and stranger. For the transgression and breach of which day, God hath declared himself much to be grieved, as it may appear by him, who, for gathering of flicks on the Sabbath-day, was stoned to death. But alas, all these notwithflanding, it is lamentable to fee the wicked boldness of those that will be counted God's people, who pass nothing at all of keeping and hallowing the Sunday. And these people are of two forts. The one fort, if they have any business to do, though there he no extreme need, they must not spare for the Sunday, they must ride and journey on the Sunday, they must drive and carry on the Sunday, they must row and ferry on the Sunday, they must buy and sell on the Sunday, they must keep markets and fairs on the Sunday: finally, they use all days alike, work-days and holy-days all are one. The other fort is worfe. For although they will not travel nor labour on the Sunday, as they do on the week-day; yet they will not rest in holiness, as God commandeth; but they rest in ungodliness and filthiness, prancing in their pride, pranking and pricking, pointing and painting themselves, to be gorgeous and gay: they rest in excess and superfluity, in gluttony and drunkenness, like rats and swine: they rest in brawling and railing, in quarrelling and fighting: they rest in wantonness, in toyish talking, in filthy fleshliness; so that it doth too evidently appear that God is more dishonoured, and the Devil better served on the Sunday, than upon all the days in the week besides. And I affure you, the beafts, which are commanded to rest on the Sunday, honour God better than this kind of people: for they offend not God, they break not their holy-days. Wherefore, O ye people of God, lay your hands hands upon your hearts, repent and amend this grievous and dangerous wickedness, stand in awe of the commandment of God, gladly follow the example of God himself, be not disobedient to the godly order of Christ's church, used and kept from the Apostles' time until this day. Fear the displeasure and just plagues of Almighty God, if ye be negligent and forbear not labouring and travelling on the Sabbath-day or Sunday, and do not resort together to celebrate and magnify God's blessed name, in quiet holiness and godly reverence.

Now concerning the place where the people of God ought to refort together, and where especially they ought to celebrate and fanctify the Sabbath-day, that is the Sunday, the day of holy rest. That place is called God's Temple, or the Church, because the company and congregation of God's people (which is properly called the Church) do there affemble themselves on the days appointed for fuch affemblies and meetings. And forafmuch as Almighty God hath appointed a special time to be honoured in, it is very meet, godly, and also necessary, that there fhould be a place appointed, where these people should meet and refort, to ferve their gracious God and merciful Father. Truth it is, the holy Patriarchs for a great number of years had neither temple nor church to refort unto. The cause was, they were not staid in any place, but were in a continual peregrination and wandering, that they could not conveniently build any church. But fo foon as God had delivered his people from their enemies, and fet them in some liberty in the wilderness, he set them up a coftly and a curious tabernacle, which was as it were the parish-church, a place to refort unto of the whole multitude, a place to have his facrifices made in, and other observances and rites to be used in. Furthermore, after that God, according to the truth of his promife, had placed and quietly fettled his people in the Land of Canaan, now called Jewry, he commanded a great and magnificent temple to be built by King Solomon, as feldom the like hath been feen; a temple to decked and adorned, fo gorgeonfly garnished, as was meet and expedient for people of that time, which would be allured and flirred with nothing fo much, as with fuch outward goodly gay things. This was now the temple of God, endued also with many gifts and fundry promises. This was the public church, and the mother-church of all Jewry. Here was God honoured and ferved. Hither was the whole realm of all the Ifraelites bound to come at three solemn feasts in the year, to serve their Lord God here. But let us proceed further. In the time of Christ and his Apostles, there were yet no temples nor churches for Christian men. For why? They were always for the most part in persecution, vexation, and trouble, so that there could be no liberty nor licence obtained for that purpose. Yet God delighted much that they should often refort together in a place, and therefore after his ascension they remained together in an upper chamber; fometimes they entered into the temple, fometimes into the fynagogues, fometimes they were in prison, sometimes in their houses, sometimes in the fields, &c. And this continued fo long till the faith of Christ Jesus began to multiply in a great part of the world. Now when divers realms were established in God's true religion, and God had given them peace and quietness, then began kings, noblemen, and the people also, stirred up with a godly zeal and ferventness, to build up temples and churches, whither the people might refort, the better to do their duty towards God, and to keep holy their Sabbath-day, the day of rest. And to these temples have the Christians customably used to refort from time to time, as unto meet places, where they might with common confent praise and magnify God's name, yielding him thanks for the benefits that he daily poureth upon them, both mercifully and abundantly, where they might also hear his holy word read, expounded, and preached fincerely, and receive his holy facraments ministered unto them duly and purely. True it is, that the chief and special temples of God, wherein he hath greatest pleafure, and most delighteth to dwell, are the bodies and minds of true Christians, and the chosen people of God, according to the doctrine of holy Scriptures, declared by St. Paul. Know ye not, faith he, that ye be the temple of a Cor. iii. God, and that the spirit of God doth dwell in you? The temple of God is holy, which ye are. And again in the same Epistle, Know ye not that your body is the temple of the's Cor vis Holy Ghost dwelling in you, whom you have given you of God, and that ye be not your own? Yet this notwithstanding, God doth allow the material temple made with lime and stone (so oft as his people come together into it, to praise his holy name) to be his house, and the place where he hath promifed to be prefent, and where he will hear the prayers of them that call upon him. The which thing both Christ and his Apostles, with all the rest of the holy Fathers, do fufficiently declare by this: that altrue worship.

beit they certainly knew that their prayers were heard in what place foever they made them, though it were in caves, in woods, and in defarts; yet, fo oft as they could conveniently, they reforted to the material temples, there with the rest of the congregation to join in prayer and

Wherefore, dearly beloved, you that profess yourselves to be Christians, and glory in that name, disdain not to follow the example of your master Christ, whose scholars you fay you be; shew you to be like them whose schoolmates you take upon you to be, that is, the Apostles and Disciples of Christ. Lift up pure hands, with clean hearts, in all places and at all times. But do the fame in the temples and churches upon the Sabbath-days alfo. Our godly predecessors, and the ancient fathers of the primitive church, fpared not their goods to build churches; no, they spared not their lives in time of persecution, and to hazard their blood, that they might affemble themfelves together in churches. And shall we spare a little labour to come to churches? Shall neither their example, nor our duty, nor the commodities, that thereby should come unto us, move us? If we will declare ourselves to have the fear of God, if we will shew ourselves true Christians, if we will be the followers of Christ our Master, and of those godly fathers that have lived before us, and now have received the reward of true and faithful Christians, we must both willingly, earnestly, and reverently come unto the material churches and temples to pray, as unto fit places appointed for that use, and that upon the Sabbath-day, as at most convenient time for God's people to cease from bodily and worldly business, to give themselves to holy rest and godly contemplation, pertaining to the fervice of Almighty God: whereby we may reconcile ourselves to God, be partakers of his holy facraments, and be devout hearers of his holy word, fo to be established in faith to God ward, in hope against all adversity, and in charity toward our neighbours. And thus running our course as good Christian people, we may at the last attain the reward of everlaiting glory, through the merits of our Saviour Jesus Christ: to whom with the Father and the Holy Ghoft be all honour and glory. Amen.

TT hath been declared unto you, good Christian people, in the former fermon read unto you, at what time, and into what place ye shall come together to praise God. Now I intend to fet before your eyes, first, how zealous and defirous ye ought to be to come to your church. Secondly, how fore God is grieved with them that do despise, or little regard to come to the church upon the holy restful day. It may well appear by the Scriptures, that many of the godly Ifraelites, being now in captivity for their fins among the Babylonians, full often withed and defired to be again at Jerufalem. And at their return, through God's goodness, (though many of the people were negligent) yet the fathers were marvellous de-vout to build up the temple, that God's people might repair thither, to honour him. And King David, when he was a banished man out of his country, out of Jerusalem the holy city, from the fanctuary, from the holy place, and from the tabernacle of God; what defire, what ferventness was in him toward that holy place! What wishings and prayers made he to God to be a dweller in the house of the Lord! One thing, faith he, have I asked of the Lord, and this will I still crave, that I may refort and have my develling in the bouse of the Lord, so long as I live. Again, O bow I joyed when I heard thefe words: We Shall go into the Lord's bouse. And in other places of the Pfalms' he declareth for what intent and purpose he hath Pfal. exxii. fuch a fervent defire to enter into the temple and church of the Lord: I will fall down, faith he, and wor/hip in the boly temple of the Lord. Again, I have appeared in thy Pfal. Ixiii. boly place, that I might behold thy might and power, that I might behold thy glory and magnificence. Finally, he faith, I will shew forth thy name to my brethren, I will praise thee in the midst of the congregation. Why then had David fuch an earnest desire to the house of God? First, because there he would worship and honour God. Secondly, there he would have a contemplation and a fight of the power and glory of God. Thirdly, there he would praise the name of God, with all the congregation and company of the people. These considerations of this blessed prophet of God ought to stir up and kindle in us the like earnest defire to refort to the church, especially upon the U 2

holy refiful days, there to do our duties, and to ferve God, there to call to remembrance how God even of his mere mercy, and for the glory of his name fake, worketh mightily to conferve us in health, wealth, and godlinefs, and mightily preferveth us from the affaults and rages of our fierce and cruel enemies, and there joyfully in the number of his faithful people to praise and magnify the Lord's holy name.

Set before your eyes also that ancient father Simeon, of whom the Scripture speaketh thus, to his great commendation, and an encouragement for us to do the like. There was a man at Jerusalem, named Simcon, a just man, fearing God: he came by the Spirit of God into the temple, and was told by the same Spirit, that he should not die before he fare the anointed of the Lord. In the temple his promife was fulfilled, in the temple he faw Christ, and took him in his arms, in the temple he brake out into the mighty praise of God his Lord. Anna a prophetess, an old widow, departed out of the temple, giving herfelf to prayer and fasting day and night: and she coming about the same time, was likewise inspired, and confessed, and spake of the Lord to all them that looked for the redemption of Ifrael. This bleffed man and this bleffed woman were not ditappointed of wonderful fruit, commodity, and comfort, which God fent them, by their diligent reforting to God's holy temple. Now ye shall hear how grievously God hath been offended with his people, for that they paffed fo little upon his holy temple, and foully either despifed or abused the same. Which thing may plainly appear by the notable plagues and punishments which God hath laid upon his people; especially in this, that he stirred up their adversaries horribly to beat down, and utterly to defroy his holy temple with a perpetual defolation. Alas, how many churches, countries, and kingdoms of Christian people have of late years been plucked down, and over-run, and left waste, with grievous and intolerable tyranny and cruelty of the enemy of our Lord Christ, the great Turk, who hath so universally fcourged the Christians, that never the like was heard or read of! Above thirty years past, the great Turk had over-run, conquered, and brought into his dominion and fubjection, twenty Christian kingdoms, turning away the people from the faith of Christ, poisoning them with the devilish religion of wicked Mahomet, and either destroying their churches utterly, or filthily abusing them with their wicked and detestable errors. And now this great-Turk,

Turk, this bitter and sharp scourge of God's vengeance, is even at hand in this part of Christendom, in Europe, at the borders of Italy, at the borders of Germany, greedily gaping to devour us, to over-run our country, to destroy our churches also, unless we repent our finful life, and refort more diligently to the church to honour God, to learn his bleffed will, and to fulfil the same. The Jews in their time provoked justly the vengeance of God, for that partly they abused his holy temple with the detestable idolatry of the heathen, and superstitious vanities of their own inventions, contrary to God's commandment; partly they reforted unto it as hypocrites, fpotted, imbrued, and foully defiled with all kind of wickedness and finful life; partly many of them passed little upon the holy temple, and cared not whether they came thither or no. And have not the Christians of late days, and even in our days also, in like manner provoked the displeasure and indignation of Almighty God? partly because they have profaned and defiled their churches with heathenish and Jewish abuses, with images and idols, with numbers of altars, too too fuperstitiously and intolerably abused, with gross abusing and silthy corrupting of the Lord's holy Supper, the blessed facrament of his Body and Blood, with an infinite number of toys and trifles of their own devices, to make a goodly outward shew, and to deface the plain, fimple, and fincere religion of Christ Jefus; partly, they refort to the church like hypocrites, full of all iniquity and finful life, having a vain and dangerous fancy and perfuation, that if they come to the church, besprinkle them with holy water, hear a mass, and be bleffed with the chalice, though they understand not one word of the whole fervice, nor feel one motion of repentance in their hearts, all is well, all is fure. Fie upon fuch mocking and blaspheming of God's holy ordinance. Churches were made for another purpose, that is, to refort thither, and to ferve God truly, there to learn his bleffed will, there to call upon his mighty name, there to use the holy facraments, there to travail how to be in charity with thy neighbour, there to have thy poor and needy neighbour in remembrance, from thence to depart better and more godly than thou camest thither. Finally, God's vengeance hath been and is daily provoked, because much wicked people pass nothing to refort to the church, either for that they are fo fore blinded, that they understand nothing of God and godliness, and care not with devilish example to offend their neighbours, or elfe for that they fee the church altogether fcoured of fuch gay gazing fights, as their gross fantafy was greatly delighted with, because they see the false religion abandoned, and the true restored, which seemeth an unsavoury thing to their unfavoury taste; as may appear by this, that a woman faid to her neighbour, "Alas, Goffip, what shall we do at church, fince all the faints are taken away, fince all the goodly fights we were wont to have are gone, fince we cannot hear the like piping, finging, chanting, and playing upon the organs, that we could before." But, dearly beloved, we ought greatly to rejoice, and give God thanks, that our churches are delivered out of all those things which displeased God so fore, and filthily defiled his holy house and his place of prayer, for the which he hath juftly deftroyed many nations, according to the faying of St. Paul, If any man defile the temple of God, God will him destroy. And this ought we greatly to praife God for, that fuch superstitious and idolatrous manners as were utterly naught, and defaced God's glory, are utterly abolished, as they most justly deserved: and yet those things that either God was honoured with, or his people edified, are decently retained, and in our churches comely practifed. But now, forafmuch as ye perceive it is God's determinate pleasure ye should resort unto your churches upon the day of holy rest; seeing ye hear, what displeasure God conceiveth, what plagues he poureth upon his disobedient people; seeing ye understand what bleffings of God are given, what heavenly commodities come to fuch people as defiroufly and zealoufly use to refort unto their churches; feeing also ye are now friendly bidden, and jointly called, beware that ye flack not your duty, take heed that you fuffer nothing to let you hereafter to come to the church at fuch times as you are ordinarily appointed and commanded. Our Saviour Christ telleth in a parable, that a great supper was prepared, guests were bidden, many excused themselves, and would not come: I tell you, faith Christ, none of them that were called shall taste of my supper. This great supper is the true religion of Almighty God, wherewith he will be worshipped in the due receiving of his facraments, and fincere preaching and hearing of his holy word, and practifing the same by godly convertation. This feast is now prepared in God's banquetting-house, the church; you are thereunto called and jointly bidden: if you refuse to come, and make your excuses, the same will be answered to you that was unto them. Now come therefore, dearly beloved, without delay, and cheerfully enter into God's feafting-house, and become partakers of the benefits provided and prepared for you. But fee that ye come thither with your holy-day garment, not like hypocrites, not of a custom and for manner's sake, not with loathsomeness, as though ye had rather not come than come, if ye were at your liberty. For God hateth and punisheth such counterfeit hypocrites, as appeareth by Christ's former parable. My friend, faith God, bow camest thou in without a wedding-garment? And therefore commanded his fervants to bind bim hand and foot, and to cast bim into utter darkness, where shall be weeping, and waiting, and gnashing of teeth. To the intent that ye may avoid the like danger at God's hand, come to the church on the holy-day, and come in your holy-day garment; that is to fay, come with a cheerful and a godly mind, come to feek God's glory, and to be thankful unto him, come to be at one with thy neighbour, and to enter in friendship and charity with him. Confider that all thy doings stink before the face of God, if thou be not in charity with thy neighbour. Come with an heart fifted and cleanfed from worldly and carnal affections and defires, shake off all vain thoughts which may hinder thee from God's true fervice. The bird, when fhe will fly, shaketh her wings: shake and prepare thyfelf to fly higher than all the birds in the air, that, after thy duty duly done in this earthly temple and church, thou mayest fly up, and be received into the glorious temple of God in heaven, through Christ Jesus our Lord; to whom with the Father and the Holy Ghost be all glory and honour. Amen.

WHEREIN IS DECLARED,

That Common Prayer and Sacraments ought to be ministered in a tongue that is understood of the hearers.

MONG the manifold exercises of God's people, dear Christians, there is none more necessary for all estates, and at all times, than is public Prayer, and the due use of Sacraments. For in the first we beg at God's hands all fuch things, as otherwife we cannot obtain: and in the other he embraceth us, and offereth himself to be embraced of us. Knowing therefore that these two exercises are so necessary for us, let us not think it unmeet to confider, first what Prayer is, and what a Sacrament is; and then, how many forts of Prayers there be, and how many Sacraments; fo shall we the better understand how to use them aright. To know what August. de they be, St. Augustine teacheth us in his book, entitled, Of the Spirit and the Soul: he faith thus of prayer; "Prayer is (faith he) the devotion of the mind, that is to fay, the returning to God, through a godly and humble affection, which affection is a certain willing and fweet inclining of the mind itself towards God." And in the fecond Book against the Adversary of the Law and the lib. ii. con- Prophets, he calleth Sacraments holy figns. And writing farios Legis to Bonifacius of the baptism of infants, he faith, "If Sacraments had not a certain fimilitude of those things whereof they be Sacraments, they should be no Sacraments at all. And of this similitude they do for the most part receive the names of the felf-fame things they fignify." By these words of St. Augustine it appeareth, that he alloweth the common description of a Sacrament, which is, that it is a visible sign of an invisible grace; that is to fay, that fetteth out to the eyes and other outward fenses the inward working of God's free mercy, and doth, as it were, feal in our hearts the promises of God. And fo was Circumcifion a Sacrament, which preached unto the ontward fenfes the inward cutting away of the foreskin of the heart, and sealed and made sure in the hearts of the circumcifed the promife of God touching the promifed feed that they looked for. Now let us fee how many forts of Prayer, and how many Sacraments there be. In the Scriptures we read of three forts of Prayer, whereof two are private, and the third is com-The first is that which St. Paul speaketh of in his Epistle to Timothy, faying, I will that men pray in every t Tim. ii. place, lifting up pure hands, without wrath or striving. And it is the devout lifting up of the mind to God, without the uttering of the heart's grief or defire by open voice. Of this prayer we have example in the first Book of Samuel, in Anna the mother of Samuel, when in I Sam. i. the heaviness of her heart she prayed in the temple, desiring to be made fruitful. She prayed in her heart, faith the text, but there was no voice heard. After this fort must all Christians pray, not once in a week, or once in a day only; but, as St. Paul writeth to the Thessalonians, I Thess. iii. without ceasing. And as St. James writeth, The continual James v. prayer of a just man is of much force. The second fort of Prayer is spoken of in the Gospel of Matthew, where it is said, When thou prayest, enter into thy secret closet; and, Matth. vi. when thou hast shut the door to thee, pray unto thy Father in fecret; and thy Father, which feeth in fecret, shall reward thee. Of this fort of Prayer there be fundry examples in the Scriptures; but it shall suffice to rehearse one, which is written in the Acts of the Apostles.

Cornelius, a devout man, a captain of the Italian army, Acts x, faith to Peter, that being in his house in prayer at the ninth hour, there appeared to him one in a white garment, &c. This man prayed unto God in secret, and was rewarded openly. These be the two private sorts of Prayer: the one mental, that is to say, the devout lifting up of the mind to God; and the other vocal, that is to say, the secret uttering of the griefs and desires of the heart with words, but yet in a secret closet, or some solitary place. The third fort of Prayer is public or common. Of this Prayer speaketh our Saviour Christ, when he saith, If two of you shall agree upon carth upon any Matth. thing, subatsoever ye shall ask, my Father which is in heaven xviii. Shall do it for you: for wheresoever two or three be gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them. Al-

Pfal. 1. James v. though God hath promised to hear us when we pray privately, so it be done faithfully and devoutly; (for he faith, Call upon me in the day of thy trouble, and I will bear thee. And Elias, being but a mortal man, faith St. James, prayed, and heaven was shut three years and fix months; and again be prayed, and the heaven gave rain:) yet by the histories of the Bible it appeareth, that public and common Prayer is most available before God, and therefore is much to be lamented that it is no better esteemed among us, which profess to be but one body in Christ. When the city of Nineveh was threatened to be destroyed within forty days, the prince and the people joined themselves together in public prayer and fasting, and were preferved. In the Prophet Joel, God commanded a falling to be proclaimed, and the people to be gathered together, young and old, man and woman, and are taught

Judith viii. lophernes befieged Bethulia, by the advice of Judith they fasted and prayed, and were delivered. When Peter was in prison, the congregation joined themselves together in prayer, and Peter was wonderfully delivered. By these histories it appeareth, that common or public Prayer is of great force to obtain mercy and deliverance at our heavenly Father's hand.

to fay with one voice, Spare us, O Lord, spare thy people, and let not thine inheritance be brought to confusion. When the Jews should have been destroyed all in one day through the malice of Haman, at the commandment of Esther they fasted and prayed, and were preserved. When Ho-

Therefore, brethren, I befeech you, even for the tender mercies of God, let us no longer be negligent in this behalf: but as the people willing to receive at God's hand fuch good things as in the common Prayer of the church are craved, let us join ourselves together in the place of common Prayer, and with one voice and one heart beg at our heavenly Father all those things which he knoweth to be necessary for us. I forbid you not private Prayer, but I exhort you to esteem common Prayer as it is worthy. And before all things, be fure that, in all these three forts of Prayer, your minds be devoutly lifted up to God, elfe are your prayers to no Isai. xxix. purpose; and this saying shall be verified in you; This Matth. xv. people bongureth me with their lips, but their heart is far from me. Thus much for the three forts of Prayer, whereof we read in the Scriptures. Now with like, or rather more brevity, you shall hear how many Sacraments there be, that were inflituted by our Saviour

Christ,

Christ, and are to be continued, and received of every Christian in due time and order, and for such purpose as our Saviour Christ willed them to be received. And as for the number of them, if they should be considered according to the exact fignification of a Sacrament, namely, for the visible figus, expressly commanded in the New Testament, whereunto is annexed the promise of free forgiveness of our fins, and of our holiness and joining in Christ, there be but two; namely, Baptism, and the Supper of the Lord. For although Absolution hath the promise of forgiveness of sin; yet by the express word of the New Testament it hath not this promife annexed and tied to the visible fign, which is imposition of hands. For this visible fign (I mean laying on of hands) is not expressly commanded in the New Testament to be used in Absolution, as the visible signs in Baptism and the Lord's Supper are: and therefore Absolution is no such Sacrament as Baptism and the Communion are. And though the ordering of ministers hath this visible sign and promise; yet it lacks the promife of remission of sin, as all other Sacraments besides the two above named do. Therefore neither it, nor any other Sacrament elfe, be fuch Sacraments as Baptism and the Communion are. But in a general acception, the name of a Sacrament may be attributed to any thing, whereby an holy thing is fignified. In which understanding of the word, the ancient writers have given this name, not only to the other five, commonly of late years taken and used for supplying the number of the seven Sacraments; but also to divers and fundry other ceremonies, as to oil, washing of feet, and such like; not meaning thereby to repute them as Sacraments, in the same signification that the two forenamed Sacraments are. And Dionyfius, therefore St. Augustine, weighing the true fignification Bernard. de and the exact meaning of the word, writing to Januarius, mini, et Aband also in the third Book of Christian Doctrine, affirmeth, lut. Pedum. that the Sacraments of the Christians, as they are most excellent in fignification, so are they most few in number; and in both places maketh mention expressly of two, the Sacrament of Baptism, and the Supper of the Lord. And although there are retained by the order of the church of England, besides these two, certain other rites and ceremonies about the inftitutions of ministers in the church, Matrimony, Confirmation of the Children, by examining them of their knowledge in the Articles of the faith, and joining thereto the prayers of the church for them, and likewife likewise for the Visitation of the Sick; yet no man ought to take thefe for Sacraments, in fuch fignification and meaning as the Sacraments of Baptism and the Lord's Supper are: but either for godly flates of life, necessary in Christ's church, and therefore worthy to be set forth by public action and folemnity, by the ministry of the church, or elfe judged to be fuch ordinances as may make for the instruction, comfort, and edification of Christ's church.

Now, understanding sufficiently what Prayer is, and what a Sacrament is also; and how many forts of Prayers there be, and how many Sacraments of our Saviour Christ's institution; let us see whether the Scriptures and examples of the primitive church will allow any vocal Prayer, that is, when the mouth uttereth the petitions with voice, or any manner of Sacrament, or other public or common rite or action, pertaining to the profit and edifying of the unlearned, to be ministered in a tongue unknown, or not understood of the minister or people: yea, and whether any person may privately use any vocal Prayer in a language that he himself understandeth not. To this question we must answer, No. And first of common Prayer and administration of Sacraments. Although reason, if it might rule, would soon persuade us to have our common Prayer and administration of the Sacraments in a known tongue, both for that to pray commonly, is for a multitude to ask one and the felffame thing with one voice, and one confent of mind; and to administer a Sacrament is, by the outward word and element to preach to the receiver the inward and invisible grace of God; and also for that both these exercises were first instituted, and are still continued, to the end that the congregation of Christ might from time to time be put in remembrance of their unity in Christ, and that, as members all of one body, they ought, both in prayers and otherwife, to feek and defire one another's commodity, and not their own without others: yet shall we not need to flee to reasons and proofs in this matter, fith we have both the plain and manifest words of the Scripture, and also the consent of the most learned and ancient writers, to commend the prayers of the congregation in 1 Cor. xiv. a known tongue. First, Paul to the Corinthians faith, Let all things be done to edifying. Which cannot be, unless common Prayers and administration of Sacraments

administration of the Sacraments, be not understood of them that be present, they cannot thereby be edified. For, as, when the trumpet that is blown in the field giveth an uncertain found, no man is thereby stirred up to prepare himself to the fight; and as, when an instrument of music maketh no distinct sound, no man can tell what is piped: even fo, when Prayers or administration of Sacraments shall be in a tongue unknown to the hearers, which of them shall be thereby stirred up to lift up his mind to God, and to beg with the minister at God's hand, those things which in the words of his Prayers the minister asketh? or who shall in the ministration of the Sacraments understand what invisible grace is to be craved of the hearer, to be wrought in the inward man? Truly no man at all. For, faith St. Paul, He that speaketh in a tongue unknown, shall be to the hearer an alien, which in a Christian congregation is a great abfurdity.

For we are not strangers one to another, but we are the Ephes. if. citizens of the faints, and of the household of God, yea, and 1 Cor. x. members of one body. And therefore whilst our minister is in rehearing the prayer that is made in the name of us all, we must give diligent ears to the words spoken by him, and in heart beg at God's hand those things that he beggeth in words. And to fignify that we do fo, we fay Amen at the end of the prayer that he maketh in the name of us all. And this thing can we not do for edification, unless we understand what is spoken. Therefore it is required of necessity, that the common Prayer be had in a tongue that the hearers do understand. If ever it had been tolerable to use strange tongues in the congregations, the same might have been in the time of Paul and the other Apostles, when they were miraculously endued with gifts of tongues. For it might then have perfuaded fome to embrace the Gospel, when they had heard men that were Hebrews born, and unlearned, fpeak the Greek, the Latin, and other languages. But Paul thought it not tolerable then: and shall we use it now, when no man cometh by that knowledge of tongues, otherwise than by diligent and earnest study? God forbid. For we should by that means bring all our church exercises to frivolous fupersition, and make them altogether unfruit-Luke writeth, that when Peter and John were Acts iv. discharged by the princes and high-priests of Jerusalem, they came to their fellows, and told them all that the princes of the priests and elders had spoken to them. Which one affent, and faid, Lord, thou art be that haft made beaven and earth, the fea, and all things that are in them, &c. Thus could they not have done, if they had prayed in a strange tongue, that they had not understood. And no doubt of it, they did not all speak with several voices, but fome one of them spake in the name of them all, and the rest, giving diligent ear to his words, consented thereunto, and therefore it is faid, that they lifted up their voice together. St. Luke faith not, their voices, as many; but their voice, as one. That one voice therefore was in fuch language as they all understood, otherwise they could not have lifted it up with the confent of their hearts: for no man can give confent of the thing that he knoweth not. As touching the times before the coming of Christ, there was never man yet that would affirm, that either the people of God, or other, had their Prayers or administrations of the Sacraments, or Sacrifices, in a tongue that they themselves understood not. As for the time fince Christ, till that usurped power of Rome began to fpread itself, and to inforce all the nations of Europe to have the Romish language in admiration, it appeareth, by the confent of the most ancient and learned writers, that there was no strange or unknown tongue used in the congregation of Christians.

Justinus Apol. 2.

Justinus Martyr, who lived about one hundred and fixty years after Christ, saith thus of the administration of the Lord's Supper in his time: "Upon the Sunday affemblies are made, both of them that dwell in cities, and of them that dwell in the country also. Amought whom, as much as may be, the writings of the Apostles and Prophets are read. Afterwards, when the reader doth cease, the chief minister maketh an exhortation, exhorting them to follow honest things. After this, we rife all together, and offer prayers; which being ended, as we have faid, bread and wine, and water, are brought forth: then the head minister offereth prayers and thanksgiving with all his power, and the people answer, Amen." These words, with their circumstances, being duly considered, do declare plainly, that not only the Scriptures were read in a known tongue, but also that Prayer was made in the fame, in the congregations of Justin's time. Basilius Magnus and Johannes Chryfostomus did in their time preferibe public orders of public administration, which they call Liturgies; and in them they appointed the people to answer to the prayers of the minister sometime, Amen, sometime, Lord bave mercy upon us, sometime, And with with thy spirit, and, We have our hearts lifted up unto the Lord, &c. Which answers the people could not have made in due time, if the prayers had not been in a tongue that they understood. The same Basil, writing to the Epist. Ixiii. clergy of Neocæfarea, faith thus of his usage in common Prayer, appointing one to begin the fong, the rest follow: and fo with divers fongs and prayers passing over the night, at the dawning of the day all together (even as it were with one mouth and one heart) they fing unto the Lord a fong of confession, every man framing unto himfelf meet words of repentance. In another place he faith, "If the fea be fair, how is not the assembly of the congregation much more fair, in which a joined found of men, women, and children, (as it were of the waves. beating on the shore) is fent forth in our prayers unto our God?" Mark his words: "A joined found (faith he) of Basil. men, women, and children:" which cannot be, unless Rom. iv. they all understand the tongue wherein the prayer is faid... And Chrysoftom upon the words of Paul faith, So foon as the people hear these words, World without end, they all's Cor. xiv. do forthwith answer, Amen. This could they not do, unlefs they understood the word spoken by the priest. Dio-Dionys. Cynysius saith, that hymns were said of the whole multitude prian. Ser. of people in the administration of the Communion. Cyprian Dominica, faith, the priest doth prepare the minds of the brethren with a preface before the prayer, faying, Lift up your bearts; that whilst the people doth answer, We have our hearts lifted up to the Lord, they be admonished that they ought to think on none other thing than the Lord. St. Ambrose writing upon the words of St. Paul faith, This & Cor. xiv. is it that he faith, because he, which speaketh in an unknown tongue, speaketh to God, for he knoweth all things: but men know not, and therefore there is no profit of this thing. And again upon these words: "If thou blefs, or give thanks with the fpirit, how shall he that occupieth the room of the unlearned fay, Amen, at thy giving of thanks, feeing he understandeth not what thou fayest?" This is, faith Ambrose, if thou speak the praise of God in a tongue unknown to the hearers. For the unlearned hearing that which he understandeth not, knoweth not the end of the prayer, and answereth not Amen: which word is as much to fay, as truth, that the bleffing or thankfgiving may be confirmed. For the confirmation of the prayer is fulfilled by them that do anfiver, Amen, that all things spoken might be confirmed in the minds of the hearers, through the testimony of the truth. And after many weighty words, to the same end he faith, The conclusion is this, that nothing should be done in the church in vain; and that this thing ought chiefly to be laboured for, that the unlearned also might take profit, left any part of the body should be dark through ignorance. And left any man should think all this to be meant of preaching, and not of prayer, he taketh occasion of these words of St. Paul, If there be not an interpreter, let him keep filence in the church, to fay as followeth: Let him pray fecretly, or fpeak to God, who heareth all things that be dumb: for in the church must be speak that may profit all persons. St. Hierom, writing upon these words · Cor. xiv. of St. Paul, How fhall be that supplieth the place of the unlearned, &c. faith, It is the layman, whom Paul understandeth here to be in the place of the ignorant man, which hath no ecclefiaftical office: How shall be answer Amen to the prayer that be understandeth not? And a littleafter, upon the words of St. Paul, For if I should pray in a tongue, &c. he faith thus; This is Paul's meaning: If any man fpeak in strange and unknown tongues, his mind is made unfruitful, not to himself, but to the hearer: for whatfoever is spoken, he knoweth it not. Pal. xviii. Augustine, writing upon the eighteenth Pfalm, faith, What this should be, we ought to understand, that we may fing with reason of man, and not with chattering of birds. For owls, popinjays, ravens, pies, and other fuch like birds, are taught by men to prate they know not what: but to fing with understanding is given by God's holy will to the nature of man. Again, the fame Augustine De Magist. faith, There needeth no speech when we pray, faving perhaps, as the priefts do, for to declare their meaning, not that God, but that men may hear them. And fo being put in remembrance by confenting with the priest, they may hang upon God. Thus are we taught, both by the Scripture and ancient doctors, that, in the administration of common Prayer and Sacraments, no tongue unknown to the hearers ought to be used. So that for the satisfying of a Christian man's conscience we need to spend no more time in this matter. But yet to stop the mouths of the adversaries, which stay themselves much upon general decrees, it shall be good to add to these testimonies of Scriptures and doctors, one Conflitution, made by Justinian the emperor, who lived five hundred twenty and feven years after Christ, and was emperor of Rome. The Constitu-

Novel Contion is this: "We command that all bishops and priests do celebrate the holy oblation, and the prayers used in

holy baptifin; not fpeaking low, but with a clear or loud voice, which may be heard of the people, that thereby the mind of the hearers may be stirred up with great devotion, in uttering the prayers of the Lord God; for fo the holy Apostle teacheth, in his first Epistle to the Corinthians, faying, Truly, if thou only blefs or give thanks in spirit, how doth be, that occupieth the place of the unlearned, fay Amen at that thy giving thanks unto God? for he under-thandeth not what thou fayeft. Thou werily giveft thanks well; but the other is not edified. And again, in the Epifile to the Romans, he faith, With the beart a man believeth unto righteoufucfs, and with the mouth confession is made unto falvation. Therefore for these causes it is convenient, that, among other prayers, those things also, which are spoken in the holy oblation, be uttered and spoken of the most religious bishops and priests, unto our Lord Jesus Christ our God, with the Father and the Holy Ghoft, with a loud voice. And let the most religious priests know this, that if they neglect any of these things, that they shall give an account for them in the dreadful judgment of the great God, and our Saviour Jefus Chrift. Neither will we, when we know it, rest and leave it unrevenged."

This emperor, as Sabellicus writeth, favoured the Bishop of Rome; and yet we see how plain a decree he maketh, for praying and administering of Sacraments in a known tongue, that the devotion of the hearers might be stirred up by knowledge, contrary to the judgment of them that would have ignorance to make devotion. maketh it also a matter of damnation to do these things in a tongue that the hearers understand not. Let us therefore conclude with God, and all good men's affent, that no common Prayer, or Sacraments, ought to be ministered in a tongue that is not understood of the hearers. Now a word or two of private Prayer in an unknown tongue. We took in hand where we began to fpeak of this matter, not only to prove that no common Prayer, or administration of Sacraments, ought to be in a tongue unknown to the hearers, but also that no person ought to pray privately in that tongue that he himfelf understandeth not. Which thing shall not be hard to prove, if we forget not what Prayer is. For if Prayer be that devotion of the mind, which enforceth the heart to lift up itself to God, how should it be faid, that that person prayeth, that understandeth not the words that his tongue speaketh in Prayer? Yea, how can it be faid that he speaketh? For to speak is, by voice to utter the thought speaking is nothing else but the messenger of the mind, to bring abroad the knowledge of that which otherwife lieth feeret in the heart, and cannot be known, according 5 Cor. ii. to that which St. Paul writeth; What man, faith he, knoweth the things that appertain to man, faving only the spirit of man, which is in man? He, therefore, that doth not understand the voices that his tongue doth utter, cannot properly be faid to speak, but rather to counterfeit as parrots, and fuch other birds, use to counterfeit men's voices. No man, therefore, that feareth to provoke the wrath of God against himself, will be so bold to speak of God unadvifedly, without regard of reverent understanding, in his presence, but he will prepare his heart before he prefume to speak unto God. And therefore in our common Prayer the minister doth oftentimes fay, Let us pray, meaning thereby to admonish the people, that they should prepare their ears to hear what he should crave at God's hand, and their hearts to confent to the fame, and their tongues to fay Amen at the end thereof. On this fort did the Prophet David prepare his heart, when he faid,

Pfal. Ivii. My heart is ready, O my God, my heart is ready, I will fing and declare a pfalm. The Jews also, when in the time of Judith they did with all their heart pray God to visit his people of Israel, had so prepared their hearts before they began to pray. After this fort had Manasses prepared his

2 Chron.iii. heart before he prayed, and faid, And now, O Lord, do I bow the knees of my beart, asking of thee part of thy merciful kindness. When the heart is thus prepared, the voice uttered from the heart is harmonious in the ears of God: otherwise he regardeth it not to accept it. But forasinuch as the person, that so babbleth his words without sense in the presence of God, sheweth himself not to regard the majesty of him that he speaketh to; he taketh him as a contemner of his Almighty Majesty, and giveth him his reward among hypocrites, which make an outward shew of holiness, but their hearts are full of abominable thoughts, even in the time of their prayers. For it is the heart that the Lord looketh upon, as it is written prayers be not abominable before God, let us fo prepare our hearts before we pray, and fo understand the things that we ask when we pray, that both our hearts and voices may together found in the ears of God's Majesty; and then we shall not fail to receive at his hand the things that we ask, as good men which have been before us did, and fo have from time to time received that which, for their fouls health, they did at any time defire. St. Augustine seemeth to bear in this matter; for he saith thus of them, which being brought up in grammar and rhetoric, are converted to Christ, and so must be instructed in Christian religion: "Let them know also (saith he) De Catethat it is not the voice, but the affection of the mind, that chizandis cometh to the ears of God." And fo shall it come to pass, that if haply they shall mark that some bishops or minifters in the church do call upon God, either with barbarous words, or with words difordered, or that they understand not, or do disorderly divide the words that they pronounce, they shall not laugh them to fcorn. Hitherto he feemeth to bear with praying in an unknown tongue. But in the next fentence he openeth his mind thus: Not for that these things ought not to be amended, that the people may fay Amen to that which they do plainly understand. But yet these godly things must be borne withal of these catechists, or instructors of the faith, that they may learn, that as in the common place, where matters are pleaded, the goodness of an oration consisteth in found, fo in the church it confifteth in devotion. So that he alloweth not the praying in a tongue not understood of him that prayeth: but he instructeth the skilful orator to bear with the rude tongue of the devout simple minifler. To conclude: If the lack of understanding the words that are spoken in the congregation do make them unfruitful to the hearers, how should not the same make the words read unfruitful to the reader? The merciful goodness of God grant us his grace to call upon him as we ought to do, to his glory and our endless felicity; which we shall do, if we humble ourselves in his fight, and in all our prayers, both common and private, have our minds fully fixed upon him. For the prayer of them that hum - Ecclus. ble themselves shall pierce through the clouds, and till it draw xxxv. nigh unto God, it will not be answered; and till the Most High do regard it, it will not depart. And the Lord will not be flack, but be will deliver the just, and execute judgment. To him therefore be all honour and glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

AN

For them which take offence at certain Places of the holy Scripture.

THE FIRST PART.

HE great utility and profit, that Christian men and women may take, if they will, by hearing and reading the holy Scriptures, (dearly beloved) no heart can fufficiently conceive, much less is my tongue able with words to express. Wherefore Satan, our enemy, feeing the Scriptures to be the very mean and right way to bring the people to the true knowledge of God, and that Christian religion is greatly furthered by diligent hearing and reading of them, he also perceiving what an hindrance and let they be to him and his kingdom, doth what he can to drive the reading of them out of God's church. And for that end he hath always stirred up, in one place or other, cruel tyrants, fharp perfecutors, and extreme enemies unto God and his infallible truth, to pull with violence the holy Bibles out of the people's hands, and have most spitefully destroyed and consumed the fame to ashes in the fire, pretending, most untruly, that the much hearing and reading of God's word is an occasion of herefy and carnal liberty, and the overthrow of all good order in all well-ordered commonweals. If to know God aright be an occasion of evil, then we must needs grant, that the hearing and reading of the holy Scriptures is the cause of herefy, carnal liberty, and the fubverfubversion of all good orders. But the knowledge of God and of ourselves is so far from being an occasion of evil, that it is the readiest, yea, the only mean to bridle carnal liberty, and to kill all our fleshly affections. And the ordinary way to attain this knowledge is, with diligence to hear and read the holy Scriptures. For the whole Scriptures, faith St. Paul, were given by the inspiration of 2 Tim. iii. God. And shall we Christian men think to learn the knowledge of God and of ourfelves in any earthly man's work or writing, fooner or better than in the holy Scriptures, written by the inspiration of the Holy Ghost? The Scriptures were not brought unto us by the will of man: but boly men of God, as witnesseth St. Peter, spake as they 2 Pet. i. were moved by the holy Spirit of God. The Holy Ghost is the schoolmaster of truth, which leadeth his scholars, as our Saviour faith of him, into all truth. And whoso is John xvi, not led and taught by this schoolmaster, cannot but fall into deep error, how godly foever his pretence is, what knowledge and learning foever he hath of all other works and writings, or how fair foever a flew or face of truth he hath in the estimation and judgment of the world. If fome man will fay, I would have a true pattern and a perfect description of an upright life, approved in the fight of God; can we find, think ye, any better, or any fuch again, as Christ Jesus is, and his doctrine? whose virtuous conversation and godly life the Scripture fo lively painteth and fetteth forth before our eyes, that we, beholding that pattern, might shape and frame our lives, as nigh as may be, agreeable to the perfection of Follow you me, faith St. Paul, as I follow 1 Cor. xi. Christ. And St. John in his Epistle faith, Whoso abideth I John ii. in Christ must walk even so as he bath walked before him. And where shall we learn the order of Christ's life, but in the Scripture? Another would have a medicine to all diseases and maladies of the mind. Can this be found or gotten otherwhere than out of God's own book, his facred Scriptures? Christ taught so much, when he faid to the obstinate Jews, Search the Scriptures, for in them John v. we think to have eternal life. If the Scriptures contain in them everlasting life, it must needs follow, that they have also present remedy against all that is an hindrance and let unto eternal life. If we defire the knowledge of heavenly wisdom, why had we rather learn the same of man than of God himself, who, as St. James saith, is James i. the giver of wisdom? Yea, why will we not learn it at Christ's own mouth, who, promising to be present with Mat. xxxiii. x 3

his church till the world's end, doth perform his promife, in that he is not only with us by his grace and tender pity; but also in this, that he speaketh presently unto us in the holy Scriptures, to the great and endless comfort of all them that have any feeling of God at all in them? Yea, he speaketh now in the Scriptures more profitably to us, than he did by word of mouth to the carnal Jews, when he lived with them here upon earth. For they (I mean the Jews) could neither hear nor fee those things which we may now both hear and fee, if we will bring with us those ears and eyes that Christ is heard and feen with; that is, diligence to hear and read his holy Scriptures, and true faith to believe his most comfortable promifes. If one could shew but the print of Christ's foot, a great number, I think, would fall down and worflip it: but to the holy Scriptures, where we may fee daily, if we will, I will not fay the print of his feet only, but the whole shape and lively image of him, alas! we give little reverence, or none at all.

If any could let us fee Christ's coat, a fort of us would make hard fnift except we might come nigh to gaze upon it, yea, and kifs it too. And yet all the clothes that ever he did wear can nothing fo truly nor fo lively express him unto us, as do the Scriptures. Christ's images, made in wood, fione, or metal, fome men, for the love they bear to Christ, do garnish and beautify the same with pearl, gold, and precious frones. And should we not, good brethren, much rather embrace and reverence God's holy books, the facred Bible, which do reprefent Christ unto us more truly than can any image. The image can but express the form or shape of his body, if it can do so much: but the Scriptures do in such fort set forth Christ, that we may fee both God and man; we may fee him, I fay, speaking unto us, healing our infirmities, dying for our fins, rifing from death for our justification. And, to be short, we may in the Scriptures so perfectly see whole Christ with the eye of faith, as we, lacking faith, could not with these bodily eyes see him, though he stood now present here before us. Let every man, woman, and child, therefore, with all their hearts thirst and defire God's holy Scriptures, love them, embrace them, have their delight and pleafure in hearing and reading them, fo as at length we may be transformed and changed into them. For the holy Scriptures are God's treasure-house, wherein are found all things needful for us to fee, to hear, to learn, and to believe, necessary for the attaining of eternal life. Thus much is spoken, only to give you a tafte of some of the commodities, which ye may take by hearing and reading the holy Scriptures. For, as I faid in the beginning, no tongue is able to declare and utter all. And although it is more clear than the noon day, that to be ignorant of the Scriptures is the caufe of error, as Christ faith to the Sadducees, Ye err, not Matt. xxii. knowing the Scriptures; and that error doth hold back and pluck men away from the knowledge of God; and, as St. Jerome faith, Not to know the Scriptures is to be ignorant of Christ: yet this notwithstanding, some there be that think it not meet for all forts of men to read the Scriptures, because they are, as they think, in fundry places flumbling-blocks to the unlearned. First, for that the phrase of the Scripture is sometime so simple, grofs, and plain, that it offendeth the fine and delicate wits of fome courtiers. Furthermore, for that the Scripture also reporteth, even of them that have their commendation to be the children of God, that they did divers acts, whereof fome are contrary to the law of nature, some repugnant to the law written, and other fome feem to fight manifestly against public honesty. All which things, fay they, are unto the fimple an occasion of great offence, and cause many to think evil of the Scriptures, and to discredit their authority. Some are offended at the hearing and reading of the divertity of the rites and ceremonies of the facrifices and oblations of the Law. And fome worldly witted men think it great decay to the quiet and prudent governing of their commonweals, to give ear to the fimple and plain rules and precepts of our Saviour Christ in his Gospel, as being offended that a man should be ready to turn his right ear to him that struck him on the left; and to him which would take away his coat, to offer him also his cloak; with fuch other fayings of perfection in Christ's meaning. For carnal reason, being alway an enemy to God, and not perceiving the things of God's Spirit, doth abhor fuch precepts, which yet rightly understood infringeth no judicial policies, nor Christian men's governments. And fome there be, which hearing the Scriptures to bid us to live without carefulness, without study or forecasting, do deride the simplicities of them. Therefore. to remove and put away occasions of offence, so much as may be, I will answer orderly to these objections. First, I shall rehearse some of those places that men are offended at, for the simplicity and grossness of speech, and X 4 will shew the meaning of them. In the Book of Deuteronomy it is written, that Almighty God made a law, if a man died without iffue, his brother, or next kinfman, should marry his widow, and the child that was first born between them should be called his child that was dead, that the dead man's name might not be put out in Israel: and if the brother, or next kinfman, would not marry the widow, then the before the magistrates of the city should pull of his shoe, and spit in his face, faying, So be it done to that man that will not build his brother's house. Here, dearly beloved, the pulling off his shoe, and spitting in his face, were ceremonies, to fignify unto all the people of that city, that the woman was not now in fault that God's law in that point was broken; but the whole fliame and blame thereof did now redound to that man, which openly before the magistrate refused to marry her. And it was not a reproach to him alone, but to all his posterity also: for they were called ever after, The boule of bim wbole rial. lxxv. (boe is pulled off. Another place out of the Pfalms: I will break, faith David, the borns of the ungodly, and the borns of the righteous shall be exalted. By an horn, in the Scripture, is understood power, might, strength, and fometime rule and government. The Prophet then faying, I will break the borns of the ungodly, meaneth, that all the power, firength, and might of God's enemies Iliall not only be weakened and made feeble, but shall at length also be clean broken and destroyed, though for a time, for the better trial of his people, God fuffereth the enemies to prevail and have the upper hand. In Plal.exxxii. the hundred and thirty-fecond Pfalm, it is faid, I will make David's born to flourish. Here David's horn fignifieth his kingdom. Almighty God therefore, by this manner of speaking, promifeth to give David victory over all his enemies, and to stablish him in his kingdom, fpite of all his enemics. And in the fixtieth Pfalm it is written, Moab is my washfot, and over Edom will I cast out my shoe, &c. In that place the Prophet sheweth how graciously God hath dealt with his people, the children of Ifrael, giving them great victories upon their enemies on every fide. For the Moabites and Idumeans being two great nations, proud people, flout and mighty, God brought them under, and made them -fervants to the Ifraelites; fervants, I fay, to floop down, to pull off their shoes, and wash their feet. Then Moab is my washpot, and over Edom will I cast out my shoe, is, as if he had faid, The Moabites and the Idumeans, for all their their floutness against us in the wilderness, are now made our fubjects, our fervants, yea, underlings to pull off our thoes, and wash our feet. Now I pray you, what uncomely manner of speech is this, so used in common phrase among the Hebrews? It is a shame that Christian inen should be so light-headed, to toy as russians do with fuch manner of speeches, attered in good grave signification by the Holy Ghost. More reasonable it were for vain men to learn to reverence the form of God's words, than to fport at them to their damnation. Some again are offended to hear that the godly fathers had many wives and concubines, although, after the phrase of the Scripture, a concubine is an honest name; for every concubine is a lawful wife, but every wife is not a concubine. And that ye may the better understand this to be true, ye shall note that it was permitted to the fathers of the Old Testament to have at one time more wives that one, for what purpose ye shall afterward hear. Of which wives fome were free-women born, fome were bond-women and fervants. She that was free born had a prerogative above those that were fervants and bondwomen. The free-born woman was by marriage made the ruler of the house under her husband, and is called the mother of the household, the mistress or the dame of the house, after our manner of speaking, and had by her marriage an interest, a right, and an ownership of his goods, unto whom the was married. Other fervants and bond-women were given by the owners of them, as the manner was then, I will not fay always, but for the most part, unto their daughters at the day of their marriage, to be handmaidens unto them. After fuch a fort did Pharaoh, king of Egypt, give unto Sarah, Abraham's Gen. xxix. wife, Hagar, the Egyptian, to be her maid; fo did Laban give unto his daughter Leah, at the day of her marriage, Zilpah, to be her handmaid. And to his other daughter, Rachel, he gave another bondmaid, named Bilhah. And the wives, that were the owners of their handmaidens, gave them in marriage to their husbands, upon divers occasions. Sarah gave her maid, Hagar, in marriage to Gen. xvi. Abraham; Leah gave, in like manner, her maid, Zilpah, to her husband, Jacob. So did Rachel, his other wife, give him Bilhah, her maid, faying unto him, Go in unto Gen. xxx. ber, and she shall bear upon my knees: which is, as if she had faid, Take her to wife, and the children that she shall bear will I take upon my lap, and make of them as if they were mine own. These handmaidens or bondwomen, although by marriage they were made wives, yet they had not this prerogative, to rule in the house, but were still underlings, and in such subjection to their masters, and were never called mothers of the household, mistresses, or dames of the house, but are called sometimes wives, fometimes concubines. The plurality of wives was by a special prerogative suffered to the fathers of the Old Testament, not for satisfying their carnal and fleshly lusts, but to have many children, because every one of them hoped, and begged ofttimes of God in their prayers, that that bleffed feed, which God promifed should come into the world to break the ferpent's head, might come and be born of his flock and kindred.

Now of those which take occasion of carnality and evil life, by hearing and reading in God's book, what God had fuffered, even in those men whose commendation is praifed in the Scripture: as that Noah, whom St. 2 Pet. ii. Peter calleth the eighth preacher of righteonfness, was Gen. ix.

Gen. xix.

Gen. xvii. Rom iv.

fo drunk with wine, that in his fleep he uncovered his own privities. The just man, Lot, was in like manner drunken, and in his drunkenness lay with his own daughters, contrary to the law of nature. Abraham, whose faith was fo great, that for the fame he deferved to be called of God's own mouth, a father of many nations, the father of all believers, befides with Sarah his wife, had also carnal company with Hagar, Sarah's handmaid. Gen, xxix. The patriarch Jacob had to his wives two fifters at one time. The prophet David, and king Solomon his fon, had many wives and concubines, &c. Which things we fee plainly to be forbidden us by the law of God, and are now repugnant to all public honesty. These and fuch like in God's book, good people, are not written that we should or may do the like, following their examples, or that we ought to think that God did allow every of these things in those men: but we ought rather to believe and to judge that Noah in his drunkennefs offended God highly. Lot, lying with his daughters, committed horrible incest. We ought then to learn by them this prositable lesson, that if so godly men as they were, which otherwise felt inwardly God's holy Spirit inflaming their hearts with the fear and love of God, could not by their own ftrength keep themselves from committing horrible fin, but did fo grievously fall, that without God's great mercy they had perished everlastingly; how much more ought we then, miferable wretches, which have no feeling of God within us at all, all, continually to fear, not only that we may fall as they did, but also be overcome and drowned in fin, which they were not; and so, by confidering their fall, take the better occasion to acknowledge our own infirmity and weakness, and therefore more carnessly to call unto Almighty God with hearty prayer incessantly, for his grace to strengthen us, and to defend us from all evil. And though through infirmity we chance at any time to fall, yet we may, by hearty repentance, and true faith, speedily rife again, and not sleep and continue in fin, as the wicked doth.

Thus, good people, should we understand such matters expressed in the divine Scriptures, that this holy table of God's Word be not turned to us to be a snare, a trap, and a stumbling-stone, to take hurt by the abuse of our understanding: but let us esteem them in a reverent humility, that we may find our necessary food therein, to strengthen us, to comfort us, to instruct us, as God of his great mercy hath appointed them, in all necessary works, so that we may be perfect before him in the whole course of our life: which he grant, who hath redeemed us, our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, to whom with the Father and the Holy Ghost be all honour and glory for evermore. Amen.

The Second Part of the Information for them which take offence at certain Places of the holy Scripture.

I have heard, good people, in the Homily last read unto you, the great commodity of holy Scriptures; ye have heard how ignorant men, void of godly understanding, seek quarrels to discredit them: some of their reasons have ye heard answered. Now we will proceed, and speak of such politic wite men, which be offended, for that Christ's precepts should seem to destroy all order in governance, as they do allege for example, such as these be: If any man strike thee on the right check, turn Matth. v. the other unto him also. If any man will contend to take thy coat from thee, let him have cloak and all. Let not thy left hand know what thy right hand doth. If thine Matt. xxii. eye, thine hand, or thy foot offend thee, pull out thine eye, cut off thine hand, or thy foot, and cast it from thee. If thine enemy, saith St. Paul, he an hungred, give him meat; Rom. xii. if he be thirsty, give him drink: so doing, thou shalt beap bot burning coals upon his head. These sentences, good people, unto a natural man seem mere absurdities, contrary to all reason. For a natural man, as St. Paul saith, understandeth not the things that helong to God, neither can be so long as old Adam dwelleth in him. Christ therefore meaneth, that he would have his faithful servants so far from vengeance, and resisting wrong, that he would rather have him ready to suffer another wrong, than by resisting to break charity, and to be out of patience. He would have our good deeds so far from all carnal respects, that he would not have our nighest friends know of our well doing, to win vain-glory. And though our friends and kinstolks be as dear as our right eyes and our right hands; yet if they would pluck us from God, we ought to renounce them, and forfake them.

Thus if ye will be profitable hearers and readers of the holy Scriptures, ye must first deny yourselves, and keep under your carnal fenses, taken by the outward words, and fearch the inward meaning: reason must give place to God's holy Spirit; you must submit your worldly wifdom and judgment unto his divine wifdom and judgment. Confider that the Scripture, in what strange form foever it be pronounced, is the word of the living God. Let that always come to your remembrance, which is fo oft repeated of the prophet Efaias, The mouth of the Lord, faith he, bath spoken it; and almighty and everlasting God, who with his only word created beaven and earth, hath decreed it; the Lord of Hosts, whose ways are in the seas, whose paths are in the deep waters, that Lord and God, by suboje word all things in beaven and in earth are created, governed, and preserved, bath so provided it. The God of Gods, and Lord of all Lords, yea, God that is God alone, incomprehensible, almighty, and everlasting, he hath spoken it, it is bis word. It cannot therefore be but truth, which proceedeth from the God of all truth: it cannot be but wifely and prudently commanded, what Almighty God hath devifed, how vainly foever, through want of grace, we miferable wretches do imagine and judge of his most holy word. The prophet David, describing an happy man, faith, Bleffed is the man that doth not walk after the counjel of the ungodly, nor stand in the way of finners, not fit in the feat of the fornful. There are three forts of people, whose company the prophet would have him to flee and avoid, which shall be an happy man, and partaker of God's bleffing. First, he may not walk after the counsel of the ungodly. Secondly, he may not stand 272

in the way of sinners. Thirdly, he must not sit in the seat of the scornful. By these three forts of people, ungodly men, finners, and fcorners, all impiety is fignified, and fully expressed. By the ungodly he understandeth those which have no regard of Almighty God, being void of all faith, whose hearts and minds are so set upon the world, that they fludy only how to accomplish their worldly practices, their carnal imaginations, their filthy luft and defire, without any fear of God. The fecond fort he calleth finners; not such as do fall through ignorance, or of frailness; for then who should be found free? What man ever lived upon earth, Christ only excepted, but he hath finned? The just man falleth soven times, and Prov. xxiv. rifeth again. Though the godly do fall, yet they walk not on purpofely in fin, they fland not still to continue and tarry in fin, they fit not down like careless men, without all fear of God's just punishment for sin; but defying fin, through God's great grace and infinite mercy, they rife again, and fight against sin. The prophet then calleth them finners, whose hearts are clean turned from God, and whose whole conversation of life is nothing but fin; they delight fo much in the fame, that they choofe continually to abide and dwell in fin. The third fort he calleth fcorners, that is, a fort of men, whose hearts are fo stuffed with malice, that they are not contented to dwell in fin, and to lead their lives in all kind of wickedness; but also they do contemn and scorn in other Il godlinefs, true religion, all honefty and virtue. Of the two first forts of men, I will not say but they may take repentance, and be converted unto God. Of the third fort, I think I may, without danger of God's judgment, pronounce, that never any yet converted unto God by repentance, but continued fill in their abominable wickedness, heaping up to themselves damnation, against the day of God's inevitable judgment. Examples of fuch feorners, we read in the fecond book of Chronicles: 2 Chron. When the good king Hezekiah, in the beginning of his xxx. reign, had destroyed idolatry, purged the temple, and reformed religion in his realm, he fent messengers into every city, to gather the people unto Jerufalem, to folemnize the feast of Easter, in such fort as God had appointed. The posts went from city to city, through the land of Ephraim and Manasses, even unto Zabulon. And what did the people, think ye? Did they laud and praise the name of the Lord, which had given them so good a king, so zealous a prince to abolish idolatry, and to restore again again God's true religion? No, no. The Scripture faith, The people laughed them to scorn, and mocked the king's messengers. And in the last chapter of the same book it is written, that Almighty God, having compassion upon his people, fent his messengers, the prophets, unto them, to call them from their abominable idolatry and wicked kind of living. they mocked his messengers, they despited his words, and misused his prophets, until the wrath of the Lord arose against his people, and till there was no remedy: for he gave them up into the hands of their enemies, even unto Nabuchodonofor, king of Babylon, who spoiled them of their goods, burnt their city, and led them, their wives, and their children, captives unto Babylon. The wicked people that were in the days of Noah made but a mock at the word of God, when Noah told them that God would take vengeance upon them for their fins. The flood therefore came fuddenly upon them, and drowned them, with the wholeworld. Lot preached to the Sodomites, that, except they repented, both they and their city flionld be deflroyed. They thought his fayings impossible to be true, they feorned and mocked his admonition, and reputed him as an old doting fool. But when God by his holy angels had taken Lot, his wife, and two daughters from among them, he rained down fire and brimftone from heaven, and burnt up those scorners and mockers of his holy word. And what estimation had Christ's doctrine among the Scribes and Pharifees? What reward had he among them? The Gospel reporteth thus: The Pharisees, which were covetous, did form him in his doctrine. O then ye fee that worldly rich men fcorn the doctrine of their falvation. The worldly wife men fcorn the doctrine of Christ, as foolishness to their understanding. These feorners have ever been, and ever shall be to the world's end. For St. Peter prophefied, that fuch feorners should be in the world before the latter day. Take heed therefore, my brethren, take heed, be ye not fcorners of God's most holy word; provoke him not to pour out his wrath now upon you, as he did then upon those gybers and mockers. Be not wilful murderers of your own fouls. Turn unto God while there is yet time of mercy; ye shall else repent it in the world to come, when it shall be too late, for there shall be judgment without mercy. This might fuffice to admonth us, and cause us henceforth to reverence God's holy Scriptures; but all men have not faith. This therefore shall not fatisfy and content all men's minds: but as some are carnal, so they will still continue, and

and abuse the Scriptures carnally, to their greater damnation. The unlearned and unstable, faith St. Peter, pervert 2 Pet. iii. the holy Scriptures to their own destruction. Jesus Christ, as St. Paul saith, is to the Jews an offence, to the Gentiles 1 Cor. i. foolishness; but to God's children, as well of the Jews as of the Gentiles, he is the power and wisdom of God. The holy Luke ii. man Since on saith, that he is set forth for the fall and rising again of many in Israel. As Christ Jesus is a fall to the again of many in Ifract. As Chrift Jefus is a fall to the reprobate, which yet perifit through their own default; fo is his word, yea, the whole book of God, a caufe of damnation unto them, through their incredulity. And as he is a rifing up to none other than those which are God's children by adoption; so is his word, yea, the whole Scripture, the power of God to falvation to them only that do believe it. Christ himself, the Prophets before him, the Aposles after him, all the true ministers of God's holy word, yea, every word in God's book, is unto the reprobate the favour of death unto death.

Christ Jesus, the Prophets, the Apostles, and all the true ministers of his word, yea, every jot and tittle in the holy Scripture, have been, is, and shall be for evermore, the favour of life unto eternal life, unto all those whose hearts God hath purified by true faith. Let us earneftly take heed that we make no jesting-stock of the books of holy Scriptures. The more obscure and dark the fayings be to our understanding, the further let us think ourselves to be from God, and his holy Spirit, who was the author of them. Let us with more reverence endeavour ourselves to search out the wisdom hidden in the outward bark of the Scripture. If we cannot underfland the fenfe and the reason of the saying, yet let us not be feorners, jefters, and deriders, for that is the uttermost token and shew of a reprobate, of a plain enemy to God and his wifdom. They be not idle fables to jest at, which God doth feriously pronounce; and for ferious matters let us esteem them. And though in fundry places of the Scriptures be fet out divers rites and ceremonies, oblations and facrifices; let us not think strange of them, but refer them to the times and people for whom they ferved, although yet to learned men they be not unprofitable to be confidered, but to be expounded as figures and thadows of things and persons, afterward openly revealed in the New Testament. Though the rehearfal of the genealogies and pedigrees of the fathers be not to much edification of the plain ignorant people; yet is there there nothing so impertinently uttered in all the whole book of the Bible, but may ferve to spiritual purpose in some respect, to all such as will bestow their labours to search out the meanings. These may not be condemned, because they serve not to our understanding, nor make to our ediscation. But let us turn our labour to understand, and to carry away such seutences and stories, as be more fit for our capacity and instruction.

And whereas we read in divers Pfalms how David did wish to the adversaries of God sometimes shame, rebuke, and confusion; fometime the decay of their offspring and iffue, fometime that they might perish and come fuddenly to destruction, as he did wish to the captains of the Philistines: Cast forth, faith he, thy lightning, and tear them; shoot out thine arrows, and consume them; with fuch other manner of imprecations: yet ought we not to be offended at fuch prayers of David, being a Prophet as he was, fingularly beloved of God, and rapt in spirit, with an ardent zeal to God's glory. He spake not of a private hatred, and in a flomach against their perfons: but wished spiritually the destruction of such corrupt errors and vices, which reigned in all devilish persons set against God. He was of like mind as St. Paul was, when he did deliver Hymeneus and Alexander, with the notorious fornicator, to Satan, to their temporal confusion, that their spirit might be faved against the day of the Lord. And when David did profess in fome places, that he hated the wicked, yet in other places of his Pfalms he professeth, that he hated them with a perfect hate, not with a malicious hate, to the hurt of the foul. Which perfection of spirit, because it cannot be performed in us, so corrupted in affections as we be, we ought not to use in our private causes the like words in form, for that we cannot fulfil the like words in fenfe. Let us not therefore be offended, but fearch out the reason of such words before we be offended, that we may the more reverently judge of fuch fayings, though strange to our carnal understandings, yet to them that be spiritually minded, judged to be zealously and godly pronounced. God therefore, for his mercies fake, vouchfafe to purify our minds through faith in his Son Jefus Chrift, and to inftil the heavenly drops of his grace into our hard flony hearts, to hipple the fame, that we be not contemners and deriders of his infallible word; but that with all humbleness of mind and and Christian reverence, we may endeavour ourselves to hear and to read his facred Scriptures, and inwardly so to digest them, as shall be to the comfort of our souls, fanctification of his holy name: to whom with the Son and the Holy Ghost, three persons, and one living God, be all laud, honour, and praise, for ever and ever.

Alms-Deeds, and Mercifulness towards the Poor and Needy.

MONGST the manifold duties that Almighty God requireth of his faithful fervants the true Christians, by the which he would that both his name should be glorified, and the certainty of their vocation declared, there is none that is either more acceptable unto him, or more profitable for them, than are the works of mercy and pity shewed upon the poor, which be afflicted with any kind of mifery. And yet this notwithstanding, such is the flothful fluggishness of our dull nature to that which is good and godly, that we are almost in nothing more negligent and less careful than we are therein. is therefore a very necessary thing, that God's people should awake their sleepy minds, and consider their duty on this behalf. And meet it is that all true Christians fhould defiroufly feek and learn what God by his holy Word doth herein require of them: that first knowing their duty, (whereof many by their flackness feem to be very ignorant) they may afterwards diligently endeavour to perform the same. By the which both the godly charitable persons may be encouraged to go forwards and continue in their merciful deeds of alms-giving to the poor, and also such as hitherto have either neglected or contemned it, may yet now at length, when they shall hear how much it appertaineth to them, advifedly confider it, and virtuously apply themselves thereunto.

And to the intent that every one of you may the better understand that which is taught, and also easilier bear away, and so take more fruit of that shall be said, when feveral matters are feverally handled; I mind particularly, and in this order, to fpeak and intreat of these points.

First, I will shew how earnefuly Almighty God in his holy Word doth exact the doing of alms-deeds of us; and how acceptable they be unto him.

Secondly, How profitable it is for us to use them, and what commodity and fruit they will bring unto us.

Thirdly and lastly, I will shew out of God's Word, that whoso is liberal to the poor, and relieveth them plenteously, shall notwithstanding have sufficient for himself, and evermore be without danger of penury and scarcity. Concerning the first, which is the acceptation and dignity, or price of alms-deeds before God: know this, that to help and fuccour the poor in their need and mifery pleafeth God fo much, that, as the holy Scripture in fundry places recordeth, nothing can be more thankfully taken or accepted of God. For first we read, that Almighty God doth account that to be given and to be bestowed upon himself, that is bestowed upon the poor: for so doth the Holy Ghost testify unto us by the Wife Man, faying, He Prog. xix. that bath pity upon the poor lendeth unto the Lord bimfelf. And Christ in the Gospel avoucheth, and as a most certain truth bindeth it with an oath, that the alms bestowed upon the poor was bestowed upon him, and so shall be reckoned at the last day. For thus he faith to the charitable alms-givers, when he fitteth as Judge in the doom, to give fentence of every man according to his deferts: Verily I fay unto you, subatfoever good and merciful deed you Matt. xxv. did upon any of the least of these my brethren, re did the same unto me. In relieving their hunger, ye relieved mine; in quenching their thirst, ye quenched mine; in clothing them, ye clothed me; and when ye harboured them, ye lodged me also; when ye visited them, being fick in prison, ye visited me. For as he that hath received a prince's embassadors, and entertaineth them well, doth honour the prince from whom those embassadors do come; fo he that receiveth the poor and needy, and helpeth them in their affliction and diffress, doth thereby receive and honour Christ their Master, who, as he was poor and needy himfelf whilft he lived here amongst us, to work the mystery of our salvation, at his departure hence he promised in his stead to send unto us those that were poor, by whose means his absence should be supplied: and therefore that we would do unto him, we must do unto them. And for this cause doth the Almighty God fay unto Moses, The land wherein you dwell shall Deut, xx.

never be without poor men: because he would have continual trial of his people, whether they loved him or no, that in flewing themselves obedient unto his will, they might certainly affure themselves of his love and favour towards them, and nothing doubt, but that as his law and ordinance (wherein he commanded them that they should open their hand unto their brethren that were poor and needy in the land) were accepted of them, and willingly performed; fo he would on his part lovingly accept them, and truly perform his promifes that he had made unto them.

The holy Apostles and Disciples of Christ, who, by reason of his daily conversation, saw by his deeds, and heard in his doctrine, how much he tendered the poor; the godly Fathers also, that were both before and since Christ, endued without doubt with the Holy Ghost, and most certainly certified of God's holy will; they both do most earnestly exhort us, and in all their writings almost continually admonish us, that we would remember the poor, and bestow our charitable alms upon them. St. Theff. v. Paul crieth unto us after this fort; Comfort the feeble minded, lift up the weak, and be charitable towards all men.

Heb. xiii.

Isa. lviii.

Ad Pop. Antioch. Hom. xxxv.

And again, To do good to the poor, and to distribute alms gladly, see that thou do not forget, for with such sacrifices God is pleased. Isaial the Prophet teacheth on this wife: Deal thy bread to the bungry, and bring the poor wandering bome to thy boufe. When thou feeft the naked, fee thou clothe him, and hide not thy face from thy poor neighbour, neither despite Tobit iv. thou thine own flesh. And the holy father Tobit giveth this counsel; Give alms, saith he, of thine own goods, and turn never thy. face from the poor; eat thy bread with the bungry, and cover the naked with thy clothes. And the learned and godly Doctor Chrysostom giveth admonition: Let merciful alms be always with us as a garment; that is, as mindful as we will be to put our garments upon us, to cover our nakedness, to defend us from the cold, and to shew ourselves comely; so mindful let us be at all times and seasons, that we give alms to the poor, and shew ourselves merciful towards them. But what mean these often admonitions and earnest exhortations of the Prophets, Apostles, Fathers, and holy Doctors? Surely, as they were faithful to God ward, and therefore discharged their duty truly, in telling us what was God's will; fo, of a fingular love to us ward, they laboured not only to inform us, but also to perfuade us, that to give alms, and to fuccour the poor and needy, was a very acceptable thing, and an high facrifice to God, wherein he greatly delighted, and had a fingular pleasure. For so doth the Wise Man, the son of Sirach, teach us, saying, Whoso is merciful and giveth alms, he of-Ecclus. fereth the right thank-offering. And he added the thereunto, xxiii. The right thank-offering maketh the altar fat, and a sweet smell it is before the Highest; it is acceptable before God, and Shall never be forgotten.

And the truth of this doctrine is verified by the examples of those holy and charitable fathers, of whom we read in the Scriptures, that they were given to merciful compassion towards the poor, and charitable relieving of their necessities. Such a one was Abraham, in whom God had fo great pleafure, that he vouchfafed to come unto him in form of an angel, and to be entertained of him at his house. Such was his kinsman Lot, whom God fo favoured for receiving his messengers into his house, which otherwise should have lain in the street, that he faved him with his whole family from the destruction of Sodom and Gomorrah. Such were the holy fathers Job and Tobit, with many others, who felt most fensible proofs of God's special love towards them. And as all these by their mercifulness and tender compassion, which they shewed to the miserable afflicted members of Christ, in the relieving, helping, and fuccouring them with their temporal goods in this life, obtained God's favour, and were dear, acceptable, and pleafant in his fight; fo now they themselves take pleasure in the fruition of God, in the pleasant joys of heaven, and are also in God's eternal Word set before us, as perfect examples ever before our eyes, both how we shall please God in this mortal life, and also how we may come to live in joy with them in everlasting pleafure and felicity. For most true is that faying which Augustine hath, that the giving of alms and relieving of the poor is the right way to heaven. Via Cæli pauper est; The poor man, saith he, is the way to beaven. They used in times past to set in highway fides the picture of Mercury, pointing with his finger which was the right way to the town. And we use in cross-ways to fet up a wooden or stone cross, to admonish the travelling man which way he must turn, when he cometh thither, to direct his journey aright. But God's word (as St. Augustine saith) hath set in the way to heaven the poor man and his house, so that whoso will go aright thither, and not turn out of the way, must go by the poor. The poor man is that Mercury that shall fet us the ready way: and if we look well to this mark, we shall not wander much out of the right path. The manner Y 3 manner of wife worldly men amongst us is, that if they know a man of a meaner estate than themselves to be in favour with the prince, or any other nobleman, whom they either fear or love, such a one they will be glad to benefit and pleafure, that, when they have need, they may become their spokesman, either to obtain a commodity, or to escape a displeasure. Now surely it ought to be a shame to us, that worldly men for temporal things, that last but for a feason, should be more wise and provident in procuring them, than we in heavenly. Our Saviour Christ tellisieth of poor men, that they are dear unto him, and that he loveth them especially; for he calleth them his little ones, by a name of tender love: he faith they be his brethren. And St. James faith, that God hath chosen them to be the heirs of his kingdom. Hath not God, faith he, chosen the poor of this world to himself, to make them bereafter the rich beirs of that kingdom which be hath promifed to them that love bim? And we know that the prayer which they make for us shall be acceptable and regarded of God, their complaint shall be heard also. Thereof doth Jefus the fon of Sirach certainly affure us, Ecclus. iv. faying, If the poor complain of thee in the bitterness of his foul, his prayer shall be heard; even be that made him shall hear him. Be courteous therefore unto the poor. We know also, that he who acknowledgeth himself to be their mafter and patron, and refuseth not to take them for his fervants, is both able to pleafure and displeasure us, and that we stand every hour in need of his help. Why should we then be either negligent or unwilling to procure their friendship and favour, by the which also we may be affured to get his favour, that is both able and willing to do us all pleafures that are for our commodity and wealth? Christ doth declare by this, how much he accepteth our charitable affection toward the poor, in that he promifeth a reward unto them that give but a cup of cold water in his name to them that have need thereof, and that reward is the kingdom of heaven. No doubt is it therefore that God regardeth highly that which he rewardeth fo liberally. For he that promifeth a princely recompence for a beggarly benevolence, declareth that he is more delighted with the giving, than with the gift, and that he as much efteemeth the doing of the thing, as the fruit and commodity that cometh of it. Whofo therefore hath hitherto neglected to give alms, let him know that God now requireth it of him; and he that hath been liberal to the poor, let him know that his godly doings

ings are accepted, and thankfully taken at God's hands, which he will requite with double and treble. For fo faith the Wife Man: He which sheweth mercy to the poor, doth lay his money in bank to the Lord, for a large interest and gain; the gain being chiefly the possession of the life everlasting, through the merits of our Saviour Jesus Christ: to whom with the Father and the Holy Ghost be all honour and glory for ever. Amen.

The Second Part of the Sermon of Alms-Deeds.

YE have heard before, dearly beloved, that to give alms unto the poor, and to help them in time of necessity, is so acceptable unto our Saviour Christ, that he counteth that to be done to himself, that we do for his sake unto them. Ye have heard also how earnestly both the Apostles, Prophets, holy Fathers, and Doctors, do exhort us unto the same. And ye see how well-beloved and dear unto God they were, whom the Scriptures report unto us to have been good alms-men. Wherefore if either their good examples, or the wholesome counsel of godly fathers, or the love of Christ, whose especial favour we may be affured by this means to obtain, may move us, or do any thing at all with us; let us provide us, that from henceforth we shew unto God ward this thankful service, to be mindful and ready to help them

Now will I this fecond time that I entreat of almsdeeds, shew unto you how profitable it is for us to exercife them, and what fruit thereby shall arise unto us, if we do them faithfully. Our Saviour Christ in the Gospel teacheth us, that it profiteth a man nothing to have in possession all the riches of the whole world, and the wealth or glory thereof, if in the mean feason he lose his foul, or do that thing whereby it should become captive unto death, fin, and hell-sire. By the which faying, he not only instructeth us how much the soul's health is to be preferred before worldly commodities; but it also ferveth to ftir up our minds, and to prick us forwards to feek diligently, and learn by what means we may preferve and keep our fouls ever in fafety; that is, how we may recover our health, if it be lost or impaired, and how it may be defended and maintained, if once we have it. Yea, he teacheth us also thereby to esteem that as a precious medicine, and an inestimable jewel, that hath such ftrength

flrength and virtue in it, that can either procure or preferve fo incomparable a treasure. For if we greatly regard that medicine or falve, that is able to heal fundry and grievous difeases of the body, much more will we esteem that which hath like power over the foul. And because we might be better affured both to know and to have in readiness that so prositable a remedy; he, as a most faithful and loving teacher, sheweth himself both what it is, and where we may find it, and how we may use and apply it. For when both he and his Disciples were grievously accused of the Pharisees, to have defiled their souls in breaking the conftitutions of the Elders, because they went to meat, and washed not their hands before, according to the custom of the Jews; Christ answering their fuperstitious complaint, teacheth them an especial remedy how to keep clean their fouls, notwithflanding the breach of fuch superstitious orders: Give alms, faith he, and behold all things are clean unto you. He teacheth them, that to be merciful and charitable in helping the poor, is the means to keep the foul pure and clean in the fight of God. We are taught therefore by this, that merciful alms-dealing is profitable to purge the foul from the infection and filthy spots of sin. The same lesson doth the Holy Ghost also teach in sundry places of the Scripture, saying, Mercifulness and alms-giving purgeth from all sins, and delivereth from death, and suffereth not the soul to come into darkness. A great confidence may they have before the high God, that shew mercy and compassion to them that are afflicted. The wife Preacher, the fon of Sirach, confirmeth the fame, when he faith, That as water quench. eth burning fire, even so mercy and alms resisteth and reconcilctb fins. And fure it is, that mercifulness quaileth the heat of fin fo much, that they shall not take hold upon man to hurt him; or if ye have by any infirmity or weakness been touched and annoyed with them, straightways shall mercifulness wipe and wash away, as salves and remedies to heal their fores and grievous difeases. And thereupon that holy father Cyprian taketh good occasion to exhort earnefily to the merciful works of giving alms and helping the poor, and there he admonisheth to consider how wholesome and profitable it is to relieve the needy, and help the afflicted, by the which we may purge

But yet some will say unto me, If alms-giving, and our charitable works towards the poor, be able to wash away sins, to reconcile us to God, to deliver us from the peril

of damnation, and make us the fons and heirs of God's kingdom; then are Christ's merits defaced, and his blood shed in vain; then are we justified by works, and by our deeds may we merit heaven; then do we in vain believe that Christ died for to put away our fins, and that he rose for our justification, as St. Paul teacheth. But ye shall understand, dearly beloved, that neither those places of the Scripture before alleged, neither the doctrine of the bleffed martyr Cyprian, neither any other godly and learned man, when they, in extolling the dignity, profit, fruit, and effect of virtuous and liberal alms, do fay that it washeth away fins, and bringeth us to the favour of God, do mean, that our work and charitable deed is the original cause of our acception before God, or that for the dignity or worthiness thereof our fins may be washed away, and we purged and cleanfed of all the spots of our iniquity; for that were indeed to deface Christ, and to defraud him of his glory. But they mean this, and this is the understanding of those and such like sayings, that God of his mercy and special favour towards them, whom he hath appointed to everlasting falvation, hath so offered his grace especially, and they have so received it fruitfully, that although, by reason of their sinful living outwardly, they feemed before to have been the children of wrath and perdition; yet now the Spirit of God mightily working in them, unto obedience to God's will and commandments, they declare by their outward deeds and life, in the shewing of mercy and charity, (which cannot come but of the Spirit of God, and his especial grace) that they are the undoubted children of God appointed to everlafting life. And fo, as by their wickedness and ungodly living they shewed themselves according to the judgment of men, which follow the outward appearance, to be reprobates and castaways; so now by their obedience unto God's holy will, and by their mercifulness and tender pity, (wherein they shew themselves to be like unto God, who is the fountain and fpring of all mercy,) they declare openly and manifestly unto the fight of men, that they are the fons of God, and elect of him unto falvation. For as the good fruit is not the cause that the tree is good, but the tree must first be good before it can bring forth good fruit; fo the good deeds of man are not the cause that maketh man good, but he is first made good by the spirit and grace of God, that effectually worketh in him, and afterward he bringeth forth good fruits. And then as the good fruit doth argue the goodness of the tree, fo doth the good and merciful deed of the man argue and certainly prove the goodness of him that doth it, according to Christ's fayings: Ye shall know them by their fruits. And if any man will object, that evil and naughty men do fometimes by their deeds appear to be very godly and virtuous; I will answer, so doth the crab and choak-pear feem outwardly to have fometime as fair a red, and as mellow a colour, as the fruit that is good indeed. But he that will bite and take a taste, shall easily judge betwixt the four bitterness of the one, and the fweet favouriness of the other. And as the true Christian man, in thankfulness of his heart, for the redemption of his foul purchased by Christ's death, sheweth kindly by the fruit of his faith his obedience to God; fo the other, as a merchant with God, doth all for his own gain, thinking to win heaven by the merit of his works, and to defaceth and obscureth the price of Christ's blood, who only wrought our purgation. The meaning then of these sayings in the Scriptures and other holy writings; Alms-deeds do wash away our fins; and, Mercy to the poor doth blot out our offices, is, that we doing these things according to God's will and our duty, have our fins indeed washed away, and our offences blotted out; not for the worthings of them, but by the grace of God which worketh all in all, and that for the promife that God hath made to them that are obedient unto his commandment, that he which is the truth might be justified in performing the truth due to his true promife. Almsdeeds do wash away our fins, because God doth vouchsafe then to repute us as clean and pure, when we do them for his fake, and not because they deserve or merit our purging, or for that they have any fuch strength and virtue in themselves. I know that some men, too much addict to the advancing of their works, will not be contented with this answer; and no marvel, for such men can no answer content or suffice. Wherefore leaving them to their own wilful fense, we will rather have regard to the reasonable and godly, who as they most certainly know and perfuade themselves, that all goodness, all bounty, all mercy, all benefits, all forgiveness of fins, and whatfoever can be named good and profitable, either for the body or for the foul, do come only of God's mercy and mere favour, and not of themselves; so though they do never fo many and fo excellent good deeds, yet are they never puffed up with the vain confidence of them. And though they hear and read in God's word, and otherother-where in godly men's works, that alms-deeds, mercy, and charitableness, doth wash away sin, and blot out iniquity; yet do they not arrogantly and proudly flick and trust unto them, or brag themselves of them, as the proud Pharifee did, left with the Pharifee they should be condemned: but rather with the humble and poor Publican confess themselves sinful wretches, unworthy to look up to heaven, calling and craving for mercy, that with the Publican they may be pronounced of Christ to be justified. The godly do learn that when the Scriptures fay, that by good and merciful works we are reconciled to God's favour, we are taught then to know what Christ by his intercession and mediation obtaineth for us of his Father, when we be obedient to his will; yea, they learn in fuch manner of speaking a comfortable argument of God's fingular favour and love, that attributeth that unto us and to our doings, that he by his Spirit worketh in us, and through his grace procureth for us. And yet this notwithstanding, they cry out with St. Paul, O wretches that we are; and acknowledge, as Christ teacheth, that when they have all done, they are but unprofitable fervants; and with the bleffed King David, in respect of the just judgments of God, they do tremble, and say, Who shall be able to abide it, Lord if thou wilt give sentence according to our deserts? Thus they humble themselves, and are exalted of God; they count themselves vile, and of God are counted pure and clean; they condemn themselves, and are justified of God; they think themselves unworthy of the earth, and of God are thought worthy of heaven. Thus by God's word are they truly taught how to think rightly of merciful dealing of alms, and of God's especial mercy and goodness are made partakers of those fruits that his word hath promifed. Let us then follow their examples, and both shew obediently in our lives those works of mercy that we are commanded, and have that right opinion and judgment of them that we are taught; and we shall in like manner, as they, be made partakers, and feel the fruits and rewards that follow fuch godly living, fo shall we know by proof what profit and commodity doth come of giving of alms and fuccouring of the poor.

The Third Part of the Sermon of Alms-Deeds.

YE have already heard two parts of this treatife of Alms-deeds. The first, how pleasant and acceptable before God the doing of them is; the fecond, how much it behoveth us, and how profitable it is to apply ourselves unto them. Now in the third part will I take away that let, that hindereth many from doing them. There be many, that when they hear how acceptable a thing in the fight of God the giving of alms is, and how much God extendeth his favour towards them that are merciful, and what fruits and commodities do come to them by it, they wish very gladly with themselves that they also might obtain these benefits, and be counted fuch of God as whom he would love or do for. But yet these men are with greedy covetousness so pulled back, that they will not befow one halfpenny, or one piece of bread, that they might be thought worthy of God's benefits, and fo to come into his favour. For they are evermore fearful, and doubting, left by often giving, although it were but a little at a time, they should consume their goods, and fo impoverish themselves, that even themselves at the length should not be able to live, but should be driven to beg, and live of other men's alms. And thus they feek excuses to withhold themselves from the favour of God, and choose with pinching covetousness rather to lean unto the Devil, than by charitable mercifulness cither to come unto Christ, or to fuffer Christ to come unto them. O that we had fome cunning and skilful physician, that were able to purge them of this so pestilent an humour, that fo fore infecteth, not their bodies, but their minds, and fo by corrupting their fouls bringeth their bodies and fouls into danger of hell-fire! Now left there be any fuch among us, dearly beloved, let us diligently fearch for that physician, which is Jesus Christ, and earnefily labour that of his mercy he will truly inflruct us, and give us a prefent remedy against fo perilous a disease. Hearken then, whosoever thou art that feareft left by giving to the poor thou fhouldest bring thyfelf to beggary. That which thou takest from thyself to beflow upon Christ can never be confumed and wasted away. Wherein thou shalt not believe me, but if thou have faith, and be a true Christian, believe the Holy Ghoft, give credit to the authority of God's word that thus teacheth. For thus faith the Holy Ghost by Solomon, He that giveth unto the poor shall never want. Men suppose that by hoarding and laying up still, they shall at length be rich, and that by distributing and laying out, although it be for most necessary and godly uses, they shall be brought to poverty. But the Holy Ghost, which knoweth all truth, teacheth us another lesson, contrary to this. He teacheth us that there is a kind of dispending that shall never diminish the stock, and a kind of saving that shall bring a man to extreme poverty. For where he faith, that the good alms-man shall never bave scarcity, he addeth, but be that turneth away bis eyes from fuch as be in necessity, shall suffer great poverty himfelf. How far different then is the judgment of man from the judgment of the Holy Ghost! The holy Apoftle Paul, a man full of the Holy Ghoft, and made privy even of the fecret will of God, teacheth, that the liberal alms-giver shall not thereby be impoverished. He that t Cor. ix. ministereth, faith he, seed unto the sower, will minister also bread unto you for food; yea, be will multiply your feed, and increase the fruits of your rightcousness. He is not content to advertise them that they shall not lack, but he sheweth them also in what fort God will provide for them. Even as he provided feed for the fower in multiplying it, and giving great increase; so he will multiply their goods, and increase them, that there shall be great abundance. And left we should think his fayings to be but words, and not truth, we have an example thereof in the first Book of Kings, which doth confirm and feal it up as a most certain truth. The poor widow that received the banished Prophet of God, Elias, when as the had but a handful of meal in a veffel, and a little oil in a cruse, whereof she would make a cake for herself and her fon, that after they had eaten that, they might die, because in that great famine there was no more food to be gotten: yet when she gave part thereof to Elias, and defrauded her own hungry belly, mercifully to relieve him, she was so blessed of God, that neither the meal nor the oil was confumed all the time while that famine did last, but thereof both the Prophet Elias, she, and her son, were fufficiently nourished and had enough.

Oh confider this example, ye unbelieving and faithless covetous persons, who discredit God's word, and think his power diminished! This poor woman, in the time of an extreme and long dearth, had but one handful of meal and a little cruse of oil; her only son was ready to perish before her sace for hunger, and she herself like to pine

away: and yet when the poor Prophet came, and asked part, the was fo mindful of mercifulness, that the forgot her own mifery; and rather than she would omit the occation given to give alms, and work a work of righteoufnefs, the was content prefently to hazard her own and her fon's life. And you, who have great plenty of meats and drinks, great flore of moth-eaten apparel, yea, many of you great heaps of gold and filver, and he that hath least hath more than sufficient, now in this time, when, thanks be to God, no great famine doth oppress you, your children being well clothed and well fed, and no danger of death for famine to be feared, will rather cast doubts and perils of unlikely penury, than you will part with any piece of your fuperfluities, to help and fuccour the poor, hungry, and naked Christ, that cometh to your doors a begging. This poor and filly widow never cafe doubts in all her mifery what wants flie herfelf should have, the never distrusted the promife that God made to her by the Prophet, but ftraightway went about to relieve the hungry Prophet of God, yea, preferring his necessity before her own. But we, like unbelieving wretches, before we will give one mite, we will cast a thousand doubts. of danger, whether that will stand us in any stead, that we give to the poor, whether we should not have need of it at any other time, and whether here it would not have been more profitably bestowed. So that it is more hard to wrench a strong nail (as the proverb faith) out of a post, than to wring a farthing out of our singers. There is neither the fear nor the love of God before our eyes; we will more esteem a mite, than we either desire God's kingdom, or fear the Devil's dungeon. Hearken, therefore, ye merciless misers, what will be the end of this your unmerciful dealing. As certainly as God nourished this poor widow in the time of famine, and increased her little store, fo that she had enough, and felt no penury, when other pined away; fo certainly shall God plague you with poverty in the midst of plenty. Then when other have abundance and be fed at full, you shall utterly wafte and confume away yourfelves, your flore shall be deftroyed, your goods plucked from you, all your glory and wealth shall perish; and that which when you had you might have enjoyed yourselves in peace, and might have bestowed upon other most godly, ye shall feek with forrow and fighs, and no where shall find it. For your unmercifulness towards other, ye shall find no man that will shew mercy towards you. You that had stony hearts towards towards other, shall find all the creatures of God to you ward as hard as brass and iron. Alas, what fury and madness doth possess our minds, that in a matter of truth and certainty we will not give credit to the truth, testifying unto that which is most certain! Christ saith, that if we will first seek the kingdom of God, and do the works of rightcousness thereof, we shall not be left destitute, all other things shall be given to us plentcously. Nay, say we, I will sirst look that I be able to live myself, and be sure that I have enough for me and mine; and if I have any thing over, I will bestow it to get God's favour, and the poor shall then have part with me.

See, I pray you, the perverse judgment of men; we have more care to nourish the carcase, than we have fear to see our foul perish. And, as Cyprian faith, whilst we stand in Sermon de doubt left our goods fail in being over liberal, we put it Elecmofyout of doubt, that our life and health faileth in not be-naing liberal at all. Whilft we are careful for diminishing of our stock, we are altogether careless to diminish ourfelves. We love Mammon, and lose our souls. We fear lest our patrimony should perish from us; but we fear not lest we should perish for it. Thus do we perversely love that which we should hate, and hate that which we should love; we be negligent where we should be careful, and careful where we need not. Thus vain fear to lack ourselves, if we give to the poor, is much like the fear of children and fools, which when they fee the bright glimmering of a glass, they do imagine straightway that it is the lightning, and yet the brightness of a glass never was the lightning. Even so, when we imagine that by spending upon the poor, a man may come to poverty, we are cast into a vain fear; for we never heard or knew, that by that means any man came to mifery, and was left destitute, and not considered of God. Nay, we read to the contrary in the Scripture, (as I have before shewed, and as by infinite testimonies and examples may be proved,) that who foever ferveth God faithfully and unfeignedly in any vocation, God will not fuffer him to decay, much lefs to perish. The Holy Ghost teacheth us by Solomon, that the Lord will not fuffer the foul of the Prov. xvii. righteous to perish for hunger. And therefore David saith unto all them that are merciful, O fear the Lord, ye that be his faints, for they that fear him lack nothing. The lions do lack and fuffer bunger; but they which feek the Lord shall want no manner of thing that is good. When Elias was in I King the defart, God fed him by the ministry of a raven, that xvii. evening evening and morning brought him fufficient victuals. When Daniel was thut up in the lions' den, God prepared meat for him, and fent it thither to him. And there was the faying of David fulfilled, The lions do lack and suffer hunger; but they which seek the Lord shall want no good thing. For while the lions, which should have been fed with his flesh, roared for hunger and desire of their prey, whereof they had no power, although it were present before them, he in the mean time was fresh fed from God, that should with his flesh have filled the lions. So mightily doth God work to preferve and maintain those whom he loveth; fo careful is he also to feed them who in any state or vocation do unfeignedly ferve him. And shall we now think that he will be unmindful of us, if we be obedient to his word, and according to his will have pity on the poor? He giveth us all wealth before we do any fervice for it: and will he fee us lack necessaries when we do him true fervice? Can a man think that he that feedeth Christ, can be forsaken of Christ, and left without food? or will Christ deny earthly things unto them, whom he promifeth heavenly things for his true fervice? It cannot be therefore, dear brethren, that by giving of alms we should at any time want ourselves; or that we, which relieve other men's need, should ourselves be oppressed with penury. It is contrary to God's word, it repugneth with his promise, it is against Christ's property and nature to fuffer it, it is the crafty furmife of the Devil to perfuade us it. Wherefore flick not to give alms freely, and trust notwithstanding, that God's goodness will minister unto us sufficiency and plenty, so long as we shall live in this transitory life, and after our days here well fpent in his fervice, and the love of our brethren, we shall be crowned with everlasting glory, to reign with Christ our Saviour in heaven: to whom with the Father and the Holy Ghost be all honour and glory for ever. Amen.

HOMILY

The Nativity and Birth of our Saviour Jefus Christ.

MONG all the creatures that God made in the beginning of the world most excellent and wonderful in their kind, there was none, as the Scripture beareth witness, to be compared almost in any point unto Man, who as well in body as foul exceeded all other, no less than the Sun in brightness and light exceedeth every small and little star in the sirmament. He was made according to the image and similitude of God, he was endued with all kind of heavenly gifts, he had no spot of uncleanness in him, he was sound and perfect in all parts, both outwardly and inwardly, his reason was uncorrupt, his understanding was pure and good, his will was obedient and godly, he was made altogether like unto God in righteousness, and holiness, in wisdom, in truth; to be short, in all kind of perfection.

When he was thus created and made, Almighty God, in token of his great love towards him, chose out a special place of the earth for him, namely, Paradise, where he lived in all tranquillity and pleasure, having great abundance of worldly goods, and lacking nothing that he might justly require, or desire to have. For, as it is said, God Psalm is, made him lord and ruler over all the works of his hands, that he should have under his feet all sheep and oven, all heasts of the field, all fowls of the air, all sishes of the sea, and use them always at his own pleasure, according as he should have need. Was not this a mirror of perfection? Was not this a full, perfect, and blessed estate? Could any thing else be well added hereunto, or greater felicity defired in this world? But as the common nature of all men is, in time of prosperity and wealth, to forget not only themselves, but also God; even so did this first man Adam, who having but one commandment at God's hand, namely, that he should not eat of the fruit of knowledge of good and ill, did notwithstanding, most unmindfully, or rather most wilfully break it, in forgetting the straight charge of his Maker, and giving ear to the crafty fuggestion of that wicked serpent the Devil. Whereby it came to pass, that as before he was bleffed, fo now he was accurred; as before he was loved, fo now he was abhorred; as before he was most beautiful and precious, so now he was most vile and wretched in the fight of his Lord and Maker: inftead of the image of God, he was now become the image of the Devil; instead of the citizen of heaven, he was become the bond-flave of hell, having in himfelf no one part of his former purity and cleanness, but being altogether spotted and defiled; infomuch that now he feemed to be nothing else but a lump of fin, and therefore by the just judgment of God was condemned to everlasting death. This so great and miserable a plague, if it had only rested on Adam, who sirst offended, it had been so much the easier, and might the better have been borne. But it fell not only on him, but also on his posterity and children for ever, fo that the whole brood of Adam's flesh should sustain the self-same fall and punishment, which their forefather by his offence most justly had deferved. St. Paul in the fifth chapter to the Romans faith, By the offence of only Adam, the fault came upon all men to condemnation, and by one man's disobedience many were made finners. By which words we are taught, that as in Adam all men univerfally finned, so in Adam all men univerfally received the reward of fin; that is to fay, became mortal, and fubject unto death, having in themselves nothing but everlasting damnation both of body and foul. They became, as David faith, corrupt and abominable, they went all out of the way, there was none that did good, no not one. O what a miferable and woeful state was this, that the fin of one man should destroy and condemn all men, that nothing in all the world might be looked for, but only pangs of death, and pains of hell! Had it been any marvel if mankind had been utterly driven to desperation, being thus fallen from life to death, from falvation to destruction, from heaven to hell? But behold the great goodness and tender mercy of God in his behalf: albeit man's wickedness and finful behaviour was fuch, that it deserved not in any part to be forgiven; yet to the intent he might not be clean destitute of all hope and comfort in time to come, he ordained a new covenant, and made a fure promife thereof, namely, that he would fend a Messias or Mediator into the world, which should make intercession, and put himself as a stay between both parties, to pacify the wrath and indignation conceived against fin, and to deliver man out of the miferable curfe and curfed mifery, whereinto he was fallen headlong by difobeying the will and commandment of the only Lord and Maker. This covenant and promife was first made unto Adam himself immediately after his fall, as we read in the third of Genesis, where God faid to the serpent on this wise; I will put enmity between thee and the woman, between thy feed and her feed. Shall break thine head, and thou shalt bruise his heel.

Afterward the felf-fame covenant was also more amply and plainly renewed unto Abraham, where God promifed him, that in his feed all nations and families of the earth Should be bleffed. Again, it was continued and confirmed Gen. xxii. unto Isaac in the same form of words as it was before unto his father. And to the intent that mankind might not despair, but always live in hope, Almighty God never ceased to publish, repeat, confirm, and continue the fame, by divers and fundry testimonies of his Prophets; who, for the better perfuation of the thing, prophetied the time, the place, the manner, and circumstance of his birth, the affliction of his life, the kind of his death, the glory of his refurrection, the receiving of his kingdom, the deliverance of his people, with all other circumstances belonging thereunto. Isaiah prophesied that be should be born of a virgin, and called Emanuel. Micah prophesied that he should be born in Bethlehem, a place of Jewry. Ezekiel prophesied that be should come of the stock and lineage of David. Daniel prophesied that all nations and languages Should serve him. Zechariah prophesied that he should come in poverty, riding upon an afs. Malachi prophesied that be should send Elias before him, which was John the Baptist. Jeremiah prophesied that be should be fold for thirty pieces of filver, &c. And all this was done, that the promife and covenant of God, made unto Abraham and his posterity concerning the redemption of the world, might be credited and fully believed. Now, as the Apostle Paul faith, when the fulness of time was come, that is, the perfection and course of years, appointed from the beginning, then God, according to his former covenant and promife, fent a Messias, otherwise called a Mediator, unto the world; not such a one as Moses was, not such a one as Joshua, Saul, or David was, but such a one as should deliver mankind from the bitter curse of the Law, and make perfect fatisfaction by his death for the fins of all people; namely, he fent his dear and only Son Jefus Christ, born (as the Apofile faith) of a avoman, and made under the Law, that be might redeem them that were in bondage of the Law, and make them the children of God by adoption. Was not this a wonderful great love towards us that were his professed and open enemies, towards us that were by nature the children of wrath, and fire-brands of hell-fire? In this, faith St. John, appeared the great love of God, that he fent bis only begotten Son into the world to fave us, when we were his extreme enemics. Herein is love, not that we loved him, but that he loved us, and fent his Son to be a reconciliation for our fins. St. Paul also faith, Christ, when we were yet of no strength, died for us being ungodly. Doubtless a man will scarce die for a righteous man. Peradventure some one durst die for him of whom they have received good. But God letteth out his love towards us, in that he fent Christ to die for us, when we were yet void of all goodness. This and fuch other comparisons doth the Apostle use, to amplify and fet forth the tender mercy and great goodness of God, declared towards mankind, in fending down a Saviour from heaven, even Christ the Lord. Which one benefit among all other is fo great and wonderful, that neither tongue can well express it, neither heart think it, much less give sufficient thanks to God for it. But here is a great controverfy between us and the Jews, whether the fame Jefus, which was born of the Virgin Mary, be the true Messias, and true Saviour of the world, fo long promifed and prophefied of before. They, as they are, and have been always, proud and stiff-necked, would never acknowledge him until this day, but have looked and waited for another to come. They have this fond imagination in their heads, that the Messias shall come, not as Christ did, like a poor pilgrim and meek foul riding upon an afs; but like a valiant and mighty king, in great royalty and honour. Not as Christ did, with a few fishermen, and men of small estimation in the world; but with a great army of firong men, with a great train of wife and noble men, as knights, lords, earls, dukes, princes, and fo forth. Neither do they think that their Messias shall slanderously suffer death, as Christ

Christ did; but that he shall stoutly conquer and manfully fubdue all his enemies, and finally obtain fuch a kingdom on earth, as never was feen from the beginning. While they feign unto themselves after this fort a Mesfias of their own brain, they deceive themselves, and account Christ as an abject and scorn of the world. Therefore Christ crucified, as St. Paul faith, is unto the Jews a slumbling-block, and to the Gentiles foolishness, because they think it an abfurd thing, and contrary to all reason, that a Redeemer and Saviour of the subole world should be handled after fuch a fort as be was; namely, scorned, reviled, scourged, condemned, and last of all cruelly banged. This, I fay, feemed in their eyes strange, and most absurd, and therefore neither they would at that time, neither will they as yet, acknowledge Christ to be their Messias and Saviour. But we, dearly beloved, that hope and look to be faved, must both steadsastly believe, and also boldly confess, that the fame Jesus, which was born of the Virgin Mary, was the true Messias and Mediator between God and man, promifed and prophefied of fo long before. For as the Apostle writeth, With the heart man believeth unto righ-Rom. x. teousness, and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation. Again in the same place, Whosover believeth in bim shall never be ashamed nor confounded. Whereto also agreeth the testimony of St. John, written in the fourth chapter of his first general Epistle, on this wife: Whoseever confesseth that Jesus is the Son of God, he dwelleth in God, and God in bim.

There is no doubt, but in this point all Christian men are fully and perfectly perfuaded. Yet shall it not be a lost labour to instruct and furnish you with a few places concerning this matter, that ye may be able to flop the blasphemous mouths of all them that most Jewishly, or rather devilifhly, shall at any time go about to teach or maintain the contrary. First, ye have the witness and testimony of the Angel Gabriel, declared as well to Zachary the high-priest, as also to the blessed Virgin. Secondly, ye have the witness and testimony of John the Baptist, pointing unto Christ, and faying, Behold the Lamb of God, that taketh array the fins of the roorld. Thirdly, ye have the witness and testimony of God the Father, who thundered from heaven, and faid, This is my dearly beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased; hear him. Fourthly, ye have the witness and testimony of the Holy Ghost, which came down from heaven in manner of a dove, and lighted upon him in time of his baptism. To these might be added a great number more, namely, the witness and testimony of the wife men that came to Herod, the witness and testimony of Simeon and Anna, the witness and testimony of Andrew and Philip, Nathaniel and Peter, Nicodemus and Martha, with divers other: but it were too long to repeat all, and a few places are fufficient in fo plain a matter, specially among them that are already perfuaded. Therefore, if the privy imps of Antichrift, and crafty instruments of the Devil, shall attempt or go about to withdraw you from this true Messias, and perfuade you to look for another that is not yet come; let them not in any case seduce you, but confirm yourfelves with these and such other testimonies of holy Scripture, which are fo fure and certain, that all the Devils in hell shall never be able to withstand them. For as truly as God liveth, fo truly was Jefus Christ the true Messias and Saviour of the world, even the same Jesus, which, as this day, was born of the Virgin Mary, without all help of man, only by the power and operation of the Holy Ghost.

Concerning whose nature and substance, because divers and fundry herefies are rifen in thefe our days, through the motion and fuggestion of Satan; therefore it shall be needful and profitable for your instruction, to speak a word or two also of this part. We are evidently taught in the Scripture, that our Lord and Saviour Christ confifteth of two feveral natures, of his manhood, being thereby perfect man, and of his Godhead, being thereby perfect God. It is written, The Word, that is to fay, the fecond Person in Trinity, became flesh. God sending bis orun Son in the similitude of finful flesh, fulfilled those things which the Law could not. Christ being in form of God, took on bim the form of a servant, and was made like unto man, being found in Shape as a man. God was shewed in stell, justified in spirit, seen of angels, preached to the Gentiles, believed on in the world, and received up in glory. Also in another place: There is one God, and one Mediator between God and man, even the man Jesus Christ. These be plain places for the proof and declaration of both natures, united and knit together in one Christ. Let us diligently consider and weigh the works that he did whilst he lived on earth, and we shall thereby also perceive the self-same thing to be most true. In that he did hunger and thirst, eat and drink, sleep and wake, in that he preached his Gospel to the people, in that he wept and forrowed for Jerusalem, in that he paid tribute for himself and Peter,

John i. Rom. viii.

in that he died and fuffered death; what other thing did he else declare, but only this, that he was perfect man as we are? For which cause he is called in holy Scripture fometime the Son of David, fometime the Son of man, fometime the Son of Mary, fometime the Son of Joseph, and fo forth. Now in that he forgave fins, in that he wrought miracles, in that he did cast out devils, in that he healed men with his only word, in that he knew the thoughts of men's hearts, in that he had the feas at his commandment, in that he walked on the water, in that he rose from death to life, in that he ascended into heaven, and fo forth; what other thing did he shew therein, but only that he was perfect God, coequal with the Father as touching his Deity? Therefore he faith, The Father and I are all one, which is to be understood of his Godhead. For as touching his manhood, he faith, The Father is greater than I am. Where are now those Marcionites, that deny Christ to have been born in the flesh, or to have been perfect man? Where are now those Arians, which deny Christ to have been perfect God, of equal fubstance with the Father? If there be any fuch, we may eafily reprove them with these testimonies of God's word, and fuch other. Whereunto I am most fure they shall never be able to answer. For the necessity of our falvation did require fuch a Mediator and Saviour, as under one perion should be a partaker of both natures: it was requifite he should be man, it was also requisite he should be God. For as the transgression came by man, fo was it meet the fatisfaction should be made by man. And because death, according to St. Paul, is the just stipend and reward of sin, therefore to appeale the wrath of God, and to fatisfy his justice, it was expedient that our Mediator should be such a one, as might take upon him the fins of mankind, and fustain the due punishment thereof, namely death. Moreover, he came in flesh, and in the felf-same flesh ascended into heaven, to declare and testify unto us, that all faithful people which steadfaffly believe in him shall likewise come unto the same mansion-place, whereunto he, being our chief Captain, is gone before. Last of all, he became man, that we thereby might receive the greater comfort, as well in our prayers, as also in our adversity, considering with ourfelves, that we have a Mediator that is true man as we are, who also is touched with our infirmities, and was tempted even in like fort as we are. For these and fun-Z 4 dry dry other causes, it was most needful he should come, as he did in the sless.

But because no creature, in that he is only a creature, hath or may have power to destroy death, and give life; to overcome hell, and purchase heaven; to remit sins, and give righteousness; therefore it was needful that our Messias, whose proper duty and office that was, should be not only full and perfect man, but also full and perfect God, to the intent he might more fully and perfectly make satisfaction for mankind. God saith, This is my well-beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased. By which place we learn, that Christ appeased and quenched the wrath of his Father, not in that he was only the Son of man; but much more in that he was the Son of God.

Thus ye have heard declared out of the Scriptures, that Jesus Christ was the true Messias and Saviour of the world, that he was by nature and substance perfect God and perfect man, and for what cause it was expedient it should be so. Now that we may be the more mindful and thankful unto God in this behalf, let us briefly consider, and call to mind the manifold and great benefits that we have received by the nativity and birth of this

Before Christ's coming into the world, all men univerfally in Adam were nothing elfe but a wicked and crooked generation, rotten and corrupt trees, stony ground, full of brambles and briers, lost sheep, prodigal fons, naughty unprofitable fervants, unrighteous flewards, workers of iniquity, the brood of adders, blind guides, fitting in darkness and in the shadow of death; to be fhort, nothing else but children of perdition, and inheritors of hell-fire. To this doth St. Paul bear witness in divers places of his Epiftles, and Christ also himself in fundry places of his Gospel. But after he was once come down from heaven, and had taken our frail nature upon him, he made all them that would receive him truly, and believe his word, good trees, and good ground, fruitful and pleasant branches, children of light, citizens of heaven, sheep of his fold, members of his body, heirs of his kingdom, his true friends and brethren, fweet and lively bread, the elect and chosen people of God. For as St. Peter faith in his first Epistle and second chapter, He bare our fins in his body upon the cross; be healed us, and made us whole by his stripes: and whereas before we were Sheep going aftray, be by his coming brought us home again to the the true Shepherd and Bishop of our souls, making us a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, an holy nation, a particular people of God, in that he died for our offences, and rose for our justification. St. Paul to Timothy, the third chapter; We were, saith he, in times past, unwise, disobedient, deceived, serving divers lusts and pleasures, living in hatred, envy, maliciousness, and so forth.

But after the loving kindness of God our Saviour appeared towards mankind, not according to the righteoutness that we had done, but according to his great mercy, he saved us by the fountain of the new birth, and by the renewing of the Holy Ghost, which he poured upon us abundantly, through Jesus Christ our Saviour, that we, being once justified by his grace, should be heirs of eternal life, through hope and faith in his blood.

In these and such other places is set out before our eyes, as it were in a glass, the abundant grace of God, received in Christ Jesus, which is so much the more wonderful, because it came not of any desert of ours, but Matt. ii. of his mere and tender mercy, even then when we were Matt. v. his extreme enemies. But for the better understanding John xviii. and confideration of this thing, let us behold the end of John viii. his coming, fo shall we perceive what great commodity Matt. ix. and profit his nativity hath brought unto us miferable Matt. xi. and finful creatures. The end of his coming was to Coloff. i. fave and deliver his people, to fulfil the law for us, to Heb. x. bear witness unto the truth, to teach and preach the Rom. iii. words of his Father, to give light unto the world, to call finners to repentance, to refresh them that labour and be heavy laden, to cast out the prince of this world, to reconcile us in the body of his flesh, to dissolve the works of the Devil; last of all, to become a propitiation for our fins, and not for ours only, but also for the fins of the whole world.

These were the chief ends wherefore Christ became man, not for any profit that should come to himself thereby, but only for our sakes, that we might understand the will of God, be partakers of his heavenly light, be delivered out of the Devil's claws, released from the burden of sin, justified through faith in his blood, and sinally received up into everlasting glory, there to reign with him for ever. Was not this a great and singular love of Christ towards mankind, that, being the express and lively image of God, he would notwithstanding humble himself, and take upon him the form of a fervant, and that only to save and redeem us? O how much are we bound to the goodness of God in this behalf! How many thanks and praises do we owe unto him for this our salvation, wrought by his dear and only Son Christ! who became a pilgrim in earth, to make us citizens in heaven; who became the son of man, to make us the sons of God; who became obedient to the law, to deliver us from the curse of the law; who became poor, to make us rich; vile, to make us precious; subject to death, to make us live for ever. What greater love could we silly creatures desire or wish to have at God's hands?

Therefore, dearly beloved, let us not forget this exceeding love of our Lord and Saviour, let us not shew ourselves unmindful or unthankful toward him: but let us love him, fear him, obey him, and ferve him. Let us confess him with our mouths, praise him with our tongues, believe on him with our hearts, and glorify him with our good works. Christ is the light, let us receive the light. Christ is the truth, let us believe the truth. Christ is the way, let us follow the way. And because he is our only master, our only teacher, our only shepherd, and chief captain; therefore let us become his fervants, his scholars, his sheep, and his soldiers. As for fin, the flesh, the world, and the Devil, whose servants and bondslaves we were before Christ's coming, let us utterly cast them off, and defy them, as the chief and only enemies of our foul. And feeing we are once delivered from their cruel tyranny by Chrift, let us never fall into their hands again, lest we chance to be in a worse case than ever we were before. Happy are they, faith the Scripture, that continue to the end. Be faithful, faith God, until death, and I will give thee a crown of life. Again, he faith in another place, He that putteth his hand unto the plough, and looketh back, is not meet for the kingdom of God. Therefore let us be strong, steadfast, and unmoveable, abounding always in the works of the Lord. Let us receive Christ, not for a time, but for ever; let us believe his word, not for a time, but for ever; let us become his fervants, not for a time, but for ever; in consideration that he hath redeemed and faved us, not for a time, but for ever; and will receive us into his heavenly kingdom, there to reign with him, not for a time, but for ever. To him therefore with the Father and the Holy Ghost be all honour, praise, and glory, for ever and ever. Amen.

HOMILY

FOR

Good-Friday, concerning the Death and Passion of our Saviour Jesus Christ.

TT should not become us, well-beloved in Christ, being that people which be redeemed from the Devil, from fin and death, and from everlafting damnation, by Christ, to fuffer this time to pass forth without any meditation and remembrance of that excellent work of our redeniption, wrought as about this time, through the great mercy and charity of our Saviour Jesus Christ, for us wretched finners, and his mortal enemies. For if a mortal man's deed, done to the behoof of the commonwealth, be had in remembrance of us, with thanks for the benefit and profit which we receive thereby; how much more readily should we have in memory this excellent act and benefit of Christ's death? whereby he hath purchased for us the undoubted pardon and forgiveness of our sins, whereby he made at one the Father of heaven with us, in fuch wife, that he taketh us now for his loving children, and for the true inheritors, with Christ his natural Son, of the kingdom of heaven. And verily fo much more doth Christ's kindness appear unto us, in that it pleased him to deliver himself of all his goodly honour, which he was equally in with his Father in heaven, and to come down into this vale of mifery, to be made mortal man, and to be in the state of a most low fervant, serving us for our wealth and profit; us, I fay, which were his fworn enemies, which had renounced his holy law and commandments, and followed the lufts and finful pleafures of our corrupt nature. And yet, I fay, did Christ put himself Colost. ii. between God's deserved wrath and our sin, and rent that obligation, wherein we were in danger to God, and paid our debt. Our debt was a great deal too great for us to have paid. And without payment, God the Father could never be at one with us. Neither was it possible to be loofed from this debt by our own ability. It pleafed him therefore to be the payer thereof, and to discharge

Who can now confider the grievous debt of fin, which could none otherwise be paid, but by the death of an Innocent, and will not hate fin in his heart? If God hateth fin fo much, that he would allow neither man nor angel for the redemption thereof, but only the death of his only and well-beloved Son, who will not stand in fear thereof? If we, my friends, consider this, that for our fins this most innocent Lamb was driven to death, we thall have much more cause to bewail ourselves that we were the cause of his death, than to cry out of the malice and cruelty of the Jews, which purfued him to his death. We did the deeds wherefore he was thus fricken and wounded; they were only the ministers of our wickedness. It is meet then that we should step low down into our hearts, and bewail our own wretchedness and finful living. Let us know for a certainty, that if the most dearly beloved Son of God was thus punished and stricken for the fin which he had not done himself; how much more ought we fore to be fricken for our daily and manifold fins which we commit against God, if we earnestly repent ns not, and be not forry for them? No man can love fin, which God hateth so much, and be in his favour. No man can fay that he loveth Christ truly, and have his great enemy (fin I mean, the author of his death) famihiar and in friendship with him. So much do we love God and Christ, as we hate sin. We ought therefore to take great heed, that we be not favourers thereof, left we be found enemies to God, and traitors to Christ. For not only they, which nailed Christ upon the cross, are his tormentors and crucifiers; But all they, faith St. Paul, crucify again the Son of God, as much as is in them, who do commit vice and fin, which brought him to his death. If the wages of fin be death, and death everlasting, surely it is no Rom. viii. finall danger to be in fervice thereof. If we live after the flish, and after the sinful lusts thereof, St. Paul threat-eneth, yea, Almighty God in St. Paul threateneth, that we shall furely die. We can none otherwise live to God, but by dying to sin. If Christ be in us, then is sin dead in us: and if the Spirit of God be in us, which raised Christ from death to life, so shall the same Spirit raise us to the refurrection of everlasting life. But if sin rule and reign in

Heb. vi.

us, then is God, which is the fountain of all grace and virtue, departed from us: then bath the Devil and his ungracious spirit rule and dominion in us. And furely if in such miserable state we die, we shall not rife to life, but fall down to death and damnation, and that without end. For Christ hath not so redeemed us from fin, that we may Christ hath fafely return thereto again: but he hath redeemed us, not redeemfafely return thereto again: but he nath redeemed us, ed us from that we should for take the motions thereof, and live to fin, that righteousness. Yea, we be therefore washed in our bap-we should tism from the filthiness of fin, that we should live after-live in time ward in the pureness of life. In baptism we promifed to renounce the Devil and his fuggestions, we promised to be, as obedient children, always following God's will and pleasure. Then if he be our Father indeed, let us give him his due honour. If we be his children, let us thew him our obedience, like as Christ openly declared his obedience to his Father, which, as St. Paul writeth, Phil. is. was obedient even to the very death, the death of the cross. And this he did for us all that believe in him. For himfelf he was not punished, for he was pure and undefiled of all manner of fin. He was wounded, faith Isaiah, for our Isaiah Lin wickedness, and stripped for our sins: he suffered the penalty of them himself, to deliver us from danger: He bare, faith Ifaiah, all our fores and infirmities upon his own back. No pain did he refuse to suffer in his own body, that he might deliver us from pain everlasting. His pleasure it was thus to do for us; we deserved it not. Wherefore the more we fee ourselves bound unto him, the more he ought to be thanked of us, yea, and the more hope may we take, that we shall receive all other good things of his hand, in that we have received the gift of his only Son, through his liberality. For if God, faith St. Paul, bath not spared his own Son from pain and punish-Rom. viii. ment, but delivered bim for us all unto the death; bow should be not give us all other things with him? If we want any thing, either for body or foul, we may lawfully and boldly approach to God as to our merciful Father, to ask that we desire, and we shall obtain it. For such power is given to John i. us, to be the children of God, fo many as believe in Christ's name. In his name whatfower we ask, we shall Matt. xi. have it granted us. For fo well pleased is the Father Almighty God with Christ his son, that for his sake he favoureth us, and will deny us nothing. So pleasant was this facrifice and oblation of his Son's death, which he fo obediently and innocently fuffered, that we should take it for the only and full amends for all the fins of the world. And venly Father for us, that for the merit thereof (if we be true Christians indeed, and not in word only) we be now fully in God's grace again, and clearly discharged from our fin. No tongue furely is able to express the worthiness of this so precious a death. For in this standeth the continual pardon of our daily offences, in this resteth our justification, in this we be allowed, in this is purchased the everlasting health of all our fouls. Yea, there is none other thing that can be named under heaven to fave our fouls, but this only work of Christ's precious offering of his body upon the altar of the cross. Certainly there can be no work of any mortal man, be he never fo holy, that shall be coupled in merits with Christ's most holy act. For no doubt, all our thoughts and deeds were of no value, if they were not allowed in the merits of Christ's death. All our righteousness is far unperfect, if it be compared with Christ's righteousness: for in his acts and deeds there was no spot of sin, or of any unperfectness. And for this cause they were the more able to be the true amends of our righteousness, where our acts and deeds be Our deeds full of imperfection and infirmities, and therefore nothing worthy of themselves to stir God to any favour, much less to challenge that glory that is due to Christ's act and merit; For not to us, faith David, not to us, but to thy name give the glory, O Lord. Let us therefore, good friends, with all reverence glorify his name, let us magnify and praise him for ever. For he hath dealt with us according to his great mercy; by himself hath he purchased our redemption. He thought it not enough to spare himself, and to send his angel to do this deed; but he would do it himself, that he might do it the better, and make it the more perfect redemption. He was nothing moved with the intolerable pains that he fuffered in the whole course of his long passion, to repent him thus to do good to his enemies: but he opened his heart for us, and bestowed himself wholly for the ransoming of us. Let us therefore now open our hearts again to him, and study in our lives to be thankful to such a Lord, and evermore to be mindful of fo great a benefit; yea, let us take up our crofs with Christ, and follow him. His pasfion is not only the ranfom and whole amends for our fin, but it is also a most perfect example of all patience and fufferance. For if it behoved Christ thus to suffer, and to enter into the glory of his Father; why should it not become us to bear patiently our fmall crosses of adversity, and the troubles of this world? For furely, as faith St. 1 Pet. ii. Peter, Christ therefore suffered, to leave us an example to follow bis steps. And if we fuffer with him, we shall be I Tim. ii. fure also to reign with him in heaven. Not that the fuf-Rom. viii. ferance of this transitory life should be worthy of that Matt. v. glory to come; but gladly should we be contented to suffer, to be like Christ in our life, that so by our works we may glorify our Father which is in heaven. And as it is painful and grievous to bear the cross of Christ in the griefs and displeasures of this life; so it bringeth forth the joyful fruit of hope in all them that be exercised there-Jam. v. with. Let us not so much behold the pain, as the reward that shall follow that labour. Nay, let us rather endeavour ourselves in our sufferance to endure innocently and guiltless, as our Saviour Christ did. For if we 1 Pet. ii. fuffer for our defervings, then hath not patience his perfect work in us: but if undeservedly we suffer loss of goods and life, if we fuffer to be evil spoken of for the love of Christ, this is thankful afore God; for so did Christ fuffer. He never did sin, neither was any guile The pafound in his mouth. Yea, when he was reviled with taunts, tience of he reviled not again; when he was suron fully dealt guith Christ. be reviled not again; when he was wrongfully dealt with, be threatened not again, nor revenged his quarrel, but deli-

Yea, he, in whom perfect charity is, careth fo little to revenge, that be rather studieth to do good for evil, Matt. v. to bless and say well of them that curse bim, to pray for them that purfue bim, according to the example of our Saviour Christ, who is the most perfect example and pattern of all meekness and fufferance, which hanging upon the cross, The meekin most fervent anguish bleeding in every part of his blessed ness of body, being fet in the midst of his enemies and cruci-Christ. fiers; and he, notwithstanding the intolerable pains which they faw him in, being of them mocked and fcorned deipitefully without all favour and compassion, had yet towards them such compassion in heart, that he prayed to his Father of heaven for them, and faid, O Father, forgive Luke xv. them, for they woot not what they do. What patience was it also which he shewed, when one of his own apostles and fervants, which was put in trust of him, came to betray him unto his enemies to the death! He faid nothing worse to him, but, Friend, wherefore art thou come? Thus, Matt. xv. good people, should we call to mind the great examples of charity which Christ shewed in his passion, if we will fruitfully remember his passion. Such charity and love should we bear one to another, if we will be the true fervants of Christ. For if we love but them that love and fay well by us, what great thing is it that we do? faith Christ. Do not the Paynims and open finners so? We must be more perfect in our charity than thus, even as our Father in beaven is perfect, which maketh the light of his fun to rife upon the good and the bad, and fendeth his rain upon the kind and unkind. After this manner should we shew our charity indifferently, as well to one as to another, as well to friend as foe, like obedient children, after the example of our Father in heaven. For if Christ was obedient to his Father even to the death, and that the most shameful death, (as the Jews esteemed it) the death of the cross; why should we not be obedient to God in lower points of charity and patience? Let us forgive then our neighbours their [mall faults, as God for Christ's Jake bath forgiven us our great.

It is not meet that we should crave forgiveness of our great offences at God's hands, and yet will not forgive the small trespasses of our neighbours against us. We do call for mercy in vain, if we will not shew mercy to our neighbours. For if we will not put wrath and displeafure forth of our hearts to our Christian brother, no more will God forgive the displeasure and wrath that our fins have deferved before him. For under this condition doth God forgive us, if we forgive other. It becometh not Christian men to be hard one to another, nor yet to think their neighbour unworthy to be forgiven. For howfoever unworthy he is, yet is Christ worthy to have thee do thus much for his fake; he hath deferved it of thee, that thou shouldst forgive thy neighbour. And God is also to be obeyed, which commandeth us to forgive, if we will have any part of the pardon which our Saviour Christ purchased once of God the Father, by shedding of his precious blood. Nothing becometh Christ's servants so much as mercy and compassion. Let us then be favourable one to another, and pray we one for another, that we may be healed from all frailties of our life, the lefs to offend one the other; and that we may be of one mind and one spirit, agreeing together in brotherly love and concord, even like the dear children of God. By these means shall we move God to be merciful unto our fins, yea, and we shall be hereby the more ready to receive our Saviour and Maker in his blessed facrament, to our everlasting comfort and health of soul. Christ delighteth to enter and dwell in that foul where love and charity ruleth, and where peace and concord is feen. For thus writeth St. John; God is charity; be that abideth in charity, 1 John iv. abideth in God, and God in him. And by this, faith he, I John ii. we shall know that we be of God, if we love our trethren. Yea, and by this shall we know that we be delivered from death to life, if we love one another. But he which bateth bis brother, faith the same Apostle, abideth in death, even in I John ii. the danger of everlasting death, and is moreover the child of damnation and of the Devil, curfed of God, and bated (follong as be so remaineth) of God and all his beavenly company. For as peace and charity make us the bleffed children of Almighty God, so doth hatred and envy make us the curfed children of the Devil. God give us all grace Rom. viii. to follow Christ's examples in peace and in charity, in patience and fufferance, that we now may have him our guest to enter and dwell within us, so as we may be in full furety, having fuch a pledge of our falvation. If we have him and his favour, we may be fure we have the favour of God by his means. For he fitteth on the right hand of God his Father, as our proctor and attorney, pleading and fuing for us in all our needs and necessities. Wherefore, if we want any gift of godly wisdom, we may ask it of God for Christ's take, and we shall have it. Let us confider and examine ourfelves, in what want we be concerning this virtue of charity and patience. If we fee that our hearts be nothing inclined thereunto, in forgiving them that have offended against us, then let us knowledge our want, and wish to God to have it. But if we want it, and fee in ourselves no desire thereunto, verily we be in a dangerous case before God, and have need to make much earnest prayer to God, that we may have fuch an heart changed, to the grafting in of a new. For unless we forgive other, we shall never be forgiven of God. No, not all the prayers and good works of other can pacify God unto us, unlefs we be at peace, and at one with our neighbour. Nor all our deeds and good works can move God to forgive us our debts to him, except we forgive to other. He fetteth more by mercy than by facrifice. Mercy moved our Saviour Christ to suffer for his enemies: it becometh us then to follow his example. For it shall little avail us to have in meditation the fruits and price of his passion, to magnify them, and to delight or trust in them, except we have in mind his examples in passion to follow them. If we thus therefore consider Christ's death, and will stick thereto with fast faith for - A a the merit and deferving thereof, and will also frame ourfelves in such wife to bestow ourselves, and all that we have by charity, to the behoof of our neighbour, as Christ spent himself wholly for our prosit, then do we truly remember Christ's death: and being thus followers of Christ's steps, we shall be sure to follow him thither, where he sitteth now with the Father and the Holy Ghost: to whom be all honour and glory. Amen.

The Death and Paffion of our Saviour Christ.

THAT we may the better conceive the great mercy and goodness of our Soviers Claim great mercy and goodness of our Saviour Christ, in suffering death univerfally for all men, it behoveth us to descend into the bottom of our conscience, and deeply to consider the first and principal cause wherefore he was compelled fo to do. When our great grandfather Adam had broken Gen. v. God's commandment, in eating the apple forbidden him in Paradife, at the motion and fuggestion of his wife, he purchased thereby, not only to himself, but also to his posterity for ever, the just wrath and indignation of God, who, according to his former fentence pronounced at the giving of the commandment, condemned both him and all his to everlafting death, both of body and foul. For it was said unto him, Thou shalt eat freely of every tree in Gen., ii. the garden: but as touching the tree of knowledge of good and ill, thou shalt in no wife eat of it: for in what hour so-ever thou eatest thereof, thou shalt die the death. Now as the Lord had spoken, so it came to pass. Adam took upon him to eat thereof, and in so doing he died the death, that is to fay, he became mortal, he loft the favour of God, he was cast out of Paradise, he was no longer a citizen of heaven, but a firebrand of hell, and a bondflave to the Devil. To this doth our Saviour bear witness in the Gospel, calling us lost sheep, which have gone Luke xv. astray, and wandered from the true Shepherd of our souls. To this also doth St. Paul bear witness, saying, that by the Rom. v. offence of only Adam, death came upon all men to condemnation. So that now neither he, or any of his, had any right or interest at all in the kingdom of heaven, but were become plain reprobates and castaways, being perpetually damned to the everlasting pains of hell-fire. In Aa2 this

this fo great mifery and wretcheducfs, if mankind could have recovered himself again, and obtained forgiveness at God's hands, then had his case been somewhat tolerable. because he might have attempted some way how to deliver himself from eternal death. But there was no way left unto him, he could do nothing that might pacify God's wrath, he was altogether unprofitable in that behalf. There was not one that did good, no not one. And how then could be work his own falvation? Should be go about to pacify God's heavy displeasure by offering up burnt-facrifices, according as it was ordained in the old Law? by offering up the blood of oxen, the blood of calves, the blood of goats, the blood of lambs; and so forth? O these things were of no force nor firength to take away fins, they could not put away the anger of God, they could not cool the heat of his wrath, nor yet bring mankind into favour again, they were but only figures and shadows of things to come, and nothing elfe. Read the Epiftle to the Hebrews; there shall you find this matter largely difcuffed, there shall you learn in most plain words, that the bloody facrifice of the old Law was unperfect, and not able to deliver man from the state of danmation by any means; so that mankind, in trusting thereunto, should trust to a broken staff, and in the end deceive himself. What should he then do? Should he go about to serve, and keep the Law of God divided into two tables, and fo purchase to himself eternal life? Indeed, if Adam and his pollerity had been able to fatisfy and fulfil the Law perfectly, in loving God above all things, and their neighbour as themselves, then should they have easily quenched the Lord's wrath, and escaped the terrible sentence of eternal death pronounced against them by the mouth of Almighty God. For it is written, Do thus, and thou shalt live; that is to fay, fulfil my commandments, keep thyfelf upright and perfect in them according to my will; then shalt thou live, and not die. Here is eternal life promifed with this condition, and fo, that they keep and observe the Law. But such was the frailty of mankind after his fall, fuch was his weakness and imbecillity, that he could not walk uprightly in God's commandments, though he would never fo fain; but daily and hourly fell from his bounden duty, offending the Lord his God divers ways, to the great increase of his condemnation, infomuch that the Prophet David erieth out on this wife:

All have gone aftray, all are become unprofitable, there is none that doth good, no not one. In this case what profit

could be have by the Law? None at all. For as St. James faith, He that Shall observe the whole Law, and yet James ii. faileth in one point, is become guilty of all. And in the Book of Deuteronomy it is written, Curfed be be, faith Deut.xxvii. God, which abideth not in all things that are written in the book of the Law, to do them. Behold, the Law bringeth a curfe with it, and maketh it guilty, not because it is of itself naught or unholy, (God forbid we should so think) but because the frailty of our finful flesh is such, that we can never fulfil it, according to the perfection that the Lord requireth. Could Adam then, think you, hope or trust to be faved by the Law? No, he could not. But the more he looked on the Law, the more he faw his own damnation fet before his eyes. as it were in a clear glass. So that now of himself he was most wretched and miserable, destitute of all hope, and never able to pacify God's heavy displeasure, nor yet to escape the terrible judgment of God, whereunto he and all his posterity were fallen, by disobeying the strait commandment of the Lord their God. But O the abundant riches of God's Rom. xi. great mercy! O the unspeakable goodness of his beavenly wisdom! When all hope of rightcousness was past on our part, when we had nothing in ourselves, whereby we might quench his burning wrath, and work the falvation of our own fouls, and rife out of the miserable estate wherein we lay; then, even then did Christ the Son of God, by the appointment of his Father, come down from heaven, to be avounded for our fakes, to be reputed with the wicked, to be condemned unto death, to take upon him the reward of our fins, and to give his body to be broken on the cross for our offences. He, faith the Prophet Isaiah, (meaning Christ) bath borne Isaiah lv. our infirmities, and bath carried our forrows; the chaffifement of our peace was upon him, and by his stripes we were made whole. St. Paul likewife faith, God made him a sacrifice for 2 Cor. v. our fins, which knew not fin, that we should be made the righteousness of God by him. And St. Peter most agreeably writing in this behalf, saith, Christ bath once died and suffered for our fins, the just for the unjust, &c. To these might be added an infinite number of other places to the same effect: but thefe few shall be sufficient for this time.

Now then (as it was faid in the beginning) let us ponder and weigh the cause of his death, that thereby we may be the more moved to glorify him in our whole life. Which if you will have comprehended briefly in one word, it was nothing elfe on our part but only the transgression transgression and sin of mankind. When the angel came to warn Joseph that he should not fear to take Mary to his wife, did he not therefore will the child's name to be called Jesus, because he should save his people from their sins? When John the Baptist preached Christ, and shewed him to the people with his singer, did he not plainly say unto them, Bebold the Lamb of God, which taketh away the sins of the world? When the woman of

Matth. x. Canaan befought Christ to help her daughter, which was possessed with a devil, did he not openly confess that he was fent to save the lost sheep of the house of Israel, by giving his life for their sins? It was sin then, O man, even thy sin, that caused Christ, the only Son of God, to be crucified in the slesh, and to suffer the most vile and slanderous death of the cross. If thou hadst kept thyself upright, if thou hadst observed the commandments, if thou hadst not presumed to transgress the will of God in upright, if thou hadst observed the commandments, if thou hadft not prefumed to transgress the will of God in thy first father Adam, then Christ, being in form of God, Rom. v. needed not to have taken upon him the shape of a fervant; being immortal in heaven, he needed not to become mortal on earth; being the true bread of the foul, he needed not to hunger; being the healthful water of life, he needed not to thirst; being life itself, he needed not to have fuffered death. But to these and many other fuch extremities was he driven by thy fin, which was fo manifold and great, that God could be only pleafed in him, and none other. Canst thou think of this, O sinful man, and not tremble within thyself? Canst thou hear it quietly, without remorfe of conscience, and forrow of heart? Did Christ suffer his passion for thee, and wilt thou flew no compassion towards him? While Christ was yet hanging on the crofs, and yielding up the ghost,

Mat. xxvii. the Scripture witneffeth that the veil of the temple did rent in twain, and the earth did quake, that the flones clave afunder, that the graves did open, and the dead bodies rife; and shall the heart of man be nothing moved to remember how grievously and cruelly he was handled of the Jews for our sins? Shall man shew himself to be more hardhearted than stones, to have less compassion than dead bodies? Call to mind, O sinful creature, and set before thine eyes Christ crucified: think thou sees this body stretched out in length upon the cross, his head crowned with sharp thorns, and his hands and his feet pierced with nails, his heart opened with a long spear, his sless rent and torn with whips, his brows sweating water and blood: think thou hearest him now crying in an intolerable able agony to his Father, and faying, My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me? Couldit thou behold this woful fight, or hear this mournful voice, without tears, confidering that he fuffered all this, not for any defert of his own, but only for the grievousness of thy fins? O that mankind should put the everlasting Son of God to such pains! O that we should be the occasion of his death, and the only cause of his condemnation! May we not justly cry, woe worth the time that ever we finned? O my brethren, let this image of Christ crucified be always printed in our hearts; let it stir us up to the hatred of sin, and provoke our minds to the earnest love of Almighty God. For why? is not fin, think you, a grievous thing in his fight, feeing, for the transgressing of God's precept in eating of one apple, he condemned all the world to perpetual death, and would not be pacified, but only with the blood of his own Son? True, yea, most true is that faying of David, Thou, O Lord, batest all them that Pfalm v. work iniquity, neither shall the wicked and evil man dwell with thee. By the mouth of his holy Prophet Isaiah, he cried mainly out against sinners, and saith, Woe be unto Isaiah v. you that draw iniquity with cords of vanity, and fin as it were with cart-ropes.

Did he not give a plain token how greatly he hated and abhorred fin, when he drowned all the world, fave Gen. vii. only eight persons; when he destroyed Sodom and Go-Gen. xix. morrah with fire and brimftone; when in three days space he killed with pestilence threescore and ten thousand for 2 Sam. David's offence; when he drowned Pharaoh and all his hoft Exod. xiv. in the Red Sea; when he turned Nabuchodonofor the king Daniel iv. into the form of a brute beast, creeping upon all four; when 2 Sam. he fuffered Achitophel and Judas to hang themselves upon xvii. the remorfe of fin, which was fo terrible to their eyes? A thousand such examples are to be found in Scripture, if a man would stand to seek them out. But what need we? This one example, which we have now in hand, is of more force, and ought more to move us, than all the rest. Christ being the Son of God, and perfect God himself, who never committed fin, was compelled to come down from beaven, to give his body to be bruifed and broken on the crofs for our fins. Was not this a manifest token of God's great wrath and displeasure towards sin, that he could be pacified by no other means, but only by the fweet and precious blood of his dear Son? O fin, fin, that ever thou shouldest drive Christ to such extremity! Woe worth the time that ever thou camest into the world. But what booteth it now to bewail? Sin is come, and so come that Prov. xxiv. it cannot be avoided. There is no man living, no not the juffest man on the earth, but he falleth seven times a day, as Solomon faith. And our Saviour Christ, although he hath delivered us from fin, yet not so that we shall be free from committing fin; but so that it shall not be imputed to our condemnation. He hath taken upon him the just reward of sin, which was death, and by death bath overthrown death; that we believing in him might live for ever, and not die. Ought not this to engender extreme hatred of sin in us, to consider that it did violently, as it were, pluck God out of heaven, to make him feel the horrors and pains of death? O that we would fometimes confider this in the midft of our pomps and pleafures: it would bridle the outrageousness of the flesh, it would abate and affuage our carnal affections, it would restrain our sleshly appetites, that we should not run at random, as we commonly do. To commit sin wilfully and desperately, without fear of God, is nothing else but to crucify Christ anew, as we are expressly taught in the Epishle to the Hebrews. Which thing if it were deeply printed in all men's hearts, then should not sin reign every where so much as it doth, to the great grief and torment of Christ now fitting in heaven.

Let us therefore remember, and always bear in mind Christ crucified, that thereby we may be inwardly moved both to abhor fin throughly, and also with an earnest and zealous heart to love God. For this is another fruit, which the memorial of Christ's death ought to work in us, an carnest and unfeigned love towards God. So God loved the world, faith St. John, that he gave his only begotten Son, that who foever believeth in him (bould not perift, but have life everlasting. If God declared fo great love towards us his filly creatures, how can we of right but love him again? Was not this a fure pledge of his love, to give us his own Son from heaven? He might have given us an angel if he would, or fome other creature, and yet should his love have been far above our deferts. Now he gave us not an angel, but his Son. And what Son? His only Son, his natural Son, his well-beloved Son, even that Son whom he had made lord and ruler of all things. Was not this a fingular token of great love? But to whom did he give him? He gave him to the whole world; that is to fay, to Adam, and all that should come after him. O Lord, what had Adam, or any other man, deferved at God's hands, that he should give us his own Son? We are all miserable persons, sinful persons, damnable persons, justly driven out of Paradise, justly excluded from heaven, justly condemned to hell-fire: and yet (see a wonderful token of God's love) he gave us his only begotten Son, us I fay, that were his extreme and deadly enemies, that we, by virtue of his blood shed upon the crofs, might be clean purged from our fins, and made righteous again in his fight. Who can choose but marvel, to hear that God should shew such unspeakable love towards us, that were his deadly enemies? Indeed, O mortal man, thou oughtest of right to marvel at it, and to acknowledge therein God's great goodness, and mercy towards mankind, which is fo wonderful, that no fleth, be it never fo worldly wife, may well conceive it, or express it. For, as St. Paul testifieth, God greatly commendeth Rom. v. and fetteth out his love towards us, in that he fent his Son Christ to die for us, when we were yet sinners, and open enemies of bis name. If we had in any manner of wife deferved it at his hands, then had it been no marvel at all: but there was no defert on our part, wherefore he should do it. Therefore, thou finful creature, when thou hearest that God gave his Son to die for the fins of the world, think not he did it for any defert or goodness that was in thee, for thou wast then the bondslave of the devil: but fall down upon thy knees, and cry with the Prophet David, O Lord, what is man, that thou art fo mind-Pfal. viii ful of him; or the fon of man, that thou fo regardest him? And feeing he hath fo greatly loved thee, endeavour thyfelf to love him again, with all thy heart, with all thy foul, and with all thy strength, that therein thou mayest appear not to be unworthy of his love. I report me to thine own conscience, whether thou wouldest not think thy love ill bestowed upon him, that could not find in his heart to love thee again? If this be true, (as it is most true) then think how greatly it behoveth thee in duty to love God, which hath fo greatly loved thee, that he hath not spared his own only Son from so cruel and shameful a death for thy fake. And hitherto concerning the caufe of Christ's death and passion, which as it was on our part most horrible and grievous fin, so on the other side it was the free gift of God, proceeding of his mere and tender love towards mankind, without any merit or defert of our part. The Lord for his mercies fake grant that we never forget this great benefit of our falvation in Christ Jesu, but that we always shew ourselves thankful for it, abhorring all kind of wickedness and fin, and applying our minds wholly

Heb. vi.

his commandments.

Now it remaineth that I shew unto you, how to apply Christ's death and passion to our comfort, as a medicine to our wounds, so that it may work the same effect in us wherefore it was given, namely, the health and falvation of our fouls. For as it profiteth a man nothing to have falve, unless it be well applied to the part infected; so the death of Christ shall stand us in no force, unless we apply it to ourselves in such fort as God hath appointed. Almighty God commonly worketh by means, and in this thing he hath also ordained a certain mean, whereby constant or wavering faith, but a fure, steadfast, grounded, and unfeigned faith. God fent bis Son into the world, faith St. John iii. John. To what end? That who soever believeth in him should not perish, but bave life everlasting. Mark these words, that who foever believeth in him. Here is the mean whereby we must apply the fruits of Christ's death unto our deadly wound. Here is the mean, whereby we must obtain eternal life; namely, faith. For, as St. Paul teacheth in his Epistle to the Romans, with the beart man believeth unto righteousness, and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation. Paul being demanded of the keeper of the prison, what he should do to be faved? made this answer: Believe in the Lord Jefus, so shalt thou and thine house both be faved. After the Evangelist had described and set forth unto us at large the life and the death of the Lord Jefus, in the end he concludeth with these words: These things are written, that we may believe Jefus Christ to be the Son of God, and through faith obtain eternal life. To conclude with the words of St. Paul, which are these: Christ is the end of the Lago unto falvation, for every one that doth believe. By this then you may well perceive, that the only mean and inftrument of falvation required of our parts is faith; that is to fay, a fure trust and confidence in the mercies of God; whereby we perfuade ourselves, that God both hath, and will forgive our fins, that he hath accepted us again into his favour, that he hath released us from the bonds of damnation, and received us again into the number of his elect people, not for our merits or deferts, but only and folely for the merits of Christ's death and passion, who became man for our fakes, and humbled himfelf to fuftain the reproach of the crofs, that we thereby might be faved, and made inheritors of the kingdom of heaven. This faith is required required at our hands. And this if we keep fleadfastly at our hearts, there is no doubt but we shall obtain salvation at God's hands, as did Abraham, Ifaac, and Jacob, Gen. xv. of whom the Scripture faith, that they believed, and it was Rom. vii. imputed unto them for righteoufness. Was it imputed unto them only? and shall it not be imputed unto us also? Yes, if we have the same faith as they had, it shall be as truly imputed unto us for righteousness, as it was unto them. For it is one faith that must save both us and them, even a fure and fleadfast faith in Christ Jesus; who, as ye have heard, came into the world for this end, that who foever believe in him should not perish, but have life John iii. everlassing. But here we must take heed that we do not halt with God through an unconstant and wavering faith, but that it be strong and steadfast to our lives' end. He that James i. wavereth, faith St. James, is like a wave of the sea; neither let that man think that he shall obtain any thing at God's Matth. xiv. bands. Peter coming to Christ upon the water, because he fainted in faith, was in danger of drowning. So we, if we begin to waver or doubt, it is to be feared left we shall fink as Peter did; not into the water, but into the bottomless pit of hell-fire. Therefore I say unto you, that we must apprehend the merits of Christ's death and pasfion by faith, and that with a strong and steadfast faith, nothing doubting, but that Christ, by his own oblation and once offering of himself upon the cross, hath taken away our fins, and hath restored us again into God's favour, so fully and perfectly, that no other facrifice for fin shall hereafter be requifite or needful in all the world.

What mean is that? Forfooth it is faith. Not an un-

Thus have you heard in few words the mean, whereby we must apply the fruits and merits of Christ's death unto us, fo that it may work the falvation of our fouls; namely, a fure, fleadfast, perfect and grounded faith. For as all they which beheld fleadfastly the brazen serpent were Num. xxi. healed and delivered, at the very fight thereof, from their John iii. corporal difeases and bodily stings; even so all they which behold Christ crucified with a true and lively faith shall undoubtedly be delivered from the grievous wounds of the foul, be they never fo deadly or many in number. Therefore, dearly beloved, if we chance at any time, through frailty of the flesh, to fall into fin, (as it cannot be chosen, but we must needs fall often) and if we feel the heavy burden thereof to press our souls, tormenting us with the fear of death, hell, and damnation; let us then use that mean which God hath appointed in his word, to wit, the mean of faith, which is the only instrument of falvation now left unto us. Let us fleadfaftly behold Christ crucified with the eyes of our heart. Let us only trust to be faved by his death and passion, and to have our fins clean washed away through his most precious blood, that in the end of the world, when he shall come again to judge both the quick and the dead, he may receive us into his heavenly kingdom, and place us in the number of his elect and chosen people, there to be partakers of that immortal and everlasting life, which he hath purchased unto us by virtue of his bloody wounds: to him therefore, with the Father and the Holy Ghost, be all honour and glory, world without end. Amen.

HOMILY

OF THE

Resurrection of our Saviour Jesus Christ.

FOR EASTER-DAY.

IF ever at any time the greatness or excellency of any matter, spiritual or temporal, hath stirred up your minds to give diligent ear, good Christian people, and well-beloved in our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ, I doubt not but that I shall have you now at this present season most diligent and ready hearers of the matter which I have at this time to open unto you. For I come to declare that great and most comfortable article of our Christian religion and faith, the refurrection of our Lord Jesus. So great furely is the matter of this article, and of fo great weight and importance, that it was thought worthy to keep our said Saviour still on earth forty days after he was risen from death to life, to the confirmation and establishment thereof in the hearts of his Disciples. So that (as Luke clearly testifieth in the first chapter of the Acts of the Apostics) be was conversant with his Disciples by the space of forty days continually together, to the intent he would in his person, being now gloristed, teach and instruct them, which should be the teachers of other, fully and in most absolute and perfect wise the truth of this most Christian article, which is the ground and foundation of our whole religion, before he would afcend up to his Father into the heavens, there to receive the glory of his most triumphant conquest and victory. Af-furedly, so highly comfortable is this article to our con-sciences, that it is even the very lock and key of all our Christian religion and faith. If it were not true, saith the

2 Cor. xv. holy Apostle Paul, that Christ rose again, then our preaching were in vain, your faith which you have received were but void, ye were yet in the danger of your fins. If Christ be not risen again, faith the Apostle, then are they in very evil case, and utterly perished, that be entered their sleep in Christ; then are we the most miserable of all men, which have our hope fixed in Christ, if he be yet under the power of death, and as yet not restored to his bliss again. But now be is risen again from death, faith the Apostle Paul, to be the first-fruits of them that be asteep, to the intent to raise them to everlasting life again: yea, if it were not true that Christ is rifen again, then were it neither true that he is afcended up to heaven, nor that he fent down from heaven unto us the Holy Ghoft, nor that he fitteth on the right hand of his heavenly Father, having the rule of heaven and earth, reigning, as the Prophet faith, from fea to fea; nor that he Pfal. xvii. should after this world be the judge as well of the living as of the dead, to give reward to the good, and judgment to the evil. That these links therefore of our faith should all hang together in fteadfast establishment and confirmation, it pleafed our Saviour not straightway to withdraw himself from the bodily presence and fight of his Disciples; but he chose out forty days, wherein he would declare unto them by manifold and most strong arguments and tokens, that he had conquered death, and that he Luke xxiv. was also truly risen again to life. He began, faith Luke, at Moses and all the Prophets, and expounded unto them the prophecies that were written in all the Scriptures of him, to the intent to confirm the truth of his resurrection, long before (poken of: which he verified indeed, as it is declared very apparently and manifestly, by his oft appearance to sundry persons at sundry times. First, he sent his angels to Matt. xxviii. the sepulchre, who did shew unto certain women the empty grave, faying, that the burial linen remained therein. And by these signs were these women fully inftructed that he was rifen again, and fo did they testify it openly. After this Jesus himself appeared to Mary John xx. Magdalen, and after that to certain other women, and straight afterward he appeared to Peter, then to the two Disciples, which were going to Emmaus. He appeared to Cor. xv. the Disciples also, as they were gathered together, for fear of the Jews, the door shut. At another time he was Luke xxiv. feen at the Sea of Tiberias of Peter and Thomas, and of other Disciples, when they were sishing. He was seen of more than five hundred brethren in the mount of Galilee, where Jefus appointed them to be by his angel, when he

faid, Behold, he shall go before you into Galilee; there shall ye see him, as he hath said unto you. After this he appeared unto James, and last of all he was visibly seen of all the Apostles, at such time as he was taken up into heaven. Acs i. Thus at fundry times he shewed himself after he was risen again, to confirm and stablish this article. And in these revelations fometime he shewed them his hands, his feet, and his fide, and bade them touch him, that they should not take him for a ghost or a spirit. Sometime he also did eat with them, but ever he was talking with them of the everlasting kingdom of God, to assure the truth of his refurrection. For then be opened their understanding, that Luke xxiv. they might perceive the Scriptures, and faid unto them, Thus it is written, and thus it behoved Christ to Suffer, and to rife from death the third day, and that there should be preached openly in his name pardon and remission of sins to all the nations of the world. Ye see, good Christian people, how necessary this article of our faith is, seeing it was proved of Christ himself by such evident reasons and tokens, by fo long time and space. Now therefore, as our Saviour was diligent for our comfort and instruction to declare it; fo let us be as ready in our belief to receive it to our comfort and instruction. As he died not for himself, no more did he rise again for himself. He was dead, saith St. Paul, for our fins, and rose again for our justification. Or Cor. xv. most comfortable word, evermore to be borne in remembrance! He died, saith he, to put away sin; he rose again to endow us with righteousness. His death took away sin and malediction, his death was the ranfom of them both; his death deftroyed death, and overcame the Devil, which had the power of death in his fubjection; his death destroyed hell, with all the damnation thereof. Thus is death swallowed up by Christ's victory, thus is hell spoiled for ever. If any man doubt of this victory, let Christ's glorious refurrection declare him the thing. If death could not keep Christ under his dominion and power, but that he rose again, it is manifest that his power was overcome. If death be conquered, then must it follow that fin, wherefore death was appointed as the wages, must be also destroyed. If death and sin be vanished away, then is the Devil's tyranny vanished, which had the power of death, and was the author and brewer of fin, and the ruler of hell. If Christ had the victory of them all by the power of his death, and openly proved it by his most victorious and valiant refurrection, (as it was not possible for his great might to be subdued of them) and it is true, that Christ died for our sins, and rose again for our justification; why may not we, that be his members by true faith, rejoice, and boldly say with the Prophet Hosea and the Apostle Paul, Where is thy dart, O death? Where is thy victory, O hell? Thanks be unto God, say they, which bath given us the victory by our Lord Jesus Christ.

Ephef. ii.

This mighty conquest of his resurrection was not only figuified before by divers figures of the Old Testament, as by Samfon when he flew the lion, out of whose mouth came fweetness and honey; and as David bare his figure when he delivered the lamb out of the lion's mouth, and when he overcame and flew the great giant Goliath; and as when Jonas was swallowed up in the whale's mouth, and cast up again on land alive: but was also most clearly prophefied by the Prophets of the Old Testament, and in the New also confirmed by the Apostles. He bath spoiled, faith St. Paul, rule and power, and all the dominion of our spiritual enemics. He bath made a shew of them openly, and hath triumphed over them in his own person. This is the mighty power of the Lord, whom we believe on. By his death hath he wrought for us this victory, and by his refurrection hath he purchased everlasting life and righteousness for us. It had not been enough to be delivered by his death from fin, except by his refurrection we had been endowed with righteousness. And it should not avail us to be delivered from death, except he had risen again, to open for us the gates of heaven, to enter into life everlasting. And therefore St. Peter thanketh God the Father of our Lord Jefus Christ for his abundant mercy, because be bath begotten us, saith he, unto a lively bope by the refurrection of Jesus Christ from death, to enjoy an inheritance immortal, that never shall perish, which is laid up in beaven for them that be kept by the power of God through faith. Thus hath his refurrection wrought for us life and righteousness. He passed through death and hell, to the intent to put us in good hope, that by his strength we shall do the same. He paid the ransom of fin, that it should not be laid to our charge. He destroyed the Devil and all his tyranny, and openly triumphed over him, and took away from him all his captives, and hath raifed and fet them with himself among the heavenly citizens above. He died to deftroy the rule of the Devil in us, and he rose again to send down his holy Spirit to rule in our hearts, to endow us with perfect rightcousness. Thus it is true that David sung, Veritas ritas de terra orta est, et justitia de cœlo prospexit. The Pfal.1xxxiv. truth of God's promife is in earth to man declared, or Ephef. iv. from the earth is the everlasting Verity, God's Son, risen Captivam to life, and the true righteoniness of the Holy Ghost duxit captivitatem. looking out of heaven, and in most liberal largess dealt upon all the world. Thus is, glory and praise rebounded upwards to God above, for his mercy and truth. And Luke ii. thus is peace come down from heaven to men of good and faithful hearts. Thus is mercy and truth, as David Pfal. xlviii. writeth, together met, thus is peace and righteoufness em-Micricorbracing and killing each other. If thou doubtest of so great dia et veriwealth and felicity that is wrought for thee, O man, call verunt fibi. to thy mind that therefore hast thou received into thine own possession the everlasting Verity, our Saviour Jesus Christ, to confirm to thy conscience the truth of all this matter. Thou hast received him, if in true faith and repentance of heart thou hast received him; if in purpose of amendment thou hast received him for an everlasting gage, or pledge of thy salvation. Thou hast received his body which was once broken, and his blood which was shed for the remission of thy sin. Thou hast received his body, to have within thee the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost, for to dwell with thee, to endow thee with grace, to frengthen thee against thine enemies, and to comfort thee with their prefence. Thou hast received his body to endow thee with everlasting righteousness, to assure thee of everlasting bliss, and life of thy foul. For with Christ by true faith art thou quickened again, faith St. Paul, from death of fin to life of grace, and Ephes. v. in hope translated from corporal and everlasting death, to the everlasting life of glory in heaven, where now thy conversation should be, and thy heart and defire fet. Doubt not of the truth of this matter, how great and high foever these things be. It becometh God to do no finall deeds, how impossible focver they feem to thee. Pray to God that thou mayest have faith to perceive this great mystery of Christ's refurrection; that by faith thou mayest certainly believe nothing to be impossible with God. Only bring thou faith to Christ's holy word and facrament. Let thy Luke xviii. repentance shew thy faith, let thy purpose of amendment and obedience of thy heart to God's law hereafter de-clare thy true belief. Endeavour thyfelf to fay with St. Paul, From benceforth our convertation is in beaven, from Phil.iv. whence we look for a Saviour, even the Lord Jefus Christ, which shall change our vile bodies, that they may be fashioned like his glorious body, which he shall do by the same power rubereby be rose from death, and rubereby be shall be able to subdue all things unto himself. Thus, good Christian people, forasmuch as ye have heard these so great and excellent benefits of Christ's mighty and glorious resurrection, as how that he hath ranfomed fin, overcome the Devil, death and hell, and hath victoriously gotten the better hand of them all, to make us free and fafe from them, and knowing that we be by this benefit of his refurrection rifen with him by our faith unto life everlefting, being in full furety of our hope, that we shall have our bodies likewife raifed again from death, to have them glorified in immortality, and joined to his glorious body, having in the mean while his holy Spirit within our hearts, as a feal and pledge of our everlasting inheritance: by whose assistance we be replenished with all righteousnefs, by whose power we shall be able to subdue all our evil affections, rifing against the pleasure of God:—these things, I fay, well confidered, let us now in the rest of our life declare our faith that we have in this most fruitful article, by framing ourselves thereunto, in rising daily from fin to righteousies and holines of life. For what shall it avail us, faith St. Peter, to be escaped and delivered from the filthiness of the world, through the knowledge of the Lord and Saviour Jefus Christ, if we be entangled again therewith, and be overcome again? Certainly it had been better, faith he, never to have known the way of rightcoujness, than, after it is known and received, to turn back again from the boly commandment of God given unto us. For fo shall the proverb have place in us, where it is faid, The dog is returned to his vomit again, and the forv that was washed to ber wallowing in the mire again. What a shame were it for us, being thus fo clearly and freely washed from our fin, to return to the filthiness thereof again! What a folly were it, thus endowed with rightcoufness, to lose it again! What madness were it to lose the inheritance that we be now fet in, for the vile and transitory pleasure of fin! And what an unkindness should it be, where our Saviour Christ of his mercy is come to us, to dwell with us as our guest, to drive him from us, and to banish him violently out of our fouls, and inflead of him, in whom is all grace and virtue, to receive the ungracious spirit of the Devil, the founder of all naughtiness and mischief! How can we find in our hearts to shew such extreme unkindness to Christ, which hath now so gently called us to mercy, and offered himself unto us, and he now entered within us? Yea, how dare we be so bold to renounce the prelence presence of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost; (for where one is, there is God all whole in majesty, together with all his power, wifdom, and goodnefs,) and fear not, I fay, the danger and peril of fo traitorous a defiance and departure? Good Christian brethren and fisters, advise yourselves, consider the dignity that ye be now set in, let no folly lofe the thing that grace hath fo precionfly offered and purchased, let not wilfulness and blindness put out so great light that is now shewed unto you. Only take good hearts unto you, and put upon you all Ephef. vi. the armour of God, that ye may fland against your enemies, which would again subdue you, and bring you into their thraldom. Remember ye be bought from your vain conversa- 1 Pet. i. tion, and that your freedom is purchased neither with gold nor filver, but with the price of the precious blood of that innocent Lamb Jefus Christ, which was ordained to the same purpoje before the world was made. But he was fo declared in the latter time of grace for your fakes, which by him have your faith in God, who hath raifed him from death, and hath given him glory, that you should have your faith and hope towards God. Therefore as you have hitherto followed the vain lusts of your minds, and so difpleafed God to the danger of your fouls; fo now, like obedient children thus purified by faith, give yourselves to walk that way which God moveth you to, that ye may receive the end of your faith, the falvation of your fouls. And as you have given your bodies to unrighte- 1 Pet i. outness, to fin after fin; to now give yourfelves to righteoufness, to be fanctified therein. If ye delight in this article of our faith, that Christ is risen again from death to life, then follow you the example of his refurrection, as St. Paul exhorteth us, faying, As we be buried with Rom. vi. Christ by our baptism into death, so let us daily die to sin, mortifying and killing the evil defires and motions thereof. And as Christ was raised up from death by the glory of the Father, so let us rise to a new life, and walk continually therein, that we may likewife as natural children live a conversation to move men to glorify our Father which is in heaven. If we then be rifen with Christ by our faith to the hope Matt. v. of everlasting life, let us rife also with Christ, after his example, to a new life, and leave our old: We shall then be truly rifen, if we feek for things that be beavenly, if we have our affection on things that be above, and not on things that be on the earth. If ye defire to know what these earthly things be which ye should put off, and what be the heavenly things above, that ye should seek and ensue, St. B b 2

Paul in the Epistle to the Colossians declareth, when he Coloff. iii. exhorteth us thus: Mortify your earthly members, and old affiction of fin, as fornication, uncleanness, unnatural lust, evil concupifience, and covetousness, which is worshipping of idols; for the which things, the wrath of God is wont to fall on the children of unbelief; in which things once ye walked, when ye lived in them. But now fut ye also away from you, wrath, fierceness, maliciousness, cursed speaking, filthy speaking, out of your mouths. Lie not one to another, that the old man with his works be put off, and the new be put on. Thefe be the earthly things which St. Paul moved you to cast from you, and to pluck your hearts from them: for in following thefe, ye declare yourselves earthly and worldly. These be the fruits of the earthly Adam. These should you daily kill by good diligence, in withflanding the defires of them, that ye might rife to righteousness. Let your affection from benceforth be set on beavenly things, fue and fearch for mercy, kindness, meekness, patience, forhearing one another, and forgiving one another. If any man have a quarrel to another, as Christ forgave you, even fo do ye. If these and such other heavenly virtues ye enfue in the residue of your life, ye shall shew plainly that ye be rifen with Christ, and that ye be the heavenly children of your Father in heaven; from whom, as from the giver, cometh these graces and gifts. Ye shall prove by James i. this manner, that your conversation is in heaven, where your hope is; and not on earth, following the beaftly appetites of the flesh. Ye must consider that ye be therefore cleanfed and renewed, that ye flould from henceforth ferve God in holinefs and righteoufnefs all the days of Phil. iii. your lives, that ye may reign with him in everlasting life. If ye refuse so great grace, whereto ye be called, what Luke i. other thing do ye, than heap to you damnation more and more, and fo provoke God to cast his displeasure upon you, and to revenge this mockage of his holy facraments in fo great abusing of them? Apply yourselves, good friends, to live in Christ, that Christ may still live in you, whose favour and affistance if ye have, then have ye everlasting life already within you, then can nothing hurt you. Whatsoever is hitherto done and committed, John v. Christ, ye see, hath offered you pardon, and clearly received you to his favour again, in full furety whereof ye have him now inhabiting and dwelling within you. Only fhew yourselves thankful in your lives, determine with Coloff. iii. yourselves to refuse and avoid all such things in your conversations as should offend his eyes of mercy. Endeavour

vourselves that way to rise up again, which way ye fell into the well or pit of fin. If by your tongue you have offended, now thereby rife again, and glority God therewith; accustom it to laud and praise the name of God, as ye have therewith dishonoured it. And as ye have hurt the name of your neighbour, or otherwise hindered him, fo now intend to restore it to him again. For without restitution God accepteth not your confession, nor yet Restitution. your repentance. It is not enough to forfake evil, except you fet your courage to do good. By what occasion foever you have offended, turn now the occasion to the honouring of God, and profit of your neighbour. Truth Pfal. xxxvi. it is that fin is strong, and affections unruly. Hard it is to fubdue and refiff our nature, fo corrupt and leavened with the four bitterness of the poison, which we received by the inheritance of our old father Adam. But yet take Matt, vi. good courage, faith our Saviour Christ, for I have overcome the world, and all other enemies for you. Sin shall not have porver over you, for ye be now under grace, faith St. Paul. Rom. vi. Though your power be weak, yet Christ is rifen again to strengthen you in your battle, his holy Spirit shall help Rom. viii. your infirmities. In trust of his mercy, take you in hand to purge this old leaven of fin, that corrupteth and foureth the sweetness of our life before God; that ye may 1 Cor. v. be as new and fresh dough, void of all four leaven of wickedness; so shall ye shew yourselves to be sweet bread to God, that he may have his delight in you. I fay, kill and offer you up the worldly and earthly affections of your bodies. For Christ our Easter Lamb is offered up for us, to flay the power of fin, to deliver us from the danger thereof, and to give us example to die to fin in our lives. As the Jews did eat their Easter Lamb, and keep their feast in remembrance of their deliverance out of Egypt; even so let us keep our Easter feast in the thankful remembrance of Christ's benefits, which he hath plentifully wrought for us by his refurrection and passing to his Father, whereby we are delivered from the captivity and thraldom of all our enemies. Let us in like manner pass over the affections of our old conversation, that we may be delivered from the bondage thereof, and rife with Christ. The Jews kept their feast in abstaining Exod. vii. from leavened bread by the space of seven days. Let us Christian folk keep our holy-day in spiritual manner; that is, in abstaining, not from material leavened bread, but from the old leaven of fin, the leaven of maliciousness and wickedness. Let us cast from us the leaven of corrupt doctrine, that will infect our fouls. Let us keep our feaft the whole term of our life, with eating the bread of pureness, of godly life, and truth of Christ's doctrine. Thus shall we declare that Christ's gifts and graces have their effect in us, and that we have the right belief and knowledge of his holy resurrection: where truly, if we apply our faith to the virtue thereof in our life, and conform us to the example and fignification meant thereby, we shall be fure to rise hereafter to everlasting glory, by the goodness and mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ: to whom with the Father and the Holy Ghost be all glory, thanksgiving, and praise, in infinita seculorum secula. Amen.

HOMILY,

OF THE

Worthy receiving and reverent esteeming of the Sacrament of the Body and Blood of Christ.

THE great love of our Saviour Christ towards mankind, good Christian people, doth not only appear in that dear-bought benefit of our redemption and falvation by his death and passion, but also in that he so kindly provided, that the same most merciful work might be had in continual remembrance, to take some place in us, and not be frustrate of his end and purpose. tender parents are not content to procure for their children coftly possessions and livelihood, but take order that the fame may be conferved and come to their use; so our Lord and Saviour thought it not fufficient to purchase for us his Father's favour again, (which is that deep fountain of all goodness and eternal life) but also invented the ways most wifely, whereby they might redound to our commodity and profit. Amongst the which means is the public celebration of the memory of his precious death at the Lord's table. Which although it feem of fmall virtue to fome, yet being rightly done by the faithful, it doth not only help their weakness (who by their poisoned nature readier to remember injuries than benefits) but strengtheneth and comforteth their inward man with peace and gladness, and maketh them thankful to their Redeemer, with diligent care and godly converfation. And as of old time God decreed his wondrous Exod. xii, benefits of the déliverance of his people, to be kept in memory by the eating of the paffover, with his rites and ceremonies; fo our loving Saviour hath ordained and established the remembrance of his great mercy expressed in his passion, in the institution of his heavenly supper, Matt. xxvi.

caters and not lookers, feeding ourfelves, and not hiring others to feed for us, that we may live by our own meat, and not to perish for hunger whilst other devour all. To

Luke xi. this his commandment forceth us, faying, Do ye this, I Cor. vi. drink ye all of this. To this his promife enticeth, This is my body, which is given for you: this is my blood, which is my body, which is given for you; this is my blood, which is Matt. xxvi. feed for you. So then of necessity we must be ourselves partakers of this table, and not beholders of other: so we must address ourselves to frequent the same in reverent and comely manner, lest as physic provided for the body, being misused, more hurtest than profiteth; so this comfortable medicine of the soul undecently received tendeth to our greater harm and forrow. And St.

Matt. xxii. per, Friend, how camest thou in, not having the marriagegarment? and that we may fruitfully use St. Paul's coun-

Tel, Let a man prove himself, and so eat of that bread, and drink of that cup; we must certainly know, that three things be requisite in him which would feemly, as becometh such high mysteries, resort to the Lord's table. That is, first, a right and worthy estimation and understanding of this mystery. Secondly, to come in a sure faith. And thirdly, to have newness or pureness of life to succeed the receiving of the fame.

But, before all other things, this we must be sure of especially, that this supper be in such wife done and miniftered, as our Lord and Saviour did, and commanded to be done, as his holy Apostles used it, and the good fathers in the primitive church frequented it. For (as that worthy man St. Ambrose saith) he is unworthy of the Lord, that otherwise doth celebrate that mystery, than it was delivered by him. Neither can he be devout, that otherwife doth prefume than it was given by the Author. must then take heed, lest of the memory, it be made a facrifice; left, of a communion, it be made a private eating; left, of two parts, we have but one; left, applying it for the dead, we lofe the fruit that be alive. Let us rather in these matters follow the advice of Cyprian in the like cases; that is, cleave fast to the first beginning, hold fast the Lord's tradition, do that in the Lord's commemoration which he himself did, he himself commanded, and his Apostles consirmed. This caution or foresight if we use, then may we see those things that be requisite in the worthy worthy receiver, whereof this was the first, that we have a right understanding of the thing itself. As concerning which thing, this we may affuredly perfuade ourfelves, that the ignorant man can neither worthily effeem nor effectually use those marvellous graces and benefits offered and exhibited in that supper; but either will lightly regard them, to no small offence, or utterly condemn them, to his utter destruction. So that by his negligence he deferveth the plagues of God to fall upon him, and by contempt he deferveth everlafting perdition. To avoid then these harms, use the advice of the Wise Man, who willeth Prov. xxiii. thee, when thou fittest at an earthly king's table, to take diligent heed what things are fet before thee. So now much more at the King of kings' table, thou must carefully fearch and know what dainties are provided for thy foul, whither thou art come, not to feed thy fenses and belly to corruption, but thy inward man to immortality and life; nor to confider the earthly creatures which thou feeft, but the heavenly graces which thy faith beholdeth. For this table is not, faith Chrysostom, for chattering jays, but for eagles, who fly thither where the dead body lieth. And if this advertisement of man cannot perfuade us to refort to the Lord's table with underflanding, fee the counfel of God in the like matter, who charged his people to teach their posterity, not only the rites and ceremonies of the passover, but the cause and end thereof: whence we may learn, that both more perfeet knowledge is required at this time at our hands, and that the ignorant cannot with fruit and profit exercise himself in the Lord's Sacraments.

But to come nigher to the matter: St. Paul blaming the Corinthians for the profaning of the Lord's Supper, concludeth that ignorance both of the thing itself, and the fignification thereof, was the cause of their abuse: For they came thither unreverently, not discerning the Lord's body. Ought not we then by the motion of the Wife Man, by the wisdom of God, by the fearful example of the Corinthians, to take advised heed, that we thrust not ourselves to this table with rude and unreverent ignorance, the fmart whereof Christ's church hath rued and lamented these many days and years? For what hath been the cause of the ruin of God's religion, but the ignorance hereof? What hath been the cause of this gross idolatry, but the ignorance hereof? What hath been the cause of this munimish massing, but the ignorance hereof? Yea, what hath been, and what is at this day the cause of this want of love and charity, but the ignorance hereof? Let us therefore so travel to understand the Lord's Supper, that we be no cause of the decay of God's worship, of no idolatry, of no dumb massing, of no hate and malice; so may we the boldlier have access thither to our comfort. Neither need we to think that such exact knowledge is required of every man, that he be able to difcuts all high points in the Mat. xxvi. doctrine thereof: but time much we must be fure to hold, that in the Supper of the Lord there is no vain ceremony, no bare fign, no untrue figure of a thing ab-

the Bread and Cup of the Lord, the Memory of Christ, the Annunciation of his death, yea, the Communion of the Body and Blood of the Lord, in a marvellous incorporation, which by the operation of the Holy Ghost (the very bond of our conjunction with Christ) is through faith wrought in the fouls of the faithful, whereby not only their fouls live to eternal life, but they furely trust to win their bodies a resurrection to immortality. The true understanding of this fruition and union, which is betwixt the body and the head, betwixt tren.lib.iv. the true believers and Christ, the ancient Catholic Fa-

Atha. health, the defence of faith, the hope of the resurrection; de Pec. in other, the food of immortality, the healthful grace, and Spir. Sanct. the conservatory to everlasting life. All which sayings

Spir. Sanct. the confervatory to everlasting life. All which fayings both of the holy Scripture and godly men, truly attributed to this celestial banquet and feast, if we would often call to mind, O how would they inflame our hearts to defire the participation of these mysteries, and oftentimes to covet after this bread, continually to thirst for this food! Not as especially regarding the terrene and earthly creatures which remain; but always holding fast and cleaving by faith to the rock, whence we may fuck the fweetness of everlasting falvation. And to be brief, thus much more the faithful fee, hear, and know the favourable mercies of God fealed, the fatisfaction by Christ towards us consirmed, and the remission of sin established. Here they may feel wrought the tranquillity of conscience, the increase of faith, the strengthening of hope, the large spreading abroad of brotherly kindnefs, with many other fundry graces of God. The tafte whereof whereof they cannot attain unto, who be drowned in the deep dirty lake of blindness and ignorance. From the which, O beloved, wash yourselves with the living waters of God's word, whence you may perceive and know, both the spiritual food of this costly supper, and the happy trustings and effects that the same doth bring with it.

Now it followeth to have with this knowledge a fure and constant faith, not only that the death of Christ is available for the redemption of all the world, for the remission of fins, and reconciliation with God the Father; but also that he hath made upon his cross a full and fufficient facrifice for thee, a perfect cleanling of thy fins, fo that thou acknowledgest no other Saviour, Redeemer, Mediator, Advocate, Intercessor, but Christ only; and that thou mayest say with the Apostle, that be loved thee, and gave himself for thee. For this is to stick fast to Christ's promise made in his institution, to make Christ thine own, and to apply his merits unto thyfelf. Herein thou needeft no other man's help, no other facrifice or oblation, no facrificing prieft, no mass, no means established by man's invention. That faith is a necessary instrument in all these holy ceremonies, we may thus affure ourselves, for that, as St. Paul saith, without faith it is unpossible to please God. When a Heb. xi. great number of Ifraelites were overthrown in the wildernefs, Mofes, Aaron, and Phineas did eat manua, and pleafed God, for that they understood, faith St. Augustine, the visible meat spiritually. Spiritually they hun-In Johan. gered it, spiritually they tasted it, that they might be Hom. 6. spiritually satisfied. And truly as the bodily meat cannot feed the outward man, unless it be let into a stomach to be digested, which is healthful and found; no more can the inward man be fed, except his meat be received into his foul and heart, found and whole in faith. Therefore, faith Cyprian, when we do thefe things, we need De Cona not to whet our teeth; but with fincere faith we break Domini. and divide that whole bread. It is well known that the meat we feek for in this fupper is spiritual food, the nourishment of our foul, a heavenly refection, and not earthly; an invisible meat, and not bodily; a ghostly fubstance, and not carnal; so that to think that without faith we may enjoy the eating and drinking thereof, or that that is the fruition of it, is but to dream a gross carnal feeding, basely objecting and binding ourselves to the elements and creatures. Whereas, by the advice of

Eufeb. Emiferem. de Euchar.

Concilium the council of Nicene, we ought to lift up our minds by faith, and, leaving these inserior and earthly things, there feek it, where the Sun of righteonfness ever shineth. Take then this lesson, O thou that art desirous of this table, of Emissenus, a godly father, that when thou goest up to the reverend communion, to be satisfied with spiritual meats, thou look up with faith upon the holy body and blood of thy God, thou marvel with reverence, thou touch it with the mind, thou receive it with the hand of thy heart, and thou take it fully with thy inward man.

> Thus we fee, beloved, that reforting to this table, we must pluck up all the roots of insidelity, all distrust in God's promifes, that we make ourselves living members of Christ's body. For the unbelievers and faithless cannot feed upon that precious body. Whereas the faithful have their life, their abiding in him, their union, and as it were their incorporation with him. Wherefore let us prove and try ourselves unseigned, without flattering ourselves, whether we be plants of the fruitful olive, living branches of the true vine, members indeed of Christ's mystical body, whether God hath purified our hearts by faith, to the fincere acknowledging of his Gospel, and embracing of his mercies in Christ Jefus, fo that at this his table we receive not only the outward facrament, but the spiritual thing also; not the figure, but the truth; not the shadow only, but the body; not to death, but to life; not to destruction, but to falvation: which God grant us to do through the merits of our Lord and Saviour: to whom be all honour and glory for ever. Amen.

The Second Part of the Homily of the worthy receiving and reverent esteeming of the Sacrament of the Body and Blood of Christ.

IN the Homily of late rehearfed unto you, ye have heard, good people, why it pleated our Saviour Christ to institute that heavenly memory of his death and passion, and that every one of us ought to celebrate the fame at his table, in our own persons, and not by other. You have heard also with what estimation and knowledge of fo high mysteries we ought to refort thither. thither. You have heard with what constant faith we should clothe and deck ourselves, that we might be fit would not eat of this bread, nor drink of this cup unworthily, which is, newness of life, and godliness of conversation. For newness of life, as fruits of faith are required in the partakers of this table. We may learn by eating of the typical Lamb, whereunto no man was admitted, but he that was a Jew, that was circumcifed, that was before fanctified. Yea, St. Paul testifieth, that I Cor. x. although the people were partakers of the Sacraments under Moses, yet for that some of them were still worshippers of images, whoremongers, tempters of Christ, murmurers, and coveting after evil things, God overthrew those in the wilderness, and that for our example; that is, that we Christians should take heed we resort unto our Sacraments with holiness of life, not trusting in the outward receiving of them, and infected with corrupt and uncharitable manners. For this fentence of God must always be justified: I will have mercy, and not facrifice. Wherefore, faith Basil, it behoveth him that cometh De Bap. to the Body and Blood of Christ, in commemoration of lib. i. c. 3. him that died and rose again, not only to be pure from all filthiness of the flesh and spirit, lest he eat and drink his own condemnation, but also to shew out evidently a memory of him that died and rofe again for us, in this point, that ye be mortified to fin and the world, to live now to God in Christ Jesus our Lord. So then we must thew outward testimony, in following the fignification of Christ's death; amongst the which this is not esteemed least, to render thanks to Almighty God for all his benefits, briefly comprifed in the death, passion, and refurrection of his dearly beloved Son. The which thing, because we ought chiefly at this table to solemnize, the godly Fathers named it Eucharistia, that is, thanksgiving: as if they should have said, Now above all other times ye ought to laud and praise God. Now may you behold the matter, the cause, the beginning, and the end of all thankfgiving. Now if you flack, ye shew yourselves most unthankful, and that no other benefit can ever stir you to thank God, who fo little regard here fo many, fo wonderful, and fo profitable benefits. Seeing then that the name and thing itself doth monish us of thanks, let us, as St. Paul faith, offer always to God the host or sa-Heb. xiii. crifice of praise by Christ, that is, the fruit of the lips which conte/s

there of thankful perfons, in comparison to the unthank-Luke xvii. ful! Lo, ten lepers in the Gospel were healed, and but one only returned to give thanks for his health. Yea, happy it were, if among forty communicants we could fee two unfeignedly give thanks. So unkind we be, fo oblivious we be, fo proud beggars we be, that partly we care not for our own commodity, partly we know not our duty to God, and chiefly we will not confess all that we receive. Yea, and if we be forced by God's power to do it, yet we handle it fo coldly, fo drily, that our lips praise him, but our hearts dispraise him; our tongues bless him, but our life curfeth him; our words worship him, but our works dishonour him. O let us therefore learn to give God here thanks aright, and fo to agnize his exceeding graces poured upon us, that they being shut up in the treasure-house of our heart, may in due time and season in our life and conversation appear to the glorifying of his holy name.

Furthermore, for newness of life, it is to be noted that St. Paul writeth, That we being many, are one bread and one body; for all be partakers of one bread: declaring thereby not only our communion with Christ, but that unity also, wherein they that eat at this table should be knit together. For by diffension, vain-glory, ambition, strife, envying, contempt, hatred, or malice, they should not be differered; but so joined by the bond of love in one myffical body, as the corns of that bread in one loaf. In respect of which straight knot of charity, the true Christians in the primitive church called this supper, Love. As if they should fay, none ought to fit down there that were out of love and charity, who bare grudge and vengeance in his heart, who also did not profess his kind affection by fome charitable relief for fome part of the congregation. And this was their practice. O heavenly banquet then to used! O godly guests, who so

But O wretched creatures that we be at these days, who be without reconciliation of our brethren whom we have offended, without satisfying them whom we have caused to fall, without any kind of thought or compassion toward them whom we might easily relieve, without any conscience of slander, distain, misreport, division, rancour, or inward bitterness. It is a table of peace, and thou art ready to fight. It is a table of fingleness, and thou art imagining mischief. It is a table of quietness, and thou art given to debate. It is a table of pity, and thou art unmerciful. Dost thou neither fear God, the maker of this feaft; nor reverence his Christ, the refection and meat; nor regardest his spouse, his well-beloved guest; nor weighest thine own conscience, which is sometime thine inward accuser? Wherefore, O man, tender thine own falvation, examine and try thy good-will and love towards the children of God, the members of Christ, the heirs of the heavenly heritage; yea, towards the image of God, the excellent creature thinc own foul. If thou have offended, now be reconciled: if thou have caused any to stumble in the way of God, now set them up again. If thou have disquieted thy brother, now pacify him. If thou have wronged him, now relieve him. If thou have defrauded him, now restore to him. If thou have nourished spite, now embrace friendship. If thou have foftered hatred and malice, now openly shew thy love and charity, yea be prest and ready to procure thy neighbour's health of foul, wealth, commodity, and pleafures, as thine own. Deferve not the heavy and dreadful burthen of God's displeasure for thine evil will towards thy neighbour, fo unreverently to approach to this table of the Lord. And shall we think that the wicked and finful perion shall be excusable at the table of the Lord? We both read in St. Paul, that the church of Corinth was 1 Cor. xi. feourged of the Lord, for mifufing the Lord's Supper; and Luke xvii. For furely, if we do not with earnest repentance cleanfe the filthy stomach of our foul, it must needs come to pass, that as wholesome meat received into a raw flomach corrupteth and marreth all, and is the cause of further sickness; so shall we eat this wholesome bread and drink this cup to our eternal destruction. Thus we, and no other, must thoroughly examine, and not lightly look over ourselves, not other men; our own conscience, not other men's lives: which we ought to do uprightly, truly, and with just correction. Wherefore if servants dare not to presume to an earthly master's table, whom they have offended, let us take heed we come not with our fins unexamined into this prefence of our Lord and Judge. HOMILY

CONCERNING

FOR WHITSUNDAY.

DEFORE we come to the declaration of the great and manifold gifts of the Holy Ghost, wherewith the church of God hath been evermore replenished, it shall first be needful briefly to expound unto you, whereof this feast of Pentecost, or Whitsuntide, had his first beginning. You shall therefore understand, that the feast of Pentecost was always kept the fiftieth day after Easter; a great and folemn feast among the Jews, wherein they did celebrate the memorial of their deliverance out of Egypt, and also the memorial of the publishing of the Law, which was given unto them in the mount Sinai upon that day. It was first ordained and commanded to be kept holy, not by any mortal man, but by the mouth of the Lord himfelf, as we read in Levit. xxiii. and Deut. xvi. The place appointed for the observation thereof was Jerusalem, where was great recourse of people from all parts of the world; as may well appear in the fecond chapter of the Acts, wherein mention is made of Parthians, Medes, Elamites, inhabiters of Mesopotamia, inhabiters of Jewry, Cappadocia, Pontus, Afia, Phrygia, Pamphilia, and divers other fuch places, whereby we may also partly gather, what great and royal solemnity was commonly used in that feast. Now as this was given in commandment to the Jews in the old Law, fo did our Saviour Christ as it were confirm the same in the time of the Gospel, ordaining, after a fort, a new Pentecost for his Disciples: namely, when he sent down the Holy Ghost I Cor. x. visibly in form of cloven tongues like sire, and gave them power to speak in such fort, that every one might hear them, and also understand them in his own language. Which miracle, that it might be had in perpetual remembrance, the church hath thought good to solemnize and keep holy this day, commonly called Whitsunday. And here is to be noted, that as the Law was given to the Jews in the mount Sinai, the sistieth day after Easter; so was the preaching of the Gospel, through the mighty power of the Holy Ghost, given to the Apostles in the mount

Sion, the fiftieth day after Eafter.

And hereof this feaft hath his name, to be called Pentecost, even of the number of the days. For, as St. Luke writeth in the Acts of the Apostles, when fifty days were come to an end, the Disciples being all together with one accord in one place, the Holy Ghoff came fuddenly among them, and fate upon each of them, like as it had been cloven tongues of fire. Which thing was undoubtedly done, to teach the Apostles, and all other men, that it is he which giveth eloquence and utterance in preaching the Gospel, that it is he which openeth the mouth to declare the mighty works of God, that it is he which engendereth a burning zeal towards God's word, and giveth all men a tongue, yea, a fiery tongue, fo that they may boldly and cheerfully profess the truth in the face of the whole world, as Isaiah was endued with this spirit. The Lord, faith Isaiah, Isaiah I. give me a learned and a skilful tongue, so that I might know to raife up them that are fallen with the word. The Prophet David crieth to have this gift, faying, Open thou my lips, Plalm 1. O Lord, and my mouth shall shew forth thy praise. For our Saviour Christ also in the Gospel faith to his Disciples, It Matth. x. is not you that speak, but the Spirit of your Father which is within you. All which testimonies of holy Scripture do fufficiently declare, that the mystery in the tongues betokeneth the preaching of the Gospel, and the open confession of the Christian faith, in all them that are possessed with the Holy Ghost. So that if any man be a dumb Christian, not professing his faith openly, but cloaking and colouring himself for fear of danger in time to come, he giveth men occasion, justly, and with good conscience, to doubt lest he have not the grace of the Holy Ghost within him, because he is tongue-tied, and doth not speak. Thus then have ye heard the first institution of this feast of Pentecost, or Whitsuntide, as well in the old

Law among the Jews, as also in the time of the Gospel

among the Christians.

Now let us confider what the Holy Ghost is, and how confequently he worketh his miraculous works towards mankind. The Holy Ghost is a spiritual and divine substance, the third Person in the Deity, distinct from the Father and the Son, and yet proceeding from them both: which thing to be true, both the Creed of Athanahus beareth witness, and may be also easily proved by most plain testimonies of God's holy Word. When Christ was baptized of John in the river Jordan, we read that the Holy Ghost came down in form of a dove, and that the Father thundered from heaven, faying, This is my dear

Matth. iii. and well-beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased. Where note three divers and diffinct Perfons, the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghoft; which all notwithstanding are not three Gods, but one God. Likewise, when Christ did first institute and ordain the Sacrament of Baptifm, he fent his Difeiples into the whole world, willing

Mat.xxviii. them to baptize all nations, in the name of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghoft. And in another place he faith, I will pray unto my Father, and he shall give you another John iv. John ii.

Comforter. Again, When the Comforter shall come, whom I will fend from my Father, &c. These and such other places of the New Testament do so plainly and evidently confirm the distinction of the Holy Ghost from the other Perfons in the Trinity, that no man possibly can doubt thereof, unless he will blaspheme the everlasting truth of God's Word. As for his proper nature and substance, it is altogether one with God the Father, and God the Son, that is to fay, spiritual, eternal, uncreated, incomprehenfible, almighty; to be fhort, he is even God and Lord everlasting. Therefore he is called the Spirit of the Father, therefore he is faid to proceed from the Father and the Son, and therefore he was equally joined with them in the commission that the Apostles had to baptize all nations. But that this may appear more fenfibly to the eyes of all men, it shall be requisite to come to the other part, namely, to the wonderful and heavenly works of the Holy Ghost, which plainly declare unto the world his mighty and divine power. First, it is evident that he did wonderfully govern and direct the hearts of the Patriarchs and Prophets in old time, illuminating their minds with the knowledge of the true Messias, and giving them utterance to prophefy of things that should come to pass long time after. For, as St. Peter witnesseth, the pro-2 Pet. i. phecy came not in old time by the will of man; but the boly men of God spake as they were moved inwardly by the Holy Ghoft. And of Zachary the high Priest it is said in the Gospel, that be being full of the Holy Ghost, prophesied and Luke i. praised God. So did also Simeon, Anna, Mary, and divers other, to the great wonder and admiration of all men. Moreover, was not the Holy Ghost a mighty worker in the conception and the nativity of Christ our Saviour? St. Matthew faith, that the bleffed Virgin Matth.i. was found with child of the Holy Ghoft, before Joseph and the came together. And the angel Gabriel did expressly tell her, that it should come to pass, saying, The Luke i. Holy Ghost shall come upon thee, and the power of the most High shall overshadow thee. A marvellous matter, that a woman should conceive and bear a child without the knowledge of man. But where the Holy Ghost worketh, there nothing is impossible, as may further also appear by the inward regeneration and fanctification of mankind. When Christ said to Nicodemus, Unless a man be born John iii. anew, of water and the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God, he was greatly amazed in his mind, and began to reason with Christ, demanding bow a man might be born which was old? Can be enter, faith he, into his mother's womb again, and so be born anew? Behold a lively pattern of a fleshly and carnal man. He had little or no intelligence of the Holy Ghost, and therefore he goeth bluntly to work, and asketh how this thing were possible to be true: whereas otherwise if he had known the great power of the Holy Ghost in this behalf, that it is he which inwardly worketh the regeneration and new birth of mankind, he would never have marvelled at Christ's words, but would rather take occasion thereby to praife and glorify God. For as there are three feveral and fundry perfons in the Deity; fo have they three feveral and fundry offices proper unto each of them.

The Father to create, the Son to redeem, the Holy Ghost to fanctify and regenerate. Whereof the last, the more it is hid from our understanding, the more it ought to move all men to wonder at the secret and mighty working of God's holy Spirit, which is within us. For it is the Holy Ghost, and no other thing, that doth quicken the minds of men, stirring up good and godly motions in their hearts, which are agreeable to the will and commandment of God, such as otherwise of their own crooked and perverse nature they should never have.

John v. That which is born of the Spirit is spirit. As who should fay, man of his own nature is slessly and carnal, corrupt and naught, sinful and disobedient to God, without any spark of goodness in him, without any virtuous or godly motion, only given to evil thoughts and wicked deeds. As for the works of the Spirit, the fruits of faith, charitable and godly motions, if he have any at all in him, they proceed only of the Holy Ghost, who is the only worker of our fanctification, and maketh us new men in Christ Jesus. Did not God's holy Spirit miracu-

1 Sam.xvii. loufly work in the child David, when of a poor shepherd he became a princely prophet? Did not God's holy Spirit

Matth. ix. miraculously work in Matthew, fitting at the receipt of cuffon, when of a proud publican he became an humble and lowly Evangelist? And who can choose but marvel to consider, that Peter should become of a simple sisher a chief and mighty Apostle? Paul of a cruel and bloody persecutor, a saithful disciple of Christ, to teach the Gentiles? Such is the power of the Holy Ghost to regenerate men, and as it were to bring them forth anew, so that they shall be nothing like the men that they were before. Neither doth he think it sufficient inwardly to work the spiritual and new birth of man, unless he do also dwell

r Cor. iii. and abide in him. Know ye not, faith St. Paul, that ye are the temple of God, and that his Spirit dwelleth in you? Know ye not that your bodies are the temples of the Holy Ghost, which is within you? Again he faith, You are not in the Rom. viii. flesh, but in the Spirit. For why? The Spirit of God

Rom. viii. flesh, but in the Spirit. For why? The Spirit of God dwelleth in you. To this agreeth the doctrine of St.

received (he meaneth the Holy Ghost) dwelleth in you.

And the doctrine of Peter faith the fame, who hath these

Pet. iv. words: The Spirit of glory and of God refleth upon you. O what comfort is this to the heart of a true Christian, to think that the Holy Ghost dwelleth within him! If God be with us, as the Apostle saith, who can be against us?

O but how shall I know that the Holy Ghost is within me? some man perchance will say. For sooth, as the tree is known by his fruit, so is also the Holy Ghost. The fruits of the Holy Ghost (according to the mind of St. Paul) are these: love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, good-thefe: love, joy, peace, long-fuffering, gentleness, goodness, faithfulness, meekness, temperance, &c. Contrariwise, the deeds of the flesh are these: adultery, fornication, uncleanness, wantonness, idolatry, witchcraft, hatred, debate, emulation, wrath, contention, fedition, herefy, envy, murder, drunkenness, gluttony, and such like.

Here is now that glass, wherein thou must behold thyfelf, and differn whether thou have the Holy Ghoft within thee, or the spirit of the slesh. If thou see that thy works be virtuous and good, confonant to the prefcript rule of God's word, favouring and taffing not of the flesh, but of the Spirit, then assure thyself that thou art endued with the Holy Ghost: otherwise, in thinking well of thyself, thou dost nothing else but deceive thyself. The Holy Ghost doth always declare himself by his fruitful and gracious gifts, namely, by the word of wisdom, by the word of knowledge, which is the understanding of the Scriptures by faith, in doing of miracles, by healing 1 Cor. xii. them that are difeafed, by prophecy, which is the declaration of God's mysteries, by discerning of spirits, diversities of tongues, interpretation of tongues, and fo forth. All which gifts, as they proceed from one Spirit, and are feverally given to man according to the measurable distribution of the Holy Ghost; even so do they bring men, and not without good cause, into a wonderful admiration of God's divine power. Who will not marvel at that which is written in the Acts of the Apostles, to hear their bold confession be- Acts vi fore the council at Jerusalem; and to consider that they went away with joy and gladness, rejoicing that they were counted worthy to fuffer rebukes and checks for the name and faith of Christ Jesus. This was the mighty work of the Holy Ghost, who, because he giveth patience and joyfulness of heart in temptation and affliction, hath therefore worthily obtained this name in holy Scripture, to be called a Comforter. Who will not also marvel to read the learned and heavenly fermons of Peter and the Disciples, considering that they were never brought up in school of learning, but called even from their nets, to fupply the rooms of Apostles? This was likewise the John xiv. mighty work of the Holy Ghost, who, because he doth instruct the hearts of the simple in the true knowledge of God and his word, is most justly termed by this name and title, to be the Spirit of Truth. Eufebius in Lib. xi. his Ecclefiastical History telleth a strange story of a certain cap. 3. learned and fubtile philosopher, who being an extreme adversary to Christ and his doctrine, could by no kind of learning be converted to the faith, but was able to withstand all the arguments that could be brought against him, with little or no labour. At length there started up a poor simple man, of small wit and less knowledge, one that was reputed among the learned as an ideot; and he on God's name would needs take in hand to dispute with CC4

this proud philosopher. The bishops and other learned men standing by were marvellously abashed at the matter, thinking that by his doing they should be all confounded and put to open shame. He notwithstanding goeth on, and beginning in the name of the Lord Jesus, brought the philosopher to fuch point in the end, contrary to all men's expectation, that he could not choose but acknowledge the power of God in his words, and to give place to the truth. Was not this a miraculous work, that one filly foul, of no learning, should do that which many bishops of great knowledge and understanding were never able to bring to pass? So true is the faying of Bede: "Where the Holy Ghost doth instruct and teach, there is no delay at all in learning." Much more might here be spoken of the manifold gifts and graces of the Holy Ghost, most excellent and wonderful in our eyes: but to make a long discourse through all, the fhortness of time will not serve. And seeing ye have heard the chiefest, ye may easily conceive and judge of the rest. Now were it expedient do discuss this question; whether all they which boast and brag that they have the Holy Ghoft, do truly challenge this unto themselves, or no? Which doubt, because it is necessary and profitable, shall, God willing, be dissolved in the next part of this Homily. In the mean feafon, let us (as we are most bound) give hearty thanks to God the Father, and his Son Jefus Chrift, for fending down his Comforter into the world, humbly befeeching him fo to work in our hearts by the power of this Holy Spirit, that we being regenerate and newly born again in all goodness, righteousness, sobriety, and truth, may in the end be made partakers of everlasting life in his heavenly kingdom, through Jesus Christ our Lord and Saviour. Amen.

The Second Part of the Homily concerning the Holy Ghost, diffolving this doubt; whether all men rightly challenge to themselves the Holy Ghost, or no.

UR Saviour Christ departing out of the world unto his Father, promised his Disciples to send down another Comforter, that should continue with them for ever, and direct them into all truth. Which thing to be faithfully faithfully and truly performed, the Scriptures do fufficiently bear witness. Neither must we think that this Comforter was either promised, or else given, only to the Apostles, but also to the universal church of Christ, dispersed through the whole world. For unless the Holy Ghost had been always present, governing and preserving the church from the beginning, it could never have sufficient of many and great brunts of affliction and persecution, with so little damage and harm as it hath. And the words of Christ are most plain in this behalf, saying, John xxive that the Spirit of truth should abide with them for ever, that Matth. xxi. be would be with them always (he meaneth by grace, virtue, and power) even to the world's end. Also in the prayer that he made to his Father a little before his death, he maketh intercession, not only for himself and his Apostles, but indifferently for all them John xvii. that should believe in him through their words, that is to wit, for his whole church. Again, St. Paul faith, If any Rom. viii. man have not the Spirit of Christ, the same is not his. Also in the words following: We have received the Spirit of adop-Ibidem. tion, whereby we cry Abba, Father. Hereby then it is evident and plain to all men, that the Holy Ghost was given, not only to the Apostles, but also to the whole body of Christ's congregation, although not in like form and majesty as he came down at the feast of Pentecost. But now herein standeth the controversy; whether all men do justly arrogate to themselves the Holy Ghost, or no? The bishops of Rome have for a long time made a fore challenge thereunto, reasoning with themselves after this fort. "The Holy Ghoft," fay they, "was promifed to the church, and never forfaketh the church. But we are the chief heads and the principal part of the church, therefore we have the Holy Ghost for ever; and whatsoever things we decree are undoubted verities, and oracles of the Holy Ghost." That ye may perceive the weakness of this argument, it is needful to teach you, first, what the true church of Christ is, and then to confer the church of Rome therewith, to difcern how well they agree together. The true church is an univerfal congregation or fellowthip of God's faithful and elect people, built upon the foundation of the Apostles and Prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the head Ephes. ii. corner-stone. And it hath always three notes or marks, whereby it is known: pure and found doctrine, the facraments ministered according to Christ's holy institution,

tion of the church is agreeable both to the Scriptures of God,

God, and also to the doctrine of the ancient Fathers, so that none may justly find fault therewith. Now if you will compare this with the church of Rome, not as it was in the beginning, but as it is at prefent, and hath been for the space of nine hundred years and odd; you shall well perceive the state thereof to be so far wide from the nature of the true church, that nothing can be more. For neither are they built upon the foundation of the Apostles and Prophets, retaining the found and pure doctrine of Christ Jesus; neither yet do they order the facraments, or else the ecclesiastical keys, in such fort as he did first institute and ordain them: but have so intermingled their own traditions and inventions, by chopping and changing, by adding and plucking away, that now they may feem to be converted into a new guife. Christ commended to his church a facrament of his body and blood: they have changed it into a facrifice for the quick and the dead. Christ did minister to his Apostles, and the Apostles to other men indifferently under both kinds: they have robbed the lay-people of the cup, faying, that for them one kind is fufficient. Christ ordained no other element to be used in baptism, but only water, whereunto when Augustine. the word is joined, it is made, as St. Augustine faith, a full and perfect facrament. They being wifer in their own conceit than Christ, think it is not well nor orderly done, unless they use conjuration, unless they hallow the water, unless there be oil, falt, spittle, tapers, and such other dumb ceremonies, ferving to no use, contrary to the plain rule of St. Paul, who willeth all things to be done in 1 Cor, xiv. the church to edification. Christ ordained the authority of the keys to excommunicate notorious finners, and to absolve them which are truly penitent: they abuse this power at their own pleafure, as well in curfing the godly with bell, book, and candle, as also in absolving the reprobate, which are known to be unworthy of any Christian fociety: whereof they that lust to see examples, let them fearch their lives. To be fhort, look what our Saviour Christ pronounced of the Scribes and Pharisees in the Gospel: the same may be boldly and with safe conscience pronounced of the bishops of Rome; namely, that they have forfaken, and daily do forfake, the commandments of God, to erect and fet up their own constitutions. Which thing being true, as all they which have any light of God's word must needs confess, we may well conclude, according to the rule of Augustine, that the bishops of Rome and their adherents are not the true church of Christ,

Christ, much less then to be taken as chief heads and rulers of the fame. Whofoever, faith he, do diffent from August. the Scriptures concerning the head, although they be contra Pefound in all places where the church is appointed, yet are tilian. Do-natift. Ep. they not in the church: a plain place, concluding direct-cap. 4. ly against the church of Rome. Where is now the Holy Ghost, which they so stoutly do claim to themselves? Where is now the Spirit of Truth, that will not suffer them in any wife to err? If it be possible to be there, where the true church is not, then is it at Rome: otherwife it is but a vain brag, and nothing elfe. St. Paul, as ye have heard before, faith, If any man have not the Spirit of Christ, the same is not his. And by turning the words, it may be truly said, If any man be not of Christ, the same bath not the Spirit. Now to difcern who are truly his, and who not, we have this rule given us; that his sheep do always bear his voice. And St. John faith, He that is John x. of God beareth God's word. Whereof it followeth, that John viii, the Popes, in not hearing Christ's voice, as they ought to do, but preferring their own decrees before the express word of God, do plainly argue to the world that they are not of Christ, nor yet possessed with his Spirit. But here they will allege for themselves, that there are divers neceffary points not expressed in holy Scripture, which were left to the revelation of the Holy Ghost; who being John xvi. given to the church, according to Christ's promise, hath taught many things from time to time, which the Apoftles could not then bear. To this we may eafily answer by the plain words of Christ, teaching us that the proper office of the Holy Ghost is, not to institute and bring in new ordinances, contrary to his doctrine before taught; but shall come and declare those things which he had before taught, fo that it might be well and truly understood. When the Holy Ghost, saith he, shall come, he Shall lead you into all truth. What truth doth he mean? John xvi. Any other than he himfelf had before expressed in his word? No. For he faith, He shall take of mine, and John xvi. Shew unto you. Again, he shall bring you in remembrance of all things that I have told you. It is not then the duty and part of any Christian, under pretence of the Holy Ghost, to bring in his own dreams and fantasies into the church: but he must diligently provide that his doctrine and decrees be agreeable to Christ's holy Testament; otherwife, in making the Holy Ghost the author thereof, he doth blafpheme and belie the Holy Ghoft to his own condemnation.

Now

Now to leave their doctrine, and to come to other points. What shall we think or judge of the Pope's intolerable pride? The Scripture faith, that God refisleth the proud, and sheweth grace to the humble. Also it pronounceth them bleffed which are poor in spirit, promising that they Matth. v. which humble themselves shall be exalted. And Christ Matth.xi. our Saviour willeth all his to learn of him, because be is bumble and meek. As for pride, St. Gregory faith, it is the root of all mischief. And St. Augustine's judgment is this, that it maketh men devils. Can any man then, which either hath or shall read the Popes' lives, justly fay that they had the Holy Ghost within them? First, as touching that they will be termed universal Bithops and Heads of all Christian churches through the world; we have the judgment of Gregory expressly against them; who, writing to Mauritius the emperor, condemneth John, bishop of Constantinople, in that behalf, calling him the Prince of pride, Lucifer's Successor, Serm. 3. de and the Forerunner of Antichrift. St. Bernard also agreeing thereunto, faith, What greater pride can there be, than that one man should prefer his own judgment before the whole congregation, as though he only had the Spirit of God? And Chryfostom pronounceth a terrirum lib, iii, ble fentence against them, affirming plainly, that whofoever feeketh to be chief in earth shall find confusion in heaven; and that he which striveth for the supremacy fliall not be reputed among the fervants of Christ. Again. he faith, To defire a good work, it is good; but to covet the chief degree of honour, it is mere vanity. Do not these places sufficiently convince their outrageous pride, in usurping to themselves a superiority above all other, as well ministers and bishops, as kings also and emperors? But as the lion is known by his claws, fo let us learn to know these men by their deeds. What Sabell, En. shall we fay of him that made the noble King Dandalus to be tied by the neck with a chain, and to lie flat down before his table, there to gnaw bones like a dog? Shall we think that he had God's holy Spirit within him, and not rather the spirit of the devil? Such a tyrant was Pope Clement the fixth. What shall we say of him that proudly and contemptuously trod Frederic the emperor under his feet, applying the verse of the Pfalm unto himfelf, Thou shalt go upon the lion and the adder, the young lion and the dragon thou shalt tread under thy foot? Shall we fay that he had God's holy Spirit within him, and not rather the spirit of the devil? Such a tyrant was Pope Alexander the

the third. What shall we say of him that armed and animated the fon against the father, causing him to be taken, and to be cruelly famished to death, contrary to the law both of God, and also of nature? Shall we say that he had God's holy Spirit within him, and not rather the fpirit of the devil? Such a tyrant was Pope Pascal the fecond. What shall we say of him that came into his popedom like a fox, that reigned like a lion, and died like a dog? Shall we fay that he had God's holy Spirit within him, and not rather the spirit of the devil? Such a tyrant was Pope Boniface the eighth. What shall we say of him that made Henry the emperor, with his wife and his young child, to fland at the gates of the city in the rough winter, bare footed and bare legged, only clothed in linfey woolfey, eating nothing from morning to night, and that for the space of three days? Shall we say that he had God's holy Spirit within him, and not rather the spirit of the devil? Such a tyrant was Pope Hildebrand, most worthy to be called a firebrand, if we shall term him as he hath best deserved. Many other examples might here be alleged; as of Pope Joan the harlot, that was delivered of a child in the high fireet, going folemnly in proceffion; of Pope Julius the IId. that wilfully cast St. Peter's keys into the river Tiberis; of Pope Urban the VIth. that caused five cardinals to be put in facks, and cruelly drowned; of Pope Sergius the IIId. that perfecuted the dead body of Formofus his predeceffor, when it had been buried eight years; of Pope John the XIVth. of that name, who having his enemy delivered into his hands, caused him first to be stripped stark naked, his beard to be shaven, and to be hanged up a whole day by the hair, then to be fet upon an als with his face backward toward the tail, to be carried round about the city in defpite, to be miferably beaten with rods, last of all, to be thrust out of his country, and to be banished for ever. But to conclude, and make an end, ye shall briefly take this short lesson; wherefoever ye find the spirit of arrogance and pride, the spirit of envy, hatred, contention, cruelty, murder, extortion, witchcraft, necromancy, &c. assure yourselves that there is the spirit of the devil, and not of God, albeit they pretend outwardly to the world never fo much holinefs. For as the Gospel teacheth us, the Spirit of Jesus is a good Spirit, an holy Spirit, a fweet Spirit, a lowly Spirit, a merciful Spirit, full of charity and love, full of forgiveness and pity, not rendering evil for evil, extremity for extremity, but overcoming evil with good, and remitting all offence even from the heart. According to which rule, if any man live uprightly, of him it may be fafely pronounced, that he hath the Holy Ghost within him: if not, then it is a plain token that he doth usurp the name of the Holy Ghost in vain. Therefore, dearly beloved, according to John iv. the good counsel of St. John, Believe not every spirit, but first try them whether they be of God or no. Many shall Mat. xxiv. come in my name, saith Christ, and shall transform themselves into angels of light, deceiving (if it be possible) the very elect. They shall come unto you in sheep's clothing, being inwardly cruel and ravening wolves. They shall have an outward shew of great holiness and innocency of life, so that ye shall hardly or not at all discern them. But the

that ye shall hardly or not at all discern them. But the Matth. vii. rule that ye must follow is this, To judge them by their fruits. Which if they be wicked and naught, then it is unpossible that the tree of whom they proceed should be good. Such were all the Popes and Prelates of Rome for the most part, as doth well appear in the story of their lives, and therefore they are worthily accounted among the number of salfe Prophets, and salfe Christs, which deceived the world a long while. The Lord of heaven and earth defend us from their tyranny and pride, that they never enter into his vineyard again, to the disturbance of his filly ber of false Prophets, and false Christs, which deceived the world a long while. The Lord of heaven and earth defend us from their tyranny and pride, that they never enter into his vineyard again, to the disturbance of his filly poor flock; but that they may be utterly confounded and put to flight in all parts of the world: and he of his great mercy so work in all men's hearts, by the mighty power of the Holy Ghost, that the comfortable Gospel of his Son Christ may be truly preached, truly received, and truly followed in all places, to the beating down of sin, death, the Pope, the Devil, and all the kingdom of Antichrist, that like scattered and dispersed slieep, being at length gathered into one fold, we may in the end rest all together in the bosom of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, there to be partakers of eternal and everlasting life, through the merits and death of Jesus Christ our Saviour. Amen.

Days of Rogation Week.

That all good things come from God.

AM purposed this day, good devout Christian people, to declare unto you the most deserved praise and commendation of Almighty God, not only in the confideration of the marvellous creation of this world, or for confervation and governance thereof, wherein his great power and wisdom might excellently appear to move us to honour and dread him; but most especially in consideration of his liberal and large goodness, which he daily bestoweth on us his reasonable creatures, for whose sake he made the whole univerfal world, with all the commodities and goods therein; which his fingular goodness well and diligently remembered on our part should move us, as duty is, again with hearty affection to love him, and with word and deed to praise him and serve him all the days of our life. And to this matter, being so worthy to entreat of, and fo profitable for you to hear, I trust I shall not need with much eircumstance of words to stir you to give your attendance to hear what shall be faid. Only I would wish your affection inflamed in secret wife within yourfelf, to raife up fome motion of thankfgiving to the goodness of Almighty God, in every such point as shall be opened by my declaration particularly unto you. For else what shall it avail us to hear and know the great goodness of God towards us, to know that whatsoever is good proceedeth from him, as from the principal fountain and the only author; or to know that whatfoever is fent from him must needs be good and wholesome; if the hearing of fuch matter moveth us no further but to know it only? What availeth it the wife men of the world to have knowledge of the power and divinity of God, by the feeret inspiration of him, where they did not honour and glorify him in their knowledge as God? What praife was it to them, by the confideration of the creation of the world, to behold his goodness, and not to be thankful to him again for his creatures? What other thing deferved this blindness and forgetfulness of them at God's hands, but utter forfaking of him? And fo forfaken of God, they could not but fall into extreme ignorance and error. And although they much effeemed themselves in their wits and knowledge, and gloried in their wifdom; yet vanished they away blindly, in their thoughts became fools, and perished in their folly. There can be none other end of such as draw nigh to God by knowledge, and yet depart from him in unthankfulness, but utter destruction. This experience saw David destroyed them all that are strayed from thee.

Jer. xv.

This experience was perceived to be true of that holy Prophet Jeremiah: O Lord, faith he, whatfoever they be that for fake thee shall be confounded; they that depart from thee shall be written in the earth, and soon forgotten. profiteth not, good people, to hear the goodness of God declared unto us, if our hearts be not enflamed thereby to honour and thank him. It profited not the Jews, which were God's elect people, to hear much of God, feeing that he was not received in their hearts by faith, nor thanked for his benefits bestowed upon them: their unthankfulness was the cause of their destruction. Let us eschew the manner of these before rehearsed, and follow rather the example of that holy Apostle St. Paul, who when in a deep meditation he did behold the marvellous proceedings of Almighty God, and confidered his infinite goodness in the ordering of his creatures, he burst out into this conclusion: Surely, faith he, of him, by him, and in bim, be all things. And this once pronounced, he fluck not still at this point, but forthwith thereupon joined to these words: To bim be glory and praise for ever. Amen.

Upon the ground of which words of St. Paul, good audience, I purpose to build my exhortation of this day

unto you. Wherein I shall do my endeavour, first, to prove unto you that all good things come down unto us from above, from the Father of light. Secondly, that Jefus Chrift, his Son and our Saviour, is the mean, by whom we receive his liberal goodness. Thirdly, that in the power and virtue of the Holy Ghost we be made meet and able to receive his gifts and graces. Which things diffinctly and advisedly confidered in our minds, must needs compel us in most low reverence, after our bounden duty, always to render him thanks again, in fome teffification of our good hearts for his deferts unto And that the entreating of this matter in hand may be to the glory of Almighty God, let us in one faith and charity call upon the Father of mercy, from whom cometh every good gift and every perfect gift, by the mediation of his well-beloved Son our Saviour, that we may be affifted with the prefence of his holy Spirit, and profitably on both parts, to demean ourfelves in speaking and hearkening to the falvation of our fouls.

In the beginning of my speaking unto you, good Christian people, suppose not that I do take upon me to declare unto you the excellent power, or the incomparable wifdom of Almighty God, as though I would have you believe that it might be expressed unto you by words; nay, it may not be thought, that that thing may be comprehended by man's words, that is incomprehenfible. And too much arrogancy it were for dust and ashes to think that he can worthily declare his Maker. It passeth far the dark understanding and wisdom of a mortal man, to speak sufficiently of that divine Majesty, which the angels cannot understand. We shall therefore lay apart to speak of the profound and unsearchable nature of Almighty God, rather acknowledging our weakness, than rashly to attempt what is above all man's capacity to compass. It shall better suffice us in low humility to reverence and dread his Majesty, which we cannot comprise, than by overmuch curious fearthing to be overcharged with the glory. We shall rather turn our whole contemplation to answer a while his goodness towards us, wherein we shall be much more profitably occupied, and more may we be bold to fearch. To confider the great power he is of, can but make us dread and fear. To confider his high wifdom, might utterly discomfort our frailty to have any thing to do with him: but in confideration of his inestimable goodness, we take good heart again to trust well unto him. By his goodness we be, affired \mathbf{p} d

affured to take him for our refuge, our hope and comfort, our merciful Father, in all the course of our lives. His power and wisdom compelleth us to take him for God Omnipotent, Invisible, having rule in heaven and earth, having all things in his fubjection, and will have none in council with him, nor any to ask the reason of his doing. For he may do what liketh him, and none can resist him. For he worketh all things in his secret judgment

Prov. xvi. to his own pleasure, yea, even the wicked to damnation, faith Solomon. By the reason of his nature, he is called in Scripture confuming fire, he is called a terrible and fearful God. Of this behalf, therefore, we have no familiarity, no access unto him; but his goodness again tempereth the rigour of his high power, and maketh us bold, and putteth us in hope that he will be conversant with us, and eafy unto us.

It is his goodness that moveth him to say in Scripture, It is my delight to be with the children of men. It is his goodness that moveth him to call us unto him, to offer us his friendflip and prefence. It is his goodness that patiently fuffereth our straying from him, and suffereth us long, to win us to repentance. It is of his goodness that we be created reasonable creatures, where else he might have made us brute beafts. It was his mercy to have us born among the number of Christian people, and thereby in a much more nighness to salvation, where we might have been born (if his goodness had not been) among the Paynims, clean void from God, and the hope of everlafting life. And what other thing doth his loving and gentle voice, spoken in his word, where he calleth us to his presence and friendship, but declare his goodness only, without regard of our worthiness? And what other thing doth stir him to call us to him, when we be strayed from him, to fuffer us patiently, to win us to repentance, but only his fingular goodness, no whit of our deserving? Let them all come together that be now glorified in heaven, and let us hear what answer they will make in these points before rehearfed, whether their first creation was in God's goodness, or of themselves. Forsooth, David would make answer for them all, and say, Know ye for furcty, even the Lord is God; he hath made us, and not we ourselves. If they were asked again, who should be thanked for their regeneration, for their justification, and for their falvation? whether their deferts, or God's goodness only? although in this point every one contess sufficiently the truth of this matter in his own perion;

Prov. viii.

fon; yet let David answer by the mouth of them all at this time, who cannot choose but say, Not to us, O Lord, not to us, but to thy name give all the thanks, for thy loving mercy, and for thy truth sake. If we should ask again, from whence came their glorious works and deeds, which they wrought in their lives, wherewith God was so highly pleased and worshipped by them? let some other witness be brought in, to testify this matter, that in the mouth of two or three may the truth be known.

Verily, that holy Prophet Isaiah beareth record, and Isa. xxvi. faith, O Lord, it is thou of thy goodness that hast wrought all our works in us, not we ourselves. And to uphold the truth of this matter, against all justiciaries and hypocrites, which rob Almighty God of his honour, and afcribe it to themselves, St. Paul bringeth in his belief: We be not, 1 Cor. iii. faith he, sufficient of ourselves, as of ourselves, once to think Acis xvii. any thing: but all our ableness is of God's goodness. For he it is, in whom we have all our being, our living, and moving. If ye will know furthermore where they had their gifts and facrifices, which they offered continually in their lives to Almighty God, they cannot but agree with David, where he faith, Of thy liberal hand, O Lord, we have received that we gave unto thee. If this holy company therefore confess so constantly, that all the goods and graces, wherewith they were endued in foul, came of the goodness of God only; what more can be said to prove that all that is good cometh from Almighty God? Is it meet to think that all spiritual goodness cometh from God above only; and that other good things, either of nature or of fortune (as we call them) come of any other cause? Doth God of his goodness adorn the soul with all the powers thereof, as it is; and come the gifts of the body, wherewith it is endued, from any other? If he doth the more, cannot he do the lefs? "To justify a finner, to new create him from a wicked person to a righteous man, is a greater act," faith St. Augustine, "than to make fuch a new heaven and earth as is already made." We must needs agree, that whatsoever good thing is in us, of grace, of nature, or of fortune, is of God only, as the only Author and Worker.

And yet it is not to be thought that God hath created all this whole universal world as it is, and, thus once made, hath given it up to be ruled and used after our own wits and device, and so taketh no more charge thereof. As we see the shipwright, after he hath brought his ship to a perfect end, then delivereth it to the mariners, and taketh no more care thereof. Nay, God hath not for created the world, that he is careless of it: but he still preferveth it by his goodness, he still stayeth it in his creation. For elfe without his special goodness it could not stand long in this condition. And therefore St. Paul faith, that he preserveth all things, and beareth them up ftill in his Word, left they should fall without him to their nothing again, whereof they were made. If his especial goodness were not every where present, every creature should be out of order, and no creature should have his property, wherein he was first created. He is therefore invisible every where, and in every creature, and filleth both heaven and earth with his presence: in the fire, to give heat; in the water, to give moisture; in the earth, to give fruit; in the heart, to give his strength; yea, in our bread and drink is he, to give us nourishment, where without him the bread and drink cannot give fustenance, nor the herb health, as the Wife

Wild. xvi. Man plainly confesseth it, saying, It is not the increase of fruits that seedeth men; but it is thy word, O Lord, which preserveth them that trust in thee. And Moses agreeth to

Deut. viii. the fame, when he faith, Man's life refleth not in bread only, but in every word which proceedeth out of God's mouth. It

Wife. xvii. is neither the herb nor the plasser, that giveth health of themfelves; but thy word, O Lord, saith the Wise Man, which healeth all things. It is not therefore the power of the creatures which worketh their effects, but the goodness of God which worketh in them. In his Word truly do all things consist. By that same Word that heaven and earth were made, by the same are they upholden, maintained, and kept in order, saith St. Peter, and shall be till Almighty God shall withdraw his power from them, and earth were made, by the same are they upholden, maintained, and kept in order, saith St. Peter, and shall be till Almighty God shall withdraw his power from them, and speak their dissolution. If it were not thus, that the goodness of God were effectually in his creatures to rule them, how could it be that the main sea, so raging and labouring to overflow the earth, could be kept within his bounds and banks, as it is? That holy man Job evidently spied the goodness of God in this point, and confessed, that if he had not a special goodness to the preservation of the earth, it could not but shortly be overslowed of the sea. How could it be that the elements, so divers and contrary as they be among themselves, should yet agree and abide together in a concord, without destruction one of another, to serve our use, if it came not only of God's goodness so to temper them? How could the fire not burn and consume all things, if it were let loose to go

whither it would, and not flaid in its fphere by the goodness of God, measurably to heat these inferior creatures to their riping? Confider the huge fubstance of the earth, fo heavy and great as it is: how could it fo. ftand ftably in the space as it doth, if God's goodness reserved it not fo for us to travel on? It is thou, O Lord, faith David, Pfal. ciii. which hast founded the earth in his stability; and during thy word it shall never reel or fall down. Confider the great strong beasts and fishes, far passing the strength of man; how fierce foever they be and ftrong, yet by the goodnefs of God they prevail not against us, but are under our subjection, and ferve our use. Of whom came the invention thus to fubdue them, and make them fit for our commodities? Was it by man's brain? Nay, rather this invention came by the goodness of God, which inspired man's understanding to have his purpose of every creature. Who was it, faith Job, that put will and wisdom in man's head, Job but God only, bis goodness? And as the same saith again, xxxviii. I perceive that every man bath a mind; but it is the inspiration of the Almighty that giveth understanding. It could not be, verily, good Christian people, that man of his own wit upholden should invent so many and divers devices in all crafts and sciences, except the goodness of Almighty God had been prefent with men, and had stirred their wits and studies of purpose to know the natures and dispositions of all his creatures, to serve us sufficiently in our needs and necessities: yea, not only to serve our necessities, but to serve our pleasures and delight, more than necessity requireth. So liberal is God's goodness to us, to provoke us to thank him, if any hearts we have. The Wife Man, in his contemplation by himfelf, could not but grant this thing to be true, which I reason unto you. In his bands, faith he, be zve, and our zvords, and all our Wifd, vii. wildom, and all our feiences and works of knowledge: for it is he that gave me the true instruction of his creatures, both to know the disposition of the world, and the virtues of the elements, the beginning and end of times, the change and diversities of them, the course of the year, the order of the stars, the natures of beasts, and the powers of them, the powers of the winds, and thoughts of men, the differences of planets, the virtue of roots, and whatfoever is hid and fecret in nature, I learned it. The Artificer of all these taught me this wisdom. And further he faith, Who can fearch out the things that be in bea- Wild. ix. ven? For it is hard for us to fearch fuch things as be on earth, and in daily fight before us. For our wits and Dd3 thoughts, thoughts, faith he, be imperfect, and our policies uncertain. No man can therefore fearch out the meaning in thefe things, except thou givest wisdom, and sendest thy Spirit from above. If the Wife Man thus confesseth all things to be of God, why should not we acknowledge it? and by the knowledge of it confider our duty to God ward, and give him thanks for his goodness? I perceive that I am far here overcharged with the plenty and copy of matter, that might be brought in for the proof of this cause. If I should enter to shew how the goodness of Almighty God appeared every where in the creatures of the world, how marvellous they be in their creation, how beautiful in their order, how necessary they be to our use; all with one voice must needs grant their Author to be none other but Almighty God, his goodness must they needs extol and magnify every where: to whom be all honour and glory for evermore.

The Second Part of the Homily for Rogation Week.

IN the former part of this Homily, good Christian people, I have declared to your contemplation the great goodness of Almighty God, in the creation of this world, with all the furniture thereof, for the use and comfort of man, whereby we might rather be moved to acknowledge our duty again to his Majesty. And I trust it hath wrought not only belief in you, but also it hath moved you to render your thanks fecretly in your hearts to Almighty God for his loving kindness. But yet peradventure fome will fay, that they can agree to this, that all that is good pertaining to the foul, or whatfoever is created with us in body, should come from God, as from the Author of all goodness, and from none other. But of fuch things as be without them both, I mean fuch good things which we call goods of fortune, as riches, authority, promotion, and honour; fome men may think, that they should come of our industry and diligence, of our labour and travel, rather than supernaturally. Now then consider, good people, if any author there be of such things concurrent of man's labour and endeavour, were it meet to ascribe them to any other than to God? as the Paynims, philosophers and poets, did err, which took Fortune, and made her a goddefs, to be honoured for fuch things. God forbid, good Christian people, that this imaginaimagination should earnestly be received of us that be worshippers of the true God, whose works and proceedings be expressed manifestly in his Word. These be the opinions and fayings of Infidels, not of true Christians. For they indeed (as Job maketh mention) believe and fay, that God bath his residence and resting-place in the Job xxii. clouds, and considereth nothing of our matters. Epicures they be that imagine that he walketh about the coasts of the heavens, and hath no respect of these inferior things, but that all these things should proceed either by chance or at adventure, or elfe by disposition of fortune, and God to have no stroke in them. What other thing is this to fay, than as the fool supposeth in his heart, there is no Pfal. xiv. God? Whom we shall none otherwise reprove, than with God's own words by the mouth of David: Hear, my peo-Pfal. 1. ple, faith he, for I am thy God, thy very God. All the beasts of the awood are mine; sheep and oxen that awander in the mountains. I have the knowledge of all the fowls of the air; the beauty of the field is my bandy-work; mine is the whole circuit of the world, and all the plenty that is in it. And again the Prophet Jeremiah, Thinkest thou that I am Jer. xxiii. a God of the place nigh me, faith the Lord, and not a God far off? Can a man bide bimself in so secret a corner, that I shall not see bim? Do not I fulfil and replenish both beaven and earth? faith the Lord. Which of these two should be most believed? Fortune, whom they paint to be blind of both eyes, ever unstable and unconstant in her wheel, in whose hands they say these things be? or God, in whose hand and power these things be indeed, who for his truth and constancy was yet never reproved? For his fight looketh through heaven and earth, and feeth all things prefently with his eyes. Nothing is too dark or hidden from his knowledge, not the privy thoughts of men's minds. Truth it is, that God is all riches, all power, all authority, all health, wealth, and prosperity; of the which we should have no part without his liberal distribution, and except it came from him above. David first testifieth of riches and possessions: If thou givest good luck, they Pfal, civ. Shall guther; and if thou openest thy hund, they shall be full of goodness: but if thou turnest thy face, they shall be troubled. And Solomon faith, It is the bleffing of the Lord that mak- Prov. x. eth rich men. To this agreeth the holy woman Ann, where she faith in her fong, It is the Lord that maketh 1 Sam. ii. the poor, and maketh the rich; it is he that promoteth and pulleth down; be can raise a needy man from his misery, and from the dungbill; he can lift up a poor personage to sit with D d 4 princes, and have the feat of glory; for all the coasts of the carth be bis. Now if any man will ask, what shall it avail us to know that every good gift, as of nature and fortune, (so called) and every perfect gift, as of grace, concerning the foul, to be of God, and that it is his gift only? Forfooth for many causes it is convenient for us to know it: for fo shall we know, if we confess the truth, who ought justly to be thanked for them. Our pride shall be thereby abated, perceiving nought to come of ourselves but sin and vice: if any goodness be in us, to refer all laud and praise for the same to Almighty God. It shall make us not advance ourselves before our neighbour, not despise him for that he hath fewer gifts, feeing God giveth his gifts where he will. It shall make us, by the consideration of our gifts, not to extol ourfelves before our neighbours. It shall make the wife man not to glory of his wifdom, nor the strong man in his strength, nor the rich to glory in his riches, but in the living God, which is the author of all these; lest if we should do so, we might be rebuked with the words of St. Paul, What hast thou, that thou hast not received? And if thou hast received it, why gloriest thou in thyself, as though thou hadst not received it? To confess that all good things come from Almighty God, is a great point of wisdom, my friends: for so confessing, we know whither to refort for to have them, if we want; as St. James biddeth us, faying, If any man wanteth the gift of wisdom, let him ask it of God, that gives it; and it shall be given him. As the Wife Man, in the want of fuch a like gift, made his recourse to God for it, as he testifieth in his book: After I knew, faith he, that otherwise I could not be chafte, except God granted it, (and this was, as he there writeth, high wisdom, to know whose gift it was) I made haste to the Lord, and earnestly befought him, even from the roots of my heart, to have it. I would to God, my friends, that in our wants and necessities we would go to God, as St. James biddeth, and as the Wife Man teacheth us that he did. I would we believed fleadfafily that God only gives them: if we did, we should not feek our want and necessity of the Devil and his minifters to oft as we do, as daily experience declareth it. For if we fland in necessity of corporal health, whither go the common people, but to charms, witchcrafts, and other delusions of the Devil? If we knew that God were the author of this gift, we would only use his means appointed, and bide his leifure, till he thought it good for us to have it given: if the merchant and worldly occu-

pier knew that God is the giver of riches, he would content himself with so much as by just means, approved of God, he could get to his living, and would be no richer than truth would fuffer him; he would never procure his gain, and ask his goods at the Devil's hand. God forbid, ye will fay, that any man should take his riches of the Devil. Verily, fo many as increase themselves by usury, by extortion, by perjury, by ftealth, by deceits and craft, they have their goods of the Devil's gift. And all they that give themselves to such means, and have renounced the true means that God hath appointed, have forfaken him, and are become worshippers of the Devil, to have their lucres and advantages. They be fuch as kneel down to the Devil at his bidding, and worship him: for he promiseth them for so doing, that he will give them the world, and the goods therein. They cannot otherwise better ferve the Devil, than to do his pleasure and commandment: and his motion and will it is, to have us forfake the truth, and betake us to falfehood, to lies, and perjuries. They therefore which believe perfectly in their heart that God is to be honoured, and requested for the gift of all things necessary, would use none other means to relieve their necessities, but truth and verity, and would ferve God to have competency of all things necessary. The man in his need would not relieve his want by flealth. The woman would not relieve her neceffity and poverty by giving her body to other in adultery for gain. If God be the author indeed of life, health, riches, and welfare, let us make our recourse to him, as the Author, and we shall have it, faith St. James. Yea, it is high wisdom, by the Wise Man therefore, to know whose gift it is, for many other skills it is wisdom to know and believe that all goodness and graces be of God, as the Author. Which thing well confidered must needs make us think that we shall make account for that which God giveth us to posses, and therefore shall make us to be more diligent well to fpend them to God's glory, and to the profit of our neighbour, that we may make a good account at the last, and be praised for good flewards, that we may hear these words of our Judge: Well done, good fervant and faithful; thou hast been faith- Matt. xxiv. ful in little, I will make thee ruler over much; go into thy Master's joy. Besides, to believe certainly God to be the Author of all gifts that we have, shall make us to be in filence and patience, when they be taken again from us. For as God of his mercy doth grant us them to use, so prove our patience, to exercise our faith, and by the means of the taking away of a few, to bestow the more warily those that remain, to teach us to use them the more to his glory, after he giveth them to us again. there be that with mouth can fay that they believe that God is the Author of every good gift that they have: but in the time of temptation they go back from this belief. They fay it in word, but deny it in deed. Confider the custom of the world, and see whether it be not true. Behold the rich man, that is endued with substance; if by any advertity his goods be taken from him, how fumeth and fretteth he! how murmureth he and despaireth! He that hath the gift of good reputation, if his name be any thing touched by the detractor, how unquiet is he! how bufy to revenge his despite! If a man hath the gift of wisdom, and fortune to be taken of some evil willer for a fool, and is fo reported, how much doth it grieve him to be so esteemed! Think ye that these believe confrantly that God is the Author of these gifts? If they believe it verily, why should they not patiently suffer God to take away his gifts again, which he gave them freely, and lent for a time? But ye will fay, I could be content to refign to God fuch gifts, if he took them again from me: but now are they taken from me by evil chances and false shrews, by naughty wretches; how should I take this thing patiently? To this may be answered, that Almighty God is of his nature invisible, and cometh to no man visible after the manner of man, to take away his gifts that he lent. But in this point whatfoever God doth, he bringeth it about by his instruments ordained thereto. He hath good angels, he hath evil angels; he hath good men, and he hath evil men; he hath hail and rain, he hath wind and thunder, he hath heat and cold. Innumerable inftruments hath he, and messengers, by whom again he asketh such gifts as he commit-Wifd. xvii. teth to our truft, as the Wife Man confesseth, The creature must needs wait to serve his Maker, to be sierce against unjust men to their punishment. For as the same author faith, He armeth the creature to revenge his enemies, and otherwhiles, to the probation of our faith, stirreth he up fuch florms. And therefore by what mean and instrument soever God takes from us his gifts, we must patiently take God's judgment in worth, and acknowledge him to be the Taker and Giver, as Job faith, The Lord gave, and the Lord took, when yet his enemies drove his cattle

cattle away, and when the Devil flew his children, and afflicted his body with grievous fickness. Such meekness was in that holy King and Prophet David; when he was reviled of Shimei in the prefence of all his hoft, he took it patiently, and reviled not again, but as confessing God to be the Author of his innocency and good name, and offering it to be at his pleafure: Let him alone, (faith he to one of his fervants, that would have revenged fuch despite,) for God hath commanded him to curse David, and 2 Sam. peradventure God intendeth thereby to render me fome xvi. good turn for this curse of him to-day. And though the minister other whiles doth evil in his act, proceeding of malice; yet forasmuch as God turneth his evil act to a proof of our patience, we should rather submit ourselves in patience, than to have indignation at God's rod, which peradventure, when he hath corrected us to our nurture, he will cast it into the fire, as it deserveth. Let us in like manner truly acknowledge all our gifts and prerogatives to be fo God's gifts, that we shall be ready to refign them up at his will and pleafure again. Let us throughout our whole lives confess all good things to come from God, of what name or nature foever they be, not of these corruptible things only, whereof I have now last spoken, but much more of all spiritual graces behoveable for our foul, without whose goodness no man is called to faith, or staid therein, as I shall hereafter in the next part of this Homily declare to you. In the mean feafon, forget not what hath already been spoken to you, forget not to be conformable in your judgments to the truth of his doctrine, and forget not to practife the same in the whole fate of your life, whereby ye shall obtain the blessing promifed by our Saviour Christ: Blessed be they which hear the word of God, and fulfil it in life. Which bleffing he grant to us all, who reigneth over all, one God in Trinity, the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost; to whom be all honour and glory for ever. Amen.

The Third Part of the Homily for Rogation Week.

Promised to you to declare that all spiritual gifts and graces come specially from God. Let us consider the truth of this matter, and hear what is testified first of the gift of faith, the sirst entry into a Christian life, without the which no man can please God. For St. Paul confesses it plainly to be God's gift, saying, Faith is the gift Ephes. ii.

that ye be kept through faith to falvation. It is of the goodness of God that we faulter not in our hope unto him.

I l'et. i.

It is verily God's work in us, the charity wherewith we love our brethren. If after our fall we repent, it is by him that we repent, which reacheth forth his merciful hand to raise us up. If we have any will to rise, it is he that preventeth our will, and difposeth us thereto. after contrition we feel our confciences at peace with God through remission of our fin, and so be reconciled again to his favour, and hope to be his children and inheritors of everlasting life; who worketh these great miracles in us? Our worthiness, our deservings and endeavours, our wits, and virtue? Nay verily, St. Paul will not fuffer flesh and clay to prefinne to fuch arrogancy, and therefore faith, All is of God, which bath reconciled us to himself by Jesus Christ. For God was in Christ when he reconciled the world unto bimfelf. God, the Father of all mercy, wrought this high benefit unto us, not by his own person, but by a mean, by no less a mean than his only beloved Son, whom he spared not from any pain and travail that might do us good. For upon him he put our fins, and upon him he made our ranfom; him he made the mean betwixt us and himself, whose mediation was so acceptable to God the Father, through his absolute and perfect obedience, that he took his act for a full fatisfaction of all our disobedience and rebellion, whose righteousness he took to weigh against our fins, whose redemption he would have stand against our damnation. In this point, what have we to mufe within ourfelves, good friends? I think no lefs than that which St. Paul faid in remembrance of this wonderful goodness of God, Thanks be to Almighty God, through Christ Jesus our Lord: for it is he, for aubose sake we received this high gift of grace. For as Ephef. i. by him (being the everlasting Wisdom) he wrought all the world and that is contained therein; fo by him only and wholly would he have all things reflored again in heaven and earth. By this our heavenly Mediator therefore do we know the favour and mercy of God the Father; by him know we his will and pleasure towards us; for be is the brightness of his Father's glory, and a very clear image and pattern of his substance. It is he, whom the Father in heaven delighteth to have for his well-beloved Son, whom he authorized to be our Teacher, whom he charged us to hear, faving, Hear bim. It is he, by whom the Father of heaven doth blefs us with all spiritual and heavenly venly gifts; for whose fake and favour (writeth St. John) John i. we have received grace and favour. To this our Saviour and Mediator hath God the Father given the power of heaven and earth, and the whole jurifdiction and authority, to distribute his goods and gifts committed to him: for fo writeth the Apostle, To every one of us is grace given, Ephes. iv. according to the measure of Christ's giving. And thereupon to execute his authority committed, after that he had brought Sin and the Devil to captivity, to be no more hurtful to his members, he ascended up to his Father again, and from thence fent liberal gifts to his well-beloved fervants, and hath still the power to the world's end to distribute his Father's gifts continually in his church, to the establishment and comfort thereof. And by him hath Almighty God decreed to dissolve the world, to call all before him, to judge both the quick and the dead, and finally by him shall he condemn the wicked to eternal fire in hell, and give the good eternal life, and fet them affuredly in presence with him in heaven for evermore. Thus ye fee how all is of God, by his Son Christ, our Lord and Saviour. Remember, I fay once again, your duty of thanks, let them be never to want, still enjoin yourfelf to continue in thankfgiving; ye can offer to God no better facrifice: for he faith himself, It is the facrifice Psal. 1. of praise and thanks that shall bonour me. Which thing was well perceived of that holy Prophet David, when he to earnestly spake to himself thus: O my foul, bless thou the Pfal. ciii, Lord; and all that is within me, blefs his boly name. I fay once again, O my foul, bless thou the Lord, and never forget bis manifold rewards. God give us grace, good people, to know these things, and to feel them in our hearts. This knowledge and feeling is not in ourfelves; by ourfelves it is not possible to come by it; a great pity it were that we should lose so profitable knowledge. Let us therefore meekly call upon that bountiful Spirit, the Holy Ghoft, which proceedeth from our Father of mercy, and from our Mediator Christ, that he would assist us, and inspire us with his prefence, that in him we may be able to hear the goodness of God declared unto us to our falvation. For without his lively and fecret inspiration can we not once fo much as speak the name of our Mediator, as St. Paul plainly testifieth: No man can once name our I Cor. xii. Lord Jesus Christ, but in the Holy Ghost. Much less should we be able to believe and know thefe great mysteries that be opened to us by Christ. St. Paul faith, that no man i Cor. ii. can know what is of God, but the Spirit of God. As for us, faith he, we have received not the spirit of the world, but the Spirit which is of God; for this purpose; that in that holy Spirit we might know the things that be given us by Christ. The Wife Man faith, that in the power and virtue of the Holy Ghoft refleth all wisdom and all ability to know God, and to please him. For he writeth thus; We know Wifd, ix. that it is not in man's power to guide his goings. No man can know thy pleasure, except thou givest wisdom, and sendest thy boly Spirit from above. Send him down therefore, prayeth he to God, from the holy beavens, and from the throne of thy Majesty, that he may be with me, and labour with me, that jo I may know what is acceptable before thee. Let us with fo good heart pray, as he did, and we shall not fail but to have his affiltance. For he is foon feen of them that love him, he will be found of them that feek him: for very liberal and gentle is the Spirit of wisdom. In his power shall we have sufficient ability to know our duty to God, in him shall we be comforted and encouraged to walk in our duty, in him shall we be meet vessels to receive the grace of Almighty God: for it is he that purgeth and purifieth the mind by his fecret working. And he only is prefent every where by his invisible power, and containeth all things in his dominion. He lighteneth the heart to conceive worthy thoughts to Almighty God, he fitteth in the tongue of man to stir him to speak his honour; no language is hid from him, for he hath the knowledge of all speech, he only ministereth spiritual strength to the powers of our foul and body. To hold the way which God had prepared for us to walk rightly in our journey, we must acknowledge that it is in the power of his Spirit, which helpeth our infirmity. That we may boldly come in prayer, and call upon Almighty God as our Father, it is by this holy Spirit, which maketh intercession for us with continual fighs. If any gift we have, wherewith we may work to the glory of God, and Rom. viii. profit of our neighbour, all is wrought by his own and felf-same Spirit, which maketh his distributions peculiarly to every man as he will. If any wifdom we have, it is not of ourselves, we cannot glory therein, as begun of ourselves; but we ought to glory in God, from whom it came to us, as the Prophet Jeremiah writeth, Let him that rejoiceth, rejoice in this, that he understandeth and knoweth me; for I am the Lord, which shew mercy, judgment, and righteousness in the earth; for in these things I delight, saith the Lord. This wisdom cannot be attained, but by the direction of the Spirit of God, and therefore it is called spiritual wisdom. And no where can we more certainly fearch for the knowledge of this will of God, (by the which we must direct all our works and deeds) but in the holy Scriptures, for they be they that testify of him, faith our John v. Saviour Christ. It may be called knowledge and learning, that is other where gotten without the Word: but the Wife Man plainly testifieth, that they all be but vain, which Wifd. xiii. have not in them the wisdom of God. We see to what vanity the old philosophers came, who were destitute of this fcience, gotten and fearched for in his Word. We fee what vanity the school-doctrine is mixed with, for that in this Word they fought not the will of God, but rather the will of reason, the trade of custom, the path of the fathers, the practice of the church: let us therefore read and revolve the holy Scripture both day and night, for bleffed is be that hath his whole meditation therein. It is Pfalm i. that which giveth light to our feet to walk by. It is that which giveth wisdom to the simple and ignorant. In it may we find eternal life.

In the holy Scriptures find we Christ, in Christ find we God: for he it is that is the express image of the Father. He that feeth Christ, feeth the Father. Psalm xix. And contrariwife, as St. Jerome faith, the ignorance John v. of the Scripture, is the ignorance of Christ. Not to know Christ, is to be in darkness, in the midst of our worldly and carnal light of reason and philosophy. To be without Christ, is to be in foolishness: for he is the only wisdom of the Father, in whom it pleased him that Heb.i. all fulness and perfection should dwell. With whom John xiv. whofoever is endued in heart by faith, and rooted fast Coloss ii. in charity, hath laid a fure foundation to build on, whereby he may be able to comprehend with all faints what is the breadth, length, and depth, and to know the love of Christ. This universal and absolute knowledge is that wisdom which St. Paul wisheth these Ephesians to have, Ephes. iii. as under heaven the greatest treasure that can be obtained. For of this wifdom the Wife Man writeth thus of his experience: All good things came to me together with ber, and innumerable riches through her hands. And addeth moreover in that same place, She is the mother of all these Wisd. vii. things: for she is an infinite treasure unto men, which whose use, become partakers of the love of God. I might with many words move fome of this audience to fearch for this wisdom, to sequester their reason, to follow God's commandment, to cast from them the wits of their

and policy of this fond world, to taste and sayour of that whereunto the favour and will of God hath called them, and willeth us finally to enjoy by his favour, if we would give ear. But I will haste to the third part of my text, wherein is expressed further in sapience, how God giveth his elect understanding of the motions of the heavens, of the alterations and circumstances of time. Which as it followeth in words more plentiful in the text which I have last cited unto you, so it must needs follow in them that be endued with this spiritual wisdom. For as they can fearch where to find this wildom, and know of whom to ask it; so know they again that in time it is found, and can therefore attemper themselves to the occasion of the time, to fuffer no time to pass away, wherein they may labour for this wisdom. And to increase therein, they know how God of his infinite mercy and lenity giveth all men here time and place of repentance. And they fee how the wicked, as Job writeth, abuse the same to their pride, and therefore do the godly take the better hold of the time, to redeem it out of such use as it is spoiled in by the wicked. They which have this wisdom of God can gather by the diligent and earnest study of the worldlings of this prefent life, how they wait their times, and apply themselves to every occasion of time to get riches, and to increase their lands and patrimony. They see the time pals away, and therefore take hold on it, in fuch wife, that otherwhiles they will with loss of their fleep and ease, with suffering many pains, catch the offer of their time, knowing that that which is past cannot be returned again; repentance may follow, but remedy is none. Why should not they then, that be spiritually wise in their generation, wait their time, to increase as fast in their state, to win and gain everlastingly? They reason what a brute forgetfulness it were in man, endued with reason, to be ignorant of their times and tides, when they fee the turtle-dove, the flork, and the fwallow to wait their times; as Jeremy faith: The flork in the air knoweth ber appointed times; the turtle, the crane, and the favallow obferve the time of their coming: but my people knoweth not the judgment of the Lord. St. Paul willeth us to redeem the time, because the days are evil. It is not the counsel of St. Paul only, but of all other that ever gave precepts of wif-

There is no precept more feriously given and commanded, than to know the time. Yea, Christian men, for that they hear how grievously God complaineth, and threateneth in the Scriptures them which will not know the time of his visitations, are learned thereby the rather earnestly to apply themselves thereunto. After our Saviour Christ had prophesied with weeping tears of the destruction of Jerusalem, at the last he putteth the cause: For that thou hast Luke xix, not known the time of thy visitation. O England, ponder the time of God'smerciful visitation, which is shewed thee from day to day, and yet wilt not regard it, neither wilt thou with his punishment be driven to thy duty, nor with his benefits be provoked to thanks! If thou knewest what may fall upon thee for thy unthankfulness, thou wouldest provide for thy peace. Brethren, howfoever the world in generality is forgetful of God, let us particularly attend to our time, and win the time with diligence, and apply ourselves to that light and grace that is offered us; let us, if God's favour and judgments, which he worketh in our time, cannot flir us to call home to ourfelves to do that belonging to our falvation, at the least way, let the malice of the Devil, the naughtiness of the world, which we see exercifed in these perilous and last times, wherein we see our days fo dangerously fet, provoke us to watch diligently to our vocation, to walk and go forward therein.

Let the mifery and fhort transitory joys spied in the cafualty of our days move us while we have them in our hands, and feriously stir us to be wife, and to expend the gracious good will of God to us ward, which all the day long stretcheth out his hands, as the Prophet faith, unto Ifa, lxy, us, for the most part his merciful hands, sometime his heavy hands, that we being learned thereby, may escape the danger that must needs fall on the unjust, who lead their days in felicity and pleasure, without the knowing of God's will toward them, but fuddenly they go down into hell. Let us be found watchers, found in the peace of the Lord, that at the last day we may be found without fpot, and blameless: yea, let us endeavour ourselves, good Job ii. Christian people, diligently to keep the presence of his holy Spirit. Let us renounce all uncleanness, for he is the Spirit of purity. Let us avoid all hypocrify, for this holy Wifd. i. Spirit will flee from that which is feigned. Cast we off all malice and all evil will, for this Spirit will never enter into an evil-willing foul. Let us cast away all the whole lump Heb. xi, of fin that flandeth about us, for he will never dwell in that body that is fubdued to fin. We cannot be feen thankful to Almighty God, and work fuch despite to the Spirit of grace, by whom we be fanctified. If we do Heb. x. our endeavour, we shall not need to fear. We shall be able to overcome all our enemies that fight against us. Only let us apply ourselves to accept that grace that is offered us. Of Almighty God we have comfort by his goodness, of our Saviour Christ's mediation we may be sure. And this holy Spirit will suggest unto us that shall be wholesome, and confirm us in all things. Therefore it cannot be but true that St. Paul affirmeth: of him, by him, and in him be all things; and in him (after this transitory life well passed) shall we have all things. For St. Paul saith, When the Son of God shall subdue all things unto him, then shall God be all in all. If ye will know

I Cor. xv. St. Paul faith, When the Son of God shall subdue all things unto him, then shall God be all in all. If ye will know how God shall be all in all, verily after this fense may ye understand it: in this world ye fee that we be fain to borrow many things to our necessity, of many creatures: there is no one thing that fufficeth all our necessities. If we be an hungered, we lust for bread. If we be athirst, we feek to be refreshed with ale or wine. If we be cold, we feek for cloth. If we be fick, we feek to the physician. If we be in heaviness, we seek for comfort of our friends, or of company: fo that there is no one creature by itself that can content all our wants and defires. But in the world to come, in that everlasting felicity, we shall no more beg and feek our particular comforts and commodities of divers creatures; but we shall possess all that we can ask and defire, in God, and God shall be to us all things. He shall be to us both father and mother; he shall be bread and drink, cloth, physician, comfort; he shall be all things to us, and that of much more bleffed fashion, and more fufficient contentation, than ever these creatures were unto us, with much more delectation than ever man's reason is able to conceive. The eye of man is not able to reason is able to conceive. The eye of man is not able to behold, nor his ear can hear, nor it can be compassed in the heart of man, what joy it is that God hath prepared for them that love him.

Let us all conclude then with one voice with the words
iii. of St. Paul: To him which is able to do abundantly beyond our defires and thoughts, according to the power working in us, be glory and praise in his church, by Christ Jesus for ever, world without end. Amen.

AN

EXHORTATION,

To be spoken to such Parishes where they use their Perambulation in Rogation Week, for the Oversight of the Bounds and Limits of their Town.

LTHOUGH we be now affembled together, good Christian people, most principally to laud and thank Almighty God for his great benefits, by beholding the fields replenished with all manner of fruit, to the maintenance of our corporal necessities, for our food and sustenance; and partly also to make our humble fuits in prayers to his fatherly Providence, to conferve the fame fruits in fending us feafonable weather, whereby we may gather in the faid fruits, to that end for which his fatherly goodness hath provided them: yet have we occasion secondarily given us in our walks on those days, to consider the old ancient bounds and limits belonging to our own township, and to other our neighbours bordering about us, to the intent that we should be content with our own, and not contentiously strive for others, to the breach of charity, by any incroaching one upon another, for claiming one of the other, further than that in ancient right and custom our forefathers have peaceably laid out unto us for our commodity and comfort. Surely a great overfight it were in us, which be Christian men in one profession of faith, daily looking for that heavenly inheritance which is bought for every one of us by the blood-shedding of our Saviour Jesus Christ, to strive and fall to variance for the earthly bounds of our towns, to the difquiet of our life betwixt ourselves, to the wasting of our goods by vain expences and costs in the law. We ought to remember that our habitation is but transitory and fhort in this mortal life. The more shame it were to fall out into immortal hatred among ourselves, for so brittle Ee 2 possessions,

ven. It may fland well with charity for a Christian man quietly to maintain his right and just title. And it is the part of every good townsman, to preserve as much as lieth in him the liberties, franchifes, bounds, and limits of his town and country: but yet to strive for our very rights and duties with the breach of love and charity, which is the only livery of a Christian man, or with the hurt of godly peace and quiet, by the which we be knit together in one general fellowship of Christ's family, in one common household of God, that is utterly forbidden. That doth God abhor and detest, which provoketh Almighty God's wrath otherwhile to deprive us quite of our commodities and liberties, because we do so abuse them, for matters of strife, discord, and dissension. St. Paul blamed the Corinthians for fuch contentious fuing among themselves, to the slander of their profession before the enemies of Christ's religion, saying thus unto them: Now there is utterly a fault among you, because ye go to law one with another. Why rather fuffer ye not wrong? Why rather fuffer ye not harm? If St. Paul blameth the Christian men, whereof some of them for their own right went contentiously so to law, commending thereby the profession of patience in a Christian man: if Christ our Saviour would have us rather to suffer wrong, and to turn our left cheek to him which hath fmitten the right, to fuffer one wrong after another, rather than by breach of charity to defend our own: in what state be they before God, who do the wrong! What curfes do they fall into, who by falle witness right and just possession; which will not let to take an oath by the holy name of God, the author of all truth, to set out falsehood and a wrong! Know ye not, saith St. Paul, that the unrighteous shall not inherit the kingdom of God? What shall we then win to increase a little the bounds and possessions of the earth, and lose the possessions of the inheritance everlasting? Let us therefore take such heed in maintaining of our bounds and possessions, that we commit not wrong by encroaching upon other. Let us beware of sudden verdict in things of doubt. Let us well advise ourselves to avouch that certainly, whereof either we have no good knowledge or remembrance, or to claim that we have no just title to. Thou shalt not (commandeth Almighty God in his Law) remove thy neighbour's

Thou shalt not, faith Solomon, remove the ancient bounds Prov. xxii. which thy fathers have laid. And, left we should esteem it to be but a light offence fo to do, we shall understand, that it is reckoned among the curfes of God pronounced Deut.xxvii. upon finners. Accurfed be he, faith Almighty God by Moses, who removeth his neighbour's doles and marks, and all the people shall say, answering Amen thereto, as ratifying that curse upon whom it doth light. They do much provoke the wrath of God upon themselves, which use to grind up the doles and marks, which of ancient time were laid for the division of meers and balks in the fields, to bring the owners to their right. They do wickedly, which do turn up the ancient terries of the fields, that old men beforetime with great pains did tread out, whereby the Lord's records (which be the tenants' evidences) be perverted and translated fometimes to the disheriting of the right owner, to the oppression of the poor fatherless, or the poor widow. These covetous men know not what inconveniences they be the authors of. Sometime by fuch craft and deceit be committed great disorders and riots in the challenge of their lands, yea, fometimes murders and bloodshed, whereof thou art guilty, whosoever thou be that givest the occasion thereof. This covetous practifing therefore with thy neighbour's lands and goods is hateful to Almighty God. Let no man subtilly compass or defraud his neighbour, bid- 1 Thess. iv. deth St. Paul, in any manner of cause. For God, saith he, is a revenger of all fuch. God is the God of all equity and righteouineis, and therefore forbiddeth all fuch deceits and fubtilty in his law, by these words: Ye shall Deut.ix. not deal unjustly in judgment, in line, in weight, or measure. Ye shall have just balances, true weights, and true meafures. False balances, faith Solomon, are an abomination Prov. xx. unto the Lord. Remember what St. Paul faith, God is the revenger of all avrong and injustice, as we see by daily experience, however it thriveth ungraciously which is gotten by falfehood and craft. We be taught by experience, how Almighty God never suffereth the third heir to enjoy his father's wrong possessions, yea, many a time they are taken from himself in his own life-time. God is not bound to defend fuch possessions as are gotten by the Devil and his counfel. God will defend all fuch men's goods and possessions, which by him are obtained and possessed, and will defend them against the violent oppressor. So witnesseth Solomon, The Lord will destroy the house of the Prov. xxv. proud man: but he will stablish the borders of the widow. Ee 3

No doubt of it, faith David, better is a little truly gotten to Pf. xxxvi. the righteous man, than the innumerable riches of the wrongful man. Let us flee therefore, good people, all wrong practices in getting, maintaining, and defending our possessions, lands, and livelihoods, our bounds and liberties, remembering that fuch possessions be all under God's revengeance. But what do we speak of house and land? Nay, it is faid in the Scripture, that God in his ire doth root up whole kingdoms for wrongs and oppressions, and doth translate kingdoms from one nation to another, for unrightcous dealing, for wrongs and riches gotten by deceit. This is the practice of the holy One, faith Daniel, Daniel iv. to the intent that living men may know, that the Most High hath power over the kingdoms of men, and giveth them to whomfoever he will. Furthermore, what is the cause of penury and scarceness, of dearth and famine? Is it any other thing but a token of God's ire, revenging our wrongs and injuries done one to another? Ye have fown much, (upbraideth God by his Prophet Haggai) and yet bring in little; ye eat, but ye be not fatisfied; ye drink, but ye be not filled; ye clothe yourselves, but ye be not warm; and he that earneth his wages, putteth it into a bottomles purse: ye looked for much increase, but lo, it came to little; and when ye brought it bome, (into your barns) I did blow it away, faith the Lord. O confider therefore the ire of God against gleaners, gatherers, and incroachers upon other men's lands and possessions! It is lamentable to fee in fome places, how greedy men use to plough and grate upon their neighbour's land that lieth next them: how covetous men now-a-days plough up fo nigh the common balks and walks, which good men beforetime made the greater and broader, partly for the commodious walk of his neighbour, partly for the better shack in harvest-time, to the more comfort of his poor neighbour's cattle. It is a shame to behold the infatiableness of some covetous perfons in their doings: that where their ancestors left of their land a broad and sufficient bier-balk, to carry the corpfe to the Christian fepulture, how men pinch at fuch bier-balks, which by long ufe and custom ought to be inviolably kept for that purpofe: and now they either quite ear them up, and turn the dead body to be borne farther about in the high-streets; or elfe, if they leave any fuch meer, it is too strait for two to walk on.

These strange encroachments, good neighbours, should be looked upon. These should be considered in these days of our perambulations; and afterward the parties

admonished, and charitably reformed, who be the doers of fuch private gaining, to the flander of the township, and the hindrance of the poor. Your highways should be confidered in your walks, to understand where to beflow your days works, according to the good statutes proyided for the same. It is a good deed of mercy, to amend the dangerous and noisome ways, whereby thy poor neighbour, fitting on his filly weak beaft, founder not in the deep thereof, and fo the market the worse served, for discouraging of the poor victuallers to resort thither for the same cause. If now therefore ye will have your prayers heard before Almighty God, for the increase of your corn and cattle, and for the defence thereof from unfeafonable mists and blasts, from hail and other such tempests, love equity and righteousness, ensue mercy Levit. xxiv. and charity, which God most requireth at our hands, Deut, xxix. Which Almighty God respecteth chiefly in making his civil laws for his people the Ifraelites, in charging the owners not to gather up their corn too nigh at harvest feason, nor the grapes and olives in gathering time, but to leave behind fome ears of corn for the poor gleaners. By this he meant to induce them to pity the poor, to re-1 Cor.ix.10. lieve the needy, to shew mercy and kindness. It cannot be loft, which for his fake is distributed to the poor. For he which ministereth feed to the fower, and bread to the hungry, which fendeth down the early and the latter rain upon your fields, fo to fill up the barns with corn, and the Joel viii. wine-presses with wine and oil; he, I say, who recompenseth all kind of benefits in the resurrection of the just, he will affuredly recompense all merciful deeds shewed to the needy, howfoever unable the poor is upon whom it is bestowed. O, saith Solomon, let not mercy and truth for-Prov. iii. sake thee. Bind them about thy neck, saith he, and write them on the table of thy heart; so shalt thou find favour at God's band.

Thus honour thou the Lord with thy riches, and with the first-fruits of thine increase; so shall thy barns be filled with abundance, and thy presses shall burst with new wine: nay, God hath promised to open the windows of heaven upon the liberal righteous man, that he shall want nothing. He will repress the devouring caterpillar, which would devour your fruits. He will give you peace and quiet to gather in your provision, that ye may sit every man under his own vine quietly, without fear of the foreign enemies to invade you. He will give you not only food to feed on, but stomachs and good appetites to take comfort of your fruits, whereby in all things ye may have sufficiency. Finally, he will bless you with all manner of abundance in this transitory life, and endue you with all manner of benediction in the next world, in the kingdom of heaven, through the merits of our Lord and Saviour: to whom with the Father and the Holy Ghost be all honour everlasting. Amen.

The State of Matrimony.

THE word of Almighty God doth testify and declare whence the original beginning of matrimony cometh, and why it is ordained. It is instituted of God. to the intent that man and woman should live lawfully in a perpetual friendship, to bring forth fruit, and to avoid fornication. By which mean a good confcience might be preserved on both parties, in bridling the corrupt inclinations of the flesh within the limits of honesty; for God hath straitly forbidden all whoredom and uncleanness, and bath from time to time taken grievous punishment of this inordinate luft, as all stories and ages have declared. Furthermore, it is also ordained, that the church of God and his kingdom might by this kind of life be conferred and enlarged, not only in that God giveth children by his bleffing, but also in that they be brought up by the parents godly, in the knowledge of God's word, that thus the knowledge of God and true religion might be delivered by fuccession from one to another, that finally many might enjoy that everlasting immortality. Wherefore, forafmuch as matrimony ferveth us as well to avoid fin and offence, as to increase the kingdom of God; you, as all other which enter the state, must acknowledge this benefit of God, with pure and thankful minds, for that he hath fo ruled your hearts, that ye follow not the example of the wicked world, who fet their delight in filthiness of sin, but both of you stand in the fear of God, and abhor all filthiness. For that is furely the fingular gift of God, where the common example of the world declareth how the Devil hath their hearts bound and entangled in divers fnares, fo that they in their wifeless state run into open abominations, without any grudge of their conscience. Which fort of men that live so desperately r Con. vi.

rately and filthy, what damnation tarrieth for them! St. Paul describeth it to them, saying, Neither suboremongers, neither adulterers, shall inherit the kingdom of God. This horrible judgment of God ye be escaped through his mercy, if so be that ye live inseparately, according to God's ordinance. But yet I would not have you careless without watching. For the Devil will assay to attempt all things to interrupt and hinder your hearts and godly purpose, if ye will give him any entry. For he will either labour to break this godly knot once begun betwixt you, or else at the least he will labour to incumber it with divers griefs and displeasures.

And this is the principal craft, to work diffension of hearts of the one from the other; that whereas now there is pleafant and fweet love betwixt you, he will in the stead thereof bring in most bitter and unpleasant difcord. And furely that fame adverfary of ours doth, as it were from above, affault man's nature and condition. For this folly is ever from our tender age grown up with us, to have a defire to rule, to think highly of ourselves, fo that none thinketh it meet to give place to another. That wicked voice of stubborn will and felf-love is more meet to break and to diffever the love of heart, than to preferve concord. Wherefore married perfons must apply their minds in most earnest wise to concord, and must crave continually of God the help of his holy Spirit, fo to rule their hearts and to knit their minds together, that they be not differed by any division or discord. This necessity of prayer must be oft in the practice and using of married persons, that ofttimes the one should pray for the other, lest hate and debate do arise betwixt them. And because few do confider this thing, but more few do perform it, (I fay, to pray diligently,) we fee how wonderfully the Devil deludeth and scorneth this state, how few matrimonies there be without chidings, brawlings, tauntings, repentings, bitter curfings, and fightings. Which things whosoever doth commit, they do not consider that it is the infligation of the ghoftly enemy, who taketh great delight therein; for else they would with all earnest endeavour strive against these mischiefs, not only with prayer, but also with all possible diligence. Yea, they would not give place to the provocation of wrath, which ftirreth them either to fuch rough and sharp words of ftripes, which is furely compassed by the Devil, whose temptation, if it be followed, must needs begin and weave the web of all miseries and forrows. For this is most certainly certainly true, that of fuch beginnings must needs ensue the breach of true concord in heart, whereby all love must needs shortly be banished. Then can it not be but a miserable thing to behold, that yet they are of necessity compelled to live together, which yet cannot be in quiet together. And this is most customably every where to be feen. But what is the cause thereof? Forsooth, because they will not consider the crafty trains of the Devil, and therefore give not themselves to pray to God, that he would vouchfafe to reprefs his power. Moreover, they do not confider how they promote the purpose of the Devil, in that they follow the wrath of their hearts, while they threat one another, while they in their folly turn all upfide down, while they will never give over their right, as they esteem it; yea, while many times they will not give over the wrong part indeed. Learn thou therefore, if thou defirest to be void of all these miseries, if thou defirest to live peaceably and comfortably in wedlock, how to make thy earnest prayer to God, that he would govern both your hearts by the holy Spirit, to refirain the Devil's power, whereby your concord may remain perpetually. But to this prayer must be joined a fingular diligence, whereof St. Peter giveth this precept, faying, You bufbands, deal with your wives according to knowledge, giving honour to the wife, as unto the weaker veffel, and as unto them that are beirs also of the grace of life, that your prayers be not hindered. This precept doth particularly pertain to the hufband: for he ought to be the leader and author of love, in cherishing and increasing concord; which then shall take place, if he will use moderation, and not tyranny, and if he yield fomething to the woman. For the woman is a weak creature, not endued with like strength and constancy of mind; therefore they be the fooner disquieted, and they be the more prone to all weak affections and dispositions of mind, more than men be; and lighter they be, and more vain in their fantafies and opinions. These things must be considered of the man, that he be not too stiff, so that he ought to wink at fome things, and must gently expound all things, and to forbear. Howbeit, the common fort of men do judge that fuch moderation should not become a man; for they fay, that it is a token of womanish cowardness, and therefore they think that it is a man's part to fume in anger, to fight with fift and staff. Howbeit, howfoever they imagine, undoubtedly St. Peter doth better judge what should be feeming to a man, and what he should most reasonably perform. For he saith, Reasoning should be used, and not fighting. Yea, he faith more, that the woman ought to have a certain bonour attributed to ber; that is to fay, the must be spared and borne with, the rather for that the is the weaker vessel, of a frail heart, inconstant, and with a word foon stirred to wrath. And therefore, confidering these her frailties, she is to be the rather fpared. By this means thou shalt not only nourish concord, but shalt have her heart in thy power and will. For honest natures will sooner be retained to do their duties, rather by gentle words than by stripes. But he which will do all things with extremity and feverity, and doth use always rigour in words and stripes, what will that avail in the conclusion? Verily nothing, but that he thereby fetteth forward the Devil's work, he banisheth away concord, charity, and fweet amity, and bringeth in diffension, hatred, and irksomeness, the greatest griefs that can be in the mutual love and fellowship of man's life. Beyond all this, it bringeth another evil therewith, for it is the destruction and interruption of prayer: for in the time that the mind is occupied with diffension and difcord, there can be no true prayer used. For the Lord's Prayer hath not only a respect to particular persons, but to the whole universal; in the which we openly pronounce, that we will forgive them which have offended against us, even as we ask forgiveness of our sins of God. Which thing how can it be done rightly, when their hearts be at diffension? How can they pray each for other, when they be at hate betwixt themselves? Now, if the aid of prayer be taken away, by what means can they fustain themselves in any comfort? For they cannot otherwise either resist the Devil, or yet have their hearts flaid in stable comfort in all perils and necessities, but by prayer. Thus all discommodities, as well worldly as ghoftly, follow this froward teftiness, and cumbrous fierceness in manners, which be more meet for brute beasts than for reasonable creatures. St. Peter doth not allow these things; but the Devil desireth them gladly. Wherefore take the more heed. And yet a man may be a man, although he doth not use such extremity, yea, although he should dissemble some things in his wife's manners. And this is the part of a Christian man, which both pleafeth Ged, and ferveth also in good use to the comfort of their marriage state. Now as concerning the Wife's duty. What shall become her? shall she abuse the gentleness and humanity of her husband, and, at her pleafure, turn all things upfide down? No, furely; for that is far repugnant against God's commandment; for thus doth St. Peter preach to them, Ye wives, be ye in fubjection to I Pet. it. obey your own busbands. To obey is another thing than to control or command, which yet they may do to their children, and to their family: but as for their hufbands, them must they obey, and cease from commanding, and perform fubjection. For this furely doth nourish concord very much, when the wife is ready at hand at her hufband's commandment, when the will apply herfelf to his will, when the endeavoureth herfelf to feek his contentation, and to do him pleafure, when she will eschew all things that might offend him: for thus will most truly be verified the faying of the Poet, A good wife by obeying ber busband shall bear the rule, so that he shall have a delight and a gladness the sooner at all times to return home to her. But, on the contrary part, when the wives be flubborn, froward, and malapert, their bushands are compelled thereby to abbor and flee from their own bouses, even as they should bave battle with their enemies. Howbeit, it can feantly be, but that fome offences fliall fometime chance betwixt them: for no man doth live without fault, specially, for that the woman is the more frail party. Therefore let them beware that they stand not in their faults and wilfulness; but rather let them acknowledge their follies, and fay, My husband, so it is, that by my anger I was compelled to do this or that: forgive it me, and hereafter I will take better heed. Thus ought the woman more readily to do, the more they be ready to offend. And they shall not do this only to avoid strife and debate, but rather in the respect of the commandment of God, as St. Paul expresseth it in this form of words: Let women be Ephes, v. subject to their busbands, as to the Lord: for the busband is the head of the woman, as Christ is the head of the church. Here you understand, that God hath commanded that ye should acknowledge the authority of the husband, and refer to him the honour of obedience. And St. Peter faith in that place before rehearfed, that holy matrons did in former time deck themselves, not with gold and filver, but in putting their whole hope in God, and in obeying their husbands; as Sarah obeyed Abraham, calling him Lord; whose daughters ye be, faith he, if ye follow This fentence is very meet for women to ber example. print in their remembrance. Truth it is, that they must specially feel the grief and pains of their matrimony, in that they relinquish the liberty of their own rule, in the pain of their travelling, in the bringing up of their children. In which offices they be in great perils, and be grieved with great afflictions, which they might be without, if they lived out of matrimony. But St. Peter faith, that this is the chief ornament of holy matrons, in that they fet their hope and trust in God; that is to fay, in that they refused not from marriage for the business thereof, for the gifts and perils thereof; but committed all fuch adventures to God, in most fure trust of help, after that they have called upon his aid. O woman, do thou the like, and fo shalt thou be most excellently beautified before God and all his angels and faints, and thou needest not to feek further for doing any better works. For, obey thy husband, take regard of his requests, and give heed unto him to perceive what be requireth of thee, and so flialt thou honour God, and live peaceably in thy house. And beyond all this, God shall follow thee with his benediction, that all things shall well prosper, both to thee and to thy husband, as the Pfalm faith, Bleffed is the man which feareth God, and walketh in his ways; thou shalt have the fruit of thine own hands; happy shalt thou be, and well it Shall go with thee. Thy wife shall be as a vine, plentifully spreading about thy bouse. Thy children shall be as the young springs of the olives about thy table. Lo, thus shall that man be bleffed, faith David, that feareth the Lord. This let the wife have ever in mind, the rather admonished thereto by the apparel of her head, whereby is fignified, that she is under covert or obedience of her hufband. And as that apparel is of nature fo appointed, to declare her fubjection; fo biddeth St. Paul, that all other of her raiment should express both shamefacedness and fobriety. For if it be not lawful for the woman to have her head bare, but to bear thereon the fign of her power, wherefoever the goeth; more is it required that the declare the thing that is meant thereby. And therefore those ancient women of the old world called their husbands Lords, and shewed them reverence in obeying them, But peradventure she will fay, that those men loved their wives indeed. I know that well enough, and bear it well in mind. But when I do admonish you of your duties, then call not to confideration what their duties be. For when we ourselves do teach our children to obey us as their parents; or when we reform our fervants, and tell them that they should obey their masters, not only at the eye, but as the Lord; if they should tell us again our duties, we should not think it well done. For when we be

be admonished of our duties and faults, we ought not then to feek what other men's duties be. For though a man had a companion in his fault, yet should he nor thereby be without his fault. But this must be only looked on, by what means thou mayest make thyself without blame. For Adam did lay the blame upon the woman, and she turned it unto the serpent: but yet neither of them was thus excused. And therefore bring not fuch excuses to me at this time, but apply all thy diligence to hear thine obedience to thine husband. For when I take in hand to admonish thy husband to love thee, and to cherish thee; yet will I not cease to set out the law that is appointed for the woman, as well as I would require of the man what is written for his law. Go thou therefore about fuch things as becometh thee only, and shew thyself tractable to thy husband. Or rather, if thou wilt obey thy husband for God's precept, then allege fuch things as be in his duty to do; but perform thou diligently those things which the Law-maker hath charged thee to do: for thus is it most reasonable to obey God, if thou wilt not fuffer thyfelf to transgress his law. He that loveth his friend feemeth to do no great thing: but he that honoureth that is hurtful and hateful to him, this man is worthy most commendation: even fo think you, if thou canst suffer an extreme husband, thou shalt have a great reward therefore: but if thou lovest him only because he is gentle and courteous, what reward will God give thee therefore? Yet I speak not these things, that I would wish the husbands to be sharp towards their wives: but I exhort the women, that they would patiently bear the sharpness of their husbands. For when either parties do their best to perform their duties the one to the other, then followeth thereon great profit to their neighbours for their example's fake. For when the woman is ready to fuffer a sharp husband, and the man will not extremely entreat his stubborn and troublesome wife, then be all things in quiet, as in a most fure haven. Even thus was it done in old time, that every one did their own duty and office, and was not bufy to require the duty of their neighbours. Confider, I pray thee, that Abraham took to him his brother's fon: his wife did not blame him therefore. He commanded him to go with him a long journey: she did not gainsay it, but obeyed his precept.

Again, after all those great miseries, labours, and pains of that journey, when Abraham was made as lord over all, yet did he give place to Lot of his fuperiority: which matter Sarah took fo little to grief, that she never once fuffered her tongue to speak such words as the common manner of women is wont to do in these days, when they fee their husbands in such rooms, to be made underlings, and to be put under their youngers: then they upbraid them with cumbrous talk, and call them fools, dastards, and cowards for to doing. But Sarah was fo far from fpeaking any fuch thing, that it came never into her mind and thought fo to fay, but allowed the wifdom and will of her husband. Yea, besides all this, after the said Lot had thus his will, and left to his uncle the lefs portion of land, he chanced to fall into extreme peril: which chance when it came to the knowledge of this faid Patriarch, he incontinently put all his men in harnefs, and prepared himself with all his family and friends, against the host of the Persians. In which case, Sarah did not counsel him to the contrary, nor did say, as then might have been faid, My husband, whither goest thou so unadvifedly? Why runnest thou thus on head? Why dost thou offer thyfelf to fo great perils, and art thus ready to jeopard thine own life, and to peril the lives of all thine, for fuch a man as hath done thee fuch wrong? At the leaft way, if thou regardest not thyself, yet have compassion on me, which for thy love have forfaken my kindred and my country, and have the want both of my friends and kinffolk, and am thus come into fo far countries with thee; have pity on me, and make me not here a widow, to cast me into fuch cares and troubles. Thus might she have faid: but Sarah neither faid nor thought fuch words, but the kept herfelf in filence in all things. Furthermore, all that time when she was barron, and took no pains as other women did, by bringing forth fruit in his house, what did he? He complained not to his wife, but to Almighty God. And confider how either of them did their duties as became them: for neither did he despise Sarah because she was barren, nor never did cast it in her teeth. Confider again how Abraham expelled the handmaid out of the house, when she required it: so that by this I may truly prove, that the one was pleafed and contented with the other in all things: but yet fet not your eyes only on this matter; but look further what was done before this, that Hagar used her mistress despitefully, and that Abraham himfelf was fomewhat provoked against her; which must needs be an intolerable matter and a painful, to a freehearted woman and a chafte. Let not there-therefore the woman be too bufy to call for the duty of her husband, where she should be ready to perform her own; for that is not worthy any great commendations. And even fo again, let not the man only confider what belongeth to the woman, and to fland too earnestly gazing thereon; for that is not his part or duty. But, as I have faid, let either party be ready and willing to perform that which belongeth especially to themselves. For if we be bound to hold out our left cheek to strangers, which will finite us on the right cheek; how much more ought we to fuffer an extreme and unkind hufband! But yet I mean not that a man should beat his wife; God forbid that; for that is the greatest shame that can be, not so much to her that is beaten, as to him that doth the deed. But if by fuch fortune thou chancest upon such an husband, take it not too heavily; but suppose thou that thereby is laid up no finall reward hereafter, and in this life time no finall commendation to thee, if thou canst be quiet. But yet to you that be men, thus I speak; let there be none fo grievous fault to compel you to beat your wives. But what fay I? your wives! No, it is not to be borne with, that an honest man should lay hands on his maid-servant to beat her. Wherefore, if it be a great fhame for a man to beat his bond-fervant, much more rehuke it is to lay violent hands upon his free-woman. And this thing may be well understood by the laws which the Paynims have made, which do discharge her any longer to dwell with fuch an husband, as unworthy to have any further company with her that doth fmite her. For it is an extreme point, thus fo vilely to entreat her like a flave, that is fellow to thee of thy life, and fo joined unto thee beforetime in the necessary matters of thy living. And therefore a man may well liken such a man (if he may be called a man, rather than a wild beaft) to a killer of his father or his mother. And whereas we be commanded to forfake our father and mother for our wives' fake, and yet thereby do work them none injury, but do fulfil the law of God; how can it not appear then to be a point of extreme madness, to entreat her despitefully, for whose sake God hath commanded thee to leave parents? Yea, who can fuffer fuch despite? Who can worthily express the inconvenience, that is, to see what weepings and wailings be made in the open freets, when neighbours run together to the house of so unruly an husband, as to a Bedlam-man, who goeth about to overturn all that he hath at home? Who would not think r f that. that it were better for fuch a man to wish the ground to open and swallow him in, than once ever after to be seen in the market? But peradventure thou wilt object, that the woman provoketh thee to this point. But consider thou again, that the woman is a frail veffel, and thou art therefore made the ruler and head over her, to bear the weakness of her in this her subjection. And therefore study thou to declare the honest commendation of thine authority; which thou canst no way better do, than to forbear to urge her in her weakness and subjection. For even as the king appeareth fo much the more noble, the more excellent and noble he maketh his officers and lieutenants, whom if he should dishonour, and despise the authority of their dignity, he should deprive himself of a great part of his own honour: even fo, if thou doft despife her that is fet in the next room beside thee, thou dost much derogate and decay the excellency and virtue of thine own authority. Recount all these things in thy mind, and be gentle and quiet. Understand that God hath given thee children with her, and art made a father, and by fuch reason appease thyself. Dost thou not see the husbandmen, what diligence they use to till that ground which once they have taken to farm, though it be never fo full of faults? As for an example, though it be dry, though it bringeth forth weeds, though the foil cannot bear too much wet; yet he tilleth it, and fo winneth fruit thereof: even in like manner, if thou wouldst use like diligence to instruct and order the mind of thy fpouse, if thou wouldst diligently apply thyself to weed out by little and little the noisome weeds of uncomely manners out of her mind, with wholesome precepts, it could not be, but in time thou shouldst feel the pleasant fruit thereof to both your comforts. Therefore that this thing chance not fo, perform this thing that I do here counsel thee: whenfoever any displeasant matter rifeth at home, if thy wife hath done aught amifs, confort her, and increase not the heaviness. For though thou shouldeft be grieved with never so many things, yet shalt thou find nothing more grievous than to want the benevolence of thy wife at home. What offence foever thou canst name, yet shalt thou find none more intolerable than to be at debate with thy wife. And for this caute most of all oughtest thou to have this love in reverence. And if reason moveth thee to bear any burden at any other men's hands, much more at thy wife's. For if she be poor, upbraid her not; if the be fimple, taunt her not, but be the more courteous: for the is thy body, and made one flesh with thee. But thou peradventure wilt fay, that she is a wrathful woman, a drunkard, and beastly, without wit and reason. For this cause bewail her the more. Chafe not in anger, but pray unto Almighty God. Let her be admonished and helped with good counsel, and do thou thy best endeavour, that she may be delivered of all these affections. But if thou shouldest beat her, thou shalt increase her evil affections: for frowardness and sharpness is not amended with frowardness, but with foftness and gentleness. Furthermore, consider what reward thou shalt have at God's hand: for where thou mightest beat her, and yet, for the respect of the fear of God, thou wilt abstain and bear patiently her great offences, the rather in respect of that law, which forbiddeth that a man should cast out his wife, what fault soever she be cumbered with, thou shalt have a very great reward; and before the receipt of that reward, thou shalt feel many commodities. For by this means she shall be made the more obedient, and thou for her fake shalt be made the more meek. It is written in a flory of a certain strange philofopher, which had a curfed wife, a froward, and a drunkard; when he was asked for what consideration he did fo bear her evil manners, he made answer, "By this means," faid he, "I have at home a schoolmaster, and an example how I should behave myself abroad: for I shall," faith he, "be the more quiet with others, being thus daily exercised and taught in the forbearing of her." Surely it is a shame that Paynims should be wifer than we; we, I fay, that be commanded to refemble angels, or rather God himself, through meekness. And for the love of virtue, this faid philosopher Socrates would not expel his wife out of his house. Yea, some say that he did therefore marry his wife, to learn this virtue by that occasion. Wherefore, feeing many men be far behind the wifdom of this man, my counfel is, that first, and before all things, a man do his best endeavour to get him a good wife, endued with all honesty and virtue: but if it so chance that he is deceived, that he hath chosen such a wife as is neither good nor tolerable, then let the husband follow this philosopher, and let him instruct his wife in every condition, and never lay these matters to fight. For the merchantman, except he first be at composition with his factor to use his interfairs quietly, he will neither stir his ship to fail, nor yet will lay hands upon his merchandize: Ff2 even even fo, let us do all things, that we may have the fellowship of our wives, which is the factor of all our doings at home, in great quiet and rest. And by these means all things shall prosper quietly, and so shall we pass through the dangers of the troublous fea of this world. For this state of life will be more honourable and comfortable than our houses, than servants, than money, than lands and possessions, than all things that can be told. As all thefe, with fedition and difcord, can never work us any comfort; fo shall all things turn to our commodity and pleafure, if we draw this yoke in one concord of heart and mind. Whereupon do your best endeavour, that after this fort ye use your matrimony, and fo shall ye be armed on every side. Ye have escaped the fnares of the Devil, and the unlawful lufts of the flesh; ye have the quietness of conscience by this institution of matrimony ordained by God: therefore use oft prayer to him, that he would be prefent by you, that he would continue concord and charity betwixt you. Do the best ye can of your parts, to custom yourselves to foftness and meekness, and bear well in worth such overfights as chance; and thus shall your conversation be most pleasant and comfortable. And although (which can no otherwise be) some adversities shall follow, and otherwhiles now one difcommodity, now another shall appear; yet in this common trouble and adversity, lift up both your hands unto heaven, call upon the help and affistance of God, the Author of your marriage, and furely the promise of relief is at hand. For Christ assirmeth in his Gospel, Where two or three be gathered together in my name, and be agreed, what matter foever they pray for, it shall be granted them of my heavenly Father. Why therefore flouldest thou be afraid of the danger, where thou hast so ready a promise, and so nigh an help? Furthermore, you must understand how necessary it is for Christian folk to bear Christ's cross: for else we shall never feel how comfortable God's help is unto us. Therefore give thanks to God for his great benefit, in that ye have taken upon you this state of wedlock; and pray you instantly, that Almighty God may luckily defend and maintain you therein, that neither ve be overcome with any temptations, nor with any adversity. But, before all things, take good heed that ye give no occasion to the Devil to let and hinder your prayers by discord and diffension: for there is no stronger defence and stay in all our life, than is prayer; in the which we may call for the help of God, and obtain it; whereby we may win his bleffing, his grace, his defence, and protection, fo to continue therein to a better life to come: which grant us, he that died for us all, to whom be all honour and praife for ever and ever. Amen.

AGAINST

ORASMUCH as man, being not born to eafe and rest, but to labour and travail, is by corruption of nature through fin fo far degenerated and grown out of kind, that he taketh idleness to be no evil at all, but rather a commendable thing, feemly for those that be wealthy; and therefore is greedily embraced of most part of men, as agreeable to their fenfual affection, and all labour and travail is diligently avoided, as a thing painfuland repugnant to the pleafure of the flesh; it is necessary to be declared unto you, that by the ordinance of God, which he hath fet in the nature of man, every one ought, in his lawful vocation and calling, to give himself to labour; and that idleness, being repugnant to the same ordinance, is a grievous fin, and also, for the great inconveniences and mischiefs which spring thereof, an intolerable evil: to the intent that, when ye understand the same, ye may diligently flee from it, and on the other part earnestly apply yourselves, every man in his vocation, to honest labour and business, which as it is enjoined unto man by God's appointment, fo it wanteth not his manifold bleffings and fundry benefits.

Almighty God, after that he had created man, put him into Paradife, that he might drefs and keep it: but when he had transgressed God's commandment, eating the fruit of the tree which was forbidden him, Almighty God Genesis iii. forthwith did cast him out of Paradise into this woful vale of mifery, enjoining him to labour the ground that he was taken out of, and to eat his bread in the fweat of his face all the days of his life. It is the appointment and will of God, that every man, during the time of this mortal and transitory life, should give himself to such honest and godly exercise and labour, and every one follow his own butiness, and to walk uprightly in his own calling. Man, faith Job, is born to labour. And we are com- Job v. manded by Jesus Sirach, not to hate painful works, neither Eccles. vii. husbandry, or other such mysteries of travail, which the Highest hath created. The Wise Man also exhorteth us to Prov. v. drink the waters of our own eiftern, and of the rivers that run out of the midit of our own well; meaning thereby that we should live of our own labours, and not devour the labours of other. St. Paul hearing that among the Theffa- 2 Theff. iii. lonians there were certain that lived diffolutely and out of order, that is to fay, which did not work, but were bufybodies; not getting their own living with their own travail, but eating other men's bread of free cost; did command the faid Theffalonians, not only to withdraw themfelves, and abstain from the familiar company of fuch inordinate persons, but also that, if there were any such among them that would not labour, the fame should not eat, nor have any living at other men's hands. Which doctrine of St. Paul, no doubt, is grounded upon the general ordinance of God, which is, that every man should labour; and therefore it is to be obeyed of all men, and no man can justly exempt himself from the same. But when it is faid, all men should labour, it is not so straitly meant, that all men should use handy labour: but as there be divers forts of labours, some of the mind, and some of the body, and fome of both; fo every one (except by reason of age, debility of body, or want of health, he be unapt to labour at all) ought both for the getting of his own living honeftly, and for to profit others, in some kind of labour to exercise himself, according as the vocation, whereunto God hath called him, shall require. So that whofoever doth good to the commonweal and fociety of men with his industry and labour, whether it be by governing the commonweal publicly, or by bearing public office or ministry, or by doing any common necessary affairs of his country, or by giving counsel, or by teaching and instructing others, or by what other means soever he be occupied, so that a profit and benefit redound thereof unto others, the fame person is not to be accounted idle, though he work no bodily labour; nor is to be denied his living, if he attended his vocation, though he work not with his hands.

Bodily labour is not required of them, which by reason of their vocation and office are occupied in the labour of the mind, to the succour and help of others. St. Paul exhorteth F f 4.

Tim. v. Timothy to eschew and refuse idle widows, which go about from house to bonse, because they are not only idle, but prattlers also, and busy-bodies, speaking things which are not comely. The prophet Ezekiel, declaring what the fins of the city of Sodom were rock oneth idleness to be one of the principal.

Sodom were, reckoneth idleness to be one of the principal. The fins, faith he, of Sodom were these; pride, fulness of meat, Ezek. xvi. abundance, and idleness: these things had Sodom and her daughters, meaning the cities subject to her. The horrible and strange kind of destruction of that city, and all the country about the fame, which was fire and brimflone raining from heaven, most manifestly declareth what a grievous fin idleness is, and ought to admonish us to flee from the same, and embrace honest and godly labour. But if we give ourselves to idleness and sloth, to lurking and loitering, to wilful wandering, and wasteful spending, never fettling ourselves to honest labour, but living like drone bees by the labours of other men, then do we break the Lord's commandment, we go aftray from our vocation, and incur the danger of God's wrath and heavy displeasure, to our endless destruction, except by repentance we turn again unfeignedly unto God. The inconveniences and mischiefs that come of idleness, as well to man's body as to his foul, are more than can in short time be well rehearfed. Some we shall declare and open unto you, that by confidering them ye may the better with yourselves gather the rest. An idle band, saith Solo-Prov. x. mon, maketh poor, but a quick labouring band maketh rich. Again, He that tilleth his land shall have plenteousness of Prov. xi. xxviii. bread; but he that floweth in idleness is a very fool, and shall plough for cold of the winter; therefore shall be go a begging in summer, and have nothing.

But what shall we need to stand much about the proving of this, that poverty followeth idleness? We have too much experience thereof (the thing is the more to be lamented) in this realm. For a great part of the beggary that is among the poor can be imputed to nothing so much as to idleness, and to the negligence of parents, which do not bring up their children either in good learning, honest labour, or some commendable occupation or trade, whereby, when they come to age, they might get their living. Daily experience also teacheth, that nothing is more an enemy or pernicious to the health of man's body, than is idleness, too much ease and sleep, and want of exercise. But these and such-like incommodities, albeit they be great and noisome, yet because they concern

chiefly the body and external goods, they are not to be compared with the mischiefs and inconveniences, which through idleness happen to the foul, whereof we will recite fome. Idleness is never alone, but hath always a long tail of other vices hanging on, which corrupt and infect the whole man after fuch fort, that he is made at length nothing else but a lump of fin. Idleness, faith Jesus Ecclus. Sirach, bringeth much evil and mischief. St. Bernard xxxiii. calleth it the Mother of all evils, and Stepdame of all virtues; adding moreover, that it doth prepare, and as it were tread the way to hell-fire. Where idleness is once received, there the Devil is ready to fet in his foot, and to plant all kind of wickedness and fin, to the everlasting destruction of man's foul. Which thing to be most true, we are plainly taught in the thirteenth of Matthew, where it is faid, that the enemy came while men were afleep, Matth. xiii. and fowed naughty tares among the good wheat. In very deed, the best time that the Devil ean have to work his feat is when men be afleep, that is to fay, idle; then is he most busy in his work, then doth he soonest catch men in the fnare of perdition, then doth he fill them with all iniquity, to bring them, without God's special favour, unto utter destruction. Hereof we have two notable examples most lively fet before our eyes. The one in King 2 Sam. xi. David, who tarrying at home idly, as the Scripture faith, at fuch times as other kings go forth to battle, was quickly feduced of Satan to forfake the Lord his God, and to com- 2 Sam. xii. mit two grievous and abominable fins in his fight, adultery and murder.

The plagues that enfined these offences were horrible and grievous, as it may eafily appear to them that will read the story. Another example of Samson, who, so Judges xvi. long as he warred with the Philistines, enemies to the people of God, could never be taken or overcome; but after that he gave himfelf to eafe and idlenefs, he not only committed fornication with the strumpet Dalila, but also was taken of his enemies, and had his eyes miserably put out, was put in prison, and compelled to grind in a mill, and at length was made the laughing-stock of his enemies. If these two, who were so excellent men, so well beloved of God, fo endued with fingular and divine gifts, the one namely of prophecy, and the other of firength, and fuch men as never could by vexation, labour, or trouble, be overcome, were overthrown and fell into gricyous fins, by giving themselves for a short time to ease and idlenefs, and fo confequently incurred miferable plagues

at the hands of God; what fin, what mischief, what inconvenience and plague is not to be feared of them, which all their life long give themselves wholly to idleness and case? Let us not deceive ourselves, thinking little hurt to come of doing nothing; for it is a true faying, When one doth nothing, he learneth to do evil. Let us therefore always be doing of some honest work, that the Devil may find us occupied. He himself is ever occupied, never idle, but walketh continually feeking to devour us. Let us refift him with our diligent watching, in labour, and in well-doing. For he that diligently exerciseth himself in honest business is not easily eatched in the Devil's fnare. When man through idleness, or for default of some honest occupation or trade to live upon, is brought to poverty and want of things necessary, we see how easily fuch a man is induced for his gain to lie, to practife how he may deceive his neighbour, to forswear himfelf, to bear false witness, and oftentimes to steal and murder, or to use some other ungodly mean to live withal; whereby not only his good name, honeft reputation, and a good confcience, yea, his life is utterly loft, but also the great displeasure and wrath of God, with divers and fundry grievous plagues, are procured. Lo here the end of the idle and fluggish bodies, whose hands cannot away with honest labour: loss of name, fame, reputation, and life, here in this world, and, without the great mercy of God, the purchasing of everlasting destruction in the world to come. Have not all men then good cause to beware and take heed of idleness, seeing they that embrace and sollow it have commonly of their pleafant idleness, sharp and four difpleasures? Doubtless, good and godly men, weighing the great and manifold harms that come by idleness to a commonweal, have from time to time provided with all diligence, that sharp and severe laws might be made for the correction and amendment of this evil. The Herodotus. Egyptians had a law, that every man should weekly bring his name to the chief rulers of the province, and therewithal declare what trade of life he used, to the intent that idleness might be worthily punished, and diligent labour duly rewarded. The Athenians did chastise sluggish and flothful people no less than they did heinous and grievous offenders, confidering, as the truth is, that idleness causeth much mischief. The Arcopagites called every man to a strait account how he lived; and if they found any loiterers, that did not profit the commonweal by one means or other, they were driven out and banished, as unprofitable

unprofitable members, that did only hurt and corrupt the body. And in this realm of England good and godly laws have been divers times made, that no idle vagabonds and loitering runagates should be suffered to go from town to town, from place to place, without punishment, which neither ferve God nor their prince, but devour the fweet fruits of other men's labour, being common liars, drunkards, fwearers, thieves, whoremafters, and murderers, refusing all honest labour, and give themselves to nothing else but to invent and do mischief, whereof they are more defirous and greedy than is any lion of his prey. To remedy this inconvenience, let all parents and others, which have the care and governance of youth, fo bring them up either in good learning, labour, or fome honest occupation or trade, whereby they may be able in time to come not only to fustain themselves competently, but also to relieve and fupply the necessity and want of others. And St. Paul faith, Let bim that bath flolen fleal no more, Ephef. iv and be that bath deceived others, or used unlawful ways to get his living, leave off the same, and labour rather, working with his hands that thing which is good; that he may have that which is necessary for himself, and also be able to give unto others that stand in need of his belp. The prophet David thinketh him happy that liveth upon his labour, faying, When thou eatest the labours of thine hands, happy art Pal. thou, and well is thee. This happiness or bleffing consisteth cxxviii. in these and such like points.

First, It is the gift of God, as Solomon faith, when one Eccles, iii. eateth and drinketh, and receiveth good of his labour. Secouldy, when one liveth of his own labour, fo it be honest and good, he liveth of it with a good conscience; and an upright conscience is a treasure inestimable. Thirdly, he eateth his bread not with brawling and chiding, but with peace and quietness, when he quietly laboureth. for the fame, according to St. Paul's admonition. Fourthly, he is no man's bondman for his meat fake, nor needeth not for that to hang upon the good will of other men; but fo liveth of his own, that he is able to give part to others. And, to conclude, the labouring man and his family, whilst they are busily occupied in their labour, be free from many temptations and oecasions of fin, which they that live in idleness are subject unto. And here ought artificers and labouring men, who be at wages for their work and labour, to confider their confeience to God, and their duty to their neighbour, lest they abuse their time in idleness, so defrauding them which be at charge worse than idle men indeed, for that they seek to have wages for their loitering. It is lefs danger to God to be idle for no gain, than by idleness to win out of their neighbours' purfes wages for that which is not deferved. It is true, that Almighty God is angry with fuch as do defraud the hired man of his wages; the cry of that injury ascendeth up to God's ear for vengeance. And as true it is, that the hired man, who useth deceit in his Theff. iv. labour, is a thief before God. Let no man, faith St. Paul to the Thesialonians, subtilly beguite his brother, let him not defraud him in his business; for the Lord is a revenger of fuch deceits. Whereupon he that will have a good conscience to God; that labouring man, I say, which dependeth wholly upon God's benediction, ministering all things fufficient for his living, let him use his time in a faithful labour, and when his labour by fickness or other misfortune doth cease, yet let him think for that in his health he ferved God and his neighbour truly, he shall not want in time of necessity. God upon respect of his fidelity in health will recompense his indigence, to move the hearts of good men to relieve fuch decayed men in fickness. Where otherwise, whatsoever is gotten by idleness shall have no means to help in time of need.

Eph. iv.

Let the labouring man therefore eschew for his part this vice of idleness and deceit, remembering that St. Paul exhorteth every man to lay away all deceit, diffinulation, and lying, and to use truth and plainness to his neighbour, because, saith he, we be members together in one body, under one bead, Christ our Saviour. And here might be charged the ferving-men of this realm, who spend their time in much idleness of life, nothing regarding the opportunity of their time, forgetting how fervice is no heritage, how age will creep upon them: where wifdom were they should expend their idle time in some good business, whereby they might increase in knowledge, and so the more worthy to be ready for every man's fervice. It is a great rebuke to them, that they study not either to write fair, to keep a book of account, to study the tongues, and fo to get wildom and knowledge in fuch books and works, as be now plentifully fet out in print of all manner of languages. Let young men confider the precious value of their time, and waste it not in idleness, in jollity, in gaming, in banquetting, in ruffians' company. Youth is but vanity, and must be accounted for before God. How merry and glad foever thou be in thy youth, O young man, faith! faith the Preacher, how glad foever thy heart be in thy Eccles. xi. young days, how fast and freely soever thou follow the ways of thine own heart, and the lust of thine own eyes; yet be thou fure that God shall bring thee into judgment for all these things. God of his mercy put it into the hearts and minds of all them that have the fword of punishment in their hands, or have families under their governance, to labour to redrefs this great enormity, of all fuch as live idly and unprofitably in the commonweal, to the great dishonour of God, and the grievous plague of his filly people. To leave fin unpunished, and to neglect the good bringing up of youth, is nothing else but to kindle the Lord's wrath against us, and to heap plagues upon our own heads. As long as the adulterous people were fuffered to live licentiously without reformation, so long did the plague continue and increase in Israel, as you may fee in the book of Numbers. Numb.xxv.

But when due correction was done upon them, the Lord's anger was firaightway pacified, and the plague ceafed. Let all officers therefore look firaitly to their charge. Let all mafters of households reform this abuse in their families; let them use the authority that God hath given them; let them not maintain vagabonds and idle persons, but deliver the realm and their households from such noisome loiterers, that idleness, the mother of all mischief, being clean taken away, Almighty God may turn his dreadful anger away from us, and confirm the covenant of peace upon us for ever, through the merits of Jesus Christ, our only Lord and Saviour: to whom with the Father and the Holy Ghost be all honour and glory, world

Repentance, and of true Reconciliation unto God.

THERE is nothing that the Holy Ghost doth so much labour in all the Scriptures to beat into men's heads, as repentance, amendment of life, and speedy returning unto the Lord God of Hosts. And no marvel why; for we do daily and hourly, by our wickedness and flubborn disobedience, horribly fall away from God, thereby purchasing unto ourselves (if he should deal with us according to his justice) eternal damnation. So that no doctrine is so necessary in the church of God, as is the trine of re- doctrine of repentance and amendment of life. And vepentance is most neces- rily the true preachers of the Gospel of the kingdom of heaven, and of the glad and joyful tidings of falvation, have always in their godly fermons and preachings unto the people, joined these two together; I mean repentance and forgiveness of fins, even as our Saviour Jesus Christ did appoint himself, saying, So it behoved Christ to suffer, and to rife again the third day; and that repentance and forgiveness of sins should be preached in his name among all nations. And therefore the holy Apostle doth in the Acts speak after this manner: I have witnessed both to the Jews and to the Gentiles, the repentance towards God, and faith towards our Lord Jesus Christ. Did not John Baptift, Zacharias's fon, begin his ministry with the doctrine of repentance, faying, Repent, for the kingdom of God is at band? The like doctrine did our Saviour Jesus Christ preach himself, and commanded his Apostles to preach the fame.

I might here allege very many places out of the Prophets, in the which this most wholesome doctrine of repentance is very earneftly urged, as most needful for all degrees and orders of men: but one shall be sufficient at this prefent time.

Thefe

These are the words of Joel the Prophet. Therefore Joel ii. also now the Lord faith, Return unto me with all your beart, with fasting, weeping, and mourning. Rend your bearts, and not your clothes, and return unto the Lord your God; for he is gracious and merciful, flow to anger, and of great compassion, and ready to pardon wickedness. Whereby it is given us to understand, that we have here a perpetual A perpetual rule appointed unto us, which ought to be observed and rule, which kept at all times, and that there is none other way, follow, whereby the wrath of God may be pacified, and his anger affuaged, that the fiercenels of his fury, and the plagues of destruction, which by his righteous judgment he had determined to bring upon us, may depart, be removed, and taken away. Where he faith, But now therefore; faith the Lord, return unto me: it is not without great importance, that the Prophet speaketh so. For he had before fet forth at large unto them the horrible vengeance of God, which no man was able to abide, and therefore he doth move them to repentance, to obtain mercy; as if he should fay, I will not have these things to be fo taken, as though there were no hope of grace left. For although ye do by your fins deferve to be utterly destroyed, and God by his righteous judgments hath determined to bring no small destruction upon you, yet know that ye are in a manner on the very edge of the fword: if ye will fpeedily return unto him, he will most gently and most mercifully receive you into favour again. Whereby we are admonished, that repentance is never too late, fo that it be true and earnest. For sith that God in the Scriptures will be called our Father, doubtless he doth follow the nature and property of gentle and merciful fathers, which feek nothing to much, as the returning again, and amendment of their children, as Christ doth abundantly teach in the parable of the Prodigal Son. Doth not the Lord himfelf fay by the Luke xv. Prophet, I will not the death of the wicked, but that be Ezek xviii. turn from bis wicked ways, and live? And in another place, I John ii, If we confess our fin, God is faithful and righteous to forgive us our fins, and to make us clean from all wickedness. Which most comfortable promises are consirmed by many examples of the Scriptures. When the Jews did willingly receive and embrace the wholefome counfel of the Prophet Isaiah, God by and by did reach his helping hand Isaiah liii. unto them, and by his angel did in one night flay the most worthy and valiant soldiers of Sennacherib's camp. Whereunto may King Manasses be added, who after all 2 Chron. manner xxxiii.

manner of damnable wickedness, returned unto the Lord. and therefore was heard of him, and reflored again into his kingdom. The fame grace and favour did the finful woman Magdalen, Zaccheus, the poor thief, and many other feel. All which things ought to ferve for our comfort against the temptations of our consciences, whereby the Devil goeth about to shake, or rather to overthrow our faith. For every one of us ought to apply the fame unto himself, and say, Yet now return unto the Lord: neither let the remembrance of thy former life discourage thee; yea, the more wicked that it bath been, the more fervent and earnest let thy repentance or returning be, and forthwith thou shalt feel the ears of the Lord wide open unto thy prayers. But let us more narrowly look upon the commandment of the Lord touching this matter. Turn unto me, faith he by the holy Prophet Joel, with all your hearts, with fasting, weeping, and mourning. Rend your bearts, and not your garments, &c. In which words he comprehendeth all manner of things that can be spoken of repentance, which is a returning again of the whole man unto God, from whom we be fallen away by fin. But that the whole discourse thereof may the better be borne away, we shall first consider in order four principal points; that is, from what we must return, to whom we must return, by whom we may be able to convert, and the manner how to turn to God.

From whence we must turn.

First, from whence, or from what things, we must return. Truly, we must return from those things, whereby we have been withdrawn, plucked, and led away from God. And these generally are our fins, which, as the holy Prophet Isaiah doth testify, do separate God and us, and hide his face, that he will not hear us. But under the name of fin, not only those gross words and deeds, which by the common judgment of men are counted to be filthy and unlawful, and fo confequently aboninable fins; but also the filthy lusts and inward concupifcences of the flesh, which, as St. Paul testifieth, do refift the will and Spirit of God, and therefore ought earneftly to be bridled and kept under. We must repent of the falle and erroneous opinions that we have had of God, and the wicked superstition that doth breed of the fame, the unlawful worshipping and service of God, and other like. All these things must they forsake, that will truly turn unto the Lord, and repent aright. For fith that for fuch things the wrath of God cometh upon the children of disobedience, no end of punishment ought to be looked for, as long as we continue in fuch things. Therefore they be here condemned, which will feem to be repentant finners, and yet will not forfake their idolatry and superstition. Secondly, we must see unto whom we ought to return. Revertimini ufque ad me, Unto faith the Lord: that is, Return as far as unto me. We whom we ought to remust then return unto the Lord; yea, we must return unto him turn. alone: for he alone is the truth, and the fountain of all goodness: but we must labour that we do return as far as unto him, and that we do never cease nor rest till we have apprehended and taken hold upon him.

But this must be done by faith. For sith that God is a spirit, he can by no other means be apprehended and taken hold upon. Wherefore, first, they do greatly err, which do not turn unto God, but unto the creatures, or unto the inventions of men, or unto their own merits. Se-By whom condly, they that do begin to return unto the Lord, and we must redo faint in the midway, before they come to the mark turn unto that is appointed unto them. Thirdly, because we have of our own felves nothing to prefent us to God, and do no less flee from him after our fall, than our first parent Adam did, who, when he had finned, did feek to hide himself from the fight of God, we have need of a Mediator for to bring and reconcile us unto him, who for our fins is angry with us. The fame is Jefus Chrift, who being true and natural God, equal and of one substance with the Father, did at the time appointed take upon him our frail nature, in the bleffed Virgin's womb, and that of her undefiled fubstance, that so he might be a Mediator between God and us, and pacify his wrath. Of him doth the Father himself speak from heaven, saying, This is my well-beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased. Matth. iii. And he himself in his Gospel doth cry out and say, I am John xiv. the way, the truth, and the life: no man cometh unto the John i. Father, but by me. For be alone did with the facrifice of his 1 Pet. i. body and blood make satisfaction unto the justice of God for our fins. The Apostles do testify that he was exalted for to Acts v. give repentance and remission of fins unto Israel. Both Luke xxiv. which things he himself did command to be preached in John xv. his name. Therefore they are greatly deceived that preach repentance without Christ, and teach the simple and ignorant that it confifteth only in the works of men. They may indeed speak many things of good works, and of amendment of life and manners: but without Christ they be all vain and unprofitable. They that think that they have done much of themselves towards repentance, are so much more the farther from God, because they do seek those things in their own works and merits, which ought only to be fought in our Saviour Jefus Christ, and in the merits of his death, and passion, and bloodshedding. Fourthly, this holy Prophet Joel doth lively express the manner of this our returning or repentance, comprehending all the inward and outward things that may be here observed. First, he will have us to return unto God with our whole heart, whereby he doth remove and put away all hypocrify, lest the same might justly be said unto us: This people draweth near unto me with their mouth, and worship

The manner of our turning.

Isaiah xxix, me with their lips; but their heart is far off from me. Secondly, he requireth a fincere and pure love of god-Matth. xv. linefs, and of the true worshipping and service of God, that is to fay, that, forfaking all manner of things that are repugnant and contrary unto God's will, we do give our hearts unto him, and the whole strength of our bodies and fouls, according to that which is written in the Law: Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, with all thy foul, and with all thy strength. Here therefore nothing is left unto us, that we may give unto the world, and unto the lufts of the flesh. For fith that the heart is the fountain of all our works, as many as do with their whole heart turn unto the Lord, do live unto him only. Halting on Neither do they yet repent truly, that, halting on both fides, both fides. do other whiles obey God, but by and by do think, that, laying him aside, it is lawful for them to serve the world and the flesh. And because that we are letted by the natural corruption of our own flesh, and the wicked affections of the same, he doth bid us also to return with fasting: not thereby understanding a superstitious abstinence and choosing of meats, but a true discipline or taming of the flesh, whereby the nourishments of filthy lusts, and of stubborn contumacy and pride, may be withdrawn and plucked away from it. Whereunto he doth add weeping and mourning, which do contain an outward profession of repentance, which is very needful and necessary, that so we may partly fet forth the righteoufness of God, when by fuch means we do testify that we deserved punishments at

Thus did David fee, who, being not content to have bewept and bewailed his fins privately, would publicly in his Plalms declare and fet forth the righteousness of God, in punishing fin, and also stay them that might have abused his example to fin the more boldly. Therefore they are his hands, and partly stop the offence that was openly farthest from true repentance, that will not confess and acknowledge their fins, nor yet bewail them, but rather do most ungodlily glory and rejoice in them. Now lest any man should think that repentance doth consist in outward weeping and mourning only, he doth rehearfe that wherein the chief of the whole matter doth lie, when he faith, Rend your bearts, and not your garments, and turn unto the Lord your God. For the people of the East part of the world were wont to rend their garments, if any thing happened unto them that feemed intolerable. This thing did hypocrites fometimes counterfeit and follow, Hypocrites as though the whole repentance did ftand in fuch out-do counterfeit all ward gesture. He teacheth then, that another manner manner of of thing is required, that is, that they must be contrite in things. their hearts, that they must utterly detest and abhor sins, and, being at defiance with them, return unto the Lord their God, from whom they went away before. For God hath no pleasure in the outward ceremony, but requireth a contrite and humble heart, which he will never despise, as David doth testify. There is therefore none Pal. III. other use to these outward ceremonies, but as far forth as we are stirred up by them, and do serve to the glory of God, and to the edifying of others.

Now doth he add unto this doctrine of exhortation How recertain godly reasons, which he doth ground upon the pentance is nature and property of God, and whereby he doth teach, fitable, that true repentance can never be unprofitable or unfruitful. For as in all other things men's hearts do quail and faint, if they once perceive that they travail in vain; even so most especially in this matter must we take heed, and beware that we fuffer not ourselves to be perfuaded that all that we do is but labour lost: for thereof either sudden desperation doth arise, or a licentious boldness to fin, which at length bringeth unto desperation. Lest any fuch thing then should happen unto them, he doth certify them of the grace and goodness of God, who is always most ready to receive them into favour again, that turn fpeedily unto him. Which thing he doth prove with the fame titles wherewith God doth describe and fet forth himself unto Moscs, speaking on this manner; For he is gracious and merciful, flow to anger, of great kind-Exod. nefs, and repenteth him of the evil; that is, fuch a one as is xxxiv. forry for your afflictions. First, he calleth him gentle and gracious, as he who of his own nature is more prompt and ready to do good, than to punish. Whereunto this faying of Isaiah the Prophet seemeth to pertain, where he faith, Let the wicked for fake his way, and the un-Ifa. lv. righteous his own imaginations, and return unto the Lord, and he will have pity on him; and to our God, for he is very ready to forgive. Secondly, he doth attribute unto him mercy, or rather (according to the Hebrew word) the bowels of mercies, whereby he fignified the natural affections of parents towards their children. Which thing Pfal. ciii. David doth fet forth goodly, faying, As a father bath compassion on his children, so hath the Lord compassion on them that fear him; for he knoweth subereof we be made, he remembereth that we are but duft. Thirdly, he faith, that he is flow to anger, that is to fav, long-suffering, and which is not lightly provoked to wrath. Fourthly, that he is of much kindness, for he is that bottomless well of all goodness, who rejoiceth to do good unto us: therefore did he create and make men, that he might have whom he should do good unto, and make partakers of his heavenly riches. Fifthly, He repenteth of the evil; that is to fay, he doth call back again and revoke the punishment which he had threatened, when he feeth men repent, turn, and amend. Whereupon Against the we do not without a just cause detest and abhor the Novatians, damnable opinion of them, which do most wickedly go about to perfuade the simple and ignorant people, that if we chance, after we be once come to God, and grafted in his Son Jefus Chrift, to fall into fome horrible fin, repentance shall be unprofitable unto us, there is no more hope of reconciliation, or to be received again into the favour and mercy of God. And that they may give the better colour unto their pestilent and pernicious error, they do commonly bring in the fixth and tenth chapters of the Epiftle to the Hebrews, and the fecond chapter of the fecond Epistle of Peter; not confidering that in those places the holy Aposles do not speak of the daily falls that we, as long as we carry about this body of fin, are subject unto; Matt. xii. but of the final falling away from Christ and his Gospel, Mark iii. which is a fin against the Holy Ghost, that shall never be The fin against the forgiven, because that they do utterly forsake the known Holy Ghost truth, do hate Christ and his word, they do crucify and mock him, (but to their utter destruction) and therefore fall into desperation, and cannot repent. And that this is the true meaning of the holy Spirit of God, it appeareth by many other places of the Scriptures, which promife unto all true repentant finners, and to them that with their whole heart do turn unto the Lord their God, free pardon and remission of their sins. For the probation hereof, we read this: O Israel, faith the holy Prophet

Jeremiah,

Jeremiah, if thou return, return unto me, faith the Lord; Jer. iv. and if thou put array thine abominations out of my fight, then shalt thou not be removed. Again, these are Isaiah's words: Let the wicked forfake his own ways, and the unrighteous Ifa. lv. bis own imaginations, and turn again unto the Lord, and be will have mercy upon him; and to our God, for he is ready to forgive. And in the Prophet Hofea, the godly exhort one another after this manner: Come, and let us turn again Hosea vi. unto the Lord; for be bath smitten us, and he will heal us; be bath wounded us, and be will bind us up again. It is most evident and plain, that these things ought to be un- Note. derstood of them that were with the Lord before, and by their fins and wickednesses were gone away from him. For we do not turn again unto him with whom we were never before, but we come unto him. Now, unto all them that will return unfeignedly unto the Lord their God, the favour and mercy of God unto forgiveness of Eccles. vii. fins is liberally offered. Whereby it followeth necessarily, that although we do, after we be once come to God, and grafted in his Son Jefus Chrift, fall into great fins, (for there is no righteous man upon the earth that finneth not; and if we fay we have no fin, we deceive our- 1 John is felves, and the truth is not in us;) yet if we rife again by repentance, and, with a full purpose of amendment of life, do flee unto the mercy of God, taking fure hold thereupon, through faith in his Son Jesus Christ, there is an affured and infallible hope of pardon and remission of the fame, and that we shall be received again into the favour Adsxiii. of our heavenly Father. It is written of David, I bave 2 Sam. vii, found a man according to mine own heart; or, I have found David, the Son of Jeffe, a man according to mine own heart, who will do all things that I will. This is a great commendation of David. It is also most certain, that he did fleadfastly believe the promise that was made him touching the Messias, who should come of him touching the flesh, and that by the same faith he was justified and grafted in our Saviour Jesus Christ to come; and yet afterwards he fell horribly, committing most detestable adultery and damnable murder; and yet as foon as he cried Peccavi, I have finned unto the Lord, his fin being 2 Sam. xi. forgiven, he was received into favour again. Now will 2 Sam. xxii. we come unto Peter, of whom no man can doubt but that he was grafted in our Saviour Jesus Christ, long before his denial. Which thing may eafily be proved by the answer which he did in his name, and in the name of his John vi. he faid unto them, Will ye also go away? Master, faith he, to whom shall we go? Thou hast the words of eternal life; and we believe and know that thou art that Christ, the Son of the living God. Whereunto may be added the like confession of Peter, where Christ doth give us most infallible testimony: Thou art blessed, Simon, the son of Jonas; for neither steps nor blood bath revealed this unto thee, but my Father which is in heaven. These words are sufficient to prove that Peter was already justified, through this his lively faith in the only begotten Son of God, whereof he made so notable and so solenn a confession.

But did not he afterwards most cowardly deny his MasMatt. xxvi. ter, although he had heard of him, Whosoever denieth me Matt. x. before men, I will deny him before my Father? Nevertheless, as soon as with weeping eyes and with a sobbing heart he did acknowledge his offence, and with an earnest repentance did slee unto the mercy of God, taking sure hold thereupon, through faith in him whom he had so shamefully denied, his sin was forgiven him, and, for a certificate and assurance thereof, the room of his apostleship was not denied unto him. But now mark what doth follow: After the same holy Apostle had on Whitfunday with the rest of the Disciples received the gift of the Holy Ghost most abundantly, he committed no small offence in Antiochia, by bringing the consciences of the faithful into doubt by his example, fo that Paul was fain to Gal. ii. rebuke him to his face, because that he walked not uprightly, or went not the right way in the Gospel. Shall we now fay, that, after this grievous offence, he was utterly excluded and thut out from the grace and mercy of God, and that this his trespass, whereby he was a stumbling-block unto many, was unpardonable? God defend we should fay so. But as these examples are not brought in, to the end that we should thereby take a boldness to fin, prefuming on the merey and goodness of God, but to the end that if, through the frailness of our own flesh and the temptation of the Devil, we fall into like fins, we should in no wife despair of the mercy and goodness of God; even fo must we beware and take heed, that we

For this must be verified in all men, Without me ye can do nothing. Again, Of ourselves we are not able as much as to think a good thought. And in another place, It is God that worketh in us both the will and the deed. For this cause, although Jeremiah had faid before, If thou return, O Ifrael, Jer. vi. return unto me, faith the Lord; yet afterwards he faith, Turn thou me, O Lord, and I shall be turned; for thou art the Lord my God. And therefore that holy writer and ancient father Ambrose doth plainly assirm, that the turn-Ambrose de ing of the heart unto God is of God, as the Lord himself Vocat. doth testify by his Prophet, saying, And I will give thee Gent. lib. an heart to know me, that I am the Lord, and they shall be my people, and I will be their God; for they shall return unto me with their whole heart. These things being considered, let us earnestly pray unto the living God our heavenly Father, that he will vouchsafe by his holy Spirit to work a true and unseigned repentance in us, that, after the painful labours and travails of this life, we may live eternally with his Son Jesus Christ: to whom be all praise and glory for ever and ever. Amen.

TITHERTO have ye heard, well-beloved, how need-ful and necessary the doctrine of repentance is, and how earnestly it is throughout all the Scriptures of God urged and fet forth, both by the ancient Prophets, by our Saviour Jesus Christ, and his Apostles; and that forasmuch as it is the conversion or turning again of the whole man unto God, from whom we go away by fin, these four points ought to be observed; that is, from whence, or from what things we must return; unto whom this our returning must be made; by whose means it ought to be done, that it may be effectual; and last of all, after what fort we ought to behave ourselves in the same, that it may be profitable unto us, and attain unto the thing that we do feek by it. Ye have also learned, that as the opinion of them that deny the benefit of repentance unto those, that, after they be come to God, and grafted in our Saviour Jefus Christ, do through the frailness of their flesh, and the temptation of the Devil, fall into some grievous and detestable fin, is most pestilent and pernicious; fo we must beware, that we do in no wife think that we are able of our own felves, and of our own strength, to return unto the Lord our God, from whom we are gone away by our wickedness and fin. it shall be declared unto you, what be the true parts of repentance, and what things ought to move us to repent, Gg4

There be four parts of repent-and to return unto the Lord our God with all speed. Repentance (as it is faid before) is a true returning unto God, whereby men, forfaking utterly their idolatry and wickedness, do with a lively faith embrace, love, and worship the true living God only, and give themselves to all manner of good works, which by God's Word they know to be acceptable unto him. Now there be four parts of repentance, which being fet together may be likened to an eafy and short ladder, whereby we may climb from the bottomless pit of perdition, that we cast ourselves into by our daily offences and grievous fins, up into the castle or tower of eternal and endless salvation.

The first is the contrition of the heart: for we must be carneftly forry for our fins, and unfeignedly lament and bewail that we have by them fo grievously offended our most bounteous and merciful God, who so tenderly loved us, that he gave his only begotten Son to die a most bitter death, and to shed his dear heart-blood for our redemption and deliverance. And verily this inward forrow and grief being conceived in the heart for the heinousness of sin, if it be earnest and unfeigned, is as a facrifice to God, as the holy Prophet David doth testify, faying, A facrifice to God is a troubled spirit; a contrite and to read and hear the Scriptures, and the Word of God, which most lively do paint out before our eyes our natural uncleanness, and the enormity of our finful life. For unless we have a thorough feeling of our fins, how can it be that we should earnestly be forry for them? Before 2 Sam. xii. David did hear the word of the Lord by the mouth of the Prophet Nathan, what heaviness, I pray you, was in him for the adultery and the murder that he had committed? fo that it might be faid right well, that he flept in his own fin. We read in the Acts of the Apostles, that when the people had heard the fermon of Peter, they were companed and pricked in their hearts. Which thing would never have been, if they had not heard that wholefome fermon of Peter. They therefore that have no mind at all neither to read nor yet to hear God's word, there is but finall hope of them, that they will as much as once fet their feet, or take hold upon the first staff or step of this ladder, but rather will fink deeper and deeper into the bottomless pit of perdition. For if at any time, through the remorfe of their confcience, which accufeth them, they feel any inward grief, forrow, or heaviness for their fins; forasmuch as they want the salve and comfort of God's Word, which they do despife, it will be unto them rather a mean to bring them to utter desperation, than otherwise. The fecond is, an unfeigned confession and acknowledging of our sins unto God, whom by them we have fo grievously offended, that, if he should deal with us according to his justice, we do deferve a thousand hells, if there could be so many. Yet if we will with a forrowful and contrite heart make an un-Ezek.xviii, feigned confession of them unto God, he will freely and frankly forgive them, and fo put all our wickedness out of remembrance before the fight of his Majesty, that they shall no more be thought upon. Hereunto doth pertain the golden faying of the holy Prophet David, where he faith on this manner: Then I acknowledged my fin unto Pfal. 11. thee, neither did I bide mine iniquity: I faid, I will confess against myself my wickedness unto the Lord, and thou forgavest the ungodliness of my sin. These are also the words of John the Evangelist: If we confess our fins, God is I John i. faithful and righteous to forgive us our fins, and to make us clean from all our wickedness. Which ought to be understood of the confession that is made unto God. For these are St. Augustine's words: "That confession which is In Epist. ad made unto God is required by God's law;" whereof John Julian cothe Apostle speaketh, saying, If we confess our fins, God is mitem 30. faithful and righteous to forgive us our fins, and to make us clean from all our wickedness. For without this confession, fin is not forgiven. This is then the chiefest and most principal confession that in the Scriptures and word of God we are bidden to make, and without the which we shall never obtain pardon and forgiveness of our sins. Indeed, besides this there is another kind of confession,

And of the same doth St. James speak after this manner, saying, Acknowledge your faults one to another, and Jam. V. pray one for another, that ye may be saved. As if he should say, open that which grieveth you, that a remedy may be found. And this is commanded both for him that complaineth, and for him that heareth, that the one should shew his grief to the other. The true meaning of it is, that the faithful ought to acknowledge their offences, whereby some hatred, rancour, grudge, or malice, having risen or grown among them one to another, that a brotherly reconciliation may be had, without the which nothing that we do can be acceptable unto God, as our Saviour Jesus Christ doth witness himself, saying, When they Mau. v.

thy brother halb aught against thee, leave there thine offering, and go and be reconciled; and when thou art reconciled, come and offer thine offering. It may also be thus taken, that we ought to confess our weakness and infirmities one to another, to the end that, knowing each other's frailness, we may the more earnessly pray together unto Almighty God, our heavenly Father, that he will vouchsafe to pardon us our insirmities, for his Son Jesus Christ's sake, and not to impute them unto us, when he shall render to every man according to his works. And whereas the adversaries go about to wrest this place, for to maintain their auricular confession withal, they are greatly deceived themselves, and do shamefully deceive others: for

if this text ought to be understood of auricular confession, then the priests are as much bound to confess themselves unto the lay-people, as the lay-people are bound to con-

fefs themselves to them. And if to pray is to absolve, then the laity by this place hath as great authority to abfolve the priefts, as the priefts have to abfolve the laity. This did Johannes Scotus, otherwife called Duns, well perceive, who upon this place writeth on this manner: Neither doth it feem unto me that James did give this commandment, or that he did fet it forth as being received of Christ. For first and foremost, whence had he authority to bind the whole church, fith that he was only bishop of the church of Jerusalem? Except thou wilt fay, that the same church was at the beginning the head church, and confequently that he was the head bishop, which thing the fee of Rome will never grant." The understanding of it then is as in these words: Confess your fins one to another: a perfusion to humility, whereby he willeth us to confess ourselves generally unto our neighbours, that we are finners, according to this faying: If we fay we have no fin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us. And where that they do allege this faying of our Saviour Jefus Christ unto the leper, to prove auricular confession to stand on God's word, Go thy way, and shew thyself unto the priest; do they not see that the leper was eleanfed from his leprofy, before he was by Christ fent unto the priest, for to shew himself unto him? By the fame reason we must be cleansed from our spiritual leprofy, I mean our fins must be forgiven us, before that we come to confession. What need we then to tell forth our fins into the ear of the prieft, fith that they be already taken away? Therefore holy Ambrofe, in his fecond fermon

fermon upon the hundred and nineteenth Pfalm, doth fay full well, Go shew thyself unto the priest. Who is the true prieft, but he which is the Prieft for ever, after the order of Melchifedech? Whereby this holy Father doth understand, that, both the priesthood and the law being changed, we ought to acknowledge none other prieft for deliverance from our fins, but our Saviour Jesus Christ, who, being Sovereign Bilhop, doth with the facrifice of his body and blood, offered once for ever upon the altar of the crofs, most effectually cleanse the spiritual leprofy, and wash away the fins of all those that with true confesfion of the fame do flee unto him. It is most evident and plain, that this awicular confession hath not his warrant of God's word, else it had not been lawful for Nectarius, bishop of Constantinople, upon a just occasion to have put Nectarius. it down. For when any thing ordained of God is by Sozomen. the lewdness of men abused, the abuse ought to be taken Hist. vii. away, and the thing itfelf fuffered to remain. Moreover, cap. 16. there are St. Augustine's words: What have I to do lib. x. Conwith men, that they should hear my confession, as though cap. 3. they were able to heal my difeases? A curious fort of men to know another man's life, and flothful to correct and amend their own. Why do they feek to hear of me what I am, which will not hear of thee what they are? And how can they tell, when they hear by me of myfelf, whether I tell the truth or not; fith no mortal man knoweth what is in man, but the spirit of man which is in him? Augustine would not have written thus, if auricular confession had been used in his time. Being therefore not led with the conscience thereof, let us with fear and trembling, and with a true contrite heart, use that kind of confession that God doth command in his word; and then doubtlefs, as he is faithful and righteous, he will forgive us our fins, and make us clean from all wickedness. I do not say, but that, if any do find themselves troubled in confcience, they may repair to their learned curate or pastor, or to some other godly learned man, and shew the trouble and doubt of their conscience to them, that they may receive at their hand the comfortable falve of God's Word: but it is against the true Christian liberty, that any man should be bound to the numbering of his fins, as it hath been used heretofore in the time of blindness and ignorance. The third part of repentance is faith, whereby we do

The third part of repentance is faith, whereby we do apprehend and take hold upon the promifes of God, touching the free pardon and forgiveness of our fins:

which promifes are fealed up unto us, with the death and blood-shedding of his Son Jesus Christ. For what should avail and profit us to be forry for our fins, to lament and bewail that we have offended our most bounteous and merciful Father, or to confess and acknowledge our offences and trespasses, though it be done never so earnestly, unless we do steadfastly believe, and be fully perfuaded, that God, for his Son Jefus Chrift's fake, will forgive us all our fins, and put them out of remembrance. and from his fight? Therefore they that teach repentance pentance of without a lively faith in our Saviour Jesus Christ, do teach none other but Judas's repentance, as all the schoolmen do, which do only allow these three parts of repentance; the contrition of the heart, the confession of the mouth, and the fatisfaction of the work. But all thefe things we find in Judas's repentance, which in outward appearance did far exceed and pass the repentance of Mau. xxvii. Peter. For first and foremost, we read in the Gospel, that Judas was fo forrowful and heavy, yea, that he was filled with fuch anguish and vexation of mind, for that which he had done, that he could not abide to live any longer. Did not he also, before he hanged himself, make an open confession of his fault, when he faid, I have sinned, betraying the innocent blood? And verily this was a very bold confession, which might have brought him to great trouble. For by it he did lay to the High Priests and Elders charge the fledding of innocent blood, and that they were most abominable murderers. He did also make a certain kind of fatisfaction, when he did cast their money unto them again. No fuch thing do we read of Peter, although he had committed a very heinous fin, and most grievous offence, in denying of his Master. We find that be quent out, and wept bitterly; whereof Ambrose speaketh on this manner: Peter was forry and wept, because he erred as a cap. Petrus. man. I do not find what he faid; I know that he wept. I read of his tears, but not of his fatisfaction. But how chance that the one was received into favour again with God, and the other cast away, but because that the one did, by a lively faith in him whom he had denied, take hold upon the mercy of God; and the other wanted faith, whereby he did despair of the goodness and mercy of God? It is evident and plain then, that although we be never fo earneftly forry for our fins, acknowledge and confess them; yet all these things shall be but means to bring us to utter desperation, except we do steadfastly believe that God our heavenly Father will, for his Son Jesus Christ's Christ's fake, pardon and forgive us our offences and trefpasses, and utterly put them out of remembrance in his fight. Therefore, as we faid before, they that teach repentance without Christ, and a lively faith in the mercy of God, do only teach Cain's or Judas's repentance. The fourth is, an amendment of life, or a new life, in bringing forth fruits worthy of repentance. For they that do truly repent must be clean altered and changed, they must become new creatures, they must be no more the fame that they were before. And therefore thus faid John Baptist unto the Pharisees and Sadducees that came unto his baptism: O generation of vipers, who bath fore- Matt. iii. warned you to flee from the anger to come? Bring forth therefore fruits worthy of repentance. Whereby we do learn, that if we will have the wrath of God to be pacified, we must in no wife dissemble, but turn unto him again with a true and found repentance, which may be known and declared by good fruits, as by most fure and

They that do from the bottom of their hearts acknowledge their fins, and are unfeignedly forry for their offences, will cast off all hypocrify, and put on true humility and lowliness of heart. They will not only receive the Physician of the soul, but also with a most fervent defire long for him. They will not only abstain from the fins of their former life, and from all other filthy vices, but also flee, eschew, and abhor all the occasions of them. And as they did before give themselves to uncleanues of life, fo will they from henceforwards with all diligence give themselves to innocency, pureness of life, and true godliness. We have the Ninevites for an example, which at the preaching of Jonas did not only proclaim a Jonas III. general fast, and that they should every one put on fackcloth, but they all did turn from their evil ways, and from the wickedness that was in their hands. But above all other, the history of Zaccheus is most notable: for being come unto our Saviour Jesus Christ, he did fav, Bekold, Luke xix. Lord, the half of my goods I give to the poor; and if I have defrauded any man, or taken aught away by extortion or fraud, I do restore bim fourfold.

Here we see that after his repentance he was no more the man that he was before, but was clean changed and altered. It was fo far off that he would continue and abide flill in his unfatiable covetoufness, or take aught away fraudulently from any man, that rather he was most willing and ready to give away his own, and to make fa-

came to ask counsel of him. This was commonly the penance that Christ enjoined sinners: Go thy way, and sin no more. Which penance we shall never be able to sulfil, without the special grace of him that doth say, Without me ye can do nothing. It is therefore our parts, if at least we be desirous of the health and salvation of our own selves, most earnessly to pray unto our heavenly Father, to assist us with his holy Spirit, that we may be able to hearken unto the voice of the true Shepherd, and with tisfaction unto all them that he had done injury and wrong unto. Here may we right well add the finful woman, which, when she came to our Saviour Jesus Christ, did pour down such abundance of tears out of those wanton eyes of hers, wherewith she had allured many unto folly, that she did with them wash his feet, wiping them with the hairs of her head, which she was wont most gloriously to set out, making of them a net of the Devil. Hereby we do learn what is the satisfaction that God doth require of us, which is, that we cease from evil, and do good; and, if we have done any man wrong, to endeavour ourselves to make him true amends to the utmost of our power, following in this the example of Zaccheus, and of this sinful woman, and also that goodly lesson that John Baptist, Zacharias's son, did give unto them that due obedience to follow the fame. Let us hearken to the voice of Almighty God, when he calleth us to repentance; let us not harden our hearts, as fuch infidels do, who abuse the time given them of God to repent, and turn it to continue their pride and contempt against God and man, which know not how much they heap God's wrath upon themselves, for the hardness of their hearts, which cannot repent at the day of vengeance. Where we have offended the law of God, let us repent us of our straying from so good a Lord. Let us confess our unworthiness before him; but yet let us trust in God's free mercy for Christ's fake, for the pardon of the fame. And from henceforth let us endeavour ourfelves to walk in a new life, as new-born babes, whereby we may glorify our Father which is in heaven, and thereby to bear in our consciences a good testimony of our faith; fo that at the last, to obtain the fruition of everlafting life, through the merits of our Saviour: to whom be all praise and honour for ever. Amen.

The Third Part of the Homily of Repentance.

IN the Homily last spoken unto you, right well-beloved people in our Saviour Christ, ye heard of the true parts and tokens of repentance; that is, hearty contrition and forrowfulness of our hearts, unfeigned confession in word of mouth for our unworthy living before God, a steadfast faith to the merits of our Saviour Christ for pardon, and a purpole of ourselves by God's grace to renounce our former wicked life, and a full conversion to God in a new life to glorify his name, and to live orderly and charitably, to the comfort of our neighbour, in all righteoutness, and to live soberly and modestly to ourfelves, by using abstinence and temperance in word and in deed, in mortifying our earthly members here upon earth. Now, for a further perfuafion to move you to those parts of repentance, I will declare unto you fome causes, which should the rather move you to repentance.

First, the commandment of God, who in so many The causes places of the holy and facred Scriptures doth bid us re-that should turn unto him. O ye children of Israel, saith he, turn move us to again from your infidelity, wherein ye drowned yourselves. Isa. xxxi. Again, Turn you, turn you, from your evil ways: for why Ezek. will ye die, O ye house of Israel? And, in another place, xxiii. thus doth he fpeak by his holy Prophet Hofea: O Ifracl, Hofea xiv. return unto the Lord thy God; for thou hast taken a great fall by thine iniquity. Take unto you these words with you, when you turn unto the Lord, and fay unto him, Take away all iniquity, and receive us graciously; so will we offer the calves of our lips unto thee. In all these places we have an express commandment given unto us of God for to return unto him. Therefore we must take good heed unto ourselves, lest, whereas we have already by our manifold fins and transgressions provoked and kindled the wrath of God against us, we do by breaking this his commandment double our offences, and fo heap still damnation upon our own heads by our daily offences and trespasses, whereby we provoke the eyes of his Majesty, we do well deferve (if he should deal with us according to his justice) to be put away for ever from the fruition of his glory. How much more then are we worthy of the endless torments of hell, if when we be so gently called again after our rebellion, and commanded to return, we will in no wife hearken unto the voice of our heavenly Father, but walk still after the subbornness of our own hearts!

Secondly,

Secondly, the most comfortable and sweet promise, that the Lord our God did of his mere mercy and goodness join unto his commandment. For he doth not only fay, Return unto me, O Ifrael; but also, if thou wilt return, and Jer. iv. put away vil thine abominations out of my fight, thou shalt never be moved. These words also have we in the Prophet Ezek. xviii. Ezekiel, At what time forver a finner doth repent him of his sin from the bottom of his heart, I will put all his wickedness out of my remembrance, saith the Lord, so that they shall be no more thought upon. Thus are we fufficiently inftructed, that God will, according to his promife, freely pardon, forgive, and forget all our fins, fo that we shall never be cast in the teeth with them, if, obeying his commandment, and allured by his fweet promifes, we will long as we do abide in it, God cannot but detest and abunfeignedly return unto him. Thirdly, the filthiness of fin, which is fuch, that as hor us, neither can there be any hope that we shall enter into the heavenly Jerusalem, except we be first made clean and purged from it. But this will never be, unlefs, forfaking our former life, we do with our whole heart return unto the Lord our God, and, with a full purpose of amendment of life, flee unto his mercy, taking fure hold thereupon through faith in the blood of his Son Jesus Similitude. Christ. If we should suspect any uncleanness to be in us, wherefore the earthly prince should loathe and abhor the fight of us, what pains would we take to remove and put it away! How much more ought we, with all diligence and fpeed that may be, to put away that unclean filthiness, that doth separate and make a division betwixt us and our God, and that hideth his face from us, that he will not hear us! And verily herein doth appear how filthy a thing fin is, fith that it can by no other means be washed away, but by the blood of the only begotten Son of God. And shall we not from the bottom of our hearts detest and abhor, and with all earnestness flee from it, fith that it did cost the dear heart-blood of the only begotten Son of God, our Saviour and Redeemer, to purge us from it? Plato doth in a certain place write, that, if virtue could be feen with bodily eyes, all men would wonderfully be inflamed and kindled with the love of it: even fo, on the contrary, if we might with our bodily eyes behold the filthiness of fin, and the uncleanness thereof, we could in no wife abide it, but, as most present and deadly poifon, hate and eschew it. We have a common experience of the fame in them, which when they have committed any heinous offence, or some filthy and abominable sin, if it once come to light, or if they chance to have a thorough feeling of it, they be so ashamed, their own conscience putting before their eyes the silthiness of their act, that they dare look no man in the face, much less that they should be able to stand in the sight of God.

Fourthly, the uncertainty and brittleness of our own lives, which is fuch, that we cannot affure ourselves that we shall live one hour, or one half quarter of it. Which by experience we do find daily to be true, in them that being now merry and lufty, and fometimes feaffing and banquetting with their friends, do fall fuddenly dead in the streets, and other whiles under the board when they are at meat. These daily examples, as they are most terrible and dreadful, fo ought they to move us to feek for to be at one with our heavenly Judge, that we may with a good conscience appear before him, whensoever it shall please him for to call us, whether it be suddenly or otherwife, for we have no more charter of our life than they have. But as we are most certain that we shall die, so are we most uncertain when we shall die. For our life doth lie in the hand of God, who will take it away when it pleafeth him. And verily when the highest fumner Death the of all, which is Death, shall come, he will not be said Lord's nay; but we must forthwith be packing, to be prefent fumner. Eccles. xi, before the judgment-feat of God, as he doth find us, according as it is written, Whereas the tree falleth, whether it be toward the fouth, or toward the north, there it shall lie. Whereunto agreeth the faying of the holy martyr of Contra De-God, St. Cyprian, faying, "As God doth find thee when metriahe doth call, fo doth he judge thee." Let us therefore fol-num. Ecclef. v, low the counfel of the Wife Man, where he faith, Make no tarrying to turn unto the Lord, and put not off from day to day. For fuddenly shall the wrath of the Lord break forth, and in thy security shalt thou be destroyed, and shalt perish in the time of vengeance. Which words I defire you to mark diligently, because they do most lively put before our eyes the fondness of many men, who, abusing the long suffering and goodness of God, do never think on repentance or amendment of life. Follow not, faith he. thine own mind and thy strength, to walk in the ways of thy heart, neither fay thou, Who will bring me under for my quorks? For God the revenger will revenge the aurong done by thee. And fay not, I have finned, and what evil bath come unto me? For the Almighty is a patient rezvarder; but he will not leave thee unpunished. Because thy fins are forgiven thee, be not without fear to heap fin upon fin. Say not neither, The mercy of God is great, he will forgive my manifold fins. For mercy and wrath come from him, and his indignation cometh upon unrepentant finners. As if ye should fay, Art thou strong and mighty? Art thou lufty and young? Hast thou the wealth and riches of the world? Or when thou hast sinned, hast thou received no punishment for it? Let none of all these things make thee to be the flower to repent, and to return with speed unto the Lord: for in the day of punishment and of his fudden vengeance, they fhall not be able to help thee. And specially when thou art either by the preaching of God's word, or by fome inward motion of his holy Spirit, or elfe by some other means called unto repentance, neglect not the good occafion that is ministered unto thee, lest, when thou wouldst repent, thou hast not the grace for to do it. For to repent is a good gift of God, which he will never grant unto them, who, living in carnal fecurity, do make a mock of his threatenings, or feek to rule his spirit as they lift, as though his working and gifts were tied unto their will.

Fifthly, the avoiding of the plagues of God, and the utter destruction that by his rightcous judgment doth hang over the heads of them all that will in no wife return unto the Lord: I will, faith the Lord, give them for a terrible plague to all the kingdoms of the earth, and for a reproach, and for a proverh, and for a curse in all places where I shall cast them, and will send the sword of famine, and the peffilence among them, till they be conjumed out of the land. And wherefore is this? Because they hardened their hearts, and would in no wife return from their evil ways, nor yet forfake the wickedness that was in their own hands, that the fierceness of the Lord's fury might depart from them. But yet this is nothing in comparifon of the intolerable and endless torments of hell-fire, which they shall be fain to suffer, who after their hardnefs of heart, that cannot repent, do heap unto themselves wrath against the day of anger, and of the declaration of the just judgment of God: whereas if we will repent, and be earneftly forry for our fin, and with a full purpose and amendment of life flee unto the mercy of our God, and taking fure hold thereupon through faith in our Saviour Jefus Christ, do bring forth fruits worthy of repentance, he will not only pour his manifold bleffings upon us here in this world, but also at the last, after the painful travails of this life, reward us with the inheritance of his children, which is the kingdom of heaven, purchased unto us with the death of his Son Jesus Christ our Lord. To whom with the Father and the Holy Ghost be all praise, glory, and honour, world without end. Amen,

AN

HOMILY

AGAINST

Disobedience and wilful Rebellion.

THE FIRST PART.

S God the Creator and Lord of all things appointed his angels and heavenly creatures in all obedience to serve and to honour his Majesty; so was it his will that man, his chief creature upon the earth, should live under the obedience of his Creator and Lord: and for that cause, God, as soon as he had created man, gave unto him a certain precept and law, which he (being yet in the ftate of innocency, and remaining in Paradife) should observe as a pledge and token of his due and bounden obedience, with denunciation of death, if he did transgress and break the faid law and commandment. And as God would have man to be his obedient subject, so did he make all earthly creatures subject unto man, who kept their due obedience unto man, so long as man remained in his obedience unto God: in the which obedience if man had continued ftill, there had been no poverty, no difeafes, no fickness, no death, nor other miseries, wherewith mankind is now infinitely and most miserably afflicted and oppressed. So here appeareth the original kingdom of God over angels and man, and univerfally over all things, and of man over earthly creatures which God had made subject unto him, and withal the felicity and bleffed flate, which angels, man, and all creatures had remained in, had they continued in due obedience unto God their King. For as long as in this first kingdom the subjects continued in due obedience to God their King, to long did God embrace all his fubjects with his love, favour, and grace, which to enjoy is perfect felicity; whereby it is evident, that obedience is the principal virtue of all virtues, and indeed the very root of all virtues, and the cause of all felicity. But as all felicity and blef-Matt. iv. 9. fedness should have continued with the continuance of Matt. xxv. obedience; fo with the breach of obedience, and breaking John viii. in of rebellion, all vices and miferies did withal break in, 44. and overwhelm the world. Here you may fee the first author and founder of rebellion, and the reward thereof; here you may fee the grand captain and father of rebels; who perfuading the following of his rebellion against God their Creator and Lord, unto our first parents Adam and Eve, brought them in high displeasure with God, wrought their exile and banishment out of Paradife, a place of pleasure and goodness, into this wretched earth and vale of mifery; procured unto them forrows of their minds, mischiefs, sickness, diseases, death of their bodies; and, which is far more horrible than all worldly and bodily mischiefs, he had wrought thereby Rom. v. their eternal and everlasting death and damnation, had 12, 19, &c. not God by the obedience of his Son Jesus Christ repaired that, which man by difobedience and rebellion had destroyed, and so of his mercy had pardoned and forgiven

Thus became rebellion, as you fee, both the first and the greatest, and the very root of all other fins, and the first and principal cause both of all worldly and bodily miferies, forrows, difeases, ficknesses, and deaths, and, which is infinitely worfe than all thefe, as is faid, the very eause of death and damnation eternal alfo. rule and order of obedience thus by rebellion overthrown; and, besides the obedience due unto his Majesty, he not only ordained, that, in families and households, the wife should be obedient unto her busband, the children unto their parents, the servants unto their masters; but also, when mankind increased, and spread itself more largely over the world, he by his holy Word did constitute and ordain in cities and countries several and special governors and rulers, unto whom the residue of his people should be obedient.

As in reading of the holy Scriptures we shall find in very many and almost infinite places, as well of the Old Testament as of the New, that kings and princes, as well the evil as the good, do reign by God's ordinance, and that subjects are bounden to obey them; that God doth give princes wisdom, great power, and authority; that God defendeth them against their enemies, and destroyeth their enemies horribly; that the anger and displeasure of the prince is as the roaring of a lion, and the very meifenger of death; and the subject, that provoketh him to displeasure, sinneth against his own soul: with many other things concerning both the authority of princes and the duty of fubjects. But here let us rehearle two fpecial places out of the New Testament, which may fland in flead of all other. The first out of St. Paul's Epiftle to the Romans, and the thirteenth chapter, where he writeth thus unto all subjects: Let every foul be subject unto the higher powers, for there is no power but of God, and the powers that be are ordained of God. Whofoever therefore refifteth the power refifteth the ordinance of God; and they that refift shall receive to themselves damnation. For princes are not to be feared for good works, but for evil. Wilt thou then be without fear of the power? Do well, fo Shalt thou have praise of the same; for he is the minister of God for thy wealth: but if thou do evil, sear: for he heareth not the favord for nought, for he is the minister of God, to take vengeance upon him that doth evil. Wherefore ye must be subject, not because of wrath only, but also for conscience sake: for this cause we pay also tribute, for they are God's ministers, scrving for the same purpose Give to every man therefore his due; tribute to whom tribute belongeth; custom to whom custom is due; fear to whom fear belongeth; honour to aubom ye owe honour. Thus far are St. Paul's words. The fecond place is in St. Peter's Epifile, and the fecond chapter, whose words are these: Submit yourselves unto all manner of ordinances of man for the Lord's fake, whether it he unto the king, as unto the chief head; either unto rulers, as unto them that are fent of him for the punishment of evil doers, but for the cherishing of them that do well. For so is the will of God, that with well doing ye may slop the mouths of ignorant and foolish men: as free, and not as having the liberty for a cloak of maliciousness, but even as the servants of God. Honour all men, love brotherly fellowship, fear God, honour the king. Servants, obey your masters with fear, not only if they be good and courteous, but also though they be froward. Thus far out of St. Peter.

By these two places of the holy Scriptures, it is most evident that kings, queens, and other princes, (for he speaketh of authority and power, be it in men or women,) are ordained of God, are to be obeyed and honoured of their fubjects; that fuch fubjects as are disobedient or rebellious against their princes, disobey God, and procure their own damnation; that the government of princes is a great bleffing of God, given for the commonwealth, specially of the good and godly; for the comfort and cherishing of whom, God giveth and setteth up princes; and, on the contrary part, to the fear and for the punishment of the evil and wicked. Finally, that if fervants ought to obey their masters, not only being gentle, but fuch as be froward; as well, and much more, ought fubjects to be obedient, not only to their good and courteous, but also to their sharp and rigorous princes. It cometh therefore neither of chance and fortune, (as they term it) nor of the ambition of mortal men and women, climbing up of their own accord to dominion, that there be kings, queens, princes, and other governors over men being their fubjects: but all kings, queens, and other governors are specially appointed by the ordinance of God. And as God himself, being of an infinite majesty, Psal. x. 16. power, and wifdom, ruleth and governeth all things in xlv. 6, &c. heaven and earth, as the universal Monarch and only xlvii. 2. King and Emperor over all, as being only able to take and bear the charge of all; so hath he constituted, ordained, and fet earthly princes over particular kingdoms and dominions in earth, both for the avoiding of all confusion, which else would be in the world, if it should be without governors, and for the great quiet and benefit of earthly men their fubjects, and also that the princes themfelves in authority, power, wifdom, providence, and righteousness, in government of people and countries committed to their charge, should resemble his heavenly governance, as the majesty of heavenly things may by Matt. xviii. And for that fimilitude that is between the heavenly mo-23. xxii. 2. narchy and earthly kingdoms well governed, our Saviour Pial. x. 16. xlv. 6. xlvii. 2.

Christ in fundry parables saith, that the kingdom of heaven is resembled unto a man, a king: and as the name Matt. xxii. of the King is very often attributed and given unto God 13. xxv. 34 in holy Scriptures; fo doth God himself in the same Scriptures fometime vouchfafe to communicate his name with earthly princes, terming them Gods: doubtless for that fimilitude of government which they have, or should have, not unlike unto God their King; unto the which similitude of heavenly government, the nearer and nearer that an earthly prince doth come in his regiment, the greater bleffing of God's mercy is he unto that country and people, over whom he reigneth: and the further and further that an earthly prince doth fwerve from the example of the heavenly government, the greater plague is he of God's wrath, and punishment by God's justice unto that country and people, over whom God for their fins hath placed fuch a prince and governor. For it is indeed evident, both by the Scriptures and daily by experience, that the maintenance of all virtue and godliness, and confequently of the wealth and prosperity of a kingdom and people, doth stand and rest more in a wife and good prince on the one part, than in great multitudes of other men being subjects: and, on the contrary part, the overthrow of all virtue and godliness, and consequently the decay and utter ruin of a realm and people doth grow and come more by an undifereet and evil governor, than by many thousands of other men being subjects. fay the holy Scriptures: Well is thee, O thou land, faith the Preacher, whose king is come of nobles, and whose princes eat in due season, for necessity, and not for lust. Again, A wife and righteous king maketh his realm and people wealthy: and a good, merciful, and gracious prince is a shadow in beat, as a defence in storms, as derv, as saveet showers, as fresh water springs in great droughts.

Ecclef. x. 17.

Prov. xvi. and xxix. Eccl. x. Ifa. xxxii.

Ecclef. x. 16. Prov. xxviii. & xxix.

Again, the Scriptures, of undifcreet and evil princes, speak thus: Woe be to thee, O thou land, whose king is but a child, and whose princes are early at their banquets. Again, When the wicked do reign, then men go to ruin. And again, A foolish prince destroyeth the people, and a covetous king undoeth his subjects. Thus speak the Scriptures, thus experience testifieth of good and evil princes.

What shall subjects do then? Shall they obey valiant, frout, wife, and good princes, and contemn, difobey, and rebel against children being their princes, or against undifereet and evil governors? God forbid: for first, what a perilous thing were it to commit unto the subjects the judgment, which prince is wife and godly, and his government good, and which is otherwife; as though the foot must judge of the head: an enterprise very heinous, and must needs breed rebellion. For who else be they that are most inclined to rebellion, but such haughty spirits? From whom fpringeth fuch foul ruin of realms? Is not rebellion the greatest of all mischiefs? And who are most ready to the greatest mischiefs, but the worst men? Rebels therefore the worst of all subjects are most ready to rebellion, as being the worst of all vices, and farthest from the duty of a good subject: as, on the contrary part, the best subjects are most firm and constant in obedience, as in the special and peculiar virtue of good subjects. What an unworthy matter were it then to make the naughtieft subjects, and most inclined to rebellion and all evil, judges over their princes, over their government, and over their counfellors; to determine which of them be good or tolerable, and which be evil, and fo intolerable, that they must needs be removed by rebels, being ever ready, as the naughtiest subjects, soonest to rebel against the best princes, specially if they be young in age, women, in fex, or gentle and courteous in government; as truffing by their wicked boldness easily to overthrow their weakness and gentleness, or at the least so to fear the minds of fuch princes, that they may have impunity of their mischievous doings!

But whereas indeed a rebel is worfe than the worft prince, and rebellion worse than the worst government of the worst prince that hitherto hath been; both rebels are unmeet ministers, and rebellion an unfit and unwholesome medicine to reform any small lacks in a prince, or to cure any little griefs in government, fuch lewd remedies being far worse than any other maladies and disorders that can be in the body of a commonwealth. But whatfoever the prince be, or his government, it is evident that for the most part those princes, whom some subjects do think to be very godly, and under whose government they rejoice to live, some other subjects do take the same to be evil and ungodly, and do with for a change. If therefore all fubjects that mislike of their prince should rebel, no realm fhould ever be without rebellion. It were more meet that rebels should hear the advice of wife men, and give place unto their judgment, and follow the example of obedient fubjects, as reason is that they whose understanding is blinded with fo evil an affection should give place to them that be of found judgment, and that the worst should give place to the better; and so might realms continue in long obedience, peace, and quietness. But what if the prince be undifcreet, and evil indeed, and is also evident to all men's eyes, that he so is? I ask again, what if it be long of the wickedness of the subjects, that the prince is undifcreet and evil? shall the subjects both by their wickedness provoke God, for their deferved punishment, to give them an undifereet or evil prince, and also rebel against him, and withal against God, who for the punishment of their fins did give them fuch a prince? Will you hear the Scriptures concerning this point? God, fay the holy Scriptures, maketh a wicked man to reign for the fins of the people. Again, God giveth a prince in his anger, (meaning an evil one) and taketh areay a prince in his displeasure, meaning specially when he taketh away a good prince for the fins of the people: as ward, in his young and good years, for our wickedness. And contrarily the Scriptures do teach, that God givetb wishow unto princes, and maketh a wife and good king to reign over that people whom he loveth, and who loveth bim.

in our memory he took away our good Josias, King Ed-

sam. xii. Again, If the people obey God, both they and their king shall prosper and be safe, else both shall perish, faith God by the mouth of Samuel.

Here you fee that God placeth as well evil princes as good, and for what cause he doth both. If we therefore will have a good prince, either to be given us, or to continue; now we have fuch a one, let us, by our obedience to God and to our prince, move God thereunto. If we will have an evil prince (when God shall fend such a one) taken away, and a good in his place, let us take away our wickedness, which provoketh God to place fuch a one over us, and God will either displace him, or of an evil prince make him a good prince, fo that we first will change our evil into good. For will you hear the Scriptures? The heart of the prince is in God's hand; which way foever it shall please him, he turneth it. Thus fay the Scriptures: Wherefore let us turn from our fins unto the Lord with all our bearts, and he will turn the beart of the prince unto our quiet and wealth. Else for subjects to deserve through their fins to have an evil prince, and then to rebel against him, were double and treble evil, by provoking God more to plague them. Nay, let us either deferve deferve to have a good prince, or let us patiently fuffer and obey such as we deserve. And whether the prince be good or evil, let us, according to the counsel of the holy Scriptures, pray for the prince, for his continuance and increase in goodness, if he be good, and for his amendment, if he be evil.

Will you hear the Scriptures concerning this most neceffary point? I exbort therefore, faith St. Paul, that, above I Tim. ii. all things, prayers, supplications, intercessions, and giving of 1, &c. thanks, be had for all men; for kings, and all that are in authority; that we may live a quiet and peaceable life with all godliness: for that is good and acceptable in the fight of God our Saviour, &c. This is St. Paul's counsel. And who, I pray you, was prince over the most part of the Christians, when God's holy Spirit by St. Paul's pen gave them this lesson? Forfooth, Caligula, Claudius, or Nero; who were not only no Christians, but Pagaus, and also either foolish rulers, or most cruel tyrants. Will you yet hear the word of God to the Jews, when they were prisoners under Nabuchodonofor king of Babylon, after he had flain their king, nobles, parents, children, and kinsfolks, burned their country, cities, yea, Jerusalem itself, and the holy temple, and had carried the residue remaining alive captives with him into Babylon? Will you hear yet what the Prophet Baruch faith unto God's people being in this captivity? Pray you, faith the Prophet, for the life of Nabu- Baruc. i. 11. chodonofor, king of Babylon, and for the life of Balthafar, bis fon; that their days may be as the days of beaven upon the earth, that God also may give us strength, and lighten our eyes, that we may live under the defence of Nabuchodonofor, king of Babylon, and under the protection of Balthafar, his fon; that we may long do them fervice, and find favour in their fight. Pray for us also unto the Lord our God, for we bave finned against the Lord our God.

Thus far the Prophet Baruch's words, which are spoken by him unto the people of God, of that king who was an Heathen, a tyrant, and a cruel oppressor of them, and had been a murderer of many thousands of their nation, and a destroyer of their country, with a confession that their fins had deserved such a prince to reign over them. And shall the old Christians, by St. Paul's exhortation, pray for Caligula, Claudius, or Nero? shall the Jews pray for Nabuchodonosor? these emperors and kings being strangers unto them, being Pagans and Insidels, being murderers, tyrants, and cruel oppressor of them, and destroyers of their country, countrymen, and kinsmen, the burners of their villages, towns, cities, and temples? and shall not we pray for the long, prosperous, and godly reign of our natural prince? No stranger (which is obferved as a great bleffing in the Scriptures) of our Chriftian, our most gracious Sovereign, no Heathen, nor Pagan prince? Shall we not pray for the health of our most merciful, most loving Sovereign, the preserver of us and our country in fo long peace, quietness, and security; no ernel person, no tyrant, no spoiler of our goods, no shedder of bloods, no burner and destrover of our towns, cities, and countries, as were those, for whom yet, as ye have heard, Christians being their subjects ought to pray? Let us not commit fo great ingratitude against God and our Sovereign, as not continually to thank God for his government, and for his great and continual benefits and bleffings poured upon us by fuch government. Let us not commit fo great a fin against God, against ourselves, and our country, as not to pray continually unto God for the long continuance of fo gracious a ruler unto us, and our country. Elfe shall we be unworthy any longer to enjoy those benefits and bleffings of God, which hitherto we have had by him, shall be most worthy to fall into all those mischiefs and miseries, which we and our country have by God's grace through his government hitherto escaped.

What shall we say of those subjects? May we call them by the name of subjects, who neither be thankful, nor make any prayer to God for fo gracious a Sovereign? but also themselves take armour wickedly, assemble companies and bands of rebels, to break the public peace for long continued; and to make, not war, but rebellion, to endanger the person of such a gracious Sovereign, to hazard the effate of their country, (for whose defence they should be ready to spend their lives) and, being Englishmen, to rob, spoil, destroy, and burn in England Englishmen, to kill and murder their own neighbours and kinsfolk, their own countrymen, to do all evil and mischief; yea, and more too than foreign enemies would or could do! What shall we say of these men, who use themselves thus rebelliously against their gracious Sovereign? who, if God for their wickedness had given them an Heathen tyrant to reign over them, were by God's word bound to obey him, and to pray for him? What may be fpoken of them? So far doth their unkindness, unnaturalness, wickedness, mischievonsness in their doings, pass and excel any thing, and all things that can be expressed and nttered by words. Only let us wish unto all such most fpeedy repentance, and with fo grievous forrow of heart as fuch fo horrible fins against the Majesty of God do require, who in most extreme unthankfulness do rife, not only against their gracious Prince, against their natural country, but against all their countrymen, women, and children, against themselves, their wives, children, and kinsfolks, and by fo wicked an example against all Christendom, and against whole mankind of all manner of people throughout the wide world-fuch repentance, I fay, fuch forrow of heart God grant unto all fuch, who foever rife of private and malicious purpofe, as is meet for fuch mischiefs attempted, and wrought by them. And unto us, and all other subjects, God of his mercy grant, that we may be most unlike to all such, and most like to good; natural, loving, and obedient subjects: nay, that we may be fuch indeed, not only shewing all obedience ourselves, but as many of us as be able to the uttermost of our power, ability, and understanding, to stay and repress all rebels, and rebellions against God, our gracious Prince, and natural country, at every occasion that is offered unto us. And that which we are all able to do, unless we do it, we fhall be most wicked, and most worthy to feel in the end fuch extreme plagues, as God hath ever poured upon rebels.

Let us make continual prayers unto Almighty God, even from the bottom of our hearts, that he will give his grace, power, and firength, unto our gracious King, to vanquish and subdue all, as well rebels at home as foreign enemies, that all domestical rebellions being suppressed and pacified, and all outward invafions repulfed and abandoned, we may not only be fure, and long continue in all obedience unto our gracious Sovereign, and in that peaceable and quiet life which hitherto we have led under his Majesty, with all security; but also that both our gracious King, and we his fubjects, may all together in all obedience unto God the King of Kings, and unto his holy laws, lead our lives fo in this world, in all virtue and godliness, that in the world to come we may enjoy his everlafting kingdom: which I befeech God to grant, as well to our gracious Sovereign, as unto us all, for his Son our Saviour Jefus Christ's fake: to whom with the Father and the Holy Ghost, one God and King immortal, be all glory, praife, and thankfgiving, world without end. Amen. Thus have you heard the First Part of this Homily.

Now, good People, let us pray.

THE PRAYER.

Most mighty God, the Lord of Hosts, the Governor of all creatures, the only giver of all victories, who alone art able to strengthen the weak against the mighty, and to vanquish infinite multitudes of thine enemics with the countenance of a few of thy fervants calling upon thy name, and truffing in thee; defend, O Lord, thy fervant and our governor under thee, our fovereign Lord the King, and all thy people committed to his charge. Lord, withstand the cruelty of all those which be common enemies as well to the truth of thy eternal word, as to their own natural prince and country, and manifestly to this crown and realm of England, which thou haft of thy divine providence affigned in these our days to the government of thy fervant, our fovereign and gracious King. O most merciful Father, if it be thy holy will, make foft and tender the stony hearts of all those that exalt themselves against thy truth, and seek either to trouble the quiet of this realm of England, or to oppress the crown of the fame; and convert them to the know-Jedge of thy Son, the only Saviour of the world, Jefus Christ, that we and they may jointly glorify thy mercies. Lighten, we befeech thee, their ignorant hearts to embrace the truth of thy word, or elfe fo abate their cruelty, O most mighty Lord, that this our Christian realm, with others that confess thy holy Gospel, may obtain, by thine aid and firength, furety from all enemies, without shedding of Christian blood, whereby all they which be oppressed with their tyranny may be relieved, and they which be in fear of their cruelty may be comforted; and finally, that all Christian realms, and especially this realm of England, may by thy defence and protection continue in the truth of the Gospel, and enjoy perfect peace, quietness, and fecurity; and that we for these thy mercies, jointly all together with one confonant heart and voice, may thankfully render to thee all laud and praise, that we, knit in one godly concord and unity amongst ourselves, may continually magnify thy glorious name, who with thy Son our Saviour Jesus Clirist, and the Holy Ghost, art one eternal, almighty, and most merciful God: to whom be all laud and praise, world without end. Amen.

A S in the first part of this treaty of obedience of sub-jects to their princes, and against disobedience and rebellion, I have alleged divers fentences out of the holy Scriptures for proof; so shall it be good for the better declaration and confirmation of the faid wholefome doctrine, to allege one example or two out of the holy Scriptures, of the obedience of fubjects, not only unto their good and gracious governors, but also unto their evil and unkind princes. As King Saul was not of the best, but rather of the worst fort of princes, as being out of God's favour for his disobedience against God in sparing, in a wrong pity, the King Agag, whom Almighty God commanded to be flain, according to the justice of God against his fworn enemy; and although Saul of a devotion meant to facrifice fuch things as he spared of the Amalekites to the honour and fervice of God; yet Saul was reproved for his wrong mercy and devotion, and was told, that obedience would have more pleafed him than fuch lenity; which finful humanity, faith holy Chryfoftom, is more cruel before God, than any murder or fhedding of blood, when it is commanded of God. But yet how evil foever Saul the king was, and out of God's favour; yet was he obeyed of his fubject David, the very best of all subjects, and most valiant in the service of his prince and country in the wars, the most obedient and loving in peace, and always most true and faithful to his tovereign and lord, and farthest off from all manner of rebellion. For the which his most painful, true, and faithful service, King Saul yet rewarded him not only with great unkindness, but also sought his destruction and death by all means posfible; fo that David was fain to fave his life; not by rebellion, or any refistance, but by flight and hiding himself from the King's fight. Which notwithstanding, when King Saul upon a time came alone into the cave where David was, so that David might easily have slain him, yet would be neither hurt him himself, neither suffer any of his men to lay hands upon him. Another time also David entering by night with one Abifai, a valiant and fierce man, into the tent where King Saul did lie afleep, where also he might yet more easily have slain him; yet would he neither hurt him himfelf, nor fuffer Abifai, who was wil-

Thus did David deal with Saul his prince, notwithstanding that King Saul continually fought his death and destruction. It shall not be amiss unto these deeds of David to add his words, and to flew you what he spake unto fuch as encouraged him to take his opportunity and advantage to flay King Saul, as his mortal enemy, when he might. The Lord keep me, faith David, from doing that thing, and from laying hands upon my Lord, God's anointed. For who can lay his hand upon the Lord's anointed, and be xxvi. 9, 10, guiltless? As truly as the Lord liveth, except that the Lord do smite him, or his days shall come to die, or that he go down to war, and be flain in battle: The Lord be merciful unto > me, that I lay not my hand upon the Lord's anointed. These be David's words, spoken at fundry times to divers his fervants provoking him to flay King Saul, when opportunity ferved him thereunto. Neither is it to be 2 Sam. i. 2, omitted and left out, how when an Amalekite had flain King Saul, even at Saul's own bidding and commandment, (for he would live no longer now, for that he had loft the field against his enemies the Philistines) the faid Amalekite making great hafte to bring first word and news thereof unto David, as joyous unto him for the death of his mortal enemy, bringing withal the crown that was upon King Saul's head, and the bracelet that was about his arm, both as a proof of the truth of his news, and also as fit and pleasant presents unto David, being by God appointed to be King Saul's fuccessor in the kingdom; yet was that faithful and godly David fo far from rejoicing at these news, that he rent his clothes, wept, and mourned, and fasted: and fo far off from thanksgiving to the meffenger, either for his deed in killing the king, though his deadly enemy, or for his meffage and news, or for his prefents that he brought, that he faid unto him, How happened it that thou wast not afraid to lay thy hands upon the Lord's anointed, to flay bim? Whereupon, immediately he commanded one of his fervants to kill the mef-fenger, and faid, Thy blood be upon thine own head, for thine own mouth bath witneffed against thyself, in confessing that thou hast slain the Lord's anointed.

This example, dearly beloved, is notable, and the circumflances thereof are well to be confidered, for the better instruction of all subjects in their bounden duty of obedience, and perpetual fearing of them from attempting of any rebellion, or hurt against their prince. On the one part, David was not only a good and true fubject, but also such a subject as, both in peace and war, had ferved and faved his prince's honour and life, and delivered his country and countrymen from great danger of infidels, foreign and most cruel enemies, horribly invading the king and his country: for the which David was in a 1 Sam. xviii. fingular favour with all the people, fo that he might have had great numbers of them at his commandment, if he would have attempted any thing. Besides this, David 1 Sam. xvi, was no common or absolute subject, but heir apparent to 12, &c. the crown and kingdom, by God appointed to reign after xviii, 11. Saul; which, as it increased the favour of the people that i Sam. knew it towards David, fo did it make David's cause and xviii. 10. case much differing from the case of common and abso-12. lute subjects. And, which is most of all, David was highly and fingularly in the favour of God: on the contrary part, King Saul was out of God's favour, (for that cause which is before rehearsed) and he as it were God's enemy, and therefore like in war and peace to be hurtful and pernicious unto the commonwealth; and that was known to many of his fubjects, for that he was openly rebuked of Samuel for his difobedience unto God, which might make the people the less to esteem him. King Saul was also unto David a mortal and deadly enemy, 1 Sam. though without David's deferving, who, by his faithful, xviii. xxii. painful, profitable, yea, most necessary fervice, had well deferved, as of his country, fo of his prince; but King Saul far otherwise: the more was his unkindness, hatred, and cruelty towards fuch a good fubject, both odious and detestable. Yet would David neither himself slay nor hurt fuch an enemy, for that he was his prince and lord, nor would fuffer any other to kill, hurt, or lay hand upon him, when he might have been flain without any flir, tumult, or danger of any man's life. Now let David answer to fuch demands, as men, defirous of rebellion, do use to make. Shall not we, specially being so good men as we The deare, rife and rebel against a prince, hated of God, and mand. God's enemy; and therefore likely not to prosper either in war or peace, but to be hurtful and pernicious to the commonwealth? No, faith good and godly David, God's The anand fuch a king's faithful fubject: and so convicting such swerfubjects as attempt any rebellion against such a king, to be neither good subjects nor good men. But, say they, shall we not rife and rebel against so unkind a prince, no- The dething confidering or regarding our true, faithful, and mand, painful fervice, or the lafeguard of our posterity? No, The anfaith good David, whom no fuch unkindness could cause sweet to forfake his due obedience to his fovereign. Shall we not, fay they, rife and rebel against our known, mortal, and deadly enemy, that feeketh our lives? No, faith godly David, who had learned the lesion that our Saviour afterward plainly taught, that we should do no hurt to our fellow-subjects, though they hate us, and be our enemies; much lefs unto our prince, though he were our enemy. Shall we not affemble an army of fuch good fellows as we are, and, by hazarding of our lives and the lives of fuch as shall withstand us, and withal hazarding the whole estate of our country, remove so naughty a prince? No, faith godly David; for I, when I might, without affembling force or number of men, without tumult or hazard of any man's life, or shedding of any drop of blood, have delivered myself and my country of an evil prince, yet would I not do it. Are not they, fay fome, lufty and courageous captains, valiant men of stomach, and good men's bodies, that do venture by force to kill and depose their king, being a naughty prince, and their mortal enemy? They may be as lufty and courageous as they lift, yet, faith godly David, they can be no good nor godly men that fo do: for I not only have rebuked, but alfo commanded him to be flain as a wicked man, which flew King Saul mine enemy; though he, being weary of his life for the loss of the victory against his enemies, defired that man to flay him. What shall we then do to an evil, to an unkind prince, an enemy to us, hated of God, hurtful to the commonwealth, &c.? Lay no violent hand upon him, faith good David; but let him live until God

Thus would godly David make answer; and St. Paul, as ye heard before, willeth us also to pray for such a prince. If King David would make these answers, as by his deeds and words, recorded in the holy Scriptures, indeed he doth make unto all fuch demands concerning rebelling against evil princes, unkind princes, cruel princes, princes that be to their good fubjects mortal enemies, princes that are out of God's favour, and to hurtful or like to be hurtful to the commonwealth; what answer, think you, would be make to those that demand, whether they (being naughty and unkind subjects) may not, to the great hazard of the life of many thousands, and the utter danger of the state of the commonwealth and the whole realm, affemble a fort of rebels, either to depose, to put in fear, or to destroy their natural and loving prince, enemy to none, good to all, even to them the worst of all other, the maintainer of perpetual peace, quietness, and fecurity, most beneficial to the commonwealth, most neceffary for the fafeguard of the whole realm? What anfwer would David make to their demand, whether they may not attempt cruelly and unnaturally to destroy fo peaceable and merciful a prince? what, I fay, would David, fo reverently speaking of Saul, and so patiently suffering fo evil a king, what would he answer and fay to such demands? What would he fay, nay, what would he do to fuch high attempters, who fo faid and did, as you before have heard, unto him that flew the king his mafter, though a most wicked prince? If he punished with death, as a wicked doer, fuch a man, with what reproaches of words would he revile fuch, yea, with what torments of most shameful deaths would be destroy such hell-hounds rather than evil men, fuch rebels I mean, as I last spake of? For if they, who do disobey an evil and unkind prince, be most unlike unto David, that good subject; what be they who do rebel against a most natural and loving prince? And if David, being fo good a fubject, that he obeyed so evil a king, was worthy of a subject to be made a king himfelf; what be they, which are fo evil subjects, that they will rebel against their gracious prince, worthy of? Surely no mortal man can express with words, nor conceive in mind, the horrible and most dreadful damnation that fuch be worthy of, who, difdaining to be the quiet and happy subjects of their good prince, are most worthy to be the miserable captives and vile slaves of that infernal tyrant Satan, and with him to fuffer eternal flavery and torments. This one example of the good subject David out of the Old Testament may suffice, and, for the notableness of it, serve for all.

In the New Testament, the excellent example of the blessed Virgin Mary, the mother of our Saviour Christ, Luke ii, doth at the first offer itself. When proclamation or com-1, &c. mandment was fent into Jewry from Augustus the emperor of Rome, that the people there should repair unto their own cities and dwelling-places, there to be taxed; neither did the blessed Virgin, though both highly in God's favour, and also being of the royal blood of the ancient natural kings of Jewry, disdain to obey the commandment of an Heathen and foreign prince, when God had placed such a one over them; neither did she allege for an excuse, that she was great with child, and most near her time of deliverance; neither grudged she at the length and tedious journey from Nazareth to Bethlehem, from whence and whither she must go to be taxed; neither repined she at the sharpness of the dead time of winter, being the latter end of December, an unfit time to travel in, specially a long journey for a woman being in her case: but, all excuses set apart, she obeyed, and came to the appointed place, where at her coming she found Luke ii. 7. fuch great refort and throng of people, that, finding no place in any inn, site was fain, after her long, painful, and tedious journey, to take up her lodging in a stable, where also she was delivered of her blessed Child; and this also declareth how near her time she took that journey. obedience of this most noble and most virtuous lady, to a foreign and Pagan prince, doth well teach us, who in comparison of her are most base and vile, what ready obedience we do owe to our natural and gracious Sovereign. Howbeit, in this case the obedience of the whole Jewish nation (being otherwise a stubborn people) unto the commandment of the same foreign Heathen prince, doth prove, that fuch Christians as do not most readily obey their natural gracious Sovereign, are far worse than the stubborn Jews, whom we yet account as the worst of all people. But no example ought to be of more force with us Christians, than the example of Christ, our Master Luke xxiii. and Saviour, who, though he were the Son of God, yet did always behave himself most reverently to such men as were in anthority in the world in his time, and he not Luke xxiii. rebelliously behaved himself, but openly did teach the Jews to pay tribute unto the Roman emperor, though a foreign and a Pagan prince; yea, himfelf with his Apoftles paid tribute unto him: and finally, being brought before Pontius Pilate, a stranger born, and an Heathen man, being lord prefident of Jewry, he acknowledged his authority and power to be given him from God, and obeyed patiently the fentence of most painful and shame-

> There be many and divers other examples of the obedience to princes, even fuch as be evil, in the New Testament, to the utter confusion of disobedient and rebellious people: but this one may be an eternal example, which the Son of God, and so the Lord of all, Jesus Christ hath given to us his Christians and fervants, and fueh as may ferve for all, to teach us to obey princes, though strangers, wicked, and wrongful, when God for our fins shall place fuck fuch over us. Whereby it followeth unavoidably, that fuch as do difobey or rebel against their own natural gracious Sovereigns, howsoever they call themselves, or be named of others, yet are they indeed no true Christians, but worse than Jews, worse than Heathens, and such as shall never enjoy the kingdom of heaven, which Christ by his obedience purchated for true Christians, being obedient to him the King of all kings, and to their prince, whom he hath placed over them: the which kingdom, the peculiar place of all such obedient subjects, I betech God our heavenly Father, for the same our Saviour Jesus Christ's sake, to grant unto us: to whom with the Holy Ghost be all laud, honour, and glory, now and for ever. Amen.

Thus have you heard the Second Part of this Homily.
Now, good people, let us pray.

THE PRAYER.

Most mighty God, the Lord of Hosts, the Governor of all creatures, the only giver of all victories, who alone art able to strengthen the weak against the mighty, and to vanquish infinite multitudes of thine enemies with the countenance of a few of thy fervants calling upon thy name, and trufting in thee; defend, O Lord, thy fervant and our governor under thee, our fovereign Lord the King, and all thy people committed to his charge. aid and firength, furety from all enemies, without fhedding of Christian blood, whereby all they which be oppressed with their tyranny may be relieved, and they which be in fear of their cruelty may be comforted: and sinally, that all Christian realms, and especially this realm of England, may by thy defence and protection continue in the truth of the Gospel, and enjoy perfect peace, quietness, and security; and that we for these thy mercies, jointly all together with one consonant heart and voice, may thankfully render to thee all laud and praise, that we, knit in one godly concord and unity amongst ourselves, may continually magnify thy glorious name, who with thy Son our Saviour Jesus Christ, and the Holy Ghost, art one eternal, almighty, and most merciful God: to whom be all laud and praise, world without end. Amen.

The Third Part of the Homily against Disobedience and wilful Rebellion.

A S I have in the first part of this treatise shewed unto you the doctrine of the holy Scriptures, as concerning the obcdience of true subjects to their princes, even as well to fuch as be evil, as unto the good; and in the fecond part of the fame treaty confirmed the fame doctrine by notable examples, likewife taken out of the holy Scriptures; fo remaineth it now, that I partly do declare unto you in this third part, what an abominable fin against God and man rebellion is, and how dreadfully the wrath of God is kindled and inflamed against all rebels, and what horrible plagues, punishments, and deaths, and finally eternal danmation doth hang over their heads: as how, on the contrary part, good and obedient subjects are in God's favour, and be partakers of peace, quietness, and fecurity, with other God's manifold bleffings in this world, and, by his mercies through our Saviour Christ, of life everlasting also in the world to come. How horrible a fin against God and man rebellion is, cannot possibly be expressed according unto the greatness thereof. For he that nameth rebellion, nameth not a fingular or one only fin, as is theft, robbery, murder, and fuch like; but he nameth the whole puddle and fink of all fins against God and man, against his prince, his country, his countrymen, his parents, his children, his kinsfolks, his friends, and against all men universally; all fins, I say, against God

God and all men heaped together, nameth he, that nameth rebellion. For concerning the offence of God's Majesty, who feeth not that rebellion riseth first by contempt of God and of his holy ordinances and laws, wherein he fo straightly commandeth obedience, forbiddeth disobedience and rebellion? And besides the dishonour done by rebels unto God's holy name, by their breaking of their oath made to their prince, with the attestation of God's name, and calling of his Majesty to witnefs, who heareth not the horrible oaths and blafphemies of God's holy name, that are used daily amongst rebels, that is either amongst them, or heareth the truth of their behaviour? Who knoweth not that rebels do not only themselves leave all works necessary to be done upon work-days, undone, whilst they accomplish their abominable work of rebellion, and to compel others, that would gladly be well occupied, to do the same; but also how rebels do not only leave the Sabbath-day of the Lord unfanctified, the temple and church of the Lord unreforted unto, but also do by their works of wickedness most horribly profane and pollute the Sabbath-day, serving Satan, and, by doing of his work, making it the Devil's day, instead of the Lord's day? Besides that, they compel good men, that would gladly ferve the Lord affembling in his temple and church upon his day, as becometh the Lord's fervants, to affemble and meet armed in the field, to refift the fury of fuch rebels. Yea, and many rebels, left they should leave any part of God's commandments in the first table of his law unbroken, or any fin against God undone, do make rebellion for the maintenance of their images and idols, and of their idolatry committed, or to be committed by them; and, in defpite of God, cut and tear in funder his holy word, and tread it under their feet, as of late ye know was done.

As concerning the fecond table of God's law, and all The fifth fins that may be committed against man, who feeth not commandthat they be contained in rebellion? For first, the rebels ment. do not only dishonour their prince, the parent of their country, but also do dishonour and shame their natural parents, if they have any, do shame their kindred and friends, do difinherit and undo for ever their children and heirs. Thefts, robberies, and murders, which of all fins The fixth are most loathed of most men, are in no men so much, and eighth nor fo perniciously and mischievously, as in rebels. For commandthe most arrant thieves, cruellest murderers that ever ment. were, fo long as they refrain from rebellion, as they are not many in number, fo fpreadeth their wickedness and damnation unto a few, they spoil but a few, they shed the blood but of a few in comparison. But rebels are the cause of infinite robberies, and murderers of great multitudes, and of those also whom they should defend from the spoil and violence of other: and as rebels are many in number, fo doth their wickedness and damnation Theseventh spread itself unto many. And if whoredom and adultery amongst fuch persons as are agreeable to such wickedness,

forcible oppressions of matrons and men's wives, and the violating and deflowering of virgins and maids, which are most rife with rebels? How horrible and damnable, think you, are they? Now besides that, rebels, by breach of their faith given, and the oath made to their prince, be guilty of most damnable perjury: it is wondrous to see what false colours and feigned causes, by slauderous lies made upon their prince, and the counfellors, rebels will devife to cloak their rebellion withal, which is the worst and most damnable of all false witness-bearing that may be possible. For what should I speak of coveting or decommandfiring of other men's wives, houses, lands, goods, and fervants, in rebels, who by their wills would leave unto no man any thing of his own!

Thus you fee that all good laws are by rebels violated and broken, and that all fins possible to be committed against God or man be contained in rebellion: which fins if a man lift to name by the accustomed names of the feven capital or deadly fins, as pride, envy, wrath, covetousness, sloth, gluttony, and lechery, he shall find them all in rebellion, and amongst rebels. For first, as ambition and defire to be aloft, which is the property of pride, ftirreth up many men's minds to rebellion, fo cometh it of a Luciferian pride and prefumption, that a few rebellious subjects should fet themselves up against the majesty of their prince, against the wisdom of the counsellors, against the power and force of all nobility, and the faithful fubjects and people of the whole realm. As for envy, wrath, murder, and defire of blood, and covetoufnefs of other men's goods, lands, and livings, they are the inseparable accidents of all rebels, and peculiar properties that do usually stir up wicked men unto rebellion.

Now fuch as by riotousness, gluttony, drunkenness, excess of apparel, and unthrifty games, have wasted their own goods unthriftily, the same are most apt unto, and most desirous of rebellion, whereby they trust to come by other men's goods unlawfully and violently. And where other gluttons and drunkards take too much of fuch meats and drinks as are ferved to tables, rebels wafte and confume in fhort space all corn in barns, fields, or elsewhere, whole garners, whole storehouses, whole ceilars, devour whole flocks of theep, whole droves of oxen and kine. And as rebels that are married, leaving their own wives at home, do most ungraciously; so much more do unmarried men, worse than any stallions or horses, (being now by rebellion set at liberty from correction of laws, which bridled them before) abuse by force other men's wives and daughters, and ravish virgins and maidens most shamefully, abominably, and damnably.

Thus all fins, by all names that fins may be named, and by all means that fins may be committed and wrought, do all wholly upon heaps follow rebellion, and are to be found altogether amongst rebels. Now whereas pestilence, famine, and war, are by the holy Scriptures 2 Sam. declared to be the greatest worldly plagues and miseries xxiv-14-that likely can be; it is evident, that all the miseries that all these plagues have in them do wholly altogether follow rebellion; wherein, as all their miseries be, so is there much more mischief than in them all.

For it is known that in the reforting of great companies of men together, which in rebellion happeneth both upon the part of true subjects, and of the rebels, by their close lying together, and corruption of the air and place where they do lie, with ordure and much filth in the hot weather, and by unwholesome lodging, and lying often upon the ground, specially in cold and wet weather in winter, by their unwholesome diet, and feeding at all times, and often by famine and lack of meat and drink in due time, and again by taking too much at other times: it is well known, I fay, that as well plagues and pestilences, as all other kinds of ficknesses and maladies, by these means grow up and spring amongst men, whereby more men are confumed at the length, than are by dint of fword fuddenly flain in the field. So that not only pestilences, but also all other sicknesses, diseases, and maladies do follow rebellion, which are much more horrible than plagues, pestilences, and diseases, sent directly from God, as hereafter shall appear more plainly.

And as for hunger and famine, they are the peculiar companions of rebellion; for while rebels do in thort time spoil and confume all corn and necessary provision, which men with their labours had gotten and appointed z Sam. xxiv. 14. upon, for their finding the whole year after, and also do let all other men, hufbandmen, and others, from their hufbandry, and other necessary works, whereby provision should be made for times to come, who feeth not that extreme famine and hunger must needs shortly ensue and follow rebellion? Now whereas the wife King and godly Prophet David judged war to be worfe than either famine or pestilence, for that these two are often suffered by God, for man's amendment, and be not fins of themfelves: but wars have always the fins and mischiefs of men upon the one fide or other joined with them, and therefore is war the greatest of these worldly mischiefs: but of all wars, civil war is the worst, and far more abominable yet is rebellion than any civil war, being unworthy the name of any war, fo far it exceedeth all wars in all naughtiness, in all mischief, and in all abomination. And therefore our Saviour Christ denounceth desolation and destruction to that realm, that by sedition and rebellion is divided in itself.

Now as I have shewed before that pestilence and famine, fo is it yet more evident that all the 'calamities, miseries, and mischiefs of war, be more grievous, and do more follow rebellion, than any other war, as being far worse than all other wars. For not only those ordinary and usual mischiefs and miseries of other wars do followrebellion, as corn, and other things necessary to man's use, to be spoiled, houses, villages, towns, cities to be taken, facked, burned, and deftroyed, not only many very wealthy men, but whole countries to be impoverished and utterly beggared, many thousands of men to be flain and murdered, women and maids to be violated and deflowered; which things when they are done by foreign enemies, we do much mourn, as we have great causes; yet are all these miseries without any wickedness wrought by any of our own countrymen. But when these mischiefs are wrought in rebellion by them that should be friends, by countrymen, by kinfmen, by those that should defend their country and countrymen from fuch miferies, the mifery is nothing fo great as is the mischief and wickedness, when the subjects unnaturally do rebel against their prince, whose honour and life they should defend, though it were with the loss of their own lives; countrymen to disturb the public peace and quietness of their country, for defence of whose quietness they should fpend their lives: the brother to feek, and often to work the death of his brother; the fon of the father, the father to feek or procure the death of his fons, being at man's age, and by their faults to difinherit their innocent children and kinfmen their heirs for ever, for whom they might purchase livings and lands, as natural parents do take care and pains, and to be at great costs and charges; and univerfally, inflead of all quietness, joy, and felicity, which do follow bleffed peace and due obedience, to bring in all trouble, forrow, disquietness of minds and bodies, and all mischief and calamity, to turn all good order upfide down, to bring all good laws in contempt, and to tread them under feet; to oppress all virtue and honefty, and all virtuous and honeft perfons; and to fet all vice and wickedness, and all vicious and wicked men at liberty; to work their wicked wills, which were before bridled by wholefome laws, to weaken, to overthrow, and to confume the strength of the realm, their natural country, as well by the spending and wasting of the money and treasure of the prince and realm, as by murdering the people of the fame, their own countrymen, who should defend the honour of their prince, and liberty Prov. xiv. of their country, against the invasion of foreign enemies: and fo finally to make their country, thus by their mifchief weakened, ready to be a prey and spoil to all outward enemies that will invade it, to the utter and perpetual captivity, flavery, and defiruction of all their countrymen, their children, their friends, their kinsfolks left alive, whom by their wicked rebellion they procure to be delivered into the hands of the foreign enemies, as much as in them doth lie.

In foreign wars our countrymen in obtaining the victory win the praise of valiantness; yea, and though they were overcome and slain, yet win they an honest commendation in this world, and die in a good conscience for serving God, their prince, and their country, and be children of eternal salvation: but the rebels, how desperate and strong soever they be, yet win they shame here in sighting against God, their prince, and country, and therefore justly do fall headlong into hell, if they die, and live in shame and searful conscience, though they ofcape.

But commonly they be rewarded with finameful deaths, their hands and carcafes fet upon poles, and hanged in chains, eaten with kites and crows, judged unworthy the honour of burial; and fo their fouls, if they repent not, (as commonly they do not) the Devil hurrieth them into hell in the midft of their mifchief. For which dreadful

Rom. xiii. execution St. Paul sheweth the cause of obedience, not only for fear of death, but also in conscience to God ward, for fear of eternal damnation in the world to come.

Wherefore, good people, let us, as the children of obedience, fear the dreadful execution of God, and live in quiet obedience, to be the children of everlasting falvation. For as heaven is the place of good obedient fubjects, and hell the prifon and dungeon of rebels against God and their prince; fo is that realm happy where most obedience of fubjects doth appear, being the very figure of heaven: and contrariwife, where most rebellions and rebels be, there is the express similitude of hell, and the rebels themselves are the very figures of fiends and devils, and their captain the ungracious pattern of Lucifer and Satan, the prince of darkness; of whose rebellion as they be followers, fo shall they of his damnation in hell undoubtedly be partakers, and as undoubtedly children of peace, the inheritors of heaven with God the Father, God the Son, and God the Holy Ghost: to whom be all honour and glory for ever and ever. Amen.

Thus have you heard the Third Part of this Homily. Now, good People, let us pray.

THE PRAYER.

Most mighty God, the Lord of Hosts, the Governor of all creatures, the only giver of all victories, who alone art able to firengthen the weak against the mighty, and to vanquish infinite multitudes of thine enemies with the countenance of a few of thy fervants calling upon thy name, and truffing in thee; defend, O Lord, thy fervant and our governor under thee, our fovereign Lord the King, and all thy people committed to his charge. Lord, withfland the cruelty of all those which be common enemies as well to the truth of thy eternal Word, as to their own natural prince and country, and manifestly to this crown and realm of England, which thou hast of thy divine providence affigued in these our days to the government of thy fervant, our fovereign and gracious King. O most merciful Father, if it be thy holy will, make foft and tender the stony hearts of all those that exalt themselves against thy truth, and seek either to trouble the quiet of this realm of England, or to oppress the crown of the fame; and convert them to the knowledge of thy Son, the only Saviour of the world, Jefus Christ, that we and they may jointly glorify thy mercies. Lighten, we befeech thee, their ignorant hearts to embrace the truth of thy word, or elfe to abate their cruelty, O most mighty Lord, that this our Christian realm, with others that confess thy holy Gospel, may obtain, by thinc aid and firength, furety from all enemies, without shedding of Christian blood, whereby all they which be opprefied with their tyranny may be relieved, and they which be in fear of their cruelty may be comforted; and finally, that all Christian realms, and especially this realm of England, may by thy defence and protection continue in the truth of the Gospel, and enjoy perfect peace, quietnefs, and fecurity; and that we for thefe thy mercies, jointly all together with one confonant heart and voice, may thankfully render to thee all laud and praise, that we, knit in one godly concord and unity amongst ourselves, may continually magnify thy glorious name, who with thy Son our Saviour Jesus Christ, and the Holy Ghost, art one eternal, almighty, and most merciful God: to whom be all laud and praife, world without end. Amen.

The Fourth Part of the Homily against Disobedience and Wilful Rebellion.

FOR your further instruction, good people, to shew unto you how much Almighty God doth abhor disobedience and wilful rebellion, specially when rebels advance themselves so high, that they arm themselves with weapons, and fland in the field to fight against God, their prince, and their country, it shall not be out of the way to thew some examples set out in Scriptures, written for our eternal erudition. We may foon know, good people, how heinous an offence the treachery of rebellion is, if we call to remembrance the heavy wrath and dreadful indignation of Almighty God against subjects as do only but inwardly grudge, mutter, and murmur against their governors, though their inward treason, so privily hatched in their breafts, come not to open declaration of their doings; as hard it is, whom the Devil hath fo far enticed against God's word, to keep themselves there: no, he meaneth still to blow the coal, to kindle their rebellious hearts hearts to flame into open deeds, if he be not with grace

Numb. xi.

Some of the children of Ifrael, being murmurers against xii. 10. xvi. their magistrates appointed over them by God, were Pial. lxxvii. stricken with foul leprofy; many were burnt up with fire fuddenly sent from the Lord; sometime a great fort of thousands were consumed with the pestilence; sometime they were stringed to death with a strange kind of stery serpents; and (which is most horrible) some of the captains with their band of murmurers not dying by any usual or natural death of men, but the earth opening, they, with their wives, children, and families, were swal-

Numb. xvi. lowed quick down into hell. Which horrible destructions of such Israelites as were murmurers against Moses, appointed by God to be their head and chief magistrate, are recorded in the Book of Numbers, and other places of the Scriptures, for perpetual memory and warning to all subjects, how highly God is displeased with the murmuring and evil speaking of subjects against their princes, so fewed xvi. that, as the Scripture recordeth, their murmur swas not

7, &c. against their prince only, being a mortal creature, but against God himself also. Now if such strange and horrible plagues did fall upon fuch fubjects as did only murmur and fpeak evil against their heads, what shall become of those most wicked imps of the Devil, that do conspire, arm themfelves, affemble great numbers of armed rebels, and lead them with them against their prince and country, spoiling and robbing, killing and murdering all good fubjects that do withstand them, as many as they may prevail against? But those examples are written to stay us not only from fuch mischiefs, but also from murmuring, and speaking once an evil word against our prince, which though any should do never fo fecretly, yet do the holy Scriptures thew that the very birds of the air will bewray them: and thefe fo many examples before noted out of the holy Scriptures do declare, that they shall not escape horrible punishment therefore. Now concerning actual rebellion, amongst many examples thereof set forth in the holy Scriptures, the example of Absalom is notable; who entering into conspiracy against King David his father, both used the advice of very witty men, and assembled a very great and huge company of rebels; the which Ab-

A fearful example of God's punishment, good people, to confider. Now Achitophel, though otherwife an exceed-Achitophel. ing wife man, yet the mifchievous counfellor of Abfalom, in this wicked rebellion, for lack of an hangman, a convenient fervitor for fuch a traitor, went and hanged up himself. A worthy end of all salse rebels, who, rather Sam. xv. himself. A worthy end of all salse rebels, who, rather 12. xvi. 2, than they flould lack due execution, will, by God's just 23. xvii. 23. judgment, become hangmen unto themselves. Thus xviii. 7, 8, happened it to the captains of that rebellion; beside 9. forty thousand of raseal rebels slain in the field, and in the

Likewise it is to be seen in the holy Scriptures, how that great rebellion, which the traitor Sheba moved in Ifrael, was fuddenly appealed, the head of the captain traitor, by the means of a filly woman, being cut off. And a Kings xx. as the holy Scriptures do fliew, fo doth daily experience prove, that the counsels, conspiracies, and attempts of rebels never took effect, neither came to good, but to most horrible end. For though God doth oftentimes prosper just and lawful enemies, which be no subjects, against their foreign enemies; yet did he never long prosper rebellious subjects against their prince, were they never fo great in authority, or fo many in number. Five princes or kings (for to the Scripture termeth them) with Gen. xiv. all their multitudes, could not prevail against Chedorlaomer, unto whom they had promifed loyalty and obedience, and had continued in the fame certain years; but they were all overthrown and taken prisoners by him: but Abraham with his family and kinsfolks, an handful of men in respect, owing no subjection unto Chedorlao-

vered the prisoners, and delivered them. So that though war be to dreadful and cruel a thing, as it is, yet doth God often prosper a few in lawful wars with foreign enemies against many thousands; but never yet prospered he subjects being rebels against their natural sovereign, were they never io great or noble, fo many, fo flout, fo witty, and politic, but always they came by the overthrow, and to a shameful end: so much doth God abhor rebellion more than other wars, though otherwife being fo dreadful, and fo great a destruction to mankind. Though not only great multitudes of the rude and rafcal commons, but fonietime also men of great wit, nobility, and authority, have moved rebellions against their lawful princes, (whereas true nobility should most abhor such villainous, and true wisdom should most detest such frantic rebellion;) though they should pretend fundry causes, as the redrefs of the commonwealth, (which rebellion of all other mischiefs doth most destroy) or reformation of religion, (whereas rebellion is most against all true religion;) though they have made a great fliew of holy meaning by beginning their rebellions with a counterfeit fervice of 2 Sam. xv. God, (as did wicked Abfalom begin his rebellion with facrificing unto God;) though they display and bear about enfigns and banners, which are acceptable unto the rude ignorant common people, great multitudes of whom by fuch false pretences and shews they do deceive, and draw unto them: yet were the multitudes of the rebels never to huge and great, the captains never fo noble, politic, and witty, the pretences feigned to be never fo good and holy, yet the speedy overthrow of all rebels, of what number, state, or condition soever they were, or what colour or cause soever they pretended, is and ever hath been fuch, that God thereby doth shew that he alloweth neither the dignity of any person, nor the multitude of any people, nor the weight of any cause, as sufficient for the which the fubjects may move rebellion against their princes.

Turn over and read the histories of all nations, look over the chronicles of our own country, call to mind so many rebellions of old time, and some yet fresh in memory, ye shall not find that God ever prospered any rebellion against their natural and lawful prince; but contrariwise, that the rebels were overthrown and slain, and such as were taken prisoners dreadfully executed. Consider the great and noble families of dukes, marquises, earls, and other lords, whose names ye shall read in our chronicles, now clean extinguished and gone; and seek out the causes of the decay, you shall find, that not lack of issue and heirs male hath so much wrought that decay, and waste of noble bloods and houses, as hath rebellion.

And for fo much as the redrefs of the commonwealth hath of old been the usual feigned pretence of rebels, and religion now of late beginneth to be a colour of rebellion; let all godly and difereet subjects consider well of both, and first concerning religion. If peaceable King Solomon was judged of God to be more meet to build his temple, (whereby the ordering of religion is meant) than his father King David, though otherwise a most godly king, for that David was a great warrior, and had shed much blood, though it were in his wars against the enemies of God; of this may all godly and reasonable subjects confider, that a peaceable prince, specially our most peaceable and merciful King, who hath hitherto shed no blood at all, no not of his most deadly enemies, is more like and far meeter either to fet up, or to maintain true religion, than are bloody rebels, who have not flied the blood of God's enemies, as King David had done, but do feek to shed the blood of God's friends, of their own countrymen, and of their own most dear friends and kinsfolk, yea, the destruction of their most gracious Prince and natural country, for defence of whom they ought to be ready to shed their blood, if need should so require. What a religion it is that fuch men by fuch means would reflore, may eafily be judged: even as good a religion furely, as rebels be good men and obedient fubjects, and as rebellion is a good mean of redrefs and reformation, being itself the greatest deformation of all that may possibly be. But as the truth of the Gospel of our Saviour Christ, being quietly and soberly taught, though it do cost them their lives that do teach it, is able to maintain the true religion; so hath a frantic religion need of such furious maintenances as is rebellion, and of fuch patrons as are rebels, being ready not to die for the true religion, but to kill all that shall or dare speak against their false fuperstition and wicked idolatry. Now concerning pretences of any redress of the commonwealth, made by rebels, every man that hath but half an eye may fee how vain they be, rebellion being, as I have before declared, the greatest ruin and destruction of all commonwealths that may be possible. And whoso looketh, on the one part, upon the perfous and government of the King's most K k honourable honourable counsellors, by the experiment of so many years proved honourable to his Majesty, and most profitable and beneficial unto our country and countrymen; and, on the other part, confidereth the persons, state, and conditions of the rebels themselves, the reformers, as they take upon them, of the present government; he shall find that the most rash and hair-brained men, the greatest unthrifts, that have most lewdly wasted their own goods and lands, those that are over the ears in debt, and such as, for their thefts, robberies, and murders, dare not in any well-governed commonwealth, where good laws are in force, shew their faces, such as are of most lewd and wicked behaviour and life, and all fuch as will not or cannot live in peace, are always most ready to move rebellion, or take part with rebels. And are not these meet men, trow you, to restore the commonwealth decayed, who have fo spoiled and confumed all their own wealth and thrift? and very like to amend other men's manners, who have fo vile vices and abominable conditions themselves? Surely that which they falfely call Reformation is indeed not only a defacing or deformation, but also an utter destruction of all commonwealth, as would well appear, might the rebels have their wills; and doth right well and too well appear by their doing in fuch places of the country where rebels do rout, where though they tarry but a very little while, they make fuch reformation that they destroy all places, and undo all men where they come, that the child yet unborn may rue it, and shall many years hereafter curse them.

Let no good and different subjects therefore follow the flag or banner displayed to rebellion, and borne by rebels, though it have the image of the plough painted therein, with God speed the plough, written under in great letters, knowing that none hinder the plough more than rebels, who will neither go to the plough themselves, nor suffer other that would go unto it. And though some rebels bear the picture of the five wounds painted, against those who put their only hope of falvation in the wounds of Christ; not those wounds which are painted in a clout by fome lewd painter, but in those wounds which Christ himself bare in his precious body: though they, little knowing what the crofs of Christ meaneth, which neither carver nor painter can make, do bear the image of the cross painted in a rag, against those that have the cross of Christ painted in their hearts; yea, though they paint withal in their flags, Hoc figno vinces, By this fign thou fhalt get the victory, by a most fond imitation of the posy of Constantinus Magnus, that noble Christian emperor and great conqueror of God's enemies, a most unmeet ensign for rebels, the enemies of God, their prince and country, or what other banner soever they shall bear; yet let no good and godly subject, upon any hope of victory or good success, follow such standard-bearers of rebellion.

For as examples of fuch practices are to be found as well in the histories of old, as also of latter rebellions, in our fathers and our fresh memory; so, notwithstanding these pretences made, and banners borne, are recorded withal to perpetual memory, the great and horrible murders of infinite multitudes and thousands of the common people flain in rebellion, dreadful executions of the authors and captains, the pitiful undoing of their wives and children, and difinheriting of the heirs of the rebels for ever, the spoiling, wasting, and destruction of the people and country where rebellion was first begun, that the child then and yet unborn might rue and lament it, with the final overthrow and shameful deaths of all rebels, fet forth as well in the histories of foreign nations, as in the chronicles of our own country, some thereof being yet in fresh memory, which, if they were collected together, would make many volumes and books: but, on the contrary part, all good luck, fuecess, and prosperity that ever happened unto any rebels of any age, time, or country, may be contained in a very few lines, or words.

Wherefore to conclude, let all good fubjects, confidering how horrible a fin against God, their prince, their country, and countrymen, against all God's and man's laws, rebellion is, being indeed not one feveral fin, but all fins against God and man heaped together; considering the mischievous life and deeds, and the shameful ends and deaths of all rebels hitherto, and the pitiful undoing of their wives, children, and families, and difinheriting of their heirs for ever; and, above all things, confidering the eternal damnation that is prepared for all impenitent rebels in hell with Satan, the first founder of rebellion, and grand captain of all rebels; let all good subjects, I fay, confidering thefe things, avoid and flee all rebellion, as the greatest of all mischiefs, and embrace due obedience to God and our prince, as the greatest of all virtues, that we may both escape all evils and miseries that do follow rebellion in this world, and eternal damnation in the world to come, and enjoy peace, quiet lefs, and fecurity, with all other God's benefits and bleffings which Kk2 follow follow obedience in this life, and finally may enjoy the kingdom of heaven, the peculiar place of all obedient subjects to God and their prince in the world to come: which I befeech God, the King of all kings, grant unto us for the obedience of his Son our Saviour Jesus Christ, unto whom with the Father and the Holy Ghost, one God and King immortal, all honour, service, and obedience, of all his creatures is due for ever. Amen.

Thus have you heard the Fourth Part of this Homily.
Now, good people, let us pray.

THE PRAYER.

Most mighty God, the Lord of Hosts, the Governor of all creatures, the only giver of all victories, who alone art able to strengthen the weak against the mighty, and to vanguish infinite multitudes of thine enemies with the countenance of a few of thy fervants calling upon thy name, and trufting in thee; defend, O Lord, thy fervant and our governor under thee, our fovereign Lord the King, and all thy people committed to his charge. O Lord, withfland the cruelty of all those which be common enemies as well to the truth of thy eternal Word, as to their own natural prince and country, and manifestly to this crown and realm of England, which thou hast of thy divine providence affigned in these our days to the government of thy fervant, our fovereign and gracious King. O most merciful Father, if it be thy holy will, make foft and tender the stony hearts of all those that exalt themselves against thy truth, and seek either to trouble the quiet of this realm of England, or to oppress the crown of the same; and convert them to the knowledge of thy Son, the only Saviour of the world, Jesus Christ, that we and they may jointly glorify thy mercies. Lighten, we befeech thee, their ignorant hearts to embrace the truth of thy word, or elfe fo abate their cruelty, O most mighty Lord, that this our Christian realm, with others that confess thy holy Gospel, may obtain, by thine aid and strength, surety from all enemies, without shedding of Christian blood, whereby all they which be oppreffed with their tyranny may be relieved, and they which be in fear of their cruelty may be comforted: and finally, that all Christian realms, and especially this realm of England, may by thy defence and protection continue in the truth of the Gospel, and enjoy perfect peace, quietnefs, nefs, and fecurity; and that we for these thy mercies, jointly all together with one consonant heart and voice, may thankfully render to thee all laud and praise, that we, knit in one godly concord and unity amongst ourselves, may continually magnify thy glorious name, who with thy Son our Saviour Jesus Christ, and the Holy Ghost, art one eternal, almighty, and most merciful God: to whom be all laud and praise, world without end. Amen.

HEREAS, after both doctrine and examples of due obedience of fubjects to their princes, I declared laftly unto you what an abominable fin against God and man rebellion is, and what horrible plagues, punishments, and deaths, with death everlasting, finally doth hang over the heads of all rebels; it shall not be either impertinent or unprofitable now to declare who they be, whom the Devil, the first author and founder of rebellion, doth chiefly use to the stirring up of subjects to rebel against their lawful princes; that knowing them, ye may see them, and their damnable suggestions, avoid all rebellion, and escape the horrible plagues, and dreadful death and damnation eternal, finally due to all rebels. Though many causes of rebellion may be reckoned, and almost as many as there be vices in men and women, as hath been before noted; yet in this place I will only touch the principal and most usual causes, as specially ambition and ignorance. By ambition, I mean the unlawful and restless desire in men to be of higher estate than God hath given or appointed unto them. By ignorance, I mean no unskilfulness in arts and sciences, but the lack of knowledge of God's bleffed will declared in his holy Word, which teacheth both extremely to abhor all rebellion, as being the root of all mischief, and specially to delight in obedience, as the beginning and foundation of all goodness, as hath been also before specified. And as these are the two chief causes of rebellion, fo are there specially two forts of men, in whom these vices do reign, by whom the Devil, the author of all evil, doth chiefly ftir up all disobedience and rebellion.

The refiles ambitious having once determined by one means or other to achieve to their intended purpose, when kk?

they cannot by lawful and peaceable means climb to high as they do defire, they attempt the same by force and violence: wherein when they cannot prevail against the ordinary authority and power of lawful princes and governors themselves alone, they do seek the aid and help of the ignorant multitude, abusing them to their wicked purpose. Wherefore feeing a few ambitious and malicious are que authors and heads, and multitudes of ignorant men are the ministers and furtherers of rebellion, the chief point of this part shall be as well to notify to the simple and ignorant men who they be, that have been and be usual authors of rebellion, that they may know them; and also to admonish them to beware of the subtle suggestions of such reftles's ambitious persons, and so to flee them; that rebellions (though attempted by a few ambitious) through the lack of maintenance by any multitudes, may speedily and eafily, without any great labour, danger, or damage, be repressed and clearly extinguished.

It is well known as well by all histories, as by daily experience, that none have either more ambitiously aspired above emperors, kings, and princes, nor have more perniciously moved the ignorant people to rebellion against their princes, than certain perfons which fallely challenge to themselves to be only counted and called spiritual. I must therefore here yet once again briefly put you, good people, in remembrance out of God's holy Word, how our Saviour Jesus Christ and his holy Apostles, the heads and chief of all true spiritual and ecclesiastical men, behaved themselves towards the princes and rulers of their time, though not the best governors that ever were, that you be not ignorant whether they be the true disciples and followers of Christ, and his apostles, and so true spiritual men, that either by ambition do so highly aspire, or do most maliciously teach, or most perniciously do execute rebellion against their lawful princes, being the worst of all carnal works, and mischievous deeds.

The holy Scriptures do teach most expressly, that our Saviour Christ himself, and his Apostles St. Paul, St. Peter, with others, were unto the magistrates and higher powers, which ruled at their being upon the earth, both obedient themselves, and did also diligently and earnestly exhort all other Christians to the like obedience unto their princes Luke xxiii. and governors: whereby it is evident that men of the clergy, and ecclefiaftical ministers, as their fuecesfors, ought both themselves specially, and before other, to be r Pet. ii. 13. obedient unto their princes, and also to exhort all others unto the fame. Our Saviour Christ likewise teaching by John vi. 15. his doctrine that his kingdom was not of this world, did xviii. 36. by his example, in fleeing from those that would have Matth. xx. made him king, confirm the fame; expressly also for-Markx. bidding his Apostles, and by them the whole clergy, 42. Luke xxii. all princely dominion over people and nations: and he 25 and his holy Apostles likewise, namely, Peter and Paul, Matth. did forbid unto all ecclefiaftical ministers dominion over xxiii 8. the church of Christ. And indeed while the ecclesiastical Luke ix. ministers continued in Christ's church in that order that is 2 Cor. i. in Christ's word prescribed unto them, and in Christian 24: kingdoms kept themselves obedient to their own princes, Matth. as the holy Scripture doth teach them; both was Christ's xviii. 4. church more clear from ambitious emulations and conten-xx.28. tions, and the state of Christian kingdoms less subject Luke ix.48. unto tumults and rebellions. But after that ambition and defire of dominion entered once into ecclefiaftical miniflers, whose greatness, after the doctrine and example of our Saviour, should chiefly stand in humbling themselves; and that the Bishop of Rome, being by the order of God's Word none other than the Bishop of that one see and diocefe, and never yet well able to govern the fame, did by intolerable ambition challenge, not only to be the head of all the church dispersed throughout the world, but also to be lord of all kingdoms of the world, as is expressly set forth in the Book of his own Canon Laws, most contrary to the Sex decre. doctrine and example of our Saviour Christ, whose vicar, lib. iii. tit. and of his Apostles, namely, Peter, whose successor he unic. & lib. pretendeth to be: after this ambition entered, and his v. tit. 9. c. challenge once made by the Bishop of Rome, he became 5. in glossa. at once the spoiler and destroyer both of the church, which is the kingdom of our Saviour Christ, and of

And whereas before that challenge made there was great amity and love amongst the Christians of all countries, hereupon began emulation and much hatred between the Bishop of Rome and his clergy and friends on the one part, and the Grecian clergy and Christians of the East on the other part, for that they refused to acknowledge any such supreme authority of the Bishop of Rome over them; the Bishop of Rome, for this cause amongst other, not only naming them, and taking them for Schismatics, but also never ceasing to perfecute them, and the Emperors who had their see and continuance in Greece, by stirring of the subjects to rebellion against their sove-

the Christian empire, and all Christian kingdoms, as an universal tyrant over all.

reign Lords, and by raifing deadly hatred and most cruel wars between them and other Christian princes. And when the Bishops of Rome had translated the title of the Emperor, and, as much as in them did lie, the empire itself, from their lord the Emperor of Greece, and of Rome also by right, unto the Christian princes of the West, they became in fhort space no better unto the West Emperors, than they were before unto the Emperors of Greece: for the usual discharging of subjects from their oath of sidelity made unto the Emperors of the West, their sovereign lords, by the Bishops of Rome; the unnatural stirring up of the fubjects unto rebellion against their princes, yea, of the fon against the father, by the Bishop of Rome; the most cruel and bloody wars raised amongst Christian princes of all kingdoms, the horrible murder of infinite thousands of Christian men, being slain by Christians; and, which enfued thereupon, the pitiful losses of fo many goodly cities, countries, dominions, and kingdoms, fometime possessed by Christians in Asia, Africa, Europe; the miserable fall of the empire and church of Greece, sometime the most flourishing part of Christendom, into the hands of the Turks; the lamentable diminishing, decay, and ruin of Christian religion; the dreadful increase of Paganism, and power of Insidels and miscreants, and all by the practice and procurement of the Bishop of Rome chiefly, is in the histories and chronicles written by the Bishop of Rome's own favourers and friends to be seen, and as well known unto all fuch as are acquainted with the faid histories. The ambitious intents and most subtle drifts of the Bishops of Rome in these their practices appeared evidently by their bold attempt in spoiling and robbing the Emperors of their towns, citics, dominions, and kingdoms, in Italy, Lombardy, and Sicily, of ancient right belonging to the empire, and by joining of them unto their bishoprick of Rome, or else giving them unto strangers, to hold them of the Church and Bishop of Rome as in capite, and as of the chief lords thereof, in which tenure they hold the most part thereof, even at this day. By these ambitious and indeed traitorous means, and spoiling of their sovereign lords, the Bishops of Rome, of priests, and none other by right than the Bishops of one city and diocese, are by false usurpation become great lords of many dominions, mighty princes, yea, or emperors rather, as claiming to have divers princes and kings to their vassals, liege-men, and subjects; as in the same histories written by their own familiars and courtiers is to be feen. And indeed fince the time that the Bishops of Rome, by ambition, treason, and usurpation, achieved and attained to this height and greatness, they behaved themfelves more like princes, kings, and emperors in all things, than remained like priests, bishops, and ecclesiastical or (as they would be called) spiritual persons, in any one thing at all. For after this rate they have handled other kings and princes of other realms throughout Christendom, as well as their sovereign lords the emperors, usually discharging their subjects of their oath of sidelity, and so stirring them up to rebellion against their natural princes, whereof some examples shall in the last part hereof be notified unto you.

Wherefore let all good subjects, knowing these the special instruments and ministers of the Devil, to the stirring up of all rebellions, avoid and fice them, and the pessilent suggestions of such forcign usurpers, and their adherents, and embrace all obedience to God, and their natural princes and sovereigns, that they may enjoy God's blessings, and their prince's favour, all peace, quietness, security in this world, and finally attain, through Christ our Saviour, life everlasting in the world to come: which God the Father, for the same our Saviour Jesus Christ's sake, grant unto us all: to whom with the Holy Ghost be all honour and glory, world without end. Amen.

Thus have you heard the Fifth Part of this Homily. Now, good People, let us pray.

THE PRAYER.

Most mighty God, the Lord of Hosts, the Governor of all creatures, the only giver of all victories, who alone art able to strengthen the weak against the mighty, and to vanquish infinite multitudes of thine enemies with the countenance of a few of thy fervants calling upon thy name, and trusting in thee; defend, O Lord, thy fervant and our governor under thee, our sovereign Lord the King, and all thy people committed to his charge. O Lord, withstand the cruelty of all those which be common enemies as well to the truth of thy eternal Word, as to their own natural prince and country, and manifestly to this crown and realm of England, which thou hast of thy divine providence assigned in these our days to the government of thy servant, our sovereign and gracious King. O most merciful Father, if it be thy holy will, make soft and tender the stony hearts of all those that exalt themselves against thy truth, and seek either to trouble the quiet of this realm of England, or to oppress the crown of the fame; and convert them to the knowledge of thy Son, the only Saviour of the world, Jefus Christ, that we and they may jointly glorify thy mercies. Lighten, we befeech thee, their ignorant hearts to embrace the truth of thy Word, or else so abate their cruelty, O most mighty Lord, that this our Christian realm, with others that confess thy holy Gospel, may obtain, by thine aid and strength, surety from all enemies, without shedding of Christian blood, whereby all they which be opprefied with their tyranny may be relieved, and they which be in fear of their cruelty may be comforted; and finally, that all Christian realms, and especially this realm of England, may by thy defence and protection continue in the truth of the Gospel, and enjoy perfect peace, quietness, and security; and that we for these thy mercies, jointly all together with one confonant heart and voice, may thankfully render to thee all laud and praise, that we, knit in one godly concord and unity amongst ourselves, may continually magnify thy glorious name, who with thy Son our Saviour Jesus Christ, and the Holy Ghost, art one eternal, almighty, and most merciful God: to whom be all laud and praise, world without end. Amen.

The Sixth and last Part of the Homily against Disobedience and wilful Rebellion.

OW whereas the injuries, oppressions, raveny, and tyranny of the Bishops of Rome, usurping as well against their natural lords the Emperors, as against all other Christian Kings and kingdoms, and their continual flirring of fubjects unto rebellions against their fovereign Lords, whereof I have partly admonished you before, were intolerable; and it may feem more than marvel, that any subjects would after such fort hold with umatural foreign usurpers against their own fovereign Lords, and natural country: it remaineth that I do declare the mean whereby they compatied thefe matters, and fo to conclude this whole treaty of due obedience, and against disobedience and wilful rebellion. You shall understand, that by ignorance of God's Word, wherein they kept all men, specially the common people, they wrought and brought to pass all thefe things, making them believe that all that they faid was true, all that they did was good and godly; and that

Of the ignorance of fimple people, the latter part. to hold with them in all things, against father, mother, prince, country, and all men, was most meritorious. And indeed what mischief will not blind ignorance lead

By ignorance, the Jewish clergy induced the common people to ask the delivery of Barabbas, the seditions murderer, and to sue for the cruel crucifying of our Saviour Christ, for that he rebuked the ambition, superstition, and other vices of the high priests and clergy. For as our Saviour Christ testissieth, that those who crucified him wist not what they did; so doth the holy Apostle St. Paul say, If they had known, if they had not been ignorant, they would never have crucified the Lord of glory: but they knew not what they did. Our Saviour Christ himself also foreshewed that it should come to pass by ignorance, that those, who should persecute and murder his true Apostles and Disciples, should think they did God acceptable facrifice and good fervice; as it is also verified even at this day.

And in this ignorance have the Bishops of Rome kept the people of God, specially the common fort, by no means so much, as by withdrawing the Word of God from them, and by keeping it under the veil of an unknown strange tongue. For as it served the ambitious humour of the Bishops of Rome to compel all nations to use the natural language of the city of Rome, where they were Bishops, which shewed a certain acknowledging of subjection unto them; so yet served it much more their crafty purpose, thereby to keep all people so blind, that they not knowing what they prayed, what they believed, what they were commanded by God, might take all their commandments for God's. For as they would not fuffer the holy Scriptures or church-fervice to be used or had in any other language than the Latin; fo were very few even of the most simple people taught the Lord's Prayer, the Articles of the Faith, and the Ten Commandments, otherwise than in Latin, which they understood not: by which univerfal ignorance, all men were ready to believe whatfoever they faid, and to do whatfoever they commanded.

For to imitate the Apostle's phrase; if the Emperor's Si cognosubjects had known out of God's Word their duty to their visient. Prince, they would not have suffered the Bishop of Rome II. & III. to persuade them to forsake their sovereign lord the Em-AnnoDom. peror, against their oath and sidelity, and to rebel against 726, &c. him, only for that he cast images (unto the which idola-cond Comtry was committed) out of the churches, which the Bi-mandment. shop of Rome bare them in hand to be herefy. If they had known of God's Word but as much as the Ten Commandments, they should have found that the Bishop of Rome was not only a traitor to the Emperor his liege lord, but to God also, and an horrible blasphemer of his Majesty, in calling his holy Word and Commandment, Herefy: and that which the Bishop of Rome took for a just cause to rebel against his lawful prince, they might have known to be a doubling and trebling of his most heinous wickednefs, heaped with horrible impiety and blafphemy. But left the poor people flould know too much, he would not let them have as much of God's Word as the Ten Commandments wholly and perfectly, withdrawing Henry IV. from them the fecond Commandment, that bewrayeth Gregor. VII. his impiety, by a fubtle facrilege. Had the Emperor's Anno Dom. fubjects likewife known, and been of any understanding in God's Word, would they at other times have rebelled against their sovereign Lord, and by their rebellion have holpen to depose him, only for that the Bishop of Rome did bear them in hand, that it was fimony and herefy too, for the Emperor to give any ecclefiaftical dignities or promotions to his learned chaplains, or other of his learned clergy, which all Christian emperors before him had done without controlment? Would they, I fay, for that the Bishop of Rome bare them so in hand, have rebelled by the space of more than forty years together against him, with fo much shedding of Christian blood, and murder of To many thousands of Christians, and finally have deposed their fovereign Lord, had they known and had in God's Word any understanding at all? Specially had they known that they did all this to pluck from their fovereign Lord, and his fuccessors for ever, that ancient right of the empire, to give it unto the Romish clergy, and to the Bishop of Rome, that he might for the confirmation of one archbishop, and for the Romish rag, which he calleth a Pall, fearce worth twelve-pence, receive many thousand crowns of gold, and of other bishops, likewise great sums of money for their bulls, which is fimony indeed: would, I fay, Christian men and subjects by rebellion have spent fo much Christian blood, and have deposed their natural, most noble, and most valiant Prince, to bring the matter finally to this pafs, had they known what they did, or had any understanding in God's Word at all? And as these anibitious usurpers the Bishops of Rome have overflowed all Italy and Germany with streams of Christian blood, fhed by the rebellions of ignorant fubjects against their natural Lords and Emperors, whom they have stirred thereunto by fuch false pretences; so is there no country in Christendom,

Christendom, which by their like means and false pretences hath not been over-fprinkled with the blood of fubjects by rebellion against their natural fovereigns, stirred up by the same Bishops of Rome.

And to use one example of our own country; the Bishop of Rome did pick a quarrel to King John of Eng-King John. land, about the election of Stephen Langton to the bishoprick of Canterbury, wherein the King had ancient right, being used by his progenitors, all Christian Kings of England before him, the Bithops of Rome having no right, but had begun then to usurp upon the Kings of England, and all other Christian Kings, as they had before done against their fovereign lords the Emperors: proceeding even by the fame ways and means, and likewife curfing King John, and discharging his subjects of their oath of fidelity unto their fovereign Lord. Now had Englishmen at that time known their duty to their Prince let forth in God's word, would a great many of nobles, and other Englishmen, natural subjects, for this foreign and unnatural usurper's vain curse of the King, Innocent. and for his feigned discharging of them of their oath III. and fidelity to their natural Lord, upon fo flender or no ground at all, have rebelled against their sovereign lord the King? Would English subjects have taken part against the King of England, and against Englishmen, with the French King and Frenchmen, being incenfed Philip, against this realm by the Bishop of Rome? Would they French have sout for and received the Dauphin of France, with King. have fent for and received the Dauphin of France, with a great army of Frenchmen, into the realm of England? Would they have fworn fidelity to the Dauphin of France, breaking their oath of fidelity to their natural lord the King of England, and have stood under the Dauphin's Lewis, banner displayed against the King of England? Would they Dauphin of have expelled their sovereign lord the King of England out of London, the chief city of England, and out of the greatest part of England, upon the fouth fide of the Trent, even unto Lincoln, and out of Lincoln itself also, and have delivered the possession thereof unto the Dauphin of France, whereof he kept the possession a great while? Would they being Englishmen have procured so great shedding of Englith blood, and other infinite mischiefs and miseries, unto England their natural country, as did follow those cruel wars and traitorous rebellion, the fruits of the Bishop of Rome's bleffings? Would they have driven their natural forereign lord the King of England to fuch extremity, that he was enforced to submit himself unto that foreign false usurper, the Bishop of Rome, who compelled him to furrender up the crown of England into the hands of his legate, who, in token of possession, kept it in his hands divers days, and then delivered it again to King John, upon that condition that the King and his fuccessors, Kings of England, thould hold the crown and kingdom of England of the Bishop of Rome and his successors, as the vaffals of the faid Bishops of Rome for ever: in token whereof, the Kings of England should also pay a yearly tribute to the faid Bishop of Rome, as his vassals and liegemen? Would Englishmen have brought their sovereign Lord and natural country into this thraldom and subjection to a falfe foreign usurper, had they known and had any understanding in God's Word at all? Out of the which most lamentable case, and miserable tyranny, raveny, and fpoil of the most greedy Romish wolves ensuing hereupon, the Kings and realm of England could not rid themselves by the space of many years after: the Bishop Acts of Par- of Rome by his ministers continually not only spoiling the realm and Kings of England of infinite treasure, but also with the same money hiring and maintaining foreign enemics against the realm and Kings of England, to keep them in fuch his fubjection, that they should not refuse to pay whatfoever those unfatiable wolves did greedily gape for, and fuffer whatfoever those most cruel tyrants would lay upon them. Would Englishmen have suffered this? Would they by rebellion have caused this, trow you, and all for the Bishop of Rome's causeless curse, had they in those days known and understood, that God doth curie the bleffings, and blefs the curfings of fuch wicked usurping bishops and tyrants? As it appeared afterward in King Henry the eighth's days, and King Edward the fixth, and in our gracious Sovereign's days that now is, Malach, ii. where neither the Pope's curfes, nor God's manifold bleffings, are wanting. But in King John's time, the Bishop of Rome understanding the brute blindness, ignorance of God's Word, and superstition of Englishmen, and how much they were inclined to worthip the Babylonical Beaft of Rome, and to fear all his threatenings, and caufeless cursings, he abused them thus, and by their rebellion brought this noble realm and Kings of England under his most cruel tyranny, and to be a spoil of his most vile and unfatiable covetouiness and raveny, for a long and a great deal too long a time. And to join unto the reports of histories matters of later memory, could the Bishop of Rome have raifed the rebellions in the North and West countries countries in the times of King Henry and King Edward, but by abusing of the ignorant people? or is it not most evident that the Bishop of Rome hath of late attempted by his Irish Patriarchs and Bishops, sent from Rome with his bulls, (whereof fome were apprehended) to break down the bars and hedges of the public peace in Ireland, only upon confidence easily to abuse the ignorance of the wild Irishmen? Or who feeth not that, upon like considence, yet more lately he hath likewife procured the breach of the public peace in England, (with the long and bleffed continuance whereof he is fore grieved) by the ministry of his disguised chaplains, creeping in laymen's apparel into the houses, and whispering in the ears of certain Northern borderers, being then most ignorant of their duty to God and to their prince of all people of the realm, whom therefore, as most meet and ready to execute his intended purpose, he hath by the said ignorant masspriefts, as blind guides leading the blind, brought those filly blind fubjects into the deep ditch of horrible rebellion, damnable to themselves, and very dangerous to the flate of the realm, had not God of his mercy miraculously calmed that raging tempest, not only without any shipwreck of the commonwealth, but almost without any shedding of Christian and English blood at all.

And it is yet much more to be lamented, that not only common people, but some other youthful or unskilful princes also, suffer themselves to be abused by the Bishop of Rome, his Cardinals and Bishops, to oppressing of Christian men their faithful fubjects, either themselves, or else by procuring the force and strength of Christian men, to be conveyed out of one country, to oppress true Christians in another country, and by these means open an entry unto Moors and Infidels into the possession of Christian realms, countries; other Christian princes in the mean time, by the Bishop of Rome's procuring also, being so occupied in civil wars, or troubled with rebellions, that they have neither leifure nor ability to confer their common forces to the defence of their fellow Christians, against such invasions of the common enemies of Christendom, the Infidels and mifereants. Would to God we might only read and hear out of the histories of old, and not also see and feel these new and present oppressions of Christians, rebellions of subjects, effusion of Christian blood, destruction of Christian men, decay and ruin of Christendom, increase of Paganism, most lamentable and pitiful to behold, being procured in these our days, as well as in times past, by the Bishop of Rome and his ministers, abusing the ignorance of God's Word, yet remaining in some Christian princes and people. By which forrow and bitter fruits of ignorance, all men ought to be moved to give ear and credit to God's Word, shewing as most truly, so most plainly how great a mischief ignorance is; and again how great and how good a gift of God knowledge in God's Word is. And to begin with the Romish clergy, who though they do brag now, as did fometime the Jewish elergy, that they cannot lack knowledge; yet doth God by his holy Prophets both charge them with ignorance, and threaten them also, for that Hofea iv. 6. they have repelled the knowledge of God's word and law, from themselves, and from his people, that he will repel them, that they shall be no more his priests. God likewife chargeth princes as well as priests, that they should endeavour themselves to get understanding and knowledge in his Word, threatening his heavy wrath and destruction unto them, if they fail thereof. And the Wise Man faith to all men univerfally, princes, priefts, and people, Where is no knowledge, there is no good nor health to the foul; and that all men be vain, in whom is not the knowledge of God and his holy Word; that they who walk in darkness wot not whither they go; and that the people that will not learn shall fall into great mis-chiefs, as did the people of Ifrael, who, for their ignorance in God's Word, were first led into captivity, and when by ignorance afterward they would not know the time of their visitation, but crucified Christ our Saviour, perfecuted his holy Apostles, and were so ignorant and blind, that when they did most wickedly and cruelly, they thought they did God good and acceptable fervice;

(as do many by ignorance think even at this day:)

finally, through their ignorance and blindness, their country, towns, cities, Jerusalem itself, and the temple of God, were all most horribly destroyed, the chiefest part of their people flain, and the rest led into most miserable captivity. For he that made them had no pity from the way of the truth, and the light of righteoufness hath not shined unto us; and the Sun of understanding hath not rifen unto us, we have wearied ourselves in the way Matt. vii. of wickedness and perdition, and have walked cumbrous John iii. and crooked ways: but the way of the Lord have we not known.

And as well our Saviour himself, as his Apostle St. Matt. xi. Paul, doth teach that the ignorance of God's Word cometh 15. xiii. 9. of the Devil, is the cause of all error and misjudging, (as 43. Luke viii. falleth out with ignorant subjects, who can rather efpy a 8. little mote in the eye of the prince, or a counfellor, than John v. a great beam in their own) and univerfally it is the cause 39. of all evil, and finally of eternal damnation; God's judg-Matt. vii. ment being fevere towards those, who, when the light of 7. Christ's Gospel is come into the world, do delight more Luke xi. 9. in darkness of ignorance, than in the light of knowledge 30, 31. in God's Word. For all are commanded to read or hear, Gal. i. 8. to fearch and study the holy Scriptures, and are promised Deut. v. understanding to be given them from God, if they so do: 32. right hand nor to the left.

In God's Word princes must learn how to obey God, 1 Thess. v. and to govern men: in God's Word subjects must learn John xii. obedience both to God and their princes. Old men and 35, 36. young, rich and poor, all men and women, all estates, Jam. i. 17. fexes, and ages, are taught their feveral duties in the 16. Word of God. For the Word of God is bright, giving John iii. fight unto all men's eyes, the shining lamp directing all men's paths and steps. Let us therefore awake from the fleep and darkness of ignorance, and open our eyes, that we may fee the light: let us rife from the works of darknefs, that we may escape eternal darkness, the due reward thereof, and let us walk in the light of God's Word, whilst we have light, as becometh the children of light; fo directing the steps of our lives in that way which leadeth to light and life everlasting, that we may finally obtain and enjoy the fame; which God the Father of lights, who dwelleth in light incomprehensible and inaccessible, grant unto us, through the light of the world, our Saviour Jefus Christ: unto whom with the Holy Ghost, one most glorious God, be all honour, praife, and thankfgiving, for

Thus have you heard the Sixth Part of this Hamily.
Now, good people, let us pray.

THE PRAYER.

Most mighty God, the Lord of Hosts, the Governor of all creatures, the only giver of all victories, who alone art able to strengthen the weak against the mighty, and to vanquish infinite multitudes of thine enemies with the countenance of a few of thy fervants calling upon thy name, and trusting in thee; defend, O Lord, thy fervant and our governor under thee, our fovereign Lord the King, and all thy people committed to his charge. Lord, withstand the cruelty of all those which be common enemies as well to the truth of thy eternal Word, as to their own natural prince and country, and manifestly to this crown and realm of England, which thou hast of thy divine providence assigned in these our days to the government of thy fervant, our fovereign and gracious King. O most merciful Father, if it be thy holy will, make foft and tender the flony hearts of all those that exalt themselves against thy truth, and seek either to trouble the quiet of this realm of England, or to oppress the crown of the fame; and convert them to the knowledge of thy Son, the only Saviour of the world, Jesus Christ, that we and they may jointly glorify thy mercies. Lighten, we befeech thee, their ignorant hearts to embrace the truth of thy word, or elfe fo abate their cruelty, O most mighty Lord, that this our Christian realm, with others that confess thy holy Gospel, may obtain, by thine aid and strength, surety from all enemies, without shedding of Christian blood, whereby all they which be oppressed with their tyranny may be relieved, and they which be in fear of their cruelty may be comforted: and finally, that all Christian realms, and especially this realm of England, may by thy defence and protection continue in the truth of the Gospel, and enjoy perfect peace, quietnefs, and fecurity; and that we for thefe thy mercies, jointly all together with one confonant heart and voice, may thankfully render to thee all laud and praife, that we, knit in one godly concord and unity amongst ourfelves, may continually magnify thy glorious name, who with thy Son our Saviour Jefus Christ, and the Holy Ghost, art one eternal, almighty, and most merciful God: to whom be all laud and praife, world without end. Amen.

A Thanksgiving for the Suppression of the last Rebellion.

Heavenly and most merciful Father, the defender of those that put their trust in thee, the fure fortress of all them that flee to thee for fuccour; who of thy most just judgments for our disobedience and rebellion against thy holy Word, and for our finful and wicked living, nothing answering to our holy profession, whereby we have given an occasion that thy holy name hath been blafphemed amongst the ignorant, hast of late both fore abashed the whole realm and people of England, with the terror and danger of rebellion, thereby to awake us out of our dead fleep of careless security; and hast yet, by the miferies following the fame rebellion, more flarply punished part of our countrymen and Christian brethren, who have more nearly felt the fame; and most dreadfully haft fcourged fome of the feditious perfons with terrible executions, justly inflicted for their disobedience unto thee, and to thy fervant their Sovereign, to the example of us all, and to the warning, correction, and amendment of thy fervants, of thine accustomed goodness, turning always the wickedness of evil men to the profit of them that fear thee; who, in thy judgments remembering thy mercy, haft by thy affiftance given the victory to thy fervant our Queen, her true nobility, and faithful fubjects, with fo little, or rather no effusion of Christian blood, as also might have justly ensued, to the exceeding comfort of all forrowful Christian hearts, and that of thy fatherly pity, and merciful goodness only, and even for thine own name's fake, without any our defert at all. Wherefore we render unto thee most humble and hearty thanks for thefe thy great mercies shewed unto us, who had deferved fliarper punishment, most humbly befeeching thee to grant unto all us that confess thy holy name, and profess the true and perfect religion of thy holy Gospel, thy heavenly grace to fliew ourfelves in our living according to our profession: that we, truly knowing thee in thy blessed Word, may obediently walk in thy holy commandments, and that we, being warned by this thy fatherly correction, do provoke thy just wrath against us no more; but may enjoy the continuance of thy great mercies towards us, thy right hand, as in this, so in all other invasions, rebellions, and dangers, continually faving and defending our church, our realm, our Queen, and people of Eng-Ll2 land, that all our posterities ensuing, confessing thy holy name, professing thy holy Gospel, and leading an holy life, may perpetually praise and magnify thee, with thy only Son Jesus Christ our Saviour, and the Holy Ghost: to whom be all laud, praise, glory, and empire, for ever and ever. Amen:

STATISTICS OF THE STATE OF

CONSTITUTIONS and CANONS Ecclefiaftical, treated upon by the Bishop of London, President of the Convocation for the Province of Canterbury, and the rest of the Bishops and Clergy of the said Province; and agreed upon with the King's Majesty's Licence, in their Synod begun at London, Anno Domini 1603, and in the Year of the Reign of our Sovereign Lord JAMES, by the Grace of God, King of England, France, and Ireland, the First, and of Scotland the Thirty-seventh: and now published for the due observation of them, by his Majesty's Authority under the Great Seal of England.

JAMES, by the grace of God, King of England, Scotland, France, and Ireland, Defender of the Faith, &c. to all to whom these presents shall come, greeting: Whereas our Bishops, Deans of our Cathedral Churches, Archdeacons, Chapters, and Colleges, and the other Clergy of every Diocefe within the Province of Canterbury, being fummoned and called by virtue of our Writ directed to the Most Reverend Father in God, John, late Archbishop of Canterbury, and bearing date the one and thirtieth day of January, in the first year of our reign of England, France, and Ireland, and of Scotland the thirty-seventh, to have appeared before him in our Cathedral Church of St. Paul in London, the twentieth day of March then next enfuing, or elsewhere, as he should have thought it most convenient, to treat, consent, and conclude upon certain difficult and urgent affairs mentioned in the said Writ; did thereupon, at the time appointed, and within the Cathedral Church of St. Paul aforesaid, assembls themselves, and appear in Convocation for that purpose, according to our faid Writ, before the Right Reverend Father in God, Richard Bishop of London, duly supon a second Writ of ours, dated the ninth day of March aforefaid) authorized, appointed, and constituted, by reason of the said Archbishop of Canterbury his death, Prefident of the faid Convocation, to execute those things, which, by virtue of our first Writ, did appertain to him the faid Archbishop to have executed, if he had lived: We, for divers urgent and weighty causes and confi-Ll4 derations us thereunto especially moving, of our especial grace, certain knowledge, and mere motion, did, by virtue of our Prerogative Royal, and Supreme Authority in Caufes Ecclefiastical, give and grant by our several Letters Patent under our Great Seal of England, the one dated the twelfth day of April last past, and the other the twenty-fifth day of June then next following, full, free, and lawful liberty, licence, power, and authority unto the faid Bishop of London, President of the faid Convocation, and to the other Bishops, Deans, Archdeacons, Chapters, and Colleges, and the rest of the Clergy before mentioned, of the faid Province, that they, from time to time, during our first Parliament now prorogued, might confer, treat, debate, consider, consult, and agree of and upon fuch Canons, Orders, Ordinances, and Constitutions, as they should think necessary, fit, and convenient, for the bonour and service of Almighty God, the good and quiet of the Church, and the better government thereof, to be from time to time observed, performed, fulfilled, and kept, as well by the Archbishops of Canterbury, the Bishops, and their Succeffors, and the rest of the whole Clergy of the said Province of Canterbury, in their several callings, offices, functions, ministries, degrees, and administrations; as also by all and every Dean of the Arches, and other Judge of the faid Archbishop's Courts, Guardians of Spiritualities, Chancellors, Deans and Chapters, Archdeacons, Commissaries, Officials, Registrars, and all and every other Ecclefiastical Officers, and their inferior Ministers, whatsoever, of the same Province of Canterbury, in their and every of their distinct Courts, and in the order and manner of their and every of their Proceedings; and by all other Persons within this realm, as far as lawfully, being members of the Church, it may concern them, as in our faid Letters Patent among st other clauses more at large doth appear. For a much as the Bishop of London, President of the faid Convocation, and others, the faid Bishops, Deans, Archdeacons, Chapters, and Colleges, with the rest of the Clergy, having met together, at the time and place before mentioned, and then and there, by virtue of our faid authority granted unto them, treated of, concluded, and agreed upon certain Canons, Orders, Ordinances, and Constitutions, to the end and purpose by us limited and prescribed unto them; and have thereupon offered and presented the same unto us, most bumbly desiring us to give our royal affent unto their faid Canons, Orders, Ordinances, and Constitutions, according to the form of a certain Statute or AEt of Parliament, made in that behalf in the twenty-fifth year of the reign of King Henry the Eighth, and by our faid Prerogative Royal and and Supreme Authority in Causes Ecclesiastical, to ratify by our Letters Patent under our Great Seal of England, and to confirm the same, the title and tenor of them being word for word as ensueth:

Of the CHURCH of ENGLAND.

1. The King's Supremacy over the Church of England, in Causes Ecclesiastical, to be maintained.

A Sour duty to the King's most excellent Majesty requireth, we first decree and ordain, That the Archbishop of Canterbury (from time to time), all Bishops of this province, all Deans, Archdeacons, Parfons, Vicars, and all other Ecclefiaftical Perfons, shall faithfully keep and obferve, and (as much as in them lieth) shall cause to be observed and kept of others, all and fingular laws and statutes, made for restoring to the Crown of this kingdom the ancient jurisdiction over the State Ecclefiastical, and abolishing of all foreign power repugnant to the fame. Furthermore, all Ecclefiastical Persons, having cure of fouls, and all other Preachers, and Readers of Divinity Lectures, shall, to the uttermost of their wit, knowledge, and learning, purely and fincerely, without any colour or diffimulation, teach, manifest, open, and declare, four times every year at the least, in their fermons and other collations and lectures, that all usurped and foreign power (forafmuch as the fame hath no establishment nor ground by the law of God) is for most just causes taken away and abolished: and that therefore no manner of obedience, or subjection, within his Majefty's realms and dominions, is due unto any fuch foreign power, but that the King's power, within his realms of England, Scotland, and Ireland, and all other his dominions and countries, is the highest power under God; to whom all men, as well inhabitants, as born within the fame, do by God's laws owe most loyalty and obedience, afore and above all other powers and potentates in the earth.

2. Impugners of the King's Supremacy censured.

WHOSOEVER shall hereafter affirm, That the King's Majesty hath not the same authority in Causes Eccle-siastical, that the godly Kings had amongst the Jews and Christian

Christian Emperors of the primitive Church; or impeach any part of his regal supremacy in the said causes restored to the Crown, and by the laws of this realm therein established; let him be excommunicated ipso facto, and not restored, but only by the Archbishop, after his repentance, and public revocation of those his wicked errors.

3. The Church of England, a true and Apostolical Church.

WHOSOEVER shall hereafter affirm, That the Church of England, by law established under the King's Majesty, is not a true and Apostolical Church, teaching and maintaining the doctrine of the Apostles; let him be excommunicated ipso facto, and not restored, but only by the Archbishop, after his repentance, and public revocation of this his wicked error.

4. Impugners of the public Worship of God, established in the Church of England, censured.

WHOSOEVER shall hereafter assirm, That the form of God's worship in the Church of England, established by law, and contained in the Book of Common Prayer and Administration of Sacraments, is a corrupt, superstitious, or unlawful worship of God, or containeth any thing in it that is repugnant to the Scriptures; let him be excommunicated ipso facto, and not restored, but by the Bishop of the place, or Archbishop, after his repentance, and public revocation of such his wicked errors.

5. Impugners of the Articles of Religion, established in the Church of England, confured.

WHOSOEVER shall hereafter affirm, That any of the nine and thirty Articles agreed upon by the Archbishops and Bishops of both provinces, and the whole Clergy, in the Convocation holden at London, in the year of our Lord God one thousand sive hundred sixty-two, for avoiding diversities of opinions, and for the establishing of confent touching true Religion, are in any part supersitious or erroneous, or such as he may not with a good confeience subscribe unto; let him be excommunicated insight facto, and not restored, but only by the Archbishop, after his repentance, and public revocation of such his wicked errors.

6. Impugners of the Rites and Ceremonies, established in the Church of England, confured.

WHOSOEVER shall hereafter affirm, That the Rites and Ceremonies of the Church of England by law established are wicked, antichristian, or supersitious, or such as, being commanded by lawful authority, men, who are zealously and godly affected, may not with any good confcience approve them, use them, or, as occasion requireth, subscribe unto them; let him be excommunicated ipso facto, and not restored until he repent, and publicly revoke such his wicked errors.

7. Impugners of the Government of the Church of England by Archbishops, Bishops, &c. censured.

WHOSOEVER shall hereafter affirm, That the government of the Church of England under his Majesty by Archbishops, Bishops, Deans, Archdeacons, and the rest that bear office in the same, is antichristian, and repugnant to the Word of God; let him be excommunicated ipsofacto, and so continue until he repent, and publicly revoke such his wicked errors.

3. Impugners of the Form of confecrating and ordering Archbishops, Bishops, &c. in the Church of England, censured.

WHOSOEVER shall hereafter affirm or teach, That the form and manner of making and confecrating Bishops, Priests, and Deacons, containeth any thing in it that is repugnant to the Word of God, or that they who are made Bishops, Priests, or Deacons, in that form, are not lawfully made, nor ought to be accounted, either by themselves or others, to be truly either Bishops, Priests, or Deacons, until they have some other calling to those divine offices; let him be excommunicated info facto, not to be restored until he repent, and publicly revoke such his wicked errors.

9. Authors of Schifm in the Church of England confured.

WHOSOEVER shall hereafter separate themselves from the Communion of Saints, as it is approved by the Apostles Rules, in the Church of England, and combine themselves together in a new brotherhood, accounting the Christians, who are conformable to the doctrine, government, rites and ceremonics of the Church of England, to be profane, and unmeet for them to join with in Christian profession; let them be excommunicated ipso facto, and not restored but by the Archbishop, after their repentance, and public revocation of such their wicked errors.

10. Maintainers of Schismatics in the Church of England censured.

WHOSOEVER shall hereafter affirm, That such Ministers, as refuse to subscribe to the form and manner of God's worship in the Church of England, prescribed in the Communion Book, and their adherents, may truly take unto them the name of another Church not established by law, and dare presume to publish it, That this their pretended Church hath of long time groaned under the burden of certain grievances imposed upon it, and upon the members thereof before mentioned, by the Church of England, and the Orders and Constitutions therein by law established; let them be excommunicated, and not restored until they repent, and publicly revoke such their wicked errors.

11. Maintainers of Conventicles censured.

WHOSOEVER shall hereafter affirm or maintain, That there are within this realm other meetings, assemblies, or congregations of the King's born subjects, than such as by the laws of this land are held and allowed, which may rightly challenge to themselves the name of True and Lawful Churches; let him be excommunicated, and not restored, but by the Archbishop, after his repentance, and public revocation of such his wicked errors.

12. Maintainers of Constitutions made in Conventicles confured.

WHOSOEVER shall hereafter affirm, That it is lawful for any fort of Ministers and Lay-persons, or of either of them, to join together, and make rules, orders, or constitutions, in Causes Ecclesiastical, without the King's authority, and shall submit themselves to be ruled and governed by them; let them be excommunicated ipso facto, and not be restored until they repent, and publicly revoke those their wicked and Anabaptistical errors.

Of Divine Service, and Administration of the Sacraments.

13. Due Celebration of Sundays and Holy-days.

A LL manner of perfons within the Church of England shall from henceforth celebrate and keep the Lord's Day, commonly called Sunday, and other Holy-days, according to God's holy will and pleasure, and the orders of the Church of England prescribed in that behalf; that is, in hearing the Word of God read and taught; in private and public prayers; in acknowledging their offences to God, and amendment of the same; in reconciling themselves charitably to their neighbours, where displeasure hath been; in oftentimes receiving the Communion of the body and blood of Christ; in visiting of the poor and sick; using all godly and sober conversation.

14. The prescript Form of Divine Service to be used on Sundays and Holy-days.

THE Common Prayer shall be said or sung distinctly and reverently upon such days as are appointed to be kept holy by the Book of Common Prayer, and their eves, and at convenient and usual times of those days, and in such place of every Church as the Bishop of the diocese, or Ecclesistical Ordinary of the place, shall think meet for the largeness or straitness of the same, so as the people may be most edified. All Ministers likewise shall observe the Orders, Rites, and Ceremonies prescribed in the Book of Common Prayer, as well in reading the holy Scriptures, and saying of Prayers, as in administration of the Sacraments, without either diminishing in regard of preaching, or in any other respect, or adding any thing in the matter or form thereof.

15. The Litany to be read on Wednesdays and Fridays.

THE Litany shall be said or sung when, and as it is set down in the Book of Common Prayer, by the Parsons, Vicars, Ministers, or Curates, in all Cathedral, Collegiate, Parish Churches, and Chapels, in some convenient place, according to the discretion of the Bishop of the diocese, or Ecclesiastical Ordinary of the place. And that we may speak more particularly, upon Wednesdays and Fridays weekly, though they be not Holy-days, the Minister, at the accustomed hours of service, shall refort to the Church or Chapel, and, warning being given to the people by tolling of a bell, shall say the Litany prescribed in the Book of Common Prayer: whereunto we wish every householder dwelling within half a mile of the Church to come, or send one at the least of his household, sit to join with the Minister in prayers.

the

16. Colleges to use the prescript Form of Divine Service.

IN the whole Divine Service, and administration of the holy Communion, in all Colleges and Halls in both Universities, the Order, Form, and Ceremonies shall be duly observed, as they are set down and prescribed in the Book of Common Prayer, without any omission or alteration.

17. Students in Colleges to wear Surplices in Time of Divine Service.

A LL Masters and Fellows of Colleges or Halls, and all the Scholars and Students in either of the Universities, shall, in their Churches and Chapels, upon all Sundays, Holy-days, and their Eves, at the time of Divine Service, wear Surplices, according to the order of the Church of England: and such as are Graduates shall agreeably wear with their Surplices such Hoods as do severally appertain unto their degrees.

18. A reverence and attention to be used within the Church in time of Divine Service.

In the time of Divine Service, and of every part thereof, all due reverence is to be used; for it is according to the Apostle's rule, Let all things be done decently, and according to order; answerably to which deceney and order, we judge these our directions following: No man shall cover his head in the Church or Chapel in the time of Divine Service, except he have some infirmity; in which case let him wear a night-cap or coif. All manner of persons then present shall reverently kneel upon their knees, when the general Consession, Litany, and other prayers are read; and shall stand up at the saying of the Belies, according to the rules in that behalf prescribed in the Book of Common Prayer: and likewise when in time of Divine Service the Lord Jesus shall be mentioned, due and lowly reverence shall be done by all persons present, as it hath been accustomed; testifying by these outward ceremonies and gestures, their inward humility, Christian refolution, and due acknowledgment that the Lord Jefus Christ, the true eternal Son of God, is the only Saviour of the world, in whom alone all the mercies, graces, and promifes of God to mankind, for this life, and the life to come, are fully and wholly comprised. None, either man, woman, or child, of what calling foever, shall be otherwise at such times busied in the church, than in quiet attendance to hear, mark, and understand that which is read, preached, or ministered; saying in their due places audibly with the Minister, the Confession, the Lord's Prayer, and the Creed; and making fuch other anfwers to the public prayers, as are appointed in the Book of Common Prayer: neither shall they disturb the Service or Sermon, by walking or talking, or any other way; nor depart out of the Church during the time of Service or Sermon, without fome urgent or reasonable cause.

19. Loiterers not to be suffered near the Church in time of Divine Service.

THE Church-wardens or Questmen, and their assistants, shall not suffer any idle persons to abide either in the Church-yard, or Church-porch, during the time of Divine Service, or Preaching; but shall cause them either to come in, or to depart.

20. Bread and Wine to be provided against every Communion.

THE Church-wardens of every parish, against the time of every Communion, shall at the charge of the parish, with the advice and direction of the Minister, provide a sufficient quantity of sine white Bread, and of good and wholesome Wine, for the number of Communicants that shall from time to time receive there: which Wine we require to be brought to the Communion-table in a clean and sweet standing pot or stoop of pewter, if not of purer metal.

21. The Communion to be Thrice a Year received.

IN every Parish-church and Chapel, where Sacraments are to be administered within this realm, the holy Communion shall be ministered by the Parson, Vicar, or Minister, so often, and at such times, as every parishioner may communicate at the least thrice in the year, (whereof the feast feast of Easter to be one) according as they are appointed by the Book of Common Prayer. Provided, That every Minister, as oft as he administereth the Communion, shall first receive that Sacrament himself. Furthermore, no Bread or Wine newly brought shall be used; but first the words of Institution shall be rehearsed, when the said Bread and Wine be present upon the Communion-table. Likewise the Minister shall deliver both the Bread and the Wine to every Communicant severally.

22. Warning to be given beforehand for the Communion.

WHEREAS every Lay-person is bound to receive the holy Communion thrice every year, and many not-withstanding do not receive that Sacrament once in a year; we do require every Minister to give warning to his parishioners publicly in the Church at Morning Prayer, the Sunday before every time of his administering that holy Sacrament, for their better preparation of themselves; which said warning we enjoin the said parishioners to accept and obey, under the penalty and danger of the law.

23. Students in Colleges to receive the Communion Four times a Year.

In all Colleges and Halls within both the Universities, the Masters and Fellows, such especially as have any pupils, shall be careful that all their said pupils, and the rest that remain amongst them, be well brought up, and throughly instructed in points of religion, and that they do diligently frequent public Service and Sermons, and receive the holy Communion; which we ordain to be administered in all such Colleges and Halls the first or second Sunday of every month, requiring all the said Masters, Fellows, and Scholars, and all the rest of the Students, Officers, and all other the Servants there, so to be ordered, that every one of them shall communicate four times in the year at the least, kneeling reverently and decently upon their knees, according to the order of the Communion Book prescribed in that behalf.

24. Copes to be worn in Cathedral Churches by those that administer the Communion.

IN all Cathedral and Collegiate Churches, the holy Communion shall be administered upon principal feast-days, sometimes by the Bishop, if he be present, and sometimes times by the Dean, and at fometimes by a Canon or Prebendary, the principal Minister using a decent Cope, and being affisted with the Gospeller and Epistler agreeably, according to the Advertisements published Anno 7 Eliz. The said Communion to be administered at such times, and with such limitation, as is specified in the Book of Common Prayer. Provided, That no such limitation by any construction shall be allowed of, but that all Deans, Wardens, Masters or Heads of Cathedral and Collegiate Churches, Prebendaries, Canons, Vicars, Petty Canons, Singing Men, and all others of the foundation, shall receive the Communion four times yearly at the least.

25. Surplices and Hoods to be evorn in Cathedral Churches, when there is no Communion.

IN the time of Divine Service and Prayers in all Cathedral and Collegiate Churches, when there is no Communion, it shall be sufficient to wear Surplices; faving that all Deans, Masters, and Heads of Collegiate Churches, Canons, and Prebendaries, being Graduates, shall daily, at the times both of Prayer and Preaching, wear with their Surplices such Hoods as are agreeable to their degrees.

26. Notorious Offenders not to be admitted to the Communion.

O Minister shall in any wife admit to the receiving of the holy Communion, any of his cure or flock, which be openly known to live in fin notorious, without repentance; nor any who have maliciously and openly contended with their neighbours, until they shall be reconciled; nor any Church-wardens or Side-men, who having taken their oaths to prefent to their Ordinaries all fuch public offences as they are particularly charged to enquire of in their feveral parishes, shall (notwithstanding their said oaths, and that their faithful discharging of them is the chief means whereby public fins and offences may be reformed and punished) wittingly and willingly, desperately and irreligiously, incur the horrible crime of perjury, either in neglecting or in refusing to present such of the faid enormities and public offences, as they know themfelves to be committed in their faid parishes, or are notorioully offensive to the congregation there; although they be urged by some of their neighbours, or by their Minifter, or by their Ordinary himself, to discharge their confciences fciences by presenting of them, and not to incur so desperately the said horrible sin of perjury.

27. Schismatics not to be admitted to the Communion.

No Minister, when he celebrateth the Communion, shall wittingly administer the same to any but to such as kneel, under pain of fuspension, nor under the like pain to any that refuse to be present at public Prayers, according to the Orders of the Church of England; nor to any that are common and notorious depravers of the Book of Common Prayer and Administration of the Sacraments, and of the Orders, Rites, and Ceremonies therein prescribed, or of any thing that is contained in any of the Articles agreed upon in the Convocation, one thoufand five hundred fixty and two, or of any thing contained in the Book of ordering the Priests and Bishops; or to any that have spoken against and depraved his Majesty's sovereign authority in Causes Ecclesiastical; except every fuch person shall first acknowledge to the Minister, before the Church-wardens, his repentance for the fame, and promife by word (if he cannot write) that he will do fo no more; and except (if he can write) he shall first do the same under his hand-writing, to be delivered to the Minister, and by him fent to the Bishop of the diocese, or Ordinary of the place. Provided, That every Minister so repelling any, as is specified either in this or in the next precedent Constitution, shall, upon complaint, or being required by the Ordinary, figuify the cause thereof unto him, and therein obey his order and direction.

28. Strangers not to be admitted to the Communion.

THE Church-wardens or Questmen, and their affistants, shall mark, as well as the Minister, whether all and every of the Parishioners come so often every year to the holy Communion, as the Laws and our Constitutions do require; and whether any Strangers come often and commonly from other parishes to their Church; and shall shew their Minister of them, lest perhaps they be admitted to the Lord's Table amongst others, which they shall forbid; and remit such home to their own Parish-churches and Ministers, there to receive the Communion with the rest of their own neighbours.

29. Fathers

29. Fathers not to be Godfathers in Baptism, and Children not Communicants.

NO Parent shall be urged to be present, nor be admitted to answer as Godfather for his own Child; nor any Godfather or Godmother shall be suffered to make any other answer or speech, than by the Book of Common Prayer is prescribed in that behalf: neither shall any person be admitted Godfather or Godmother to any Child at Christening or Confirmation, before the said person so undertaking hath received the holy Communion.

30. The lawful Use of the Cross in Baptism explained.

WE are forry that his Majesty's most princely care and pains taken in the Conference at Hampton-Court, amongst many other points, touching this one of the Cross in Baptism, hath taken no better effect with many, but that still the use of it in Baptism is so greatly stuck at and impugned. For the further declaration therefore of the true use of this ceremony, and for the removing of all such scruple, as might any ways trouble the consciences of them who are indeed rightly religious, following the royal steps of our most worthy King, because he therein followeth the rules of the Scriptures, and the practice of the primitive Church; we do commend to all the true members of the Church of England these our directions and observations ensuing.

First, it is to be observed, that although the Jews and Ethnicks derided both the Apostles and the rest of the Christians, for preaching and believing in him who was crucified upon the Cross; yet all; both Apostles and Christians, were so far from being discouraged from their profession by the ignominy of the Cross, as they rather rejoiced and triumphed in it. Yea, the Holy Ghost by the mouths of the Apostles did honour the name of the Cross (being hateful among the Jews) so far, that under it he comprehended not only Christ crucified, but the force, effects, and merits of his Death and Passion, with all the comforts, fruits, and promises, which we receive or

Secondly, the honour and dignity of the name of the Cross begat a reverend estimation even in the Apostles' times (for ought that is known to the contrary) of the Sign of the Cross, which the Christians shortly after M m 2

used in all their actions; thereby making an outward thew and profession, even to the assonithment of the Jews, that they were not ashamed to acknowledge him for their Lord and Saviour, who died for them upon the Crofs. And this Sign they did not only use themselves with a kind of glory, when they met with any Jews, but figned therewith their children when they were christened, to dedicate them by that badge to his service, whose benefits bestowed upon them in Baptism the name of the Crofs did represent. And this use of the Sign of the Crofs in Baptifin was held in the primitive Church, as well by the Greeks as the Latins, with one confent and great applaufe. At what time, if any had opposed themfelves against it, they would certainly have been censured as enemies of the name of the Cross, and consequently of Christ's merits, the Sign whereof they could no better endure. This continual and general use of the Sign of the Crofs is evident by many testimonies of the ancient Fathers.

Thirdly, it must be confessed, that in process of time the Sign of the Crofs was greatly abused in the Church of Rome, especially after that corruption of Popery had once possessed it. But the abuse of a thing doth not take away the lawful use of it. Nay, so far was it from the purpose of the Church of England to forsake and reject the Churches of Italy, France, Spain, Germany, or any fuch like Churches, in all things which they held and practifed, that, as the Apology of the Church of England confesseth, it doth with reverence retain those ceremonics, which do neither endamage the Church of God, nor offend the minds of fober men; and only departed from them in those particular points, wherein they were fallen both from themselves in their ancient integrity, and from the Apostolical Churches, which were their first founders. In which respect, amongst some other very ancient ceremonies, the Sign of the Cross in Baptism hath been retained in this Church, both by the judgment and practice of those reverend Fathers and great Divines in the days of King Edward the fixth, of whom fome constantly fuffered for the profession of the truth; and others being exiled in the time of Queen Mary, did after their return, in the beginning of the reign of our late dread Sovereign, continually defend and use the same. This resolution and practice of our Church hath been allowed and approved by the cenfure upon the Communion-book in King Edward the fixth his days, and by the harmony of Confessions of later years: because indeed the use of this Sign in Baptism was ever accompanied here with such sufficient cautions and exceptions against all Popish superstition and error, as in the like cases are either sit or convenient.

First, the Church of England, since the abolishing of Popery, hath ever held and taught, and so doth hold and teach still, that the Sign of the Cross used in Baptism is no part of the substance of that Sacrament: for when the Minister dipping the infant in water, or laying water upon the face of it, (as the manner also is) hath pronounced these words, I baptize thee in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost, the infant is fully and perfectly baptized. So as the Sign of the Cross being afterwards used, doth neither add any thing to the virtue and perfection of Baptism, nor being omitted doth detract any thing from the effect and substance of it.

Secondly, it is apparent in the Communion-book, that the infant baptized is, by virtue of Baptism, before it be signed with the Sign of the Cross, received into the congregation of Christ's flock, as a perfect member thereof, and not by any power aferibed unto the Sign of the Cross. So that for the very remembrance of the Cross, which is very precious to all them that rightly believe in Jesus Christ, and in the other respects mentioned, the Church of England hath retained still the Sign of it in Baptism: following therein the primitive and apostolical Churches, and accounting it a lawful outward ceremony and honourable badge, whereby the infant is dedicated to the service of him that died upon the Cross, as by the words used in the Book of Common Prayer it may appear.

Lastly, the use of the Sign of the Cross in Baptism, being thus purged from all Popish superstition and error, and reduced in the Church of England to the primary institution of it, upon those true rules of doctrine concerning things indifferent, which are consonant to the Word of God, and the judgment of all the ancient Fathers, we hold it the part of every private man, both Minister and other, reverently to retain the true use of it prescribed by public authority; considering that things of themselves indifferent do in some fort alter their natures, when they are either commanded or forbidden by a lawful magistrate; and may not be omitted at every man's pleasure, contrary to the law, when they be commanded, nor used when they

Ministers, their Ordination, Function, and Charge.

31. Four folemn Times appointed for the making of Ministers.

FORASMUCH as the ancient Fathers of the Church, led by example of the Apostles, appointed prayers and fasts to be used at the solemn Ordering of Ministers; and to that purpose allotted certain times, in which only Sacred Orders might be given or conferred: we, following their holy and religious example, do constitute and decree, that no Deacons or Ministers be made and ordained, but only upon the Sundays immediately following Jejunia quatuor temporum, commonly called Ember Weeks, appointed in ancient time for prayer and fasting, (purposely for this cause at their first institution) and so continued at this day in the Church of England: and that this be done in the Cathedral or Parish Church where the Bishop resideth, and in the time of Divine Service, in the prefence not only of the Archdeacon, but of the Dean and two Prebendaries at the least, or (if they shall happen by any lawful cause to be let or hindered) in the presence of four other grave persons, being Masters of Arts at the least, and allowed for public Preachers.

32. None to be made Deacon and Minister both in one day.

THE office of Deacon being a step or degree to the Ministry, according to the judgment of the ancient Fathers, and the practice of the primitive Church; we do ordain and appoint, that hereaster no Bishop shall make any person, of what qualities or gists soever, a Deacon and a Minister both together upon one day; but that the order in that behalf prescribed in the Book of making and consecrating Bishops, Priests, and Deacons, be strictly observed. Not that always every Deacon should be kept from the Ministry for a whole year, when the Bishop shall sind good cause to the contrary; but that there being now four times appointed in every year for the Ordination of Deacons and Ministers, there may ever be some time of trial of their behaviour in the office of Deacon, before they be admitted to the order of Priesthood.

33. The Titles of such as are to be made Ministers.

IT hath been long fince provided by many decrees of the ancient Fathers, that none should be admitted either ancient Fathers, that none should be admitted either Deacon or Prieft, who had not first some certain place where he might use his function. According to which examples we do ordain, that henceforth no person shall be admitted into Sacred Orders, except he shall at that time exhibit to the Bishop, of whom he desireth impofition of hands, a Presentation of himself to some Ecclefiaftical Preferment then void in that diocefe; or shall bring to the faid Bishop a true and undoubted Certificate, that either he is provided of some Church within the faid diocefe, where he may attend the cure of fouls, or of fome Minister's place vacant, either in the Cathedral Church of that diocese, or in some other Collegiate Church therein also situate, where he may execute his ministry; or that he is a Fellow, or in right as a Fellow, or to be a Conduct or Chaplain in fome College in Cambridge or Oxford; or except he be a Master of Arts of five years standing, that liveth of his own charge in either of the Universities; or except by the Bishop himself, that doth ordain him Minister, he be shortly after to be admitted either to some Benefice or Curateship then void. And if any Bishop shall admit any person into the ministry, that hath none of these titles as is aforesaid, then he shall keep and maintain him with all things necessary, till he do prefer him to some Ecclesiastical Living. And if the faid Bishop shall refuse so to do, he shall be suspended by the Archbishop, being affisted with another Bishop, from giving of orders by the space of a year.

34. The Quality of such as are to be made Ministers.

O Bishop shall henceforth admit any person into Sacred Orders, which is not of his own diocese, except he be either of one of the Universities of this realm, or except he shall bring Letters Dimissory (so termed) from the Bishop of whose diocese he is; and desiring to be a Deacon, is three and twenty years old; and to be a Priest, four and twenty years complete; and hath taken some degree of school in either of the said Universities; or at the least, except he be able to yield an account of his saith in Latin, according to the Articles of Religion approved in the Synod of the Bishops and Clergy of this realm, one thousand sive hundred sixty and two, and to m M M 4 confirm the same by sufficient testimonies out of the holy Scriptures; and except moreover he shall then exhibit Letters Testimonial of his good life and conversation, under the seal of some College of Cambridge or Oxford, where before he remained, or of three or sour grave Ministers, together with the subscription and testimony of other credible persons, who have known his life and behaviour by the space of three years next before.

35. The Examination of fuch as are to be made Ministers.

THE Bishop, before he admit any person to holy Orders, shall diligently examine him in the presence of those Ministers that shall assist him at the imposition of hands: and if the faid Bishop have any lawful impediment, he shall cause the said Ministers earefully to examine every fuch person so to be ordered. Provided, that they who shall affift the Bishop in examining and laying on of hands, shall be of his Cathedral Church, if they may conveniently be had, or other fufficient Preachers of the fame diocese, to the number of three at the least: and if any Bishop or Suffragan shall admit any to Sacred Orders who is not fo qualified and examined, as before we have ordained, the Archbishop of his province, having notice thereof, and being affifted therein by one Bishop, shall suspend the faid Bishop or Suffragan so offending, from making either Deacons or Priests for the space of two years.

36. Subscription required of such as are to be made Ministers.

NO person shall hereafter be received into the Ministry, nor either by institution or collation admitted to any Ecclesiastical Living, nor suffered to preach, to catechize, or to be a Lecturer or Reader of Divinity in either University, or in any Cathedral or Collegiate Church, City, or Market-town, Parish-church, Chapel, or in any other place within this realm, except he be licensed either by the Archbishop, or by the Bishop of the diocese, where he is to be placed, under their hands and seals, or by one of the two Universities under their feal likewise; and except he shall first subscribe to these three Articles following, in such manner and fort as we have here appointed.

I. That the King's Majesty, under God, is the only supreme Governor of this realm, and of all other his Highness's dominions and countries, as well in all Spiritual or Ecclefiaftical things or causes, as Temporal; and that no foreign prince, person, prelate, state, or potentate hath, or ought to have, any jurisdiction, power, superiority, pre-eminence, or authority, Ecclesiastical or Spiritual, within his Majesty's said realms, dominions, and countries.

II. That the Book of Common Prayer, and of ordering of Bishops, Priests, and Deacons, containeth in it nothing contrary to the Word of God, and that it may lawfully so be used; and that he himself will use the form in the said Book prescribed, in public Prayer, and Administration of the Sacraments, and none other.

III. That he alloweth the Book of Articles of Religion agreed upon by the Archbishops and Bishops of both provinces, and the whole Clergy in the Convocation holden at London in the year of our Lord God one thousand five hundred fixty and two; and that he acknowledgeth all and every the Articles therein contained, being in number nine and thirty, besides the Ratisfication, to be agreeable to the Word of God.

To these three Articles whosoever will subscribe, he shall, for the avoiding of all ambiguities, subscribe in this order and form of words, setting down both his Christian and Surname, viz. I. N. N. do willingly and ex animo subscribe to these three articles above mentioned, and to all things that are contained in them. And if any Bishop shall ordain, admit, or license any, as is aforesaid, except he sirst have subscribed in manner and form as here we have appointed, he shall be suspended from giving of orders and licenses to preach, for the space of twelve months. But if either of the Universities shall offend therein, we leave them to the danger of the law, and his Majesty's censure.

37. Subscription before the Diocesan.

NONE licenfed, as is aforefaid, to preach, read lecture, or catechize, coming to refide in any diocefe, shall be permitted there to preach, read lecture, catechize, or minister the Sacraments, or to execute any other Eccle-staffical function, by what authority soever he be thereunto admitted, unless he first consent and subscribe to the three Articles before mentioned, in the presence of the Bishop of the diocese, wherein he is to preach, read lecture, catechize, or administer the Sacraments, as aforestaid.

38. Revolters after Subscription censured.

IF any Minister, after he hath once subscribed to the said three Articles, shall omit to use the form of Prayer, or any of the Orders or Ceremonies prescribed in the Communion-book, let him be suspended; and if after a month he do not reform and submit himself, let him be excommunicated; and then if he shall not submit himself within the space of another month, let him be deposed from the ministry.

39. Cautions for Institution of Ministers into Benefices.

NO Bishop shall institute any to a Benefice, who hath been ordained by any other Bishop, except he first shew unto him his Letters of Orders, and bring him a sufficient testimony of his former good life and behaviour, if the Bishop shall require it; and lastly, shall appear, upon due examination, to be worthy of his ministry.

40. An Oath against Simony at Institution into Benefices.

To avoid the detestable fin of Simony, because buy-ing and felling of Spiritual and Ecclesiatical functions. ing and felling of Spiritual and Ecclefialtical functions, offices, promotions, dignities, and livings, is execrable before God; therefore the Archbishop, and all and every Bishop or Bishops, or any other person or persons having authority to admit, inflitute, collate, inftall, or to confirm the election of any Archbishop, Bishop, or other person or persons, to any Spiritual or Ecclefiastical function, dignity, promotion, title, office, jurisdiction, place, or benefice with cure or without cure, or to any Ecclefiaftical living whatfoever, shall, before every such admission, institution, collation, installation, or confirmation of election, respectively minister to every person hereaster to be admitted, instituted, collated, installed, or consirmed in or to any Archbishoprick, Bishoprick, or other Spiritual or Ecclesiastical function, dignity, promotion, title, office, jurisdiction, place, or benefice with cure or without cure, or in or to any Ecclefiaftical living whatfoever, this oath, in manner and form following, the fame to be taken by every one whom it concerneth in his own person, and not by a Proctor: I N. N. do fivear, That I have made no Simoniacal payment, contract, or promise, directly or indirectly, by myself, or by any other, to my knowledge, or with my confent, to any person or perfons whatfoever, for or concerning the procuring and obtaining of this Ecclefiaflical dignity, place, preferment, office, or living, (respectively and particularly naming the same whereunto whereunto he is to be admitted, instituted, collated, installed, or confirmed,) nor will at any time hereafter perform or satisfy any such kind of payment, contract, or promise made by any other without my knowledge or consent: So help me God, through Jesus Christ.

41. Licences for Plurality of Benefices limited, and Residence enjoined.

Denefices with Cure than one, shall be granted to any but such only as shall be thought very well worthy for his learning, and very well able and sufficient to discharge his duty; that is, who shall have taken the degree of a Master of Arts at the least in one of the Universities of this realm, and be a public and sufficient Preacher licensed. Provided always, That he be by a good and sufficient caution bound to make his personal residence in each his said Benefices for some reasonable time in every year; and that the said Benefices be not more than thirty miles distant asunder; and lastly, that he have under him in the Benefice, where he doth not reside, a Preacher lawfully allowed, that is able sufficiently to teach and instruct the people.

42. Residence of Deans in their Churches.

EVERY Dean, Master, or Warden, or chief Governor of any Cathedral or Collegiate Church, shall be resident in his faid Cathedral or Collegiate Church fourscore and ten days conjunctim or divisim in every year at the least, and then shall continue there in preaching the Word of God, and keeping good hospitality, except he shall be otherwise let with weighty and urgent causes, to be approved by the Bishop of the diocese, or in any other lawful fort dispensed with. And when he is present, he, with the rest of the Canons or Prebendaries resident, shall take special care that the statutes and laudable customs of their Church, (not being contrary to the Word of God, or Prerogative Royal) the flatutes of this realm being in force concerning Ecclefiastical Order, and all other Constitutions now fet forth and confirmed by his Majesty's authority, and fuch as shall be lawfully enjoined by the Bishop of the diocese in his Visitation, according to the statutes and customs of the same Church, or the Ecclesiastical laws of this realm, be diligently observed; and that the Petty Canons, Vicars Choral, and other Ministers of their Church, be urged to the study of the holy Scriptures; and every one of them to have the New Testament not only in English, but also in Latin.

43. Deans and Prebendaries to preach during their Residence.

THE Dean, Master, Warden, or chief Governor, Prebendaries, and Canons in every Cathedral and Collegiate Church, shall not only preach there in their own persons fo often as they are bound by law, flatute, ordinance, or custom, but shall likewise preach in other Churches of the fame diocefe where they are refident, and especially in those places whence they or their Church receive any yearly rents or profits. And in case they themselves be tick, or lawfully abfent, they shall substitute such licenfed Preachers to fupply their turns, as by the Bishop of the diocese shall be thought meet to preach in Cathedral Churches. And if any otherwise neglect or omit to fupply his courfe, as is aforefaid, the offender shall be punished by the Bishop, or by him or them to whom the jurisdiction of that Church appertaineth, according to the quality of the offence.

44. Prebendaries to be resident upon their Benefices.

O Prebendaries nor Canons in Cathedral or Collegiate Churches, having one or more Benefices with Cure, (and not being Residentiaries in the same Cathedral or Collegiate Churches) shall, under colour of their faid Prebends, abfent themselves from their Benefices with Cure above the space of one month in the year, unless it be for some urgent cause, and certain time to be allowed by the Bishop of the diocese. And such of the said Canons and Prebendaries, as by the ordinances of the Cathedral or Collegiate Churches do fland bound to be refident in the fame, shall so among themselves fort and proportion the times of the year, concerning refidency to be kept in the faid Churches, as that fome of them always shall be personally resident there; and that all those who be, or shall be Residentiaries in any Cathedral or Collegiate Church, shall, after the days of their residency appointed by their local features or customs expired, prefently repair to their Benefices, or fome one of them, or to some other charge where the law requireth their presence, there to discharge their duties according to the laws in that case provided. And the Bishop of the diocese shall fee the same to be duly performed and put in execution.

45. Beneficed Preachers, being refident upon their Livings, to preach every Sunday.

EVERY beneficed man allowed to be a Preacher, and refiding on his Benefice, having no lawful impediment, thall in his own Cure, or in fome other Church or Chapel, where he may conveniently, near adjoining, (where no Preacher is) preach one Sermon every Sunday of the year; wherein he shall soberly and sincerely divide the word of truth, to the glory of God, and to the best edification of the people.

46. Beneficed Men, not Preachers, to procure monthly Sermons.

VERY beneficed man, not allowed to be a Preacher, fhall procure Sermons to be preached in his Cure once in every month at the leaft, by Preachers lawfully licenfed, if his living, in the judgment of the Ordinary, will be able to bear it. And upon every Sunday, when there shall not be a Sermon preached in his Cure, he or his Curate shall read some one of the Homilies prescribed or to be prescribed by authority, to the intents aforesaid.

47. Absence of beneficed Men to be supplied by Curates that are allowed Preachers.

LVERY beneficed man, licenfed by the laws of this realm, upon urgent occasions of other fervice not to reside upon his Benefice, shall cause his Cure to be supplied by a Curate that is a sufficient and licensed Preacher, if the worth of the Benefice will bear it. But whosever hath two Benefices shall maintain a Preacher licensed in the Benefice where he doth not reside, except he preach himself at both of them usually.

48. None to be Curates but allowed by the Bishop.

O Curate or Minister shall be permitted to serve in any place, without examination and admission of the Bishop of the diocese, or Ordinary of the place, having episcopal jurisdiction, in writing under his hand and feal, having respect to the greatness of the Cure, and meetness of the Party. And the said Curates and Ministers, if they remove from one diocese to another, shall not be by any means admitted to serve without testimony of the Bishop of the diocefe, or Ordinary of the place, as aforefaid, whence they came, in writing, of their honefty, ability, and conformity to the Ecclefiaftical Laws of the Church of England. Nor shall any serve more than one Church or Chapel upon one day, except that Chapel be a member of the Parish-church, or united thereunto; and unless the said Church or Chapel, where such a Minister shall serve in two places, be not able in the judgment of the Bishop or Ordinary, as aforesaid, to maintain a Curate.

49. Ministers, not allowed Preachers, may not expound.

No person whatsoever not examined and approved by the Bishop of the diocese, or not licensed, as is aforesaid, for a sufficient or convenient Preacher, shall take upon him to expound in his own Cure, or elsewhere, any Scripture or matter of Doctrine; but shall only study to read plainly and aptly (without glossing or adding) the Homilies already set forth, or hereafter to be published by lawful authority, for the confirmation of the true faith, and for the good instruction and ediscation of the people.

50. Strangers not admitted to preach without showing their Licence.

NEITHER the Minister, Church-wardens, nor any other Officers of the Church, shall suffer any man to preach within their Churches or Chapels, but such as, by shewing their Licence to preach, shall appear unto them to be sufficiently authorized thereunto, as is afore-said.

51. Strangers not admitted to preach in Cathedral Churches without sufficient Authority.

THE Deans, Prefidents, and Refidentiaries of any Cathedral or Collegiate Church, shall suffer no Stranger to preach unto the people in their Churches, except they be allowed by the Archbishop of the province, or by the Bishop of the same diocese, or by either of the Universities. And if any in his Sermon shall publish any doctrine, either strange, or disagreeing from the Word of God, or from any of the Articles of Religion agreed upon in the Convocation-house, Anno 1562, or from the Book of Common Prayer; the Dean or the Residents shall, by their letters subscribed with some of their hands that heard him, fo foon as may be, give notice of the fame to the Bishop of the Diocese, that he may determine the matter, and take such order therein, as he shall think convenient.

52. The Names of Strange Preachers to be noted in a Book.

THAT the Bishop may understand (if occasion so require) what Sermons are made in every Church of his diocese, and who presume to preach without Licence, the Church-wardens and Sidemen shall see that the Names of all Preachers, which come to their Church from any other place, be noted in a Book, which they shall have ready for that purpose; wherein every Preacher shall subscribe his Name, the Day when he preached, and the Name of the Bishop of whom he had Licence to preach.

53. No public Opposition between Preachers.

Fany Preacher shall in the Pulpit particularly, or namely, I of purpose, impugn or confute any doctrine delivered by any other Preacher in the fame Church, or in any Church near adjoining, before he hath acquainted the Bishop of the diocese therewith, and received order from him what to do in that case, because upon such public differting and contradicting there may grow much offence and disquietness unto the people; the Church-wardens, or party grieved, shall forthwith signify the same to the faid Bishop, and not suffer the faid Preacher any more to occupy that place which he hath once abused, except he faithfully promife to forbear all fuch matter of contention in the Church, until the Bishop hath taken further order therein; who shall with all convenient speed so proceed therein, that public fatisfaction may be made in the congregation where the offence was given. Provided, that if either of the parties offending do appeal, he shall not be fuffered to preach pendente lite.

54. The Licences of Preachers refusing Conformity to be void.

IF any man licensed heretofore to preach, by any Archbishop, Bishop, or by either of the Universities, shall at any time from henceforth resuse to conform himself to the Laws, Ordinances, and Rites Ecclesiastical, established in the Church of England, he shall be admonished by the Bishop

Bishop of the diocese, or Ordinary of the place, to submit himself to the use and due exercise of the same. And if, after such admenition, he do not conform himself within the space of one month, we determine and decree, That the Licence of every such Preacher shall thereupon be utterly void, and of none essect.

55. The Form of a Prayer to be used by all Preachers before their Sermons.

DEFORE all Sermons, Lectures, and Homilies, the Preachers and Ministers shall move the people to join with them in Prayer in this form, or to this effect, as briefly as conveniently they may: Ye shall pray for Christ's holy Catholick Church, that is, for the whole congregation of Christian people disperfed throughout the whole world, and especially for the Churches of England, Scotland, and Ireland: and herein I require you most especially to pray for the King's most excellent Majesty, our Sovereign Lord James, King of England, Scotland, France, and Ireland, Defender of the Faith, and Supreme Governor in these his realms, and all other his dominions and countries, over all perfons, in all causes, as well Ecclesiastical as Temporal: ye shall also pray for our gracious Queen Anne, the noble Prince HENRY, and the rest of the King and Queen's royal iffue: ye shall also pray for the Ministers of God's holy Word and Sacraments, as well Archbishops and Bishops, as other Pastors and Curates: ye shall alfo pray for the King's most honourable Council, and for all the Nobility and Magistrates of this realm; that all and every of thefe, in their feveral callings, may ierve truly and painfully to the glory of God, and the edifying and well governing of his people, remembering the account that they must make: also ye shall pray for the whole Commons of this realm, that they may live in the true faith and fear of God, in humble obedience to the King, and brotherly charity one to another. Finally, let us praife God for all those which are departed out of this life in the faith of Chrift, and pray unto God, that we may have grace to direct our lives after their good example; that, this life ended, we may be made partakers with them of the glorious refurrection in the life everlasting; always concluding with the Lord's Prayer.

56. Preachers and Lecturers to read Divine Service, and administer the Sacraments twice a Year at the least.

EVERY Minister, being possessed of a Benefice that hath cure and charge of souls, although he chiefly attend to preaching, and hath a Curate under him to execute the other duties which are to be performed for him in the Church, and likewise every other stipendary Preacher that readeth any lecture, or catechizeth, or preacheth in any Church or Chapel, shall twice at the least every year read himself the Divine Service upon two several Sundays publicly, and at the usual times, both in the forenoon and afternoon, in the Church which he fo poffeffeth, or where he readeth, catechizeth, or préacheth, as is aforesaid; and thall likewife as often in every year administer the Sacraments of Baptism, if there be any to be baptized, and of the Lord's Supper, in fuch manner and form, and with the observation of all fuch rites and ceremonies as are prescribed by the Book of Common Prayer in that behalf; which if he do not accordingly perform, then shall he that is possessed of a Benefice (as before) be suspended; and he that is but a Reader, Preacher, or Catechizer, be removed from his place by the Bishop of the diocese, until he or they shall Submit themselves to perform all the said duties, in such manner and fort as before is preferibed.

57. The Sacraments not to be refused at the Hands of unpreaching Ministers.

HEREAS divers perfons, feduced by false teachers, do refuse to have their children baptized by a Minister that is no Preacher, and to receive the holy Communion at his hands in the same respect, as though the virtue of those Sacraments did depend upon his ability to preach; forafmuch as the doctrine both of Baptism and of the Lord's Supper is fo fufficiently fet down in the Book of Common Prayer to be used at the administration of the faid Sacraments, as nothing can be added unto it that is material and necessary; we do require and charge every such person, seduced as aforesaid, to reform that their wilfulness, and to submit himself to the order of the Church in that behalf; both the faid Sacraments being equally effectual, whether they be ministered by a Minister that is no Preacher, or by one that is a Preacher. And if any hereafter shall offend herein, or leave their own Parishchurches in that respect, and communicate, or cause their children N n children to be baptized, in other parishes abroad, and will not be moved thereby to reform that their error and unlawful course; let them be presented to the Ordinary of the place by the Minister, Church-wardens, and Sidemen, or Quest-men of the parishes where they dwell, and there receive fuch punishment by Ecclesiastical censures, as fuch obstinacy doth worthily deserve; that is, let them (perfifting in their wilfulness) be suspended, and then, after a month's further obstinacy, excommunicated. And likewise if any Parson, Vicar, or Curate, shall, after the publishing hereof, either receive to the Communion any fuch persons which are not of his own church and parish, or shall baptize any of their children, thereby strengthening them in their faid errors; let him be fufpended, and not released thereof, until he do faithfully promise that he will not afterwards offend therein.

58. Ministers reading Divine Service, and administering the Sacraments, to wear Surplices, and Graduates therewithal Hoods.

EVERY Minister saying the public Prayers, or ministering the Sacraments, or other Rites of the Church, shall wear a decent and comely Surplice with Sleeves, to be provided at the charge of the parish. And if any question arise touching the matter, decency, or comelines thereof, the same shall be decided by the discretion of the Ordinary. Furthermore, such Ministers as are Graduates shall wear upon their Surplices, at such times, such Hoods as by the orders of the Universities are agreeable to their degrees, which no Minister shall wear (being no Graduate) under pain of suspension. Notwithstanding it shall be lawful for such Ministers as are not Graduates to wear upon their Surplices, instead of Hoods, some decent Tippet of black, so it be not silk.

59. Ministers to catechize every Sunday.

LVERY Parson, Vicar, or Curate, upon every Sunday and Holy-day, before Evening Prayer, shall, for half an hour or more, examine and instruct the youth and ignorant persons of his parish, in the Ten Commandments, the Articles of the Belief, and in the Lord's Prayer; and shall diligently hear, instruct, and teach them the Catechism fet forth in the Book of Common Prayer. And all fathers, mothers, masters, and mistresses, shall cause their children, servants, and apprentices, which have not learned learned the Catechism, to come to the Church at the time appointed, obediently to hear, and to be ordered by the Minister, until they have learned the same. And if any Minister neglect his duty herein, let him be sharply reproved upon the first complaint, and true notice thereof given to the Bishop or Ordinary of the place. If, after Submitting himself, he shall willingly offend therein again, let him be suspended; if so the third time, there being little hope that he will be therein reformed, then excommunicated, and fo remain until he will be reformed. And likewife if any of the faid fathers, mothers, mafters, or mistresses, children, servants, or apprentices, shall neglect their duties, as the one fort in not causing them to come, and the other in refusing to learn, as aforesaid; let them be fuspended by their Ordinaries, (if they be not children) and if they fo perfift by the space of a month, then let them be excommunicated.

60. Confirmation to be performed once in three Years.

FORASMUCH as it hath been a folemn, ancient, and laudable custom in the Church of God, continued from the Apostles times, that all Bishops should lay their hands upon children baptized, and instructed in the Catechism of Christian Religion, praying over them, and blessing them, which we commonly call Confirmation, and that this holy action hath been accustomed in the Church in former ages, to be performed in the Bishop's visitation every third year; we will and appoint, That every Bishop or his Susfragan, in his accustomed visitation, do in his own person carefully observe the said custom. And if in that year, by reason of some infirmity, he be not able personally to visit, then he shall not omit the execution of that duty of Consirmation the next year after, as he may conveniently.

61. Ministers to prepare Children for Confirmation.

EVERY Minister, that hath cure and charge of souls, for the better accomplishing of the orders prescribed in the Book of Common Prayer concerning Confirmation, shall take especial care that none shall be presented to the Bishop for him to lay his hands upon, but such as can render an account of their faith according to the Catechism in the said book contained. And when the Bishop shall assign any time for the performance of that part of his duty, every such Minister shall use his best endeavour to prepare and make able, and likewise to procure as many as he can to be then brought, and by the Bishop to be consirmed.

62. Ministers not to marry any Persons without Banns, or Licence.

O Minister, upon pain of suspension per triennium ipso facto, shall celebrate Matrimony between any persons, without a faculty or licence granted by some of the perfons in these our Constitutions expressed, except the Banns of Matrimony have been first published three several Sundays, or Holy-days, in the time of Divine Service, in the Parish-churches and Chapels where the said parties dwell, according to the Book of Common Prayer. Neither shall any Minister, upon the like pain, under any pretence whatfoever, join any perfons fo licenfed in marriage at any unfeafonable times, but only between the hours of eight and twelve in the forenoon, nor in any private place, but either in the faid Churches or Chapels where one of them dwelleth, and likewife in time of Divine Service; nor when Banns are thrice asked, and no licence in that respect necessary, before the parents or governors of the parties to be married, being under the age of twenty and one years, shall either personally, or by sufficient testimony, fignify to him their confents given to the faid Marriage.

63. Ministers of exempt Churches not to marry without Banns, or Licenice.

EVERY Minister, who shall hereafter celebrate Marriage between any persons contrary to our said Constitutions, or any part of them, under colour of any peculiar liberty or privilege claimed to appertain to certain Churches and Chapels, shall be suspended per triennium by the Ordinary of the place where the offence shall be committed. And if any such Minister shall afterwards remove from the place where he hath committed that fault, before he be suspended, as is aforesaid, then shall the Bishop of the diocese, or Ordinary of the place where he remaineth, upon certificate under the hand and seal of the other Ordinary, from whose jurisdiction he removed, execute that censure upon him.

64. Ministers solemnly to bid Holy-days.

EVERY Parson, Vicar, or Curate, shall in his several charge declare to the people, every Sunday at the time appointed in the Communion-book, whether there be any Holy-days or Fasting-days the week following. And if any do hereafter wittingly offend herein, and being once admonished thereof by his Ordinary, shall again omit that duty, let him be censured according to law, until he submit himself to the due performance of it.

65. Ministers solemnly to denounce Recusants and Excommunicates.

A LL Ordinaries shall, in their several jurisdictions, carefully see and give order, that as well those who for obftinate refufing to frequent Divine Service established by public authority within this realm of England, as those also (especially of the better fort and condition) who for notorious contumacy, or other notable crimes, fland lawfully excommunicate, (unless within three months immediately after the faid fentence of Excommunication pronounced against them, they reform themselves, and obtain the benefit of absolution) be every fix months ensuing, as well in the Parish Church, as in the Cathedral Church of the diocefe in which they remain, by the Minister openly in time of Divine Service, upon some Sunday, denounced and declared excommunicate, that others may be thereby both admonished to refrain their company and society, and excited the rather to procure out a writ De excommunicato capiendo, thereby to bring and reduce them into due order and obedience. Likewise the Registrar of every Ecclefiaftical Court shall yearly between Michaelmas and Christmas duly certify the Archbishop of the province of all and fingular the premisses aforesaid.

66. Ministers to confer with Recufants.

EVERY Minister being a Preacher, and having any Popish Recusant or Recusants in his parish, and thought sit by the Bishop of the diocese, shall labour diligently with them from time to time, thereby to reclaim them from their errors. And if he be no Preacher, or not such a Preacher, then he shall procure, if he can possibly, some that are Preachers so qualified, to take pains with them for that purpose. If he can procure none, then he shall inform the Bishop of the diocese thereof, who shall not only appoint fome neighbour Preacher or Preachers adjoining to take that labour upon them, but himself also, as his important affairs will permit him, shall use his best endeavour, by instruction, persuasion, and all good means he can devise, to reclaim both them and all other within his diocese so affected.

67. Ministers to visit the Sick.

HEN any person is dangerously sick in any parish, the Minister, or Curate, having knowledge thereof, shall resort unto him or her, (if the disease be not known, or probably suspected, to be insectious) to instruct and comfort them in their distress, according to the order of the Communion-book, if he be no Preacher; or if he be a Preacher, then as he shall think most needful and convenient. And when any is passing out of this life, a bell shall be tolled, and the Minister shall not then slack to do his last duty. And after the party's death, if it so fall out, there shall be rung no more than one short peal, and one other before the burial, and one other after the burial.

68. Ministers not to refuse to christen or bury.

No Minister shall refuse or delay to christen any child according to the form of the Book of Common Prayer, that is brought to the Church to him upon Sundays or Holy-days to be christened, or to bury any corpse that is brought to the Church or Church-yard, convenient warning being given him thereof before, in such manner and form as is prescribed in the said Book of Common Prayer. And if he shall refuse to christen the one, or bury the other, (except the party deceased were denounced excommunicated majori excommunicatione, for some grievous and notorious crime, and no man able to testify of his repentance) he shall be suspended by the Bishop of the diocese from his ministry by the space of three months.

69. Ministers not to defer christening, if the Child be in danger.

IF any Minister, being duly, without any manner of collusion, informed of the weakness and danger of death of any infant unbaptized in his parish, and thereupon desired to go or come to the place where the said infant remaineth, to baptize the same, shall either wilfully resuse so do, or of purpose, or of gross negligence, shall so defer the time, as, when he might conveniently have resorted to the place, and have baptized the said infant, it dieth, through such his default, unbaptized; the said Minister shall be suspended for three months; and before his restitution shall acknowledge his sault, and promise before his Ordinary, that he will not wittingly incur the like again. Provided, that where there is a Curate, or a Substitute, this Constitution shall not extend to the Parson or Vicar himself, but to the Curate or Substitute present.

70. Ministers to keep a Register of Christenings, Weddings, and Burials.

IN every Parish-church and Chapel within this realm, shall be provided one parchment book at the charge of the parish, wherein shall be written the day and year of every Christening, Wedding, and Burial, which have been in that parish since the time that the law was first made in that behalf, fo far as the ancient books thereof can be procured, but especially fince the beginning of the reign of the late Queen. And for the fafe keeping of the faid book, the Church-wardens, at the charge of the parish, shall provide one fure coffer, with three locks and keys; whereof the one to remain with the Minister, and the other two with the Church-wardens, feverally; fo that neither the Minister without the two Church-wardens, nor the Church-wardens without the Minister, shall at any time take that book out of the faid coffer. And henceforth upon every Sabbath-day, immediately after Morning or Evening Prayer, the Minister and Churchwardens shall take the said parchment book out of the faid coffer, and the Minister, in the presence of the Church-wardens, shall write and record in the faid book the names of all persons christened, together with the names and furnames of their parents, and also the names of all persons married and buried in that parish in the week before, and the day and year of every fuch Christening, Marriage, and Burial; and, that done, they shall lay up that book in the coffer, as before, and the Minister and Church-wardens unto every page of that book, when it shall be filled with such inscriptions, shall subscribe their names. And the Church-wardens shall once every year, within one month after the five and twentieth day of March, transmit unto the Bishop of the diocese, or his Chancellor, a true copy of the names of all persons christ-. N n 4

ened, married, or buried in their parish in the year before, ended the said five and twentieth day of March, and the certain days and months in which every such Christening, Marriage, and Burial was had, to be subscribed with the hands of the said Minister and Church-wardens, to the end the same may faithfully be preserved in the Registry of the said Bishop; which certificate shall be received without see. And if the Minister or Church-wardens shall be negligent in performance of any thing herein contained, it shall be lawful for the Bishop, or his Chancellor, to convent them, and proceed against every of them as contemners of this our Constitution.

71. Ministers not to preach, or administer the Communion, in private Houses.

O Minister shall preach, or administer the holy Communion, in any private house, except it be in times of necessity, when any being either fo impotent as he cannot go to the Church, or very dangeroufly fick, are defirous to be partakers of the holy Sacrament, upon pain of huspension for the first offence, and excommunication for the second. Provided, that houses are here reputed for private houses, wherein are no Chapels dedicated and allowed by the Ecclefiaftical Laws of this realm. And provided also, under the pains before expressed, that no Chaplains do preach or administer the Communion in any other places, but in the Chapels of the faid houses; and that also they do the same very seldom upon Sundays and Holy-days; fo that both the lords and masters of the faid houses, and their families, shall at other times refort to their own Parish-churches, and there receive the holy Communion at the least once every year.

72. Ministers not to appoint public or private Fasts or Pro-

O Minister or Ministers shall, without the licence and direction of the Bishop of the diocese sirst obtained and had under his hand and seal, appoint or keep any solemn Fasts, either publicly or in any private houses, other than such as by law are, or by public authority shall be appointed, nor shall be wittingly present at any of them, under pain of suspension for the sirst sault, of excommunication for the second, and of deposition from the ministry for the third. Neither shall any Minister not licensed, as is aforesaid, presume to appoint or hold any meetings for Sermons, commonly termed by fome Prophecies or Exercifes, in market-towns, or other places, under the faid pains: nor, without fuch licence, to attempt, upon any pretence whatfoever, either of possession or obsession, by fasting and prayer, to east out any Devil or Devils, under pain of the imputation of imposture or cosenage, and deposition from the ministry.

of Priests and Ministers, have been ever justly accounted very hurtful to the state of the Church wherein they live; we do now ordain and constitute, That no Priests, or Ministers of the Word of God, or any other persons, shall meet together in any private house, or elsewhere, to consult upon any matter or course to be taken by them, or npon their motion or direction by any other, which may any way tend to the impeaching or depraving of the doctrine of the Church of England, or of the Book of Common Prayer, or of any part of the government and discipline now established in the Church of England, under pain of excommunication ipso facto.

74. Decency in Apparel enjoined to Ministers.

THE true, ancient, and flourishing Churches of Christ, being ever defirous, that their Prelacy and Clergy might be had as well in outward reverence, as otherwife regarded for the worthiness of their ministry, did think it fit, by a prescript form of decent and comely apparel, to have them known to the people, and thereby to receive the honour and estimation due to the special Messengers and Ministers of Almighty God: we therefore following their grave judgment, and the ancient custom of the Church of England, and hoping that in time newfangleness of apparel in some factious persons will die of itself, do constitute and appoint, That the Archbishops and Bishops shall not intermit to use the accustomed apparel of their degrees. Likewife all Deans, Mafters of Colleges, Archdeacons, and Prebendaries, in Cathedral and Collegiate Churches (being Priests or Deacons) Doctors in Divinity, Law, and Physic, Bachelors in Divinity, Masters of Arts, and Bachelors of Law, having any Ecclefiaftical Living, shall usually wear Gowns with standing Collars and Sleeves strait at the hands, or wide Sleeves, as is used in the Universities, with Hoods or Tippets of filk or farcenet, and fquare Caps. And that all other Ministers admitted or to be admitted into that function shall also usually wear the like apparel as is aforesaid, except Tippets only. We do further in like manner ordain, That all the faid Ecclefiaffical Perfons above mentioned shall usually wear in their journeys Cloaks with Sleeves, commonly called Priest's Cloaks, without guards, welts, long buttons, or cuts. And no Ecclefiaffical Person shall wear any Coif or wrought Night-cap, but only plain Night-caps of black filk, fatten, or velvet. In all which particulars concerning the apparel here prefcribed, our meaning is not to attribute any holiness or special worthiness to the faid garments, but for decency, gravity, and order, as is before specified. In private houses, and in their studies, the faid Perfons Ecclefiaffical may use any comely and feholar-like apparel, provided that it be not cut or pinkt; and that in public they go not in their Doublet and Hofe, without Coats or Caflocks; and that they wear not any light-coloured Stockings. Likewise poor beneficed Mcn and Curates (not being able to provide themselves long Gowns) may go in fhort Gowns of the fashion aforesaid.

or their honest necessities, resort to any taverns, or alehouses, neither shall they board or lodge in any such places. Furthermore, they shall not give themselves to any base or servile labour, or to drinking or riot, spending their time idly by day or by night, playing at dice, cards, or tables, or any other unlawful games: but at all times convenient they shall hear or read somewhat of the holy Scriptures, or shall occupy themselves with some other honest study or exercise, always doing the things which shall appertain to honesty, and endeavouring to prosit the Church of God; having always in mind, that they ought to excel all others in purity of life, and should be examples to the people to live well and christianly, under pain of Ecclesiatical censures, to be inslicted with severity, according to the qualities of their offences.

76. Ministers at no time to forfake their Calling.

NO man being admitted a Deacon or Minister shall from thenceforth voluntarily relinquish the same, nor afterward use himself in the course of his life as a Layman, upon pain of excommunication. And the names of all fuch men, fo forfaking their calling, the Church-wardens of the parish where they dwell shall present to the Bishop of the diocese, or to the Ordinary of the place, having episcopal jurisdiction.

Schoolmasters.

77. None to teach School without Licence.

NO man shall teach either in public school, or private house, but such as shall be allowed by the Bishop of the diocese, or Ordinary of the place, under his hand and seal, being found meet as well for his learning and dexterity in teaching, as for sober and honest conversation, and also for right understanding of God's true religion; and also except he shall first subscribe to the first and third Articles afore-mentioned simply, and to the two first clauses of the second Article.

78. Curates desirous to teach to be licensed before others.

In what Parish-church or Chapel soever there is a Curate, which is a Master of Arts, or Bachelor of Arts, or is otherwise well able to teach youth, and will willingly so do, for the better increase of his living, and training up of children in principles of true religion; we will and ordain, That a licence to teach youth of the parish where he serveth be granted to none by the Ordinary of that place, but only to the said Curate. Provided always, that this Constitution shall not extend to any Parish or Chapel in country towns, where there is a public school sounded already; in which case we think it not meet to allow any to teach grammar, but only him that is allowed for the said public school.

79. The Duty of Schoolmafters.

ALL Schoolmasters shall teach in English or Latin, as the children are able to bear, the larger or shorter Catechism heretofore by public authority set forth. And as often as any Sermon shall be upon holy and festival days within the parish where they teach, they shall bring their scholars to the Church where such Sermon shall be made, and there see them quietly and soberly behave themselves; and shall examine them at times convenient, after their return, what they have borne away of such Sermon. Upon other days, and at other times, they shall train them up with such sentences of holy Scripture, as shall be most expedient to induce them to all godlines: and they shall teach the Grammar set forth by King Henry the Eighth, and continued in the times of King Edward the Sixth, and Queen Elizabeth of noble memory, and none other. And if any Schoolmaster, being licensed, and having subscribed as aforesaid, shall offend in any of the premisses, or either speak, write, or teach against any thing whereunto he hath formerly subscribed, (if upon admonition by the Ordinary he do not amend and reform himself) let him be suspended from teaching School any longer.

80. The great Bible, and Book of Common Prayer, to be had in every Church.

THE Church-wardens or Quest-men of every Church and Chapel shall, at the charge of the parish, provide the Book of Common Prayer, lately explained in some few points by his Majesty's authority, according to the laws and his Highness's prerogative in that behalf, and that with all convenient speed, but at the furthest within two months after the publishing of these our Constitutions. And if any parishes be yet unsurished of the Bible of the largest volume, or of the Books of Homilies allowed by authority, the said Church-wardens shall within convenient time provide the same at the like charge of the parish.

81. A Font of Stone for Baptism in every Church.

A CCORDING to a former Conflitution, too much neglected in many places, we appoint, that there shall be a Font of Stone in every Church and Chapel where Baptism is to be ministered; the same to be set in the ancient usual places: in which only Font the Minister shall baptize publicly.

82. A decent Communion-table in every Church.

WHEREAS we have no doubt, but that in all Churches within the realm of England, convenient and decent Tables are provided and placed for the celebration of the holy holv Communion, we appoint, that the same Tables shall from time to time be kept and repaired in fufficient and feemly manner, and covered, in time of Divine Service, with a carpet of filk or other decent stuff, thought meet by the Ordinary of the place, if any question be made of it, and with a fair linen cloth at the time of the Ministration, as becometh that Table, and fo fiand, faving when the faid holy Communion is to be administered: at which time the fame shall be placed in fo good fort within the Church or Chancel, as thereby the Minister may be more conveniently heard of the Communicants in his Prayer and Ministration, and the Communicants also more conveniently, and in more number, may communicate with the faid Minister; and that the Ten Commandments be set up on the East end of every Church and Chapel, where the people may best see and read the same, and other chosen sentences written upon the walls of the said Churches and Chapels, in places convenient; and likewife that a convenient feat be made for the Minister to read fervice in. All these to be done at the charge of the parish.

83. A Pulpit to be provided in every Church.

THE Church-wardens or Quest-men, at the common charge of the Parishioners in every Church, shall provide a comely and decent Pulpit, to be set in a convenient place within the same, by the discretion of the Ordinary of the place, if any question do arise, and to be there seemly kept for the preaching of God's Word.

84. A Chest for Alms in every Church.

THE Church-wardens shall provide and have, within three months after the publishing of these Constitutions, a strong Chest, with a hole in the upper part thereof, to be provided at the charge of the parish, (if there be none such already provided) having three keys; of which one shall remain in the custody of the Parson, Vicar, or Curate, and the other two in the custody of the Church-wardens for the time being: which Chest they shall set and fasten in the most convenient place, to the intent the Parishioners may put into it their alms for their poor neighbours. And the Parson, Vicar, or Curate shall diligently, from time to time, and especially when men make their testaments, ments, call upon, exhort, and move their neighbours to confer and give, as they may well spare, to the faid Chest; declaring unto them, that whereas heretofore they have been diligent to bestow much substance otherwise than God commanded, upon fuperstitious uses, now they ought at this time to be much more ready to help the poor and needy, knowing that to relieve the poor is a facrifice which pleafeth God: and that also whatsoever is given for their comfort is given to Christ himself, and is so accepted of him, that he will mercifully reward the same. The which alms and devotion of the people, the keepers of the keys shall yearly, quarterly, or oftener (as need requireth) take out of the Chest, and distribute the same in the presence of most of the parish, or six of the chief of them, to be truly and faithfully delivered to their most poor and needy neighbours.

85. Churches to be kept in sufficient Reparations.

THE Church-wardens or Quest-men shall take care and provide that the Churches be well and fufficiently repaired, and fo from time to time kept and maintained, that the windows be well glazed, and that the floors be kept paved, plain, and even, and all things there in fuch an orderly and decent fort, without dust, or any thing that may be either noifonie or unfeemly, as best becometh the House of God, and is prescribed in an Homily to that effect. The like care they shall take, that the Church-yards be well and fufficiently repaired, fenced, and maintained with walls, rails, or pales, as have been in each place accustomed, at their charges unto whom by law the same appertaineth: but especially they shall see that in every meeting of the congregation peace be well kept; and that all persons excommunicated, and so denounced, be kept out of the Church.

86. Churches to be furweyed, and the Decays certified to the bigh Commissioners.

VERY Dean, Dean and Chapter, Archdeacon, and others which have authority to hold Ecclefiaftical Vifitations by composition, law, or prescription, shall survey the Churches of his or their jurisdiction once in every three years in his own person, or eause the same to be done; and shall from time to time within the said three years certify certify the high Commissioners for Causes Ecclesiastical; every year, of such defects in any the said Churches, as he or they do find to remain unrepaired, and the names and surnames of the parties saulty therein. Upon which certificate, we defire that the said high Commissioners will exospicio mero send for such parties, and compel them to obey the just and lawful decrees of such Ecclesiastical Ordinaries, making such certificates.

87. A Terrier of Glebe-lands, and other Possessions belonging to Churches.

WE ordain, that the Archbishops, and all Bishops within their several dioceses, shall procure (as much as in them lieth) that a true note and terrier of all the glebes, lands, meadows, gardens, orchards, houses, stocks, implements, tenements, and portions of tithes lying out of their parishes (which belong to any Parsonage, or Vicarage, or rural Prebend) be taken by the view of honest men in every parish, by the appointment of the Bishop, (whereof the Minister to be one) and be laid up in the Bishop's Registry, there to be for a perpetual memory thereof.

88. Churches not to be profaned.

THE Church-wardens or Quest-men, and their Assistants, shall suffer no plays, seasts, banquets, suppers, church-ales, drinkings, temporal courts, or leets, layjuries, musters, or any other profane usage, to be kept in the Church, Chapel, or Church-yard, neither the bells to be rung superstitiously upon Holy-days or Eves abrogated by the Book of Common Prayer, nor at any other times, without good cause to be allowed by the Minister of the place, and by themselves.

Church-wardens or Quest-men, and Side-men or Affistants.

89. The Choice of Church-wardens, and their Account.

A LL Church-wardens or Quest-men in every parish shall be chosen by the joint consent of the Minister and the Parishioners, if it may be; but if they cannot agree upon such a choice, then the Minister shall choose one, and the Parishioners another: and without such a joint or feveral choice none shall take upon them to be Church-wardens: neither shall they continue any longer than one year in that office, except perhaps they be chosen again in like manner. And all Church-wardens at the end of their year, or within a month after at the most, shall before the Minister and the Parishioners give up a just account of such money as they have received, and also what particularly they have bestowed in reparations, and otherwise, for the use of the Church. And last of all, going out of their office, they shall truly deliver up to the Parishioners whatsoever money or other things of right belonging to the Church or Parish, which remaineth in their hands, that it may be delivered over by them to the next Church-wardens by bill indented.

90. The Choice of Side-men, and their joint Office with Church-

THE Church-wardens or Quest-men of every parish, and two or three or more different persons in every parish, to be chosen for Side-men or Assistants by the Minister and Parishioners, if they can agree, (otherwise to be appointed by the Ordinary of the diocese) shall diligently fee that all the Parishioners duly refort to their Church upon all Sundays and Holy-days, and there continue the whole time of Divine Service; and none to walk or to fland idle or talking in the Church, or in the Church-yard, or the Church-porch, during that time. And all fuch as shall be found flack or negligent in reforting to the Church (having no great or urgent cause of absence) they shall earnestly call upon them; and after due monition (if they amend not) they shall present them to the Ordinary of the place. The choice of which perfons, viz. Church-wardens or Quest-men, Side-men or Affistants, shall be yearly made in Easter-week.

Parish-Clerks.

91. Parish-Clerks to be chosen by the Minister.

NO Parish-Clerk upon any vacation shall be chosen, within the city of London, or elsewhere within the province of Canterbury, but by the Parson or Vicar; or, where there is no Parson or Vicar, by the Minister of that place for the time being: which choice shall be signified by the said Minister, Vicar, or Parson, to the Parishioners

the next Sunday following, in the time of Divine Service. And the faid Clerk shall be of twenty years of age at the least, and known to the said Parson, Vicar, or Minister, to be of honest conversation, and sufficient for his reading, writing, and also for his competent skill in singing, if it may be. And the said Clerks so chosen shall have and receive their ancient wages, without fraud or diminution, either at the hands of the Church-wardens, at such times as hath been accustomed, or by their own collection, according to the most ancient custom of every parish.

Ecclefiaftical Courts belonging to the Archbishop's Jurisdiction.

92. None to be cited into divers Courts for Probate of the same Will.

PORASMUCH as many heretofore have been by Appariture both of inferior courts, and of the approximation of the property of the ritors both of inferior courts, and of the courts of the Archbithop's Prerogative, much distracted, and diversely called and fummoned for probate of wills, or to take administrations of the goods of persons dying intestate, and are thereby vexed and grieved with many causeless and unnecessary troubles, molestations, and expences; we constitute and appoint, That all Chancellors, Commissaries, or Officials, or any other exercifing ecclefiaftical jurisdiction whatfoever, shall at the first charge with an oath all perfons called or voluntarily appearing before them for the probate of any will, or the administration of any goods, whether they know, or (moved by any special inducement) do firmly believe, that the party deceafed, whose testament or goods depend now in question, had at the time of his or her death any goods, or good debts in any other diocese or dioceses, or peculiar jurisdiction within that province, than in that wherein the faid party died, amounting to the value of five pounds. And if the faid person cited, or voluntarily appearing before him, shall upon his oath affirm, that he knoweth, or (as aforefaid) firmly believeth, that the faid party deceafed had goods or good debts in any other diocefe or diocefes, or peculiar jurisdiction within the said province, to the value aforefaid, and particularly specify and declare the same; then shall he presently dismiss him, not presuming to intermeddle with the probate of the faid will, or to grant administration 00

ministration of the goods of the party fo dving intestate; neither shall he require or exact any other charges of the faid parties, more than fuch only as are due for the citation, and other process had and used against the said parties upon their further contumacy; but shall openly and plainly declare and profess, that the said cause belongeth to the Prerogative of the Archbishop of that province; willing and admonishing the party to prove the faid will, or require administration of the faid goods in the court of the faid Prerogative, and to exhibit before him the faid Judge the probate or administration under the feal of the Prerogative, within forty days next following. And if any Chancellor, Commissary, Official, or other exercising ecclefiaftical jurifdiction whatfoever, or any their Registrar, shall offend herein, let him be ipso facto suspended from the execution of his office, not to be absolved or releafed, until he have restored to the party all expences by him laid out contrary to the tenor of the premisses; and every fuch probate of any testament, or administration of goods fo granted, shall be held void and frustrate to all effects of the law whatfoever.

Furthermore, we charge and enjoin, That the Registrar of every inferior Judge do, without all difficulty or delay, certify and inform the Apparitor of the Prerogative Court, repairing unto him once a month, and no oftener, what executors or administrators have been by his faid Judge, for the incompetency of his own jurifdiction, difmissed to the faid Prerogative Court within the month next before, under pain of a month's fuspension from the exercise of his office for every default therein. Provided, that this Canon, or any thing therein contained, be not prejudicial to any composition between the Archbishop and any Bishop or other Ordinary, nor to any inferior Judge that shall grant any probate of testament, or administration of goods, to any party that shall voluntarily defire it, both out of the faid inferior court, and also out of the Prerogative. Provided likewife, that if any man die in itinere, the goods that he hath about him at that prefent shall not cause his testament or administration to be liable unto the Prerogative Court.

93. The Rate of Bona notabilia liable to the Prerogative

FURTHERMORE, we decree and ordain, That no Judge of the Archbishop's Prerogative shall henceforward cite, or cause to be cited, ex officio, any person whatfoever foever to any of the aforesaid intents, unless he have knowledge that the party deceased was at the time of his death possessed of goods and chattels in some other diocese or diocefes, or peculiar jurisdiction within that province, than in that wherein he died, amounting to the value of five pounds at the least; decreeing and declaring, that whoso hath not goods in divers dioceses to the said fum or value shall not be accounted to have Bona notabilia. Always provided, That this clause, here and in the former Constitution mentioned, shall not prejudice those dioceses, where by composition or custom Bona notabilia are rated at a greater fum. And if any Judge of the Prerogative Court, or any his Surrogate, or his Registrar or Apparitor, shall cite, or cause any person to be cited into his court, contrary to the tenor of the premisses, he shall restore to the party fo cited all his costs and charges, and the acts and proceedings in that behalf shall be held void and frustrate. Which expences, if the faid Judge, or Registrar, or Apparitor, shall refuse accordingly to pay, he shall be fuspended from the exercise of his office, until he yield to the performance thereof.

94. None to be cited into the Arches or Audience, but Devellers within the Archbishop's Diocese, or Peculiars.

O Dean of the Arches, nor Official of the Archbishop's Confistory, nor any Judge of the Audience, shall henceforward in his own name, or in the name of the Archbishop, either ex officio, or at the instance of any party, originally cite, fummon, or any way compel, or procure to be cited, fummoned, or compelled, any perfon which dwelleth not within the particular diocese or peculiar of the faid Archbishop, to appear before him or any of them, for any cause or matter whatsoever belonging to ecclefiaftical cognizance, without the licence of the Diocefan first had and obtained in that behalf, other than in fuch particular cases only as are expressly excepted and referved in and by a statute Anno 23. H. 8. cap. 9. And if any of the faid Judges thall offend herein, he thall for every fuch offence be fulpended from the exercise of his office for the space of three whole months.

95. The Restraint of double Quarrels.

A LBEIT by former Conflitutions of the Church of England, every Bishop hath had two months space to enquire and inform himself of the sufficiency and qualities of every Minister, after he hath been presented unto him to be instituted into any benefice; yet, for the avoiding of fome inconveniences, we do now abridge and reduce the faid two months unto eight and twenty days only. respect of which abridgment we do ordain and appoint, that no double quarrel shall hereafter be granted out of any of the Archbishop's courts at the suit of any Minister whofoever, except he shall first take his personal oath, that the faid eight and twenty days at the least are expired, after he first tendered his presentation to the Bishop, and that he refused to grant him institution thereupon; or thall enter bonds with fufficient furcties to prove the fame to be true; under pain of suspension of the granter thereof from the execution of his office for half a year toties quoties, (to be denounced by the faid Archbishop) and nullity of the double quarrel aforefaid, fo unduly procured, to all intents and purposes whatsoever. Always provided, that within the faid eight and twenty days the Bishop shall not institute any other to the prejudice of the said party before presented, sub pana nullitatis.

46. Inhibitions not to be granted without the subscription of an Advocate.

HAT the jurifdictions of Bishops may be preserved (as near as may be) intire and free from prejudice, and that for the behoof of the fubjects of this land better provision be made, that henceforward they be not grieved with frivolous and wrongful fuits and molestations; it is ordained and provided, That no inhibition shall be granted out of any court belonging to the Archbishop of Canterbury, at the instance of any party, unless it be subferibed by an Advocate practifing in the faid court: which the faid Advocate shall do freely, not taking any fee for the same, except the party profecuting the fuit do voluntarily bestow some gratuity upon him for his counsel and advice in the said cause. The like course shall be used in granting forth any inhibition, at the instance of any party, by the Bishop or his Chancellor, against the Archdeacon, or any other person exercising ecclesiastical jurisdiction: and if in the court or confistory of any Bishop there be no Advocate at all, then shall the subscription of a Proctor practifing in the same court be held sufficient.

97. Inhibitions not to be granted until the Appeal be exhibited.
to the Judge.

IT is further ordered and decreed, That henceforward no inhibition be granted by occasion of any interlocutory decree, or in any cause of correction whatsoever, except under the form aforefaid: and moreover, That before the going out of any fuch inhibition, the appeal itself, or a copy thereof (avouched by oath to be just and true) be exhibited to the Judge, or his lawful Surrogate, whereby he may be fully informed both of the quality of the crime, and of the cause of the grievance, before the granting forth of the faid inhibition. And every Appellant, or his lawful Proctor, shall, before the obtaining of any fuch inhibition, shew and exhibit to the Judge, or his Surrogate, in writing, a true copy of those acts wherewith he complaineth himself to be aggrieved, and from which he appealeth; or shall take a corporal oath, that he hath performed his diligence and true endeavour for the obtaining of the fame, and could not obtain it at the hands of the Registrar in the country, or his Deputy, tendering him his fee. And if any Judge or Registrar shall either procure or permit any inhibition to be fealed, fo as is faid, contrary to the form and limitation above specified, let him be suspended from the execution of his office for the space of three months: if any Proctor, or other person whatfoever by his appointment, shall offend in any of the premisses, either by making or fending out any inhibition, contrary to the tenor of the faid premisses, let him be removed from the exercise of his office for the space of a whole year, without hope of release or restoring.

98. Inhibitions not to be granted to factious Appellants, unless they first subscribe.

FORASMUCH as they who break the laws cannot in reason claim any benefit or protection by the same; we decree and appoint, That after any Judge Ecclesiastical hath proceeded judicially against obstinate and factious persons, and contemners of ceremonies, for not observing the rites and orders of the Church of England, or for contempt of public prayer, no Judge, ad quem, shall admit or allow any his or their appeals, unless, he having sirfs feen the original appeal, the party appellant do first personally promite and avow, that he will saithfully keep and observe all the rites and ceremonies of the Church of England, as also the prescript form of Common Prayer;

99. None to marry within the Degrees prohibited.

by the laws of God, and expressed in a Table set forth by authority in the year of our Lord God 1563. And all marriages so made and contracted shall be adjudged incessuous and unlawful, and consequently shall be distolved as void from the beginning, and the parties so married shall by course of law be separated. And the aforesaid Table shall be in every Church publicly set up and sixed at the charge of the parish.

100. None to marry under Twenty-one Years, without their Parents consent.

NO children under the age of one and twenty years complete shall contract themselves, or marry, without the consent of their parents, or of their guardians and governors, if their parents be deceased.

101. By whom Licences to marry without Banns shall be granted, and to what fort of Persons.

O faculty or licence shall be henceforth granted for folemnization of matrimony betwixt any parties, without thrice open publication of the banns, according to the Book of Common Prayer, by any person exercising any ecclesiastical jurisdiction, or claiming any privileges in the right of their Churches; but the same shall be granted only by such as have episcopal authority, or the Commissary for faculties, Vicars General of the Archbishops and Bishops, sede plena; or sede vacante, the Guardian of the Spiritualities, or Ordinaries exercising of right episcopal jurisdiction in their several jurisdictions respectively, and unto such persons only, as be of good state and quality, and that upon good caution and security taken.

102. Security to be taken at the granting of fuch Licences, and under what Conditions.

THE fecurity mentioned shall contain these conditions: First, That, at the time of the granting every such licence, there is not any impediment of precontract, confanguinity, assinity, or other lawful cause to hinder the said marriage. Secondly, That there is not any controversy or suit depending in any court before any Ecclesiastical Judge, touching any contract or marriage of either of the faid parties with any other. Thirdly, That they have obtained thereunto the express consent of their parents, (if they be living) or otherwise of their guardians or governors. Lastly, That they shall celebrate the faid matrimony publicly in the Parish-church or Chapel where one of them dwelleth, and in no other place, and that between the hours of eight and twelve in the forenoon.

103. Oaths to be taken for the Conditions.

FOR the avoiding of all fraud and collusion in the obtaining of fuch licences and difpensations, we further conflitute and appoint, That before any licence for the celebration of matrimony without publication of banns be had or granted, it shall appear to the Judge by the oaths of two fufficient witnesses, one of them to be known either to the Judge himself, or to some other person of good reputation then prefent, and known likewife to the faid Judge, that the express consent of the parents, or parent, if one be dead, or guardians or guardian of the parties, is thereunto had and obtained. And furthermore, That one of the parties perfonally fivear, that he believeth there is no let or impediment of precontract, kindred, or alliance, or of any other lawful cause whatsoever, nor any fuit commenced in any Ecclefiastical Court, to bar or hinder the proceeding of the faid matrimony, according to the tenure of the forefaid licence.

104. An Exception for those that are in Widowhood.

If both the parties which are to marry being in widowhood do feek a faculty for the forbearing of banns, then the clauses before mentioned, requiring the parents confents, may be omitted; but the parishes where they dwell, both shall be expressed in the licence, as also the parish named where the marriage shall be celebrated.
And if any Commissary for faculties, Vicars General, or other the said Ordinaries, shall offend in the premisses, or any part thereof, he shall, for every time so offending, be suspended from the execution of his office for the space of six months; and every such licence or dispensation shall be held void to all effects and purposes, as if there had never been any such granted; and the parties marrying by virtue thereof shall be subject to the punishments which are appointed for claudestine marriages.

105. No Sentence for Divorce to be given upon the fole Confession of the Parties.

FORASMUCH as matrimonial causes have been always reckoned and reputed among the weightiest, and therefore require the greater caution, when they come to be handled and debated in judgment, especially in causes wherein matrimony, having been in the Church duly solemnized, is required, upon any suggestion or pretext whatsoever, to be dissolved or annulled: we do straitly charge and enjoin, That in all proceedings to divorce, and nullities of matrimony, good circumspection and advice be used, and that the truth may (as far as is possible) be sisted out by the deposition of witnesses, and other lawful proofs and evictions; and that credit be not given to the sole consession of the parties themselves, howsoever taken upon oath, either within or without the court.

106. No Sentence for Divorce to be given but in open Court.

NO fentence shall be given either for separation a thoro et mensa, or for annulling of pretended matrimony, but in open court, and in the seat of justice; and that with the knowledge and consent either of the Archbishop within his province, or of the Bishop within his diocese, or of the Dean of the Arches, the Judge of the Audience of Canterbury, or of the Vicars General, or other principal Officials, or, sede vacante, of the Guardians of the Spiritualities, or other Ordinaries to whom of right it appertaineth, in their several jurisdictions and courts, and concerning them only that are then dwelling under their jurisdictions.

107. In all Sentences for Divorce, Bond to be taken for not marrying during each other's Life.

In all fentences pronounced only for divorce and separation a thoro et mensa, there shall be a caution and restraint inserted in the act of the said sentence, That the parties so separated shall live chastely and continently; neither shall they, during each other's life, contract matrimony with any other person. And, for the better observation of this last clause, the said sentence of divorce shall not be pronounced, until the party or parties requiring the same have given good and sufficient caution and security into the court, that they will not any way break or transgress the said restraint or prohibition.

108. The Penalty for Judges offending in the premisses.

AND if any Judge, giving fentence of divorce or feparation, shall not fully keep and observe the premiss, he shall be, by the Archbishop of the province, or by the Bishop of the diocese, suspended from the exercise of his office for the space of a whole year; and the sentence of separation, so given contrary to the form aforesaid, shall be held void to all intents and purposes of the law, as if it had not at all been given or pronounced.

Ecclefiastical Courts belonging to the Jurisdiction of Bishops and Archdeacons, and the Proceedings in them.

109. Notorious Crimes and Scandals to be certified into Ecclefiastical Courts by Presentment.

If any offend their brethren, either by adultery, whoredom, inceft, or drunkenness, or by swearing, ribaldry, usury, and any other uncleanness, and wickedness of life, the Church-wardens, or Quest-men, and Side-men, in their next presentments to their Ordinaries, shall faithfully present all and every of the said offenders, to the intent that they, and every of them, may be punished by the severity of the laws, according to their deserts; and such notorious offenders shall not be admitted to the holy Communion, till they be reformed.

110. Schifmatics to be presented.

If the Church-wardens, or Quest-men, or Assistants, do or shall know any man within their parish, or essewhere, that is a hinderer of the Word of God to be read or sincerely preached, or of the execution of these our Constitutions, or a fautor of any usurped or foreign power, by the laws of this realm justly rejected and taken away, or a defender of Popish and erroneous doctrine; they shall detect and present the same to the Bishop of the diocese, or Ordinary of the place, to be censured and punished according to such Ecclesiastical Laws as are prescribed in that behalf.

111. Dislurbers of Divine Service to be presented.

IN all vifitations of Bishops and Archdeacons, the Church-wardens, or Quest-men, and Side-men, shall truly and personally present the names of all those which behave behave themselves rudely and disorderly in the Church, or which by untimely ringing of bells, by walking, talking, or other noise, shall hinder the Minister or Preacher.

112. Non-Communicants at Easter to be presented.

THE Minister, Church-wardens, Quest-men, and Assistants of every Parish-church, and Chapel, shall yearly, within forty days after Easter, exhibit to the Bishop or his Chancellor the names and surnames of all the Parishioners, as well men as women, which being of the age of sixteen years received not the Communion at Easter before.

113. Ministers may present.

BECAUSE it often cometh to pass, that the Church-wardens, Side-men, Quest-men, and such other perfons of the Laity, as are to take care for the suppressing of fin and wickedness in their several parishes, as much as in them lieth, by admonition, reprehension, and denunciation to their Ordinaries, do forbear to discharge their duties therein, either through fear of their superiors, or through negligence, more than were fit, the licentiousness of these times considered; we ordain, That hereafter every Parfon and Vicar, or, in the lawful absence of any Parfon or Vicar, then their Curates and Substitutes may join in every presentment with the faid Church-wardens, Side-men, and the rest above mentioned, at the times hereafter limited, if they, the faid Church-wardens and the rest, will present fuch enormities as are apparent in the parish; or if they will not, then every fuch Parlon and Vicar, or, in their abfence, as aforcfaid, their Curates may themselves present to their Ordinaries at fuch times, and when elfe they think it meet, all fuch crimes as they have in charge, or otherwife, as by them (being the persons that should have the chief care for the suppressing of fin and impiety in their parishes) shall be thought to require due reformation. Provided always, That if any man confets his fecret and hidden fins to the Minister, for the unburdening of his conscience, and to receive spiritual consolation and vale of mind from him; we do not any way bind the faid Minister by this our Constitution, but do straitly charge and admonish him, that he do not at any time reveal and make known to any person whatsoever any crime or offence to committed to his trust and fecrecy, (except they be fuch crimes as by the laws of this realm his own life may be called into question for concealing the same) under pain of irregularity.

EVERY Parson, Vicar, or Curate, shall carefully in-form themselves, every year hereaster, how many Popish Recusants, men, women, and children, above the age of thirteen years, and how many being popifuly given (who, though they come to the Church, yet do refuse to receive the Communion) are inhabitants, or make their abode, either as fojourners or common guests, in any of their feveral parishes; and shall fet down their true names in writing, (if they can learn them) or otherwise such names as for the time they carry, diftinguishing the absolute Recufants from half Recufants; and the fame, fo far as they know or believe, fo diffinguished and fet down under their hands, shall truly present to their Ordinaries before the Feast of the Nativity next ensuing, under pain of suspension to be inflicted upon them by their said Ordinaries; and so every year hereafter, upon the like pain, before the Feast of St. John Baptist. Also we ordain, That all fuch Ordinaries, Chancellors, Commissaries, Archdeacons, Officials, and all other Ecclefiaftical Officers, to whom the faid prefentments shall be exhibited, shall likewise within one month after the receipt of the fame, under pain of fuspension by the Bishop from the execution of their offices for the space of half a year, as often as they shall offend therein, deliver them, or cause them to be delivered, to the Bishop respectively; who shall also exhibit them to the Archbishop within fix weeks, and the Archbishop to his Majesty within other six weeks after he hath received the faid prefentments.

115. Ministers and Church-wardens not to be fued for prefenting.

WHEREAS for the reformation of criminous persons and disorders in every parith, the Church-wardens, Quest-men, Side-men, and such other Church Officers are sworn, and the Minister charged to present as well the crimes and disorders committed by the said criminous persons, as also the common same which is spread abroad of them, whereby they are often maligned, and sometimes troubled by the said delinquents, or their friends; we do admonish and exhort all Judges, both Ecclesissical and Temporal, as they regard and reverence the fearful judgment-seat of the highest Judge, that they admit not in any

any of their courts any complaint, plea, suit, or suits, against any such Church-wardens, Quest-men, Side-men, or other Church Officers, for making any such presentments, nor against any Minister for any presentment that he shall make; all the said presentments tending to the restraint of shameless impiety, and considering that the rules both of charity and government do presume, that they did nothing therein of malice, but for the discharge of their consciences.

116. Church-wardens not bound to present oftener than twice a Year.

NO Church-wardens, Quest-men, or Side-men of any parish shall be inforced to exhibit their presentments to any having ecclefiaftical jurifdiction, above once in every year, where it hath been no oftener used, nor above twice in any diocese whatsoever, except it be at the Bishop's Visitation. For the which presentments of every Parish-church or Chapel, the Registrar of any court, where they are to be exhibited, shall not receive in one year above fourpence, under pain, for every offence therein, of suspension from the execution of his office for the space of a month, totics quoties. Provided always, That, as good occasion shall require, it shall be lawful for every Minister, Church-wardens, and Side-men to prefent offenders as oft as they shall think meet; and likewise for any godly disposed person, or for any Ecclesiastical Judge, upon knowledge, or notice given unto him or them of any enormous crime within his jurisdiction, to move the Minister, Church-wardens, or Side-men, as they tender the glory of God and reformation of fin, to prefent the fame, if they shall find fufficient cause to induce them thereunto, that it may be in due time punished and reformed. Provided, That for these voluntary presentments there be no fee required or taken of them, under the pain aforefaid.

117. Church-wardens not to be troubled for not presenting oftener than twice a Year.

NO Church-wardens, Quest-men, or Side-men, shall be called or cited, but only at the said time or times before limited, to appear before any Ecclesiastical Judge whosoever, for refusing at other times to present any saults committed in their parishes, and punishable by Ecclesiastical Laws. Neither shall they, nor any of them, after their presentments exhibited at any of those times, be any surther troubled for the same, except upon manifest and evident proof it may appear, that they did then willingly and wittingly omit to present some such public crime or crimes as they knew to be committed, or could not be ignorant that there was then a public same of them; or unless there be very just cause to call them for the explanation of their former presentments. In which case of wilful omission, their Ordinaries shall proceed against them in such sort, as in causes of wilful perjury in a Court Ecclesiastical it is already by law provided.

118. The old Church-wardens to make their Prefentments before the new be fivorn.

THE office of all Church-wardens and Side-men shall be reputed ever hereafter to continue until the new Church-wardens that shall succeed them be sworn, which shall be the first week after Easter, or some week following, according to the direction of the Ordinary. Which time fo appointed shall always be one of the two times in every year, when the Minister, and Church-wardens, and Side-men of every parish shall exhibit to their several Ordinaries the prefentments of fuch enormities as have happened in their parishes since their last presentments. And this duty they shall perform, before the newly chosen Church-wardens and Side-men be fworn, and shall not be fuffered to pass over the said presentments to those that are newly come into office, and are by intendment ignorant of fuch crimes; under pain of those censures which are appointed for the reformation of fuch dalliers and difpenfers with their own confciences and oaths.

119. Convenient time to be affigued for framing Presentments.

FOR the avoiding of fuch inconveniences as heretofore have happened by the hafty making of bills of prefentments upon the days of the Vifitation and Synods, it is ordered, That always hereafter every Chancellor, Archdeacon, Commissary, and Official, and every other person having ecclesiastical jurisdiction, at the ordinary time when the Church-wardens are sworn; and the Archbithop and Bishops, when he or they do summon their Visitation, shall deliver, or cause to be delivered to the Church-wardens, Quest-men, and Side-men of every parish, or to some of them, such books of articles as they, or any of them, shall require, for the year following, the said Church-wardens, Quest-men, and Side-men to ground their presentments upon, at such times as they are to exhibit them. In which book shall be contained the form of the oath, which must be taken immediately before every such presentment; to the intent that, having before-hand time sufficient, not only to peruse and consider what their said oath shall be, but the articles also whereupon they are to ground their presentments, they may frame them at home both advisedly and truly, to the discharge of their own consciences, after they are sworn, as becometh honest and godly men.

120. None to be cited into Ecclesiastical Courts by Process of Quorum Nomina.

O Bishop, Chancellor, Archdeacon, Official, or other Ecclesiastical Judge, shall suffer any general processes of Quorum Nomina to be sent out of his court; except the names of all such as thereby are to be cited shall be first expressly entered by the hand of the Registrar, or his Deputy, under the said processes, and the said processes and names be first subscribed by the Judge, or his Deputy, and his seal thereto affixed.

121. None to be cited into Several Courts for one Crime.

IN places where the Bishop and Archdeacon do by pre-feription or composition visit at several times in one and the fame year, left for one and the felf-fame fault any of his Majesty's subjects should be challenged and molested in divers Ecclesiastical Courts; we order and appoint, That every Archdeacon, or his Official, within one month after the Vintation ended that year, and the prefentments received, shall certify under his hand and feal to the Bishop, or his Chancellor, the names and crimes of all fuch as are detected and prefented in his faid Vifitation, to the end the Chancellor shall thenceforth forbear to convent any person for any crime or cause so detected or prefented to the Archdeacon. And the Chancellor within the like time after the Bishop's Visitation ended, and prefentments received, shall under his hand and feal fignify to the Archdeacon, or his Official, the names and crimes of all fuch persons which shall be detected or presented unto him in that Visitation, to the same intent as is aforefaid. And if thefe officers shall not certify each other, as is here prescribed, or after such certificate shall intermeddle with the crimes or perfons detected and prefented in each other's Vifitation; then every of them fo offending shall be suspended from all exercise of his jurisdiction by the Bishop of the diocese, until he shall repay the costs and expences which the parties grieved have been at by that yexation.

he

122. No Sentence of Deprivation or Deposition to be pronounced against a Minister, but by the Bishop.

WHEN any Minister is complained of in any Ecclefiaftical Court belonging to any Bishop of his province, for any crime, the Chancellor, Commillary, Official, or any other having ecclefiaftical jurifdiction, to whom it thall appertain, thall expedite the cause by processes and other proceedings against him: and upon contumacy, for not appearing, shall first suspend him; and afterward, his contumacy continuing, excommunicate him. But if he appear, and fubmit himself to the course of law, then the matter being ready for fentence, and the merits of his offence exacting by law either deprivation from his living, or deposition from the ministry, no such fentence shall be pronounced by any person whosoever, but only by the Bishop, with the affistance of his Chancellor, the Dean (if they may conveniently be had) and fome of the Prebendaries, if the court be kept near the Cathedral Church, or of the Archdeacon, if he may be had conveniently, and two other at the least grave Ministers and Preachers, to be called by the Bishop, when the court is kept in other places.

123. No Ast to be sped but in open Court.

O Chancellor, Commissary, Archdeacon, Official, or any other person using ecclesiastical jurisdiction whosoever, shall speed any judicial act, either of contentious or voluntary jurisdiction, except he have the ordinary Registrar of that court, or his lawful Deputy: or if he or they will not, or cannot, be present, then such persons as by law are allowed in that behalf to write or speed the same, under pain of suspension ipso facto.

124. No Court to have more than one Scal.

No Chancellor, Commissary, Archdeacon, Official, or any other exercising ecclesiastical jurisdiction, shall without the Bishop's consent have any more seals than one, for the sealing of all matters incident to his office: which seal shall always be kept either by himself, or by his lawful Substitute exercising jurisdiction for him, and remaining within the jurisdiction of the said Judge, or in the city or principal town of the county. This seal shall contain

ALL Chancellors, Commissaries, Archdeacons, Officials, and all other exercising ecclesiastical jurisdiction, shall appoint such meet places for the keeping of their courts, by the affignment or approbation of the Bishop of the diocese, as shall be convenient for entertainment of those that are to make their appearance there, and most indifferent for their travel. And likewise they shall keep and end their courts in such convenient time, as every man may return homewards in as due season as may be.

126. Peculiar and inferior Courts to exhibit the original Copies of Wills into the Bifhop's Registry.

WHEREAS Deans, Archdeacons, Prebendaries, Parfons, Viears, and others, exercifing ecclefiaftical jurisdiction, claim liberty to prove the last wills and testaments of perfons deceafed within their feveral jurisdictions, having no known or certain Registrars, nor public place to keep their records in; by reason whereof many wills, rights, and legacies, upon the death or change of fuch perfons, and their private Notaries, mifearry and cannot be found, to the great prejudice of his Majesty's fubjects; we therefore order and enjoin, That all fuch possessions and exercisers of peculiar jurisdiction shall once in every year exhibit into the public registry of the Bishop of the diocese, or of the Dean and Chapter, under whose jurisdiction the faid peculiars are, every original testament of every person in that time deceased, and by them proved in their feveral peculiar jurifdictions, or a true copy of every fuch testament, examined, subscribed, and sealed by the peculiar Judge and his Notary. Otherwife, if any of them fail fo to do, the Bishop of the diocese, or Dean and Chapter, unto whom the faid jurifdictions do respectively belong, shall suspend the faid parties, and every of them, from the exercise of all such peculiar jurisdiction, until they have performed this our Constitution.

127. The Quality and Oath of Judges.

O man shall hereafter be admitted a Chancellor, Commissiary, or Ossicial, to exercise any ecclesiastical jurisdiction, except he be of the full age of six and twenty years at the least, and one that is learned in the Civil and Ecclefiaftical Laws, and is at the least a Master of Arts, or Bachelor of Law, and is reasonably well practifed in the courfe thereof, as likewife well affected, and zealoufly bent to Religion, touching whose life and manners no evil example is had; and except, before he enter into or execute any fuch office, he shall take the oath of the King's fupremacy in the prefence of the Bishop, or in the open court, and shall subscribe to the Articles of Religion agreed upon in the Convocation in the year one thousand five hundred fixty and two, and shall also swear that he will, to the uttermost of his understanding, deal uprightly and justly in his office, without respect or favour of reward; the faid oaths and fubfcription to be recorded by a Regiftrar then present. And likewise all Chancellors, Commissaries, Officials, Registrars, and all other that do now possess or execute any places of ecclesiastical jurisdiction, or fervice, shall before Christmas next, in the presence of the Archbishop, or Bishop, or in open court, under whom or where they exercise their offices, take the same oaths, and fubscribe, as before is said; or, upon refusal so to do, shall be suspended from the execution of their offices, until they shall take the faid oaths, and subscribe as aforefaid.

128. The Quality of Surrogates.

NO Chancellor, Commissary, Archdeacon, Official, or any other person using ecclesiastical jurisdiction, shall at any time fubflitute in their absence any to keep any court for them, except he be either a grave Minister and a Graduate, or a licenfed public Preacher, and a beneficed man near the place where the courts are kept, or a Bachelor of Law, or a Master of Arts at least, who hath some fkill in the Civil and Ecclefiaftical Law, and is a favourer of true Religion, and a man of modest and honest converfation; under pain of suspension, for every time that they offend therein, from the execution of their offices, for the fpace of three months, totics quoties: and he likewife that is deputed, being not qualified as is before expressed, and yet shall prefume to be a Substitute to any Judge, and shall keep any court, as is aforefaid, shall undergo the same cenfure in manner and form as is before expressed.

Proctors.

129. Proctors not to retain Caufes without the lawful Affignment of the Parties.

be thereunto conflituted and appointed by the party himself, either before the Judge, and by act in court, or unless, in the beginning of the suit, he be by a true and sufficient proxy thereunto warranted and cuabled. We call that proxy sufficient, which is strengthened and confirmed by some authentical seal, the party's approbation, or at least his ratification therewithal concurring. All which proxies shall be forthwith by the said Proctors exhibited into the court, and be safely kept and preserved by the Registrar in the public registry of the said court. And if any Registrar or Proctor shall offend herein, he shall be secluded from the exercise of his office for the space of two months, without hope of release or restoring.

130. Proctors not to retain Causes without the Counsel of an Advocate.

FOR leffening and abridging the multitude of fuits and contentions, as also for preventing the complaints of fuitors in Courts Ecclefiastical, who many times are overthrown by the overfight and negligence, or by the ignorance and infufficiency of Proctors; and likewise for the furtherance and increase of learning, and the advancement of Civil and Canon Law, following the laudable customs heretofore observed in the courts pertaining to the Archbishop of Canterbury; we will and ordain, that no Proctor exercifing in any of them shall entertain any cause whatfoever, and keep and retain the fame for two courtdays, without the counsel and advice of an Advocate, under pain of a year's suspension from his practice; neither fhall the Judge have power to release or mitigate the said penalty, without express mandate and authority from the Archbishop aforefaid.

131. Proclors not to conclude in any Cafe without the knowledge of an Advocate.

O Judge in any of the faid courts of the Archbishop shall admit any libel, or any other matter, without the advice of an Advocate admitted to practife in the same court, or without his subscription; neither shall any Proctor conclude any cause depending without the knowledge of the Advocate retained and feed in the cause: which if any Proctor shall do, or procure to be done, or shall by any colour whatsoever defraud the Advocate of his duty or fee, or shall be negligent in repairing to the Advocate, and requiring his advice what course is to be taken in the cause, he shall be suspended from all practice for the space of six months, without hope of being thereunto resorted before the said term be fully complete.

132. Proctors prohibited the Oath, In animam domini fui.

PORASMUCH as in the probate of testaments and suits for administration of the goods of persons dying intestate, the oath usually taken by Proctors of courts, In animam constituentis, is found to be inconvenient; we do therefore decree and ordain, That every executor, or fuitor for administration, shall personally repair to the Judge in that behalf, or his Surrogate, and in his own person (and not by Proctor) take the oath accustomed in these cases. But if by reason of sickness, or age, or any other just let or impediment, he be not able to make his personal appearance before the Judge, it shall be lawful for the Judge (there being faith first made by a credible person, of the truth of his faid hindrance or impediment) to grant a commission to some grave Ecclesiastical Person, abiding near the party aforefaid, whereby he shall give power and authority to the faid Ecclefiastical Person, in his stead, to minister the accustomed oath abovementioned to the executor, or fuitor for fuch administration, requiring his said substitute, that by a faithful and trusty messenger he certify the said Judge truly and faithfully what he hath done therein, Lastly, we ordain and appoint, That no Judge or Registrar fhall in any wife receive for the writing, drawing, or fealing of any fuch commission, above the sum of six shillings and eight pence; whereof one moiety to be for the Judge, and the other for the Registrar of the said court.

FORASMUCH as it is found by experience, that the loud and confused cries and clamours of Proctors in the courts of the Archbishop are not only troublesome and offensive to the Judges and Advocates, but also give occasion to the standers by, of contempt and calumny toward the court itself; that more respect may be had to the dignity of the Judge than heretofore, and that causes may more easily and commodiously be handled and dispatched, we charge and enjoin, That all Proctors in the pp 2 faid courts do especially intend, that the acts be faithfully entered and set down by the Registrar, according to the advice and direction of the Advocate; that the said Proctors refrain loud speech and babbling, and behave themselves quietly and modestly: and that when either the Judges or Advocates, or any of them, shall happen to speak, they presently be silent, upon pain of silencing for two whole terms then immediately following every such offence of theirs. And if any of them shall the second time offend herein, and after due monition shall not reform himself, let him be for ever removed from his practice.

Registrars.

134. Abuses to be reformed in Registrars.

IF any Registrar, or his Deputy or Substitute whatsoever, shall receive any certificate without the knowledge and confent of the Judge of the court, or willingly omit to cause any person cited to appear upon any court-day, to be called; or unduly put off and defer the examination of witnesses to be examined by a day set and assigned by the Judge; or do not obey and observe the judicial and lawful monition of the faid Judge; or omit to write, or cause to be written, such citations and decrees as are to be put in execution, and fet forth before the next court-day; or shall not cause all testaments exhibited into his office to be registered within a convenient time; or shall fet down or enact, as decreed by the Judge, any thing false, or conceited by himself, and not so ordered or decreed by the Judge; or, in the transmission of processes to the Judge ad quem, shall add or insert any falsehood or untruth, or omit any thing therein, either by cunning, or by grofs negligence; or in causes of instance, or promoted of office, shall receive any reward in favour of either party; or be of counfel directly or indirectly with either of the parties in fuit; or in the execution of their office shall do aught else maliciously, or fraudulently, whereby the faid Ecclefiaffical Judge, or his proceedings, may be flaudered or defamed; we will and ordain, That the faid Registrar, or his Deputy or Substitute, offending in all or any of the premisses, shall by the Bishop of the diocese be suspended from the exercise of his office for the space of one, two, or three months, or more, according to the quality of his offence; and that the faid Bishop shall assign some other Public Notary to execute and discharge all things pertaining to his office, during the time of his faid fuspen-

135. A certain Rate of Fees due to all Ecclesiastical Officers.

NO Bishop, Suffragan, Chancellor, Commissary, Archdeacon, Official, nor any other exercifing ecclefiaftical jurifdiction whatfoever, nor any Registrar of any Ecclefiaftical Courts, nor any Minister belonging to any of the faid offices or courts, shall hereafter, for any cause incident to their feveral offices, take or receive any other or greater fees, than fuch as were certified to the most reverend Father in God, John late Archbishop of Canterbury, in the year of our Lord God one thousand five hundred ninety and feven, and were by him ratified and approved; under pain, that every fuch Judge, Officer, or Minister offending herein, shall be suspended from the exercise of their feveral offices for the space of fix months, for every fuch offence. Always provided, That if any question shall arise concerning the certainty of the faid fees, or any of them, then those fees shall be held for lawful, which the Archbishop of Canterbury for the time being shall under his hand approve, except the statutes of this realm before made do in any particular case express some other sees to be due. Provided furthermore, That no fee or money shall be received either by the Archbishop, or any Bishop, or Suffragan, either directly or indirectly, for admitting of any into facred orders; nor that any other person or perfons under the faid Archbishop, Bishop, or Suffragan, shall for parchment, writing, wax, fealing, or any other respect thereunto appertaining, take above ten shillings, under fuch pains as are already by law preferibed.

136. A Table of the Rates and Fees to be fit up in Courts and Registries.

WE do likewife conflitute and appoint, That the Registrars belonging to every such Ecclesistical Judge shall place two tables, containing the several rates and sums of all the said sees; one in the usual place or consistory where the court is kept, and the other in his registry; and both of them in such fort, as every man, whom it concerneth, may without distinuty come to the view and perusal thereof, and take a copy of them: the same tables to be set up before the Feast of the Nativity next ensuing. And if any Registrar shall sail to place the said tables according to the tenor hereof, he shall be sufpended from the execution of his office, until he cause the fame to be accordingly done: and the faid tables being once fet up, if he shall at any time remove, or suffer the same to be removed, hidden, or any way hindered from fight, contrary to the true meaning of this Constitution, he shall for every such offence be suspended from the exercise of his office for the space of fix months.

137. The whole Fees for sheaving Letters of Orders, and other Licences, due but once in every Bishop's time.

RORASMUCH as the chief and principal cause and use of Visitation is, that the Bishop, Archdeacon, or other affigned to vifit, may get fome good knowledge of the frate, fusiciency, and ability of the Clergy, and other perfons whom they are to visit; we think it convenient, that every Parfon, Vicar, Curate, Schoolmaster, or other person licensed whosoever, do at the Bishop's first Visitation, or at the next Vifitation after his admission, shew and exhibit unto him his Letters of Orders, Inflitution, and Induction, and all other his Difpenfations, Licences, or Faculties whatfoever, to be by the faid Bishop either allowed, or (if there be just cause) disallowed and rejected: and being by him approved, to be, as the cuftom is, figned by the Registrar; and that the whole fees accustomed to be paid in the Vifitations in respect of the premisses, be paid only once in the whole time of every Bishop, and afterwards but half of the faid accustomed fees in every other Vifitation, during the faid Bishop's continuance.

Apparitors.

138. The Number of Apparitors restrained.

Apparitors, we think it meet that the multitude of Apparitors be (as much as is possible) abridged or restrained: wherefore we decree and ordain, That no Bishop or Archideaeon, or their Vicars, or Officials, or other inferior Ordinarics, shall depute or have more Apparitors to serve in their jurisdictions respectively, than either they or their predecessors were accustomed to have thirty years before the publishing of these our present Constitutions. All which Apparitors shall by themselves faithfully execute their offices; neither shall they, by any colour or pretence whatsoever, cause or substitutes, unless it be upon some good cause to be first known and approved by the Ordinary of the place. Morcover, they shall not take upon them the office of Promoters or Informers for the court, neither shall they exact more or greater fees than are in thefe our Conftitutions formerly prescribed. And if either the number of the Apparitors deputed thall exceed the aforefaid limitation, or any of the faid Apparitors shall offend in any of the premisses; the persons deputing them, if they be Bifhops, shall, upon admonition of their superior, discharge the persons exceeding the number so limited; if inferior Ordinaries, they shall be suspended from the execution of their office, until they have difmissed the Apparitors by them fo deputed; and the parties themselves so deputed shall for ever be removed from the office of Apparitors; and if, being fo removed, they defift not from the exercise of their faid offices, let them be punished by ecclefiastical censures, as persons contumacious. Provided, That if upon experience the number of the faid Apparitors be too great in any diocese in the judgment of the Archbishop of Canterbury for the time being, they shall by him be fo abridged, as he shall think meet and convenient.

Authority of Synods.

139. A National Synod the Church Representative.

WHOSOEVER shall hereafter affirm, That the sacred Synod of this nation, in the name of Christ and by the King's authority assembled, is not the true Church of England by representation, let him be excommunicated, and not restored, until he repent, and publicly revoke that his wicked error.

140. Synods conclude as well the absent as the present.

WHOSOEVER shall affirm, That no manner of person, either of the Clergy or Laity, not being themselves particularly assembled in the said facred Synod, are to be subject to the decrees thereof in causes ecclesiastical, (made and ratified by the King's Majesty's supreme authority) as not having given their voices unto them, let him be excommunicated, and not restored, until he repent, and publicly revoke that his wicked error.

141. Depravers of the Synod cenfured.

WHOSOEVER shall hereafter assirm, That the facred Synod, assembled as aforesaid, was a company of such persons as did conspire together against godly and religious professors of the Gospel; and that therefore both they and their proceedings in making of Canons and Constitutions in causes ecclesiastical by the King's authority, as aforesaid, ought to be despised and contemned, the same being ratisfied, confirmed, and enjoined by the said regal power, supremacy, and authority; let them be excommunicated, and not restored; until they repent, and publicly revoke that their wicked error.

WE of our princely inclination and royal care for the maintenance of the present estate and government of the Church of England, by the Laws of this our Realm now fettled and established, baving diligently, with great contentment and comfort, read and confidered of all these their faid Canons, Orders, Ordinances, and Constitutions, agreed upon, as is before expressed; and finding the same such as we are perfuaded will be very profitable, not only to our Clergy, but to the whole Church of this our Kingdom, and to all the true Members of it, if they be well observed; have therefore for us, our Heirs, and lawful Succeffors, of our especial grace, certain knowledge, and mere motion, given, and by thefe prefents do give our royal affent, according to the form of the faid Statute or AEt of Parliament aforefaid, to all and every of the faid Canons, Orders, Ordinances, and Constitutions, and to all and every thing in them contained, as they are before suritten.

And furthermore, we do not only by our faid Prerogative Royal, and supreme Authority in Causes Ecclesiassical, ratify, confirm, and establish, by these our Letters Patent, the said Canons, Orders, Ordinances, and Constitutions, and all and every thing in them contained, as is aforesaid; but do likewise propound, publish, and straightway enjoin and command by our said Authority, and by these our Letters Patent, the same to be diligently observed, executed, and equally kept by all our loving Subjects of this our Kingdom, both within the Provinces of Canterbury and York, in all points wherein they do or may concern every or any of them, according to this our will and pleasure hereby signified and expressed; and that likewise, for the better observation of them, every Minister, by what name or title soever he be called, shall in the Parish Church

Church or Chapel where he hath charge, read all the faid Canons, Orders, Ordinances, and Constitutions, once every year, upon some Sundays or Holy-days, in the Afternoon, before Divine Service, dividing the same in such fort, as that the one half may be read one day, and the other another day: the Book of the faid Canons to be provided at the charge of the Parish, betwixt this and the Feast of the Nativity of our Lord God next enfuing: straitly charging and commanding all Archbishops, Bishops, and all other that exercise any Ecclefiastical Jurisdiction within this Realm, every man in his place, to see, and procure (so much as in them lieth) all and every of the same Canons, Orders, Ordinances, and Constitutions, to be in all points duly observed; not sparing to execute the penalties in them severally mentioned, upon any that shall wittingly or wilfully break or neglect to observe the same, as they tender the bonour of God, the peace of the Church, the tranquillity of the Kingdom, and their duties and service to us their King and Sovereign.

The Table of the Constitutions and Canons Ecclesiastical.

Of the Church of England.

1. HE King's Supremacy over the Church of England, in Causes Ecclesiattical, to be maintained.

2. Impugners of the King's Supremacy censured.

3. The Church of England a true and apostolical Church.

4. Impugners of the public Worship of God, established in the Church of England, censured.

5. Impugners of the Articles of Religion, established in the Church

6. Impugners of the Rites and Ceremonies, established in the Church of England, censured.

7. Impugners of the Government of the Church of England by

ARTICLES

Agreed upon by the Archbishops and Bishops of both Provinces, and the whole Clergy, in the Convocation holden at London, in the Year 1562, for the avoiding of Diversities of Opinions, and for the stablishing of Consent touching true Religion: Reprinted by his Majesty's Commandment, with his Royal Declaration prefixed thereunto.

His Majesty's Declaration.

BEING by God's Ordinance, according to our just Title, Defender of the Faith, and Supreme Governor of the Church, within these our Dominions, we hold it most agreeable to this our kingly Office, and our own religious zeal to conserve and maintain the Church committed to our charge, in the unity of true Religion, and in the hond of Peace; and not to suffer unnecessary Disputations, Altercations, or Questions to be raised, which may nourish faction both in the Church and Commonwealth. We have therefore, upon mature deliberation, and with the advice of so many of our Bishops as might conveniently be called together, thought fit to make this Declaration following:

That the Articles of the Church of England (which have been allowed and authorized heretofore, and which our Clergy generally have subscribed unto) do contain the true Doctrine of the Church of England, agreeable to God's Word: which we do therefore ratify and consirm, requiring all our loving subjects to continue in the uniform profession thereof, and prohibiting the least difference from the said Articles; which to that end we command to be new printed, and this our Declar

That we are Supreme Governor of the Church of England: and that if any difference arise about the external policy, concerning the Injunctions, Canons, and other Constitutions whatsoever thereto belonging, the Clergy in their Convocation is to order and settle them, having first obtained leave under under our Broad Seal so to do, and we approving their said Ordinances and Constitutions; providing that none be made contrary to the Laws and Customs of the Land.

That out of our princely care, that the Churchmen may do the work which is proper unto them, the Bishops and Clergy, from time to time in Convocation, upon their humble desire, shall have Licence under our Broad Seal to deliberate of, and to do all such things, as being made plain by them, and affented unto by us, shall concern the settled continuance of the Dostrine and Discipline of the Church of England now established; from which we will not endure any varying or departing in the least degree.

That for the present, though some differences have been ill raised, yet we take comfort in this, that all Clergymen within our Realm have always most willingly subscribed to the Articles established; which is an argument to us, that they all agree in the true, usual, literal meaning of the said Articles; and that even in those curious points, in which the present differences lie, men of all sorts take the Articles of the Church of England to be for them; which is an argument again, that none of them intend any desertion of the Articles esta-

That therefore in these both curious and unhappy differences, which have for so many hundred years, in different times and places, exercised the Church of Christ, we will, that all further curious search be laid aside, and these disputes shut up in God's promises, as they be generally set forth to us in the holy Scriptures, and the general meaning of the Articles of the Church of England, according to them. And that no man hereafter shall either print or preach to draw the Article aside any way, but shall submit to it in the plain and full meaning thereof; and shall not put his own sense or comment to be the meaning of the Article, but shall take it in the literal and grammatical sense.

That if any Public Reader in either of our Universities, or any Head or Master of a College, or any other person respectively in either of them, shall affix any new sense to any Article, or shall publicly read, determine, or hold any public disputation, or suffer any such to be held either way, in either the Universities or Colleges respectively; or if any Divine in the Universities shall preach or print any thing either way, other than is already established in Convocation with our Royal Assent; he or they the offenders shall be liable to our displeasure, and the Church's censure in our Commission Ecclesiassical, as well as any other: and we will see there shall be due execu-

ARTICLES

I. Of Faith in the Holy Trinity.

THERE is but one living and true God, everlasting, without body, parts, or passions; of infinite power, wisdom, and goodness; the Maker and Preserver of all things both visible and invisible. And in unity of this Godhead there be three persons, of one substance, power, and eternity; the Father, the Son, and the Holy Ghost.

II. Of the Word or Son of God, which was made very Man.

THE Son, which is the Word of the Father, begotten from everlasting of the Father, the very and eternal God, of one substance with the Father, took man's nature in the womb of the blessed Virgin, of her substance: so that two whole and perfect natures, that is to say, the Godhead and Manhood, were joined together in one Person, never to be divided, whereof is one Christ, very God, and very Man; who truly suffered, was crucified, dead, and buried, to reconcile his Father to us, and to be a sacrifice, not only for original guilt, but also for actual sins of men.

III. Of the going down of Christ into Hell.

As Christ died for us, and was buried; so also is it to be believed that he went down into hell.

IV. Of the Refurrection of Christ.

CHRIST did truly rife again from death, and took again his body, with flesh, bones, and all things appertaining to the persection of man's nature; wherewith he ascended into heaven, and there sitteth until he return to judge all men at the last day.

V. Of the Holy Ghost.

THE Holy Ghoft, proceeding from the Father and the Son, is of one substance, majesty, and glory with the Father and the Son, very and eternal God.

VI. Of the Sufficiency of the holy Scriptures for Salvation.

HOLY Scripture containeth all things necessary to Salvation: so that whatsoever is not read therein, nor may be proved thereby, is not to be required of any man, that it should be believed as an article of the faith, or be a q 2 thought thought requisite or necessary to falvation. In the name of the holy Scripture we do understand those Canonical Books of the Old and New Testament, of whose authority was never any doubt in the Church.

Of the Names and Number of the Canonical Books.

GENESIS,
Exodus, Leviticus, Numbers,
Deuteronomy, Jofhua,
Judges,
Ruth,
The First Book of Samuel,
The Second Book of Samuel,
The First Book of Kings,
The Second Book of Chronicles,

The Second Book of Chronicles,
The First Book of Esdras,
The Second Book of Esdras,
The Book of Esther,
The Book of Job,
The Pfalms,
The Proverbs,
Ecclesiastes, or Preacher,
Cantica, or Songs of Solomon,
Four Prophets the greater,

Twelve Prophets the leis.

And the other books (as Hierome faith) the Church doth read for example of life and instruction of manners; but yet doth it not apply them to establish any doctrine: such are these following:

The Third Book of Esdras,
The Fourth Book of Esdras,
The Book of Tobias,
The Book of Judith,
The rest of the Book of Esther,
The Book of Wisdom,
Jesus the Son of Sirach, Baruch the Prophet,

The Song of the Three Children,
The Story of Susannah, Of Bel and the Dragon,
The Prayer of Manasses,
The First Book of Maccabees,
The Second Book of Maccabees

All the Books of the New Testament, as they are commonly received, we do receive, and account them Canonical.

VII. Of the Old Testament.

THE Old Testament is not contrary to the New: for both in the Old and New Testament everlasting life is offered to mankind by Christ, who is the only Mediator between God and man, being both God and man. Wherefore they are not to be heard, which seign that the old Fathers did look only for transitory promises. Although the Law given from God by Moses, as touching ceremonies and rites, do not bind Christian men, nor the civil precepts thereof ought of necessity to be received in any commonwealth; yet notwithstanding, no Christian man whatsoever is free from the obedience of the Commandments which are called moral.

VIII. Of the three Creeds.

THE three Creeds, Nicene Creed, Athanasius's Creed, and that which is commonly called the Apostles' Creed, ought thoroughly to be received and believed: for they may be proved by most certain warrants of holy Scripture.

IX. Of Original or Birth Sin.

RIGINAL fin standeth not in the following of Adam, (as the Pelagians do vainly talk;) but it is the fault and corruption of the nature of every man, that naturally is ingendered of the offspring of Adam; whereby man is very far gone from original righteoutness, and is of his own nature inclined to evil, fo that the flesh lusteth always contrary to the Spirit; and therefore in every person born into this world, it deferveth God's wrath and damnation. And this infection of nature doth remain, yea, in them that are regenerated: whereby the lust of the flesh, called in Greek, φρόνημα σαρκός, which some do expound the wisdom, fonie fenfuality, fome the affection, fome the defire of the flesh, is not subject to the law of God. And although there is no condemnation for them that believe and are baptized, yet the Apostle doth confess, that concupifcence and luft hath of itself the nature of fin.

X. Of Free-will.

THE condition of man after the fall of Adam is fuch, that he cannot turn and prepare himfelf by his own natural strength and good works to faith, and calling upon God: wherefore we have no power to do good works pleasant and acceptable to God without the grace of God by Christ preventing us, that we may have a good will, and working with us when we have that good will.

XI. Of the Justification of Man.

WE are accounted righteous before God, only for the merit of our Lord and Saviour Jefus Christ by faith, and not for our own works or defervings: wherefore, that we are justified by faith only, is a most whole-

XII. Of good Works.

LBEIT that good works, which are the fruits of A faith, and follow after justification, cannot put away our fins, and endure the feverity of God's judgment; yet are they pleasing and acceptable to God in Christ, and do fpring out necessarily of a true and lively faith; infomuch that by them a lively faith may be as evidently known, as a tree discerned by the fruit.

XIII. Of Works before Justification.

INTORKS done before the grace of Christ, and the inspiration of his Spirit, are not pleasant to God; forasmuch as they spring not of faith in Jesus Christ, neither do they make men meet to receive grace, or (as the School-Authors fay) deserve grace of congruity: yea, rather for that they are not done as God hath willed and commanded them to be done, we doubt not but they have the nature of fin.

XIV. Of Works of Supercrogation.

TOLUNTARY works besides, over and above God's commandments, which they call Works of Supererogation, cannot be taught without arrogancy and impiety: for by them men do declare, That they do not only render unto God as much as they are bound to do, but that they do more for his fake, than of bounden duty is required: whereas Christ saith plainly, When ye have done all that are commanded to you, say, We are unprofitable fervants.

XV. Of Christ alone without Sin.

CHRIST in the truth of our nature was made like unto us in all things, fin only except, from which he was clearly void, both in his flesh, and in his spirit. He came to be the Lamb without spot, who, by facrifice of himself once made, should take away the fins of the world: and fin (as St. John faith) was not in him. But all we the rest (although baptized and born again in Christ) yet offend in many things; and if we fay we have no fin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us.

^{*} The Homily here referred to is that entitled, "Of the Salvation of all Mankind," Book i. Num. 3. XVI.

XVI. Of Sin after Baptism.

NOT every deadly fin, willingly committed after baptifm, is fin against the Holy Ghost, and unpardonable. Wherefore the grant of repentance is not to be denied to fuch as fall into fin after baptism. After we have received the Holy Ghost, we may depart from grace given, and fall into sin, and by the grace of God we may arise again, and amend our lives. And therefore they are to be condemned, which fay, they can no more fin as long as they live here, or deny the place of forgiveness to such as truly repent.

XVII. Of Predestination and Election.

PREDESTINATION to life is the everlasting purpose of God, whereby (before the foundations of the world were laid) he hath constantly decreed by his counsel, secret to us, to deliver from curse and danmation those whom he hath chosen in Christ out of mankind, and to bring them by Christ to everlasting falvation, as vessels made to honour. Wherefore they which be endued with fo excellent a benefit of God, be called according to God's purpose by his Spirit working in due season: they through grace obey the calling: they be justified freely: they be made fons of God by adoption: they be made like the image of his only begotten Son Jefus Christ: they walk religiously in good works, and at length, by God's mercy, they attain to everlasting felicity.

As the godly confideration of Predestination, and our Election in Christ, is full of sweet, pleasant, and unspeakable comfort to godly persons, and such as feel in themfelves the working of the Spirit of Christ, mortifying the works of the flesh, and their earthly members, and drawing up their mind to high and heavenly things; as well because it doth greatly establish and confirm their faith of eternal falvation, to be enjoyed through Christ, as because it doth fervently kindle their love towards God: fo, for curious and carnal perfons, lacking the spirit of Christ, to have continually before their eyes the fentence of God's Predefination, is a most dangerous downfall, whereby the Devil doth thrust them either into desperation, or into desperation. Furthermore, we must receive God's promises in such wife, as they be generally fet forth to us in holy Scripture: and in our doings, that will of God is to be followed, which we have expressly declared unto us in the Word of God.

lowed, Q q 4

XVIII. Of obtaining eternal Salvation only by the Name of Christ.

THEY also are to be had accursed, that presume to say, that every man shall be saved by the law or sect which he professeth, so that he be diligent to frame his life according to that law, and the light of nature. For holy Scripture doth set out unto us only the name of Jesus Christ, whereby men must be saved.

XIX. Of the Church.

THE visible Church of Christ is a congregation of faithful men, in the which the pure Word of God is preached, and the Sacraments be duly ministered according to Christ's ordinance, in all those things that of necessity are requisite to the same.

As the Church of Jerufalem, Alexandria, and Antioch, have erred; fo also the Church of Rome hath erred, not only in their living and manner of ceremonies, but also in matters of faith.

XX. Of the Authority of the Church.

THE Church hath power to decree rites or ceremonics, and authority in controversies of faith: and yet it is not lawful for the Church to ordain any thing that is contrary to God's Word written, neither may it so expound one place of Scripture, that it be repugnant to another. Wherefore although the Church be a witness and a keeper of holy writ, yet as it ought not to decree any thing against the same, so besides the same ought it not to enforce any thing to be believed for necessity of salvation.

XXI. Of the Authority of General Councils.

GENERAL Councils may not be gathered together without the commandment and will of princes. And when they be gathered together, (forafmuch as they be an affembly of men, whereof all be not governed with the Spirit and Word of God) they may err, and fometimes have erred, even in things pertaining unto God. Wherefore things ordained by them as necessary to falvation have neither strength nor authority, unless it may be declared that they be taken out of holy Scripture.

XXII. Of Purgatory.

THE Romish doctrine concerning purgatory, pardons, worshipping, and adoration, as well of images, as of reliques, and also invocation of Saints, is a fond thing vainly invented, and grounded upon no warranty of Scripture, but rather repugnant to the word of God.

XXIII. Of ministering in the Congregation.

IT is not lawful for any man to take upon him the office of public preaching, or ministering the Sacraments in the congregation, before he be lawfully called and sent, to execute the same. And those we ought to judge lawfully called and fent, which be chosen and called to this work by men who have public authority given unto them in the congregation, to call and send Ministers into the Lord's vineyard.

XXIV. Of speaking in the Congregation in such a Tongue as the People understandeth.

IT is a thing plainly repugnant to the Word of God, and the custom of the primitive Church, to have public Prayer in the Church, or to minister the Sacraments, in a tongue not understanded of the people.

XXV. Of the Sacraments.

SACRAMENTS ordained of Christ be not only badges or tokens of Christian men's profession; but rather they be certain sure witnesses, and effectual signs of grace; and God's good will towards us, by the which he doth work invisibly in us, and doth not only quicken, but also strengthen and confirm our faith in him.

There are two Sacraments ordained of Christ our Lord in the Gospel, that is to say, Baptisn, and the Supper of the Lord.

Those five commonly called Sacraments, that is to say, Confirmation, Penance, Orders, Matrimony, and extreme Unction, are not to be counted for Sacraments of the Gospel, being such as have grown, partly of the corrupt soliowing of the Apostles, partly are states of life allowed in the Scriptures; but yet have not like nature of Sacraments with Baptism and the Lord's Supper, for that they have not any visible sign or ceremony ordained of God.

The Sacraments were not ordained of Christ to be gazed upon, or to be carried about; but that we should duly use them. And in such only as worthily receive the same, they have a wholesome effect or operation: but

XXVI. Of the Unworthiness of the Ministers, which hinders not the effect of the Sacraments.

ALTHOUGH in the visible Church the evil be ever mingled with the good, and sometimes the evil have chief authority in the ministration of the Word and Sacraments; yet forasmuch as they do not the same in their own name, but in Christ's, and do minister by his commission and authority, we may use their ministry, both in hearing the Word of God, and in the receiving of the Sacraments. Neither is the effect of Christ's ordinance taken away by their wickedness, nor the grace of God's gifts diminished from such, as by faith and rightly do receive the Sacraments ministered unto them; which be effectual, because of Christ's institution and promise, although they be ministered by evil men.

Nevertheless, it appertained to the discipline of the Church, that enquiry be made of evil Ministers, and that they be accused by those that have knowledge of their offences; and finally being found guilty, by just judgment

XXVII. Of Baptism.

PAPTISM is not only a fign of profession, and mark of difference, whereby Christian men are discerned from others that be not christened; but it is also a fign of regeneration or new birth, whereby, as by an instrument, they that receive Baptism rightly are grafted into the Church: the promises of forgiveness of fin, and of our adoption to be the sons of God by the Holy Ghost, are visibly signed and sealed: faith is confirmed, and grace increased by virtue of prayer unto God. The Baptism of young children is in any wife to be retained in the Church, as most agreeable with the institution of Christ.

XXVIII. Of the Lord's Supper.

THE Supper of the Lord is not only a fign of the love that Christians ought to have among themselves one to another; but rather is a Sacrament of our redemption by Christ's death: infomuch that to such as rightly, worthily, and with faith receive the same, the bread which we break is a partaking of the body of Christ; and likewise the cup of blessing is a partaking of the blood of Christ.

Tranfub-

Transubstantiation (or the change of the substance of bread and wine) in the Supper of the Lord, cannot be proved by holy Writ; but is repugnant to the plain words of Scripture, overthroweth the nature of a Sacrament, and hath given occasion to many superstitions.

The body of Christ is given, taken, and eaten in the Supper, only after an heavenly and spiritual manner. And the mean, whereby the body of Christ is received and eaten in the Supper, is Faith.

The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper was not by Christ's ordinance reserved, carried about, lifted up, or worshipped.

XXIX. Of the Wicked, which eat not the Body of Christ, in the use of the Lord's Supper.

THE wicked, and such as be void of a lively faith, although they do carnally and visibly press with their teeth, as St. Augustine faith, the Sacrament of the body and blood of Christ, yet in no wife are they partakers of Christ, but rather to their condemnation do eat and drink the sign or Sacrament of so great a thing.

XXX. Of both Kinds.

THE Cup of the Lord is not to be denied to the Laypeople: for both the parts of the Lord's Sacrament, by Christ's ordinance and commandment, ought to be ministered to all Christian men alike.

XXXI. Of the one Oblation of Christ finished upon the Cross.

THE offering of Christ once made, is that perfect redemption, propitiation, and satisfaction for all the fins of the whole world, both original and actual; and there is none other satisfaction for sin, but that alone. Wherefore the facrifices of Masses, in the which it was commonly said, that the Priest did offer Christ for the quick and the dead, to have remission of pain or guilt, were blasphemous sables, and dangerous deceits.

XXXII. Of the Marriage of Priesls.

BISHOPS, Priests, and Deacons, are not commanded by God's Law, either to yow the estate of single life, or to abstain from marriage: therefore it is lawful for them, as for all other Christian men, to marry at their own discretion, as they shall judge the same to serve better to godliness.

XXXIII. Of excommunicate Perfons, how they are to be avoided.

THAT person, which, by open denunciation of the Church, is rightly cut off from the unity of the Church, and excommunicated, ought to be taken of the whole multitude of the faithful, as an Heathen and Publican, until he be openly reconciled by penance, and received into the Church by a judge that hath authority thereunto.

XXXIV. Of the Traditions of the Church.

IT is not necessary that traditions and ceremonies be in all places one, or utterly like; for at all times they have been diverse, and may be changed according to the diversity of countries, times, and men's manners, so that nothing be ordained against God's Word. Whosoever, through his private judgment, willingly and purposely doth openly break the traditions and ceremonies of the Church, which be not repugnant to the Word of God, and be ordained and approved by common authority, ought to be rebuked openly, (that other may fear to do the like) as he that offendeth against the common order of the Church, and hurteth the authority of the Magistrate, and woundeth the consciences of the weak brethren.

Every particular or national Church hath authority to ordain, change, and abolish ceremonies or rites of the Church, ordained only by man's authority, so that all things be done to edifying.

XXXV. Of the Homilies.

THE fecond Book of Homilies, the feveral titles whereof we have joined under this Article, doth contain a godly and wholesome doctrine, and necessary for these times, as doth the former book of Homilies, which were set forth in the time of Edward the Sixth; and therefore we judge them to be read in Churches by the Ministers, diligently and distinctly, that they may be understanded of the people.

19. Of Repentance.

20. Against Idleness. 21. Against Rebellion.

XXXVI. Of Confecration of Bifbops and Ministers.

THE Book of Confectation of Archbifhops and Bifhops, and Ordering of Priefts and Deagons, lately for food and Ordering of Priests and Deacons, lately set forth in the time of Edward the Sixth, and confirmed at the fame time by authority of Parliament, doth contain all things necessary to such confectation and ordering : neither hath it any thing that of itself is superstitious and ungodly. And therefore whofoever are confecrated or ordered according to the rites of that book, fince the fecond year of the forenamed King Edward, unto this time, or hereafter shall be confecrated or ordered according to the same rites, we decree all fuch to be rightly, orderly, and lawfully confecrated and ordered.

XXXVII. Of the Civil Magistrates.

THE King's Majesty hath the chief power in this realm of England, and other his dominions, unto whom the chief government of all effates of this realm, whether they be ecclefiaftical or civil, in all causes doth appertain, and is not, nor ought to be, subject to any foreign jurisdiction.

Where we attribute to the King's Majesty the chief government, by which titles we understand the minds of fome flanderous folks to be offended, we give not to our Princes the ministering either of God's Word, or of the Sacraments, the which thing the Injunctions also lately fet forth by Elizabeth our Queen do most plainly testify; but that only prerogative, which we see to have been given always to all godly Princes in holy Scriptures by God himself; that is, that they should rule all estates and degrees committed to their charge by God, whether they be ecclesiastical or temporal, and restrain with the civil sword the stubborn and evil doers.

of England.

The laws of the realm may punish Christian men with death, for heinous and grievous offences.

XXXVIII. Of Christian Men's Goods, which are not common.

THE riches and goods of Christians are not common, as touching the right, title, and possession of the same, as certain Anabaptists do falsely boast. Notwithstanding every man ought, of such things as he possesset, liberally to give alms to the poor, according to his ability.

XXXIX. Of a Christian Man's Oath.

As we confess that vain and rash swearing is forbidden Christian men by our Lord Jesus Christ, and James his Apostle; so we judge that Christian Religion doth not prohibit, but that a man may swear when the Magistrate requireth, in a cause of faith and charity, so it be done according to the Prophet's teaching, in justice, judgment, and truth.

THE RATIFICATION.

THIS Book of Articles before rehearfed is again approved, and allowed to be bolden and executed within the realm, by the affent and confent of our Sovereign Lady Elizabeth, by the Grace of God, of England, France, and Ireland, Queen, Defender of the Faith, &c. Which Articles were deliberately read, and confirmed again by the subscription of the hands of the Archbishop and Bishops of the Upper House, and by the Subscription of the whole Clergy of the Nether House, in their Convocation, in the year of our Lord 1571.
